Owing to the fact that Nonamaker, Dunellen's third sacker, and Piddington, its outfielder, were away, which necessitated the bringing in of Miller center to third and the placing of C. Montross, a new man, in left field, Jimmy Montross lost a game which he deserved to win as Miller played poorly out of his position and C. Montross was apparently too anxious to make a good showing. Montross not only held the Centrals to two scattering hits but he also struck out seven of them, three of them falling before his fast breaking curves in the ninth inning on eleven pitched balls. Jimmy did still more getting three of Dunellen's five hits and participating in a fast double play.

The only chance that Dunellen had to score was in the seventh innings. Ramsberger the first man up filed out to left; J. Montross singled; Clark, the next man up filed out to third; C. Montross took first on a dead ball, J. Montross going to second; Dodwell singled, passed third but the ball was fielded too quickly for Jimmy to score; with the bases filled Garretson hit a sharp grounder to Monihan, who relayed it to Meehan for the third out. Pender's outfielders gave him good support. Ellis robbed Miller of what looked to be a sure home run in the first. Altogether Bender, the manager of the Centrals, should be congratulated in at last getting together such a nine of ball players, who by the way have not been scored on in the last three games.

FIELD DAY FOR THE FARMERS OF STATE

The fourth field meeting of the State Board of Agriculture will be held at the Agricultural College farm at New Brunswick Saturday, August 9. In the invitation issued for the vent it is stated in part:

This, the fourth summer meeting and field day of the New Jersey State Board of Agriculture, of the granges and the farmers of the State, is arranged for in pursuance of the action of the executive committeeo of the board. The previous meetings of this character held at the State Agricultural College farm were interesting and profitable. Such gatherings promote acquaintance and social intercourse among the farmers and their families throughout the State and they afford opportunity to note what is being done by the teachers and those engaged at the college farm in a scientific and experimental way for the advancement of the agricultural industry in New Jersey. For this later reason, if for no other, these meetings afford an opportunity that should not be ignored.

To observe what others are doing in similar lines of work by comparing their methods and results with our own, we may be able to improve our methods and increase our profits. Seasonable crops have done very well at the farm this year; especially is this true of the alfalfa and forage crops. The first cutting of alfalfa yielded over three tons per acre of cured hay and the viewing of this crop alone will be well worth while. If these results follow this annual pilgrimage to the State College farm the time will have been wisely used. To this may be so in the hope of your executive committee.

The college farm became a part of the equipment of the experiment station on April 1, 1896, and since that time it has been used for experiment in four main lines, viz.: (1) Annual husbandry and dairying, (2) horticulture, (3) plant breeding, (4) plant nutrition.

New buildings have been added since our first summer meeting, and the experimental work has been extended. After lunch visitors will be given an opportunity to inspect the short course buildings and the work being done on the farm in the various experimental lines. All farmers and their families throughout the State of New Jersey are invited to attend this meeting, and members of the press and any others intersted in the great and important work of agriculture are cordially invited.

Promptly at 10.30 a. m. the visitors and delegates will meet in the judging pavilion at the college farm, where the formal exercise will begin and continue until 12 o'clock m. The meeting will be called to order by the vice president, John T. Cox, with a short address. This will be followed by George W. F. Gaunt and Professors Lipman, Blake, Minkler and others in charge of the several lines of work under their personal supervision.

At 12 m. the meeting will adjourn for luncheon. Visitors are at liberty to bring their luncheon with them and serve on the lawn if they so desire. Provision will also be made whereby those who wish to do so may purchase a luncheon on the grounds. After luncheon the visitors will inspect the farm with its various products.

PLAINFIELD'S TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP TOURNEY

Both the first and second rounds were completed and two of the four in the third round were played in the Plainfield open championship lawn tennis tournament which began Saturday afternoon on the courts of the Plainfield Country Club with twenty-four entries. The tournament will be finished next Saturday. The summary of the matches played follows:

FRESH AIR HOME NEEDS

An Appeal for Funds is Made at Sunday Afternoon Service.

ONLY $1,000 FOR THE SEASON.

And the Expenses of the Camp Will Be at Least $2,500—250 are Being Accommodated There Now.

A goodly sized crowd was in attendance at the services held at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the First Baptist church and entitled "First Baptist Sunday." The meeting was lead by George A. Chapman and Rev. Dr. John A. Chamblias was the afternoon's speaker. During the services, solos were rendered by Miss Ruth Harris and Miss Hazel Hatfield, contralto member of the First Baptist choir, while Howard Case, organist at that church, presided at the piano.

The afternoon's gathering was encouraging to Miss Sarah Cprry, who has charge of the camp, as well as to those who are actively engaged in the promotion of the home, because it showed to them that there is still much interest among Plainfielders in the good work that is being carried on there. However as was brought out during the afternoon by both Miss Curry and Mr. Chapman, there is need of interest in the work, especially in the financial end this year.

The camp has a yearly income of $3,000, which was made possible by the Hewitt fund. This money is devoted to the maintenance of the institution. This year the sum available from this fund will be cut down to but little over $1,000 with which the summer's work can't be carried out. This condition of affairs arises from the fact that it has been necessary to spend nearly $2,000 of that income in the repair and rejuvination of the buildings and furniture.

Consequently Miss Curry through the columns of The Daily Press, sends out an appeal to her faithful Plainfield friends to come to her aid. She has need of both finances and food, of the latter especially milk, eggs and vegetables to the good work will be gratefully received by her. She is also in need of baby carriages, and be they large or small, she will be pleased to receive them. The camp is as popular as ever this year and there are at present nearly 250 guests enrolled there, including mothers and children.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST

VOL. XLII — PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JULY 28, 1910. — NO. 30.

"Support the Constitution, which is the Cement of the Union, as well in its Limitations as in its Authorities."—Madison.

HOW NAME CITY JUDGE?

THE LAW SEEMS AMBIGUOUS.

Attorney General Appealed to to Decide the Question Which Interests Local Aspirants For the Office.

Are city judgeship nominations to be made at the primaries in September or at the party convention? That's the question puzzling the politicians, ambitious office seekers, etc., etc., today. The law bearing on the case is too deep for the layman to fathom. For that matter, it is too much for the average lawyer. Hence, the Attorney General of New Jersey has been appealed to by aspirants for the nomination to provide the solution. Draw your own conclusions from the following quotations:

The Act of 1907 says that "hereafter all candidates of political parties for the following offices, to wit, members of state Senate, members of General Assembly, county clerk, surrogate, register of deeds, sheriff, county supervisor, coroner, mayor and for all elective officers of any county in this state, to be voted for at the general election for members of the General Assembly, by the voters of any county of this state, or of any political sub-division thereof, shall be nominated directly without the intervention of delegates or conventions, at the primary elections held pursuant to the act to which this act is a supplement. * * *"

Another clause in the same act says that "not less than fifty voters of any political party in any municipality of this state, other than a county, may file with the clerk of such municipality a petition endorsing any member of their political party as a candidate for the nomination of said party to public office in said municipality in accordance with and in the manner provided by the act to which this is a supplement for the endorsing of candidates for nomination in a single ward or township, and such municipal clerk shall cause the names of all persons so nominated to be printed upon the official ballots of the respective political parties in the election districts * * *"

In the first paragraph, the office of city judge is not specifically mentioned. Is it inferred by the contents of the latter paragraph?

BOROUGH POLICE COURT HAS BUSY MORNING.

William B. Emmons, a contractor, of 38 Codington avenue, was arrested yesterday afternoon on Race street by Chief Weiss for being drunk and disorderly. Emmons has been up before the court several times previous to this one, so Recorder Dolliver this morning made it twenty dollars fine and seven days in jail.

John Doe, Richard Roe and William Doe, who claimed to be from Newark, and who were arrested by Chief Weiss on July 19 for peddling without a license, were fined ten dollars in the borough court this morning.

The case of Michael Martin against John Slevin, of Franklin place, for reckless auto driving, which was scheduled to be tried this morning, was postponed for the fifth time until tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Methodist Excursion Tomorrow.

As the weather man has promised a fine day tomorrow for the excursion of the Methodist Sunday-school excursion a record breaking crowd is expected to take the train from here at 8:15 in the morning. The Methodist Sunday-school from Dunellen as well as the two Sunday-schools of this city, together with that of Wilson Memorial church will all go on this excursion. The train leaves Dunellen at 8:00 o'clock, Clinton avenue at 8:06 and Grant avenue at 8:08.

Muffler Off, Face Cut.

John Anderson, of Watchung avenue, reported to the police at 7:30 last night that automobile No. 10,-231, while going up Watchung avenue at 6:30, removed the muffler and his son who was riding a wheel directly behind the car was struck in the face by something which cut his lip. He was not badly hurt.

Fought in Street.

David Rogan and George Ponchillas, arrested last night for fighting on the street, were given a warning and a suspended sentence by Judge William N. Runyon this morning in the city court.

PRESS AD. BRINGS BACK MR. SHOTWELL'S WALLET

William H. Shotwell, of Fairview avenue, lost his wallet on his way to the station yesterday morning. Now the wallet, beside containing a considerable sum of money, held in its leathery pockets several valuable papers and business documents.

Of course Mr. Shotwell was worried, but like the true business man that he is, he inserted a "lost ad" in The Daily Press. Such confidence did Mr. Shotwell place in this advertising medium that he asked for his pocketbook at The Press office upon his return from New York. He was told to call later in the evening.

In the meanwhile John Retzer, of 71 Watchung avenue, North Plainfield, had found the wallet and returned it to The Daily Press office. Mr. Retzer was liberally rewarded.

BANISH VOTE MACHINE FROM MUNICIPALITY

Approximately ten per cent. of the total registered vote in the given districts was cast at the special elections in the First districts of the four respective wards yesterday when the voting machines in use there were ordered abolished. In all, there are about 2,000 voters registered and the ballots cast yesterday numbered but 281. Of these all but twenty-four were recorded against the use of the automatic device.

The verdict of the people here, as it has been in all but two of the many places where the machines were installed, is to send them back to Secretary of State Dickinson, who sponsored them. At the same time, notice is given State Senator Joseph S. Freilinghuysen that there must have been some mistake on his part when he said in the Legislature last winter that there was no sentiment against the machine.

Paterson also voted on the machine yesterday. Nineteen districts ordered them cast out, while one, a strong Republican district, ordered them retained.

Here is the result in Plainfield:

First ward—For 6, against 87; Second ward—For 7, against 45; Third ward—For 5, against 52; Fourth ward—For 6, against 71. Totals—For 24, against 257.

"WHOOPING COUGH" PARTY ENJOYED BY 50 CHILDREN

A "whooping cough" party, that is to say a party given to children in the city suffering from whooping cough who cannot enjoy with the other children the fresh air of the mountains at the camp, were given an outing yesterday afternoon which all appreciated.

Six friends of the youngsters offered their automobiles and chauffeurs and about fifty children were given rides about the surrounding country, afterwards being entertained on the lawn at the residence of Miss Phillips, where ice cream and cake were plentifully supplied. The outing was under the auspices of the Charity Organization Society.

Those who furnished the automobiles were Mrs. F. E. Mead, Mrs. George Mellick, Mrs. Lawrence Vanbeuren, Miss Annie Slevin, Mrs. Henry DeForest and John P. Emmons.

TOTTEN ARRESTED FOR ALLEGED THEFT OF BICYCLE.

William Totten, of Watchung, was arrested at the show grounds last night by Patrolman Charles Flynn, who turned the prisoner over to Marshal Culver, of the borough police force, on a warrant sworn out for Totten's arrest by Recorder Campbell, of Dunellen. Totten was wanted on a charge of stealing a wheel from W. H. Cramer, of Dunellen, some time ago. Immediately after the theft, Totten disappeared and was not located until last night when he was found working with the "101 Ranch" company. Marshal Culver turned him over to the Dunellen authorities.

Totten served a term in the Somerset county jail two years ago for breaking into Conroy's carriage shop on Somerset street and stealing several horse blankets.

Euchre For Convent Fund.

There will be a euchre held on the lawn of the home of Mrs. John Walsh, 207 Madison avenue, on Friday evening, for the benefit of St. Mary's convent. The games will begin at 8 o'clock.

ALEX. D. MALLINSON DEAD

Veteran Druggist Succumbs After an Illness of Ten Weeks.

IN BUSINESS FIFTY-ONE YEARS.

Was Member of Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company—Funeral Tomorrow Afternoon.

After an illness extending over a period of ten weeks, Alexander D. Mallinson succumbed yesterday at his home, corner of Fourth and Liberty streets. He was in his sixty-third year and had been in business in this city for upward of thirty-three years. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at his late home, Rev. Dr. John A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating.

Mr. Mallinson is survived by his wife and one son, Lawrence A. Mallinson, two sisters, Mrs. W. S. Chedister, and Miss Victoria Mallinson, and one brother, Edwin Mallinson, all of Newark.

Mr. Mallinson was the oldest druggist in Plainfield, having been engaged in the business continuously for fifty-one years. With his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Mallinson, he went to Watertown, N. Y., where he obtained his early education. At the age of twelve he entered the employ of a Watertown druggist, later passing the examination which permitted him to enter the business as a drug clerk.

While in the employ of Reynolds & Stelle on North avenue, with whom he worked for seventeen years, Mr. Mallinson made a host of friends and in 1894 he established a drug store of his own in the Ulrich building and later removed to the store now occupied by Cadmus Brothers. In 1901 he made an exchange with E. S. F. Randolph at the corner of Fourth and Liberty streets, where he had continued ever since. His son, Lawrence, was associated with him during the past five years.

Mr. Mallinson was a member of the old Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company. He was a constant attendant at the First Baptist church, of which he was a member.

BIG CROWDS ATTEND 101 RANCH PERFORMANCE.

Over 4000 people witnessed the performances yesterday of Miller brothers' "101 Ranch" Wild West Show. The crowd at the night performance was much larger than that in the afternoon.

The show was a reproduction of the life on the 101 Ranch, in Oklahoma, in the early days. There was the regular horse racing, daring riding, trap shooting, the attack on the "Deadwood Coach", horse stealing, and all that goes to make up an exciting show of the Wild West life. The crowd, at the grounds, was an orderly one and everything was done without the usual rowdyism of circuses.

Clothespin Social for Missions.

Miss Edna Eckert and Miss M. Clara Hunter were in charge of the clothespin social given last night, on the lawn at the residence of Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Howard. The social was under the auspices of the Missional Committee of the Young People's Society of Hope chapel and it was greatly enjoyed by the twenty-five young people present. Games were played until a late hour, when refreshments were served. A silver collection was taken by the missionary committee.

Part of Spencer Estate Sold.

A portion of the Spencer estate on East Seventh street, near Park avenue, was sold yesterday for ten thousand dollars, through the agency of Armstrong Mulford. The buyer is Mrs. Rutherford H. Towner, of Second place, who will probably remodel the house on the premises. The architect's plans call for an expenditure of $8,000 for the changes which are contemplated. Mrs. Towner has not yet decided whether the remodeling shall be done now or later.

NEW GRAIN CO. TO BUILD STOREHOUSE AT ONCE

The final business meeting of the Union Grain Company, which was incorporated at Elizabeth on Monday, was held last night and the following officers elected: President, A. I. Smalley; secretary, Joseph Ryno; treasurer, Frank Mobus. These officers will also form part of the directorate of the new company; the others will be announced later.

Mr. Smalley said today that everything is in readiness for starting to build the new storehouse and offices. The plans are ready and a permit has been issued for the work. The new building will be two story and basement, built of brick, concrete and steel; not a piece of wood will be used on the first floor. The plans call for a building 40 feet wide and 95 feet deep, an additional six inches of width being at the rear end.

A switch of the railroad passes the rear of the new building which is conveniently located on East Third street, next to the Union Beef Company's plant. Mr. Smalley said it was intended to have the building ready for occupancy by November 1. The company is capitalized at $50,000.

CADMUS PROPERTY SOLD TO CRESCENT ESTATES

Another important real estate deal has just been consummated by which the old Cadmus property in the west end of the borough changes hands for a consideration which showed a considerable advance over the purchase price. It consists of fifty-seven acres of desirable building land. It was owned by The West End Heights Improvement Company, who have sold it to the Crescent Estates, a New York corporation.

The land will be surveyed and laid out in building lots 125x300 feet each. New macadam streets will be cut through the property and concrete sidewalks and curbing laid. The tract will be restricted to residential purposes and only houses of the highest class will be erected on the property.

It is expected that the contracts for the leveling and grading of the premises will be let today and a general contract given for the laying out of streets and sidewalks. In all probability the contract will be awarded to a North Plainfield contractor and the work is to be begun at once.

MEMORIAL SERVICE AT GRACE M. E. CHURCH

The memorial services for Melvin LeRoy Vanderbeek, who died last Friday, were held in the Grace M. E. church last night. There was a large number of the dead boy's friends at the church, the room being filled to its capacity.

The services were conducted by the Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor of the church, and Dr. H. K. Carroll, of Westerveldt avenue. Miss Alice Carroll sang two beautiful hymns during the service.

Both Dr. Carroll and Mr. Shoop spoke. Mr. Shoop read several ap*propriate passages of Scripture* and then led in a most beautiful prayer.

In the course of his remarks, Mr. Shoop referred to LeRoy Vanderbeek's sterling Christian character, of his genial disposition, and his loving friendship. He told of the influence that the life of this young man had had on a large number of his associates, each one of whom had felt the loving touch of his friendship. Mr. Shoop also spoke at length of LeRoy's sunny nature and hearty jollity and of how his shining light had brightened many a darkened, gloomy life.

Dr. Carroll compared the life of the Vanderbeek boy with the building of a bridge in Scotland, which first took delicate wire, then stout cables, and finally strong steel girders, which were so useful in later years in the support of one of the world's great commercial bridges. Dr. Carroll said that although Mr. Vanderbeek had not lived a score of years as yet, he had done in those nineteen years what many people fail to do in sixty.

The touchingly real of the young man was also highly commended by both speakers.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnard J. Fitzimons, of Bristol, Conn., who were married on July 25, are spending their honeymoon with Mrs. Amos Stiles, of East Second street.

REV. MR. ASHLEY RESIGNS

Popular Rector of St. Stephen's to Be a Curate at All Angels', New York.

HE BUILT UP A PARISH.

Netherwood Section Will Grieve Over Loss of Hustling Young Clergyman Who Will Leave On Oct. 1.

Residents of the Netherwood section, where he has endeared himself, will learn with regret that Rev. Morgan Ashley, the popular rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, has resigned. He has accepted a call to become a curate of All Angels church, a fashionable and wealthy parish at West End avenue and Eighty-first street, New York. The resignation will take effect on Oct. 1, when the energetic young clergyman will assume his duties as an assistant to Rev. Dr. S. DeLancey Townsend.

Rev. Mr. Ashley's resignation has been handed to his vestry the members of which say they will have a most difficult time to find one who will be so successful. When Mr. Ashley went to the Netherwood parish two years ago next October, he found but a handful of worshippers and a treasury sadly depleted. Now, at every service, the pretty little edifice is filled with devout people, and the parish is free from debt, and, moreover, there is a snug balance in the treasury.

Rev. Mr. Ashley was graduated from Princeton university in 1903, and four years later from the General Theological Seminary, in New York, where he received the degree of B. D. He was ordained to the priesthood the same year. His first parish was St. Paul's, Butler, N. J. He is the son of Edward W. Ashley, of Orange.

Entertained by Miss Skillman.

Miss Ethel Skillman, of Watchung avenue, entertained a number of her friends Monday evening at a tennis party. A "round robin" tournament of mixed doubles was much enjoyed by the guests. Supper was served under the grape arbor, which was prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns. Among those in the party were: Miss Ethel Skillman, Miss Bessie Aspaugh, Miss Florence Prior, Miss Marguerite Ramsey and Guion Fountain, Charles E. Prior, Jr., Arthur Bingaman, and Stanley Robins.

Master Builders Convention.

The twenty-ninth quarterly convention of the Master Building Association of New Jersey will be held on Thursday, July 28, 1910, at 478 Broad street, Newark, N. J. There will be in attendance at this convention, representatives from every county and almost every city in the State of New Jersey. Contractors from this city are members of this organization and will be at this convention.

GYULA DE FESTETICS WINS SUIT BROUGHT BY WIFE

Gyula deFestetics successfully defended the suit brought by his wife for the possession of the body of their son Arthur who died in this city on June 18, before Vice Chancellor Garrison yesterday.

Vice Chancellor Garrison decided that Mrs. deFestetics had no case inasmuch as there was no precedent and he refused to issue an order which she prayed for giving her the custody of the child's body. The court decided that the father had a right to bury the boy in Hillside cemetery and that his wife could not have the body removed under any circumstances, although she would have the right to visit the place of burial at any time.

According to the testimony adduced it was a complete vindication of the actions of Mr. deFestetics since the separation from his wife and further the allegations against him as to kidnapping the boy were not proved.

PROCLAMATION ON THE WATER FAMINE

Borough and City Mayors Ask People to Stop Using Lawn Sprinklers.

PRESSURE ALARMINGLY LOW.

Water Company Will Refund Payments—Fire Protection Is Imperiled—Drought Causes Trouble.

By public proclamation, Mayors Charles J. Fisk and Newton B. Smalley, of the city and borough respectively, today jointly request that the residents of the community cease

PROCLAMATION.

The excessive heat and drought now prevailing has taxed the capacity of the works of the Water Company to such a degree that it is impossible, for part of the day, to maintain pressure in the Company's mains sufficient for protection in case of fire.

This condition has prevailed for several days past to some extent, but has become so acute within forty-eight hours that urgent measures must be taken to relieve the situation.

During the past twenty-four hours more than seven million gallons of water have been pumped at Netherwood, which is more than two millions in excess of the quantity pumped in any day last year. A large port of this excess is used by lawn sprinklers and hose, and perhaps a considerable quantity of water is allowed to run to waste in fixtures in dwellings and other buildings.

The Fire Committee of the Common Council met representatives of the Water Company last evening and, after a full discussion of the situation, it was decided that action should be taken by the city authorities to prevent the unnecessary use of water during the pending drought.

The most important saving of water can be effected, with least inconvenience to the people, by the immediate cessation of the use of lawn sprinklers and hose, and their use should be discontinued at once.

The Fire Committee is assured that the Water Company will refund one-half of the amount paid by citizens for the use of hose and sprinklers during the current year, which is a fair pro rata of the charge for hose and lawn sprinklers.

It is urgently hoped that all citizens will respect this notice and warning, and direct all their employes so to do.

CHARLES J. FISK, Mayor of Plainfield.
N. B. SMALLEY, Mayor of North Plainfield.

Dated, July 27, 1910.

NEW CLASSES ADDED TO Y.W.C.A. PROSPECTUS

The Young Women's Christian Association has already started to plan for its fall work. The fall prospectus is to be issued soon, this containing complete information in regard to the outline of the proposed work.

The educational classes will be larger and more complete this year than ever before. The corps of teachers shows that the instruction will be of the best. Classes will be organized in millinery, dressmaking, embroidery, domestic science, English for foreign girls, English literature, French, and Christmas Arts and Crafts. This last class is an entirely new venture, but the purpose of it is a good one; teaching girls to make useful, dainty, Christmas gifts.

The course in English literature will be an enjoyable as well as a broad treatise on the literature of our mother tongue, while that in French offers a splendid opportunity for girls to study this language under a well known teacher. The courses in millinery, dressmaking, domestic science and embroidery will be designed to teach the practical as well as the artistic side of these subjects.

The list of teachers in the courses will be: Christmas Arts and Crafts, Miss Margaret Goddard, of East Ninth street; millinery, Miss Edith Capron, of New York; dressmaking, Miss Isabel Scarborough, of Park avenue; embroidery, Miss Amy Lough, of East Front street; French, Miss Zoe Bateman, of this city; domestic science, Miss Wilson, of the New York Teachers' College, and English literature, Miss Elizabeth Chadbourn, of this city. The course in English for foreign girls will be taught by several different Plainfield women.

THE WEATHER.

Partly cloudy tonight and Thursday; not much change in temperature; light to moderate variable winds.

using lawn sprinklers and hose. In the official statement notice is given that the water company will refund the proportion of the payment for such privilege for the remainder of the year. It is an emergency measure due to the alarming conditions occasioned by the continued drou Fire protection is imperiled by the lack of pressure due solely, it is said, to the unusual use of lawn and garden sprinklers and this has prompted the municipal heads to make the request.

The present condition of the water pressure is well known to every householder. The flow from the faucets and the stream from the lawn hydrants have been extraordinarily small during the past few days especially. The fact that only .02 inches of rain has fallen during the twenty-seven days of the month has caused the lawns and gardens to dry up and this has compelled the property-owners to use water freely to keep them green. So great has been the use that the huge tank at the Netherwood plant has become almost empty at times. On Monday night between 6:00 and 8:30, for instance, one and a quarter million gallons of water was used. This represents two and a half times the quantity that the stand pipe can hold at one time. It is believed that nearly a million gallons of this total represents the amount used for sprinkling purposes.

The stand pipe is 140 feet high and has a diameter of 25 feet. It will hold 515,000 gallons of water. The other night, despite the running of the pumps at high pressure, the water in the big tank fell ninety-seven feet. This means a falling off of 45 pounds pressure, which is a serious thing should a fire occur. The normal pressure is seventy pounds. With but twenty-five pounds pressure in the hose, the fire department would be powerless to cope with a blaze of any magnitude.

One year ago, the water company was supplying 5,000,000 gallons a day here. This week's records show that the use has jumped up to 7,-000,000. The two millions increase, it is explained, is due almost entirely to the unusual drought and the consequent use of lawn sprinklers.

The situation was discussed thoroughly at a conference last night between the Councilmanic fire committee and the representatives of the water company. President Frank Bergen, of the company, explained the condition of affairs, and the city fathers agreed that some radical step should be taken at once to in-

LAWN FETE AT SUNBRIGHT

IN AID OF MEMORIAL CHAPEL.

More than a hundred and fifty people attended the lawn fete held on the handsome grounds of Sunbright, the home of Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, on Valley road, Thursday. Many Plainfielders were present, but the majority came from over the mountains at Washingtonville and other villages. The lawn was beautifully illuminated with Japanese lanterns, but the moon soon put these dim lights out of business so far as romantic surroundings are concerned. The night was perfect for the fete which was held for the benefit of Wilson Memorial chapel at Watchung and netted the sum of $125, which will be used for making repairs to the chapel.

All the tables and booths were well patronized as the sum realized will show and it was hard to choose between the attractions. The fancy goods table in charge of the girls' club did a rushing business. This was presided over by the Misses May Keiderling, Florence McWade, Theresa E. Schmidt and Margaret E. Eaton.

The other booths and tables were looked after by the following: Punch, Miss Elsie Schmidt; cake, Mrs. Melvin H. Cleaves and Miss Sadie H. Bodenheimer; fruit, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Serer; watermelon stand, Lawrence K. Vail.

A fish pond was a source of much amusement and was in charge of Clarence B. Schmidt. Besides all these attractions the Hindoo fortune teller, in the person of Elias H. Featherstone, kept everybody guessing as to whether they would get home with any money in their pockets, besides predicting all sorts of directions to them that they did. This was under the auspices of the Boys' Club. Helen M. Schmidt made an efficient and pretty flower girl.

MORMON MISSIONARIES MUST LEAVE GERMANY

Herr Dallwitz, Prussian Minister of the Interior, upon recommendation of the political police, has signed orders for the expulsion of twenty-one Mormon missionaries, most of whom are Americans or Englishmen, and they will be conducted to the frontier today.

The missionaries had assembled from various parts of Germany at the Mormon headquarters on the East Side to meet Superintendent McKay, an American, usually resident in Switzerland. They were holding a service, when an agent of the political police, who was seated in the audience rose and declared the gathering dissolved. At the moment several members of the criminal police appeared and virtually took the congregation in custody. The women were asked to leave the place, and the men were examined as to their nationality. Those found to be German subjects were released, while the others were requested to accompany the officers to the police presidency. There, after further examination, they were permitted to go to their lodgings to await the issuance of writs for their expulsion.

The status of the Mormons in Germany was taken up in exchanges between the Foreign Office and the American Embassy in 1903, when the government took the position that the teachings of the missionaries were subversive of morality. It was then arranged with the Mormon superintendent, through the American Embassy, that all Mormon missionaries should withdraw from the country within a month, transferring the middle European headquarters from Berlin to Switzerland. Subsequently 140 foreign leaders departed, leaving the German societies, with a total membership of 8,000, in the care of German pastors. The authorities state that in recent years the Mormons have disregarded the understanding of 1903, and from time to time individual missionaries have been apprehended and expelled. In such instances they have not applied to the American Embassy for relief nor made a protest against their expulsion.

HEALTH BOARD TO ACT

August 1 Date Set for Enforcing Law Governing Exposed Foodstuffs.

HEAVY FINES TO BE IMPOSED.

All Dealers Have Been Notified to Make Necessary Changes in Their Stores for Protection Against Dirt.

The Board of Health through Health Officer John O'Brien has caused to be posted in stores, markets, restaurants, hotels and other places where food intended for sale or distribution, is produced, manufactured, prepared, packed, stored, sold, delivered or transported, a notice setting forth the sanitary requirements which must be observed in the above mentioned places, as prescribed by a State law which was enacted in 1909.

The law requires that all such food products shall be securely protected from flies, dust, dirt, and so far as the same is possible, by the use of all reasonable means, from all other foreign or injurious contamination." In accordance with these requirements, it will be necessary for all food products which are exhibited inside

FOR ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT

Veterans Planning for Forty-Fourth to Be Held at Atlantic City in Sept.

LARGE ATTENDANCE EXPECTED.

Plainfield to Be Represented by Winfield Scott Post and Women's Relief Corps—Delegates Not Yet Named.

Grand Army of the Republic veterans and members of the Woman's Relief Corps in all parts of the country are completing arrangements for the forty-fourth National Encampment of the Grand Army, which will be held in Atlantic City during the week of September 19.

Ex-Governor Samuel R. Vansant, of Minnesota, commander-in-chief, has issued an order announcing that National headquarters will be established in Monmouth Place, and the commander-inchief and staff will be entertained at the Hotel Chalfonte. It is announced that the National council of administration will meet at headquarters on Tuesday morning, September 20, at 10 o'clock.

Among the matters of business to come before the encampment will be an amendment to the rules and regulations of the Grand Army of the Republic, proposed by the Department of Maryland, admitting members of the Revenue Cutter Service to membership in the organization who served in the Civil War. The Department of Connecticut proposes an amendment giving the Sons of Veterans the privilege of sitting at any regular meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic, excepting musters. It is believed that both amendments will be adopted.

Col. John McElroy, editor of the National Tribune, is said to be slated for commander-in-chief next year. Little doubt of his election is felt in Grand Army circles, as the veterans of the Western departments are also for him.

The business sessions of the encampment will commence Thursday, day September 22, on the steel pier at the foot of Virginia avenue, at 10 a. m.

Abraham M. Metz, of Joe Hooker Post, No. 32, Department of New Jersey, is appointed officer of the day.

The parade will occur on Wednesday, September 21. Details will be announced in special orders about August 1.

Winfield Post No. 77 and the Women's Relief Corps of this city will be largely represented at the Encampment, but the delegates have not yet been named.

"The complaint voiced in one of the Elizabeth papers regarding the apathy with which the residents of that city view the work of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has an echoing sound in this city. So many of the people who really love animals, but who scarcely give their care a thought could help the society by simply joining and paying their dues and thus give besides their money a moral support which would go a long way toward alleviating the suffering of animals, particularly horses, in the torrid weather."

The above are the words of a member of the society in this city and are worthy of consideration. Conditions in certain states of the city, according to reports are such as could be much improved and better facilities had for detecting sore backs and other horse troubles if sufficient sum of money could be obtained to push the work.

It costs but a dollar a year to join the society and once a member interest is sure to develop. This being the case cruelty will in a measure cease when those practicing it know that instead of ten pairs of eyes are watching them a hundred pairs are on the job, care will be taken to prevent trouble to the offenders by themselves.

Evidence.

"What are you men quarreling about?" asked the stranger.

"Why, this man borrowed $5 from me over a year ago, and he won't pay it," replied the tall one.

"I don't remember borrowing $5 from him," said the short one.

"Oh, well, if you don't remember it, I guess you did all right!" was the peacemaker's final words.—Yonkers Statesman.

WON'T PERMIT JOHNSON TO APPEAR IN RACES

The story emanating from Indianapolis to the effect that Jack Johnson, the negro who recently won in the heavyweight championship battle with Jim Jeffries at Reno, Nevada, would appear in an exhibition auto drive at the Motor Speedway during the September race meeting has created a stir in motor racing circles that bids fair to bring on a boycott by white drivers against that famous course.

It has been announced by Carl G. Fisher, president of the Speedway, that Johnson was refused entry to the September races but that he probably would be allowed to drive an exhibition as a feature of the meeting.

Protests have arisen from all parts of the country and more than one famous auto pilot will refuse to ride over the brick track at Indianapolis in September if Johnson is allowed to appear on the course in his machine. Among others who have signified their intention of refusing to drive there, are Louis Chevrolet and "Wild Bob" Burman of the Buick Racing Team. These two drivers have said in forceful terms that if Johnson is allowed to drive his machine over the track at the September meeting or at any future time, they will not be willing to start again on the famous course. In speaking of his attitude, Chevrolet said:

"Jack Johnson is a prize fighter and has become notorious in that particular field. There are no negro automobile racers at the present time and if I understand correctly, there is a ban against it. I am not willing to allow my name to be used in the same race program as that of Jack Johnson, and if the Indianapolis Motor Speedway management cannot confine itself to automobile racing without bringing a negro barn-storming pugilist, I believe it is time for the white drivers to quit the game on that track."

Burman seconded the sentiments of Chevrolet and added:

"Never before has such a condition arisen, and I believe that the automobile drivers should feel that President Fisher and other officials of the speedway, in even giving publicity to such a project should be the objects of censure at the hands of white men who make a business of automobile racing. I have heard several drivers declare that they will not appear at Indianapolis in September if Johnson is allowed on the track, and although I won many victories at the last Indianapolis meeting and am confident that the Buick would make another sweep there in September, I shall refuse to be a party to any meeting in which Jack Johnson or any other colored driver is allowed to participate."

Two objecting pilots maintain that the only virtue in Johnson's automobile driving is the fact that he puts money in circulation by paying fines for speeding. They assert that it would be foolhardiness itself to race against Johnson who has no knowledge of the mechanical end of an automobile. They feel it would place him on a par with them—a position which they do not choose to occupy.

ACCUSED OF MURDER; ARREST CHARZANOWSKI

Following a conference between Detective Tuite of Newark Police Headquarters, and Assistant Prosecutor Andrew Van Blarcom, in Newark Wednesday, Alexander Charzanowski, of Jersey City, was charged with the murder of the Rev. Ernest Anson, who was shot down in the rectory of St. Stanislaus' church in March of last year. The prisoner was arraigned before Judge Hahn, in the First Criminal Court, and committed to the Essex county jail without bail.

Charzanowski was arrested at his home in Jersey City a week ago, a few hours after he had been paroled from the State prison at Trenton. He had served part of a two-year sentence for sending threatening letters to a priest in Passaic.

With Charzanowski charged as being one of the assassins, the detectives started work along other lines and said that within seventy-two hours another man would be similarly accused. Much of the information obtained by the detectives in the case has been furnished by John Lantis, who is awaiting death at Sing Sing for the murder of Selig Korn, a brother of a private banker in the Greenpoint section of Brooklyn who was shot down when a raid was made on the bank by bandits.

VALUABLE ANTIQUES SOLD

Goods from the Home of the Late Anna L. Spencer Bring High Prices.

MAHOGANY 4-POSTER HIGHEST.

Silverware, Davenports, Easy Chairs and Tables Bring 200 Buyers to Bid—Sale Lasts Five Hours.

A sale of antique furniture, silverware, beds, bedding, etc., held Friday to settle the estate of the late Anna L. Spencer, whose home was at 118 East Seventh street, attracted between 150 and 200 buyers from all over this city as well as from Newark, Elizabeth, Cranford and other nearby towns. The sale was remarkable for the high prices obtained for the various articles. A mahogany bedstead of the Revolutionary period, a four-poster, as it was called, brought $50 while a davenport of similar wood and of the same period brought $46.

A blue china set went for the highest price of any of the small lots, but it was closely pressed by a gold enameled set of china of quaint design. Other things which were notable for their antiquity were some pieces of silverware of the oldest English style brought to this country. The only piece in the whole collection were some spoons dated 1857 and stamped by the Gorhass Co. as "pure coin silver."

Easy chairs of mahogany in which one could take a comfortable nap, and tables which caused spirited bidding also brought fancy prices in fact so high were the bids that a professional dealer from Newark declared that never in all his experience had he seen such high prices paid for antiques.

P. H. Latourette's persuasive voice kept the bidders from 9 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon and the house was filled without intermission all those hours. V. W. Nash conducted the sale in settling up the estate for which he was the legal administrator.

RAILROAD DETECTIVES MUST WEAR UNIFORMS

Detectives and policemen employed by the Central Railroad Company, will hereafter be uniformed. The uniforms will be like those worn by the New York City police, and will consist of dress coat, white-striped trousers and cap. The "gum shoe" men of the railroad police department while having uniforms, will wear them only on state occasions.

Police Captain Reynolds, of Elizabeth, in discussing the change, said that it was thought better to uniform the men, especially when they were doing special work, such as excursion duty and duty where it is necessary to handle big crowds. The police officers, Chief Grey and the three captains, will also wear uniforms when the occasion demands.

Since the seashore rush has commenced on the Long Branch division of the railroad, the company has been bothered with pickpockets. Last summer it was necessary to keep plainclothesmen on duty all the time at the Elizabethport station, gathering a harvest among the passengers arranging cars there from the Seashore branch. This year, it is said, the thieves have continued their operations.

SIR. DAVID T. KENNEY VISITS POPE PIUS X.

Sir David T. Kenney of this city, had a private audience with Pope Pius X., yesterday, according to a dispatch from Rome. He thanked the holy father for appointing him as a papal chamberlain, which honor was conferred on the Plainfielder several months ago in recognition of his good works for the Roman Catholic church. Among his souvenirs was the gift of the site of Mt. St. Mary's College on the slope of the Watchung mountain back of Scotch Plains.

The Pope also gave a private audience to Right Rev. Cornelius van de Ven, bishop of Natchitoches, La.; the Right Rev. Patrick James Donahue, bishop of Wheeling, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenney are making a trip through Europe and will not return until late in September.

Boy Scouts to Lake George.

The plans for a Plainfield delegation to Thompson Seton's camp on Lake George during the last two weeks of August are fast nearing completion. This camp is to be conducted by Mr. Seton as an experiment with the boys' scout movement. There are to be six representative Plainfield boys in the local delegation.

VISIT BLUE RIDGE CASTLE

Freedom Sends Large Delegation to Orange on Fraternal Visit.

LOCAL TEAM'S WORK PRAISED.

A large delegation from Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, of this city, spent an enjoyable time with their brother knights in Blue Ridge Castle at Orange Wednesday. The local party left here shortly after 6.30 on a special car chartered for the trip and reached Orange shortly after 8 o'clock. About forty-five of the knights took the trip, and after the fun was over, voted their Orange brothers the best of entertainers.

Drill and floor work by the local degree team was a feature of the night's entertainment.

The local team composed of William A. Day, R. Kenney, Joseph Randall, Caspar Wagio, Frank Neidig, P. Niles, Arthur Coleen, Frank Runyon, Walter Butz and John Boasterle were attired in military uniform and were roundly applauded after they had gone through their paces. Other members of the local castle who furnished entertainment for the night were Ed. Young and Mr. Frazee, who both rendered cornet selections and Horace Martin, Jr. and Joseph Randall, whose vocal selections were well received. The party left Orange at 11.30 and arrived home shortly after 1 o'clock.

In the party were: Grand Chief Horace J. Martin, Past Grand Chief R. V. Kinney, Past Chiefs, William Day, Charles Graves, Joseph Randall, Caspar Wagler, Arthur Caleen, Clark Lowrey, Walter Butts, Frank Runyon, Frank Neidig, F. Niles, Louis A. Martin, Harry Lewis, Bert Vail, Fred Koller, Louis Stites, N. Meyer, H. Baunner, Harry Joseph, George Church, J. Smith, H. Sutphen, Horace Martin, Jr., Charles Schoonover, L. A. Hummer, Charles Hummer, Henry Haurand, John Bosterle, M. Frazee, and a number of others.

FAREWELL SERVICES FOR SWEDISH PASTOR

A large crowd was on hand at the Salvation Army tent Thursday to participate in the farewell services to the Rev. Theodore Englund, of the Swedish Evangelical church. He has been more or less interested in the army's work ever since he came to Plainfield eight years ago and during that time he has made a host of friends, all of whom were present last night.

Assisting Mr. Englund in conducting the services was the Swedish church string band and choir, whose singing and string music was well rendered and received much applause. A number of their selections were rendered in Swedish, while the rest of them were rendered in English. Mr. Englund's farewell address was made in English. He leaves to accept a similar position in Fitchburg, Mass.

POISON FOUND IN SPRING AT SWARTZWOOD LAKE

There is good reason to believe that the campers at Swartzwood Lake will test the spring water next year before they begin to use it. The reason for the illness which attacked Harry De Mezza and his family and others who have been sick at the camp is a poisoned spring.

According to a letter received by James Blair last evening a pailfull of dead minnows was found at the bottom of the spring which was left there by some "Pensylvania Dutchman," as Harry DeMeza calls him, for the purpose of keeping the little fish alive pending a return to the lake. But the fish all died and their decomposition poisoned the water and those who drank of it were soon made ill.

It was feared at first that Mr. De Meza was threatened with typhoid fever, but happily this was not a fact. The abcess on his limb is rapidly healing and he will probably be home and at his usual post of duty on Monday.

To Settle Bird Estate.

Twenty-five Westfield business men have received subpoenas to appear in the Hunterdon County Orphans' Court in Flemington, on July 25 for the purpose of giving information in connection with the accounting in the Bird estate. Adaline E. Bird is the sole executrix of the late T. S. Bird. The executors named in her husband's will have died.

SCOPE OF R.R. VALUATION INCLUDES ABUTTING LINES

One of the features of the work of reappraising the railroad and canal property of New Jersey now being conducted under the direction of Charles Hansel, is the collection of the assessed valuation of all land directly adjoining railroad main stem property. This information will be specific. That is the assessed value of every acre and every foot of land owned by others than railroad companies, along both sides of the main stem, is being gathered on forms provided by the expert in charge. It is impossible to say at present just what part these records will have in determining the value of railroad main stem, as the formula for this purpose has not been prepared, but they promise to be an important factor in the work.

This information is being gathered through the different county tax boards, they in turn getting it from the assessors, and the reason so far attained have been highly satisfactory. In asking the county tax boards to furnish him with this information Mr. Hansel is acting under joint resolution No. 3, which gives him power to call on any State board or officer for any information that he deems necessary in the matter of appraisal of railroad and canal property, but thus far he has not had to assert his authority in any way as the work has been entered into with enthusiasm by all concerned, nearly every one being anxious to have the valuation of railroad taxation settled for all time.

There are in New Jersey at the present time 120 different railroad companies operating in 400 different taxing districts, and they have 2,265 miles of main stem, so that when the collection of the assessments of land adjoining main stem of the different railroads is completed the State will have at its disposal a record of valuations of 4,730 miles of property.

The engineering feature of the work of reappraisal is interesting. Forty-eight engineers, in gangs of six, are now going through the State, engaged in measuring and surveying tracks, bridges and other equipment of the different railroads. In addition, there is a machinery expert, and in Elizabeth half a dozen draftsmen are busily engaged in making drawings of railroad property, while another force is compiling from the figures sent to the office by the engineers in the field. All of this information is being gathered under Mr. Hansel's direction, and it will be turned in to the State when the work is completed.

JUSTICES CAN'T HEAR LANDLORD-TENANT CASES

Justices of the peace throughout Union County are sorely vexed over the enactment of a law at the last session of the Legislature which deprives them of the authority of disposing of landlord and tenant cases. The peace justices formerly derived considerable in the way of costs of court in the disposition of such cases, but which, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 137 of the laws of 1910, must now be heard in the District Court of the county.

The justices of the peace declare that the removal of landlord and tenant cases to the District Court for disposition has added a hardship to the householders. The expense, which the justices say never amounted to more than $3 or $4 when they had authority to act, will now be more than $10, as it is necessary to have a lawyer in such cases, besides the time and expense of making a trip to Elizabeth.

THE PET CAT.

Cats need careful feeding, and it is not generally believed that they can and will be taught to eat green vegetables. They should be given these in the form of cabbage, cauliflower and asparagus once every day, and that at noon.

Strangely enough, the pet cat's heaviest meal, consisting of four ounces of meat, should be given at night, and this should invariably be run through a chopper. Potatoes are excluded from the diet of all well-cared-for cats, but sardines are given twice a week, and only in cold weather.

Cats have individual tastes that may be gratified within reason. The orthodox American cat—and he is more satisfactory than the Angora—may even be given peaches or currants or cocoanut. These are mentioned because they were the peculiar dainties most liked by a cat of the writer's acquaintance.

Half of the cat's milk is boiled and given warm and diluted; and last, but very important, a daily supply of fresh water, and green grass is absolutely necessary.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

MAYOR FISK AND PLAINFIELD.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of Plainfield, who has served that city in one capacity and another for nineteen years and three times as Mayor, announces that he will not be a candidate for re-election this fall. He cannot spare the time for another period of service as chief executive. He purposes, therefore, to step down and give someone elese a chance.

There is nothing more refreshing in American politics than to find here and there a man unselfish and interested enough to share a large part of his leisure, and to encroach seriously on the time set apart for the conduct of business affairs, for the sake of serving a municipality. Probably there is no more thankless *task than acting in an official capac*ity in most of our American cities. If things go wrong there are plenty to criticise. If things go right there are few who take the trouble to commend. For those at all sensitive and unable to take the broad view, overlook, forgive and keep right on with the tasks in hand unflinchingly, trouble lies in the bud the ambitious public career which may have been planned. "I have troubles enough of my own," is the remark so many of us have heard from the lips of some thoroughly capable business man retiring from politics, who, on entering the public service, had been looked upon as full of large possibilities for long continued usefulness. That the truth is spoken the average business man in these strenuous days will easily admit. But what a loss to the municipality has been such abandonment!

Mayor Fisk had the patience to work up in politics. Few capable and prosperous business men possessed of that virtue. He served faithfully as a member of the Common Council, becoming president of that body. Then he was elected Mayor. But he was not too big or too weary of serving the people to fail to see an opportunity in becoming a member of the Board of Health, of which office sanitation he was made president. Later he was chosen Mayor again, which position he is still holding very effectively and creditably. Meantime, he has been prominent in the councils of the Republican party, serving as chairman of the Republican city committee and as a member of the Union County Republican Committee. He has appeared often as a delegate to party conventions, both county, State and National, lending a hand where one has been needed.

Throughout Union county, and in the State at large as well, Plainfield has a reputation firmly established for being a well-governed city. How much of the credit is due to Mayor Fisk, Plainfield people who have seen his work at close range know best. But those of us who have viewed his work from the outside have seen in his labors qualities which could hardly have failed to work for the good of the municipality. His wide business experience has been freely drawn upon in meeting the city's problems, as well as his advantage of education and natural gift of good common sense. Face such a man, full of vigor and direct*ness of aim in power, and something* worth while is reasonably sure to be brought about. As might be expected, Mayor Fisk has the pleasure of looking back over a long record of accomplishments while in municipal service. It is not the intention now to praise him or to pamper him, but merely to call attention to the good fortune of any city which can secure such a man for service and keep him in political life in various useful capacities for so long a period of years. Say what you please they are getting exceedingly rare in scores of municipalities in the United States. That men are never been more *needed, and without doubt will con*tinue to be needed, unless our public exercise is to be allowed to suffer a serious decline, will not be denied. —Elizabeth Journal.

A PILLOW COVER FINISH.

The extended hem of a pillow cover is not especially new, but always good. It is made by turning in the edge of both top and bottom of cover and sewing it into a seam close to the pillow rather than at the top. This leaves a flat frill all around.

Be sure the corners are well caught in the seam, as it is unsightly to have ravelings creep from beneath the frills.

A somewhat similar finish has the under portion of the pillow an inch larger all around than at the top. This is stamped with the same edge, scallop or block, as the outside, and shows beneath it when the cover is finished.

To get the best effect on right side have the border of under portion stamped on wrong side for embroidering and buttonholing. If it seems too rough on right side, turn and buttonhole again as if nothing had been done.

PREPARING FOR FOOTBALL

Dunellen Gridiron Warriors Getting Ready to Start Season Earlier Than Usual.

HAVE PROMISING TALENT.

Benjamin Dodwell Will Captain the Team this Year—Officers Elected—The Team.

Football for 1910 is beginning to interest the young men of Dunellen at an earlier date this year than usual. The complete change in rules this year is partly responsible for these early preparations, but the necessity to uphold the record of last year's team is also a factor in making the Dunellen boys hustle.

The second football association has already met and organized with the following officers for the coming season: Benjamin Dodwell, president; George Martin, vice-president; Harry Giddes, secretary and treasurer; Peter Mohan, manager; Benjamin Dodwell, captain; Harry Gilbert, assistant captain.

Last year's eleven was light but speedy, and it made an excellent showing against much heavier teams. With nearly all of the old veterans back this year and with several new candidates to draw from, the prospects for another record year are exceedingly good. The team this year will average about one hundred and twenty-five pounds, that being the weight under which the boys will play.

Benjamin Dodwell will captain the team this year and will be a valuable man in the back field. Harry Giddes has been appointed assistant captain. Harry is a heady quarterback.

Last year's team with this year's prospective candidates will get together at a dinner, which is planned to be held in Thornton's Hotel, South Plainfield, two weeks hence. The dinner is to be entirely a stag affair. The committee on arrangements consists of Harry Giddes, Earl Ising and Edgar Starker.

CLUB HOUSE AND BARN BURNED TO GROUND

Fire destroyed the Whippany River Country Club house and stables Thursday morning. The loss is placed at $50,000. The flames were discovered at 4:30 o'clock by John Lane, coachman at the club. The fire was then burning fiercely in the large dining-room. Lane, who lives in the clubhouse cottage, went to the clubhouse to awaken its occupants. Matthew J. Flattery, the superintendent, aroused the other employes, and then went to the office and carried out all the books and papers. Lane ran to the stables to get the horses out. There were forty-one in the barns and Lane got thirty of them out alone. With the rest he was assisted by Flattery, who then was forced to beat a retreat from the clubhouse. The fire swept through the building rapidly, and nothing of any consequence was saved. The stables adjoin the club*house on the right* and were soon ablaze.

Just how the fire started has not been ascertained. When discovered it was sweeping the side wall of the dining-room. It is thought the electric light wires might have had something to do with it. Although the clubhouse is out of the city limits, the Morristown Fire Department responded to a call at 5 o'clock. There is only one hydrant near the clubhouse, and this was not sufficient to furnish any sort of stream to check the blaze. The fire was well under way when the firemen arrived, and the men were unable to give any effective assistance.

The building was burned to the ground. The clubhouse was one of the most attractive buildings of its kind in the country. It was formerly a barn used by Eugene Higgins. Mr. Higgins' house was destroyed by fire several years ago, and he then rented his barn and property to the club. The club remodeled it, and stables were *then put up near*by. The clubhouse has been the scene of many fashionable functions, and some of the best amateur races

THREE HIGHWAYMEN DO UP DEWEY PARKER.

Going to his home in Lincoln, late Saturday night Myles Cunningham was held up near Dewey Park by three men, who robbed him of a basket of meat and groceries, family's Sunday dinner; his gold watch and $6 in money. Cunningham was first accosted by one man, who demanded to know where he was going. He told the fellow to step aside and mind his own business. The highwayman grabbed at the basket and Cunningham dropped it and dealt his assailant a blow that knocked him down. Just then two others sprang from the side of the road and attacked Cunningham, who was taking good care of himself when one of the trio tripped him and he fell. Then the others pounced upon him and rifled his pockets.

One of them kicked him in the head, and when he was able to get up they had disappeared. This is the second time within a month that persons have been held up near Dewey Park and robbed. Cunningham thinks the men who beat and robbed him were tramps.

The Piscataway authorities will be asked by the citizens of Lincoln and Dewey Park to take some steps to prevent acts of robbery on the highway.

SHE STARVED TO DEATH WITH PLENTY AT HAND.

Affirming that she had received a "divine command" not to take nourishment, Miss Elizabeth Smallen died in St. James' Hospital, Newark, Sunday. For the last three months Miss Smallen had refused food and nourishment was given through a silver tube. The hospital authorities declare that the woman practically starved herself to death.

Miss Smallen lived with a sister at 54 Ferry street, but at that address no one could be found to-day who knew about the case. She was very religious and four months ago developed signs of mental derangement. It was about that time she began to fast. She finally became so weak that her sister called in Dr. Cleague. He had her sent to the institution.

It was said at the hospital that plans had been under way to have the woman taken to the County Hospital at Overbrook. When it was found, however, that she was steadily growing weaker the physicians changed their plans and she remained at the institution.

Dressing for Slaw.

This dressing is good for cooked vegetable salads as well as for slaw. Mix in the top of a double boiler one-half level tablespoon each of mustard and salt, a scant level tablespoon of sugar and one egg slightly beaten. Add two and one-half cups of sweet cream and cook uuntil the mixture thickens; then add one-quarter cup of hot vinegar and cook a little longer. Strain and cool before using. Milk may be used instead of cream, and the melted butter increased to three tablespoons.

sure the necessary water pressure for the fire department. The upshot of the matter was a decision to ask the executive heads to request the people to stop using lawn sprinklers.

Twenty-three wells are in operation at present at the Netherwood plant, but before long a number more will be in use. For months the company has been working to enlarge its plant, expecting that sooner or later just such a situation would be presented. Four new wells have been completed and two more are being rapidly put in shape. A new pumping station is also being installed. The new pumps are the air pressure plan, commonly called the air lifts. The pumps now in use are the suction type. The new wells, which will be increased from time to time to supply the demand, are sunk into the solid rock to a depth of 350 feet, while the present wells are only seventy feet deep.

In a month or so, the water company officials say, the added equipment, will afford an increased supply of a million and a half gallons a day. At the present time, the Plainfield-Union Water Company is only supplying towns in Union county as far as Garwood, the supply for Roselle, Cranford, El Mora and other places being furnished from Elizabeth. Notices similar to those issued here will be sent out today in every other town where the local company is supplying water.

It is generally believed that the public will understand and approve the steps taken to insure fire protection and will cease forthwith to use lawn sprinklers and hose.

"FOWLER A DEMOCRAT"— CONGRESSMAN KINKEAD

Congressman Eugene F. Kinkead yesterday at Jersey City would not go into any further discussion of the Woodrow Wilson boom, in which he has taken such a deep interest, but he switched off to Congressman Charles N. Fowler, the insurgent Republican candidate for United States Senator's Kean's place. Mr. Kinkead said:

"In his speech at Passaic the other evening my colleague, Congressman Fowler, credits Speaker Cannon with having declared that Fowler is a Democrat and a demagogue.

"In my judgment the speaker was right at least in one of these appellations. Congressman Fowler is a Democrat without individually realizing the fact, and he does not possess enough courage to come over where he belongs—to the party of the people.

"If 'Uncle Joe' Cannon had continued the gentleman from the Fifth District of this state in the chairmanship of the committee on currency he would be hearing but little insurgent talk from Congressman Fowler."

SMITH DEFENDS STATE'S AUTOMOBILE REGULATIONS.

In an interview between J. B. Smith commissioner of motor vehicles in this state and Francis Hurtubis, Jr., secretary of the National Automobile association in Boston, Mass., on Saturday the former defended the New Jersey motor laws against the retaliatory movement toward New Jersey automobilists by the states of Massachusetts, New York, and Pennsylvania. Mr. Smith said that he believed the trouble was due to a dissimilarity in the motoring conditions between New Jersey and the other states. This state, he declared, was more liberal in its motor laws than the other states, even in spite of its excellent roads and beautiful drives. Although there is far more auto traffic in New Jersey than in those other states, the number of arrests and accidents in this state are actually less, according to Mr. Smith.

FUND IS WITHOUT OWNER

Balance of Odd Fellows Home Association After Transfer of Property $15,219.67.

MUST MAKE AN APPLICATION.

A fund of $15,219.67, now in control of the board of directors of the Odd Fellows' Home of New Jersey, is without a legal owner, and Odd Fellows throughout the State are interested in its probable disposition. Steps to be taken to settle the ownership of the fund will doubtless be decided upon at the next meeting of the grand lodge to be held in November.

The fund represents the balance on hand to the credit of the Odd Fellows' Home Association after the transfer of its property to the grand lodge January 25, 1908. It includes the sum of $12,000 paid by the grand lodge as consideration for the transfer and $3,219.67, a balance on hand before the sale, which was in the nature of a trust fund, only the income being available.

In his recent decree in the case of Sumner Lodge, No. 180, of Jersey City, against the Odd Fellows' Home and the grand lodge, Vice Chancellor Garrison said that if the Odd Fellows' Home Association has the right to dissolve under the law, and is unable to dispose of the fund without the interposition of the aid of the court, it should make proper application, bringing the proper parties before it, and raising the issue in a proper manner to have the court then pass upon the questions which would then have to be considered. He said no such issue was raised in that case, and he dismissed the bill.

Amos B. Pierce, past grand representative to the Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., said yesterday that the question left undecided by the vice chancellor will be brought before the grand lodge of the State at its next meeting.

"The home, which was first known as the Home for Aged and Indigent Odd Feddows, was established near Trenton about twenty-five years ago," said Mr. Pierce. "About sixty lodges out of something like 272 in the State participated in the organization and became members of the corporation. The dues of one cent a day from each member of the lodges joining did not support the home and it was dependent upon donations and contributions from lodges and members.

"From time to time the grand lodge donated considerable sums of money for the purpose of paying off the mortgage on the home. Such records of the home as are in existence show that the period from January 1, 1896, to June, 1908, these various donations amounted to $14,288.59, or but little less than the fund now in dispute.

"At the time of the sale to the grand lodge," continued Mr. Pierce, "the board of directors of the home passed a resolution providing for a payment of $1 per member for each member of the constituent lodges, as a payment on account of what would be due on final distribution. The Sumner lodge then filed the bill to prevent such a method of distribution. In March, 1908, there was a meeting of representatives of these constituent lodges and a resolution was adopted by them to the effect that the fund be distributed among the various lodges and Rebekah lodges according to the amount actually paid in as dues by the respective lodges.

"At a subsequent meeting they passed another resolution providing that owing to the divergent and seemingly irreconcilable views held concerning the distribution of the fund that it is deemed for the best nite judicial determination

MARTI DESSAUX TO STAY

Patriotic Boy From France Will Not Be Deported After All.

MRS. JOS. CLEARY GIVES BOND.

The Boy Who Sang "America" and the Marseillaise Coming Up the Bay Will Be Adopted By Plainfield Family.

Master Marti Augustus Dessaux, whose patriotic entrance to the city of New York two weeks ago was heralded all over the country, will be allowed to remain and become a citizen of the United States after all.

Mrs. Joseph Cleary, who wanted the boy and who will eventually adopt him, has given to the government a bond of $500, which guarantees that the boy will not become a public charge, and Master Dessaux will soon be in Plainfield if he has not already arrived.

When Mrs. Cleary was informed that under the law the little Frenchman could not land (he is only eleven years old) she at once took steps to secure his release from Ellis Island where Immigration Commissioner Williams was keeping him with the intention of deporting him by the same steamer on which he came to this country.

Mrs. Cleary and her husband went to New York on Saturday morning, taking with them the necessary documents to prove that they could furnish the bond required by the government, and after the papers were executed they were forwarded to Washington where their acceptance means the release of Master Dessaux and the addition to Plainfield of an embryo citizen whose patriotic impulses led him to sing America when coming up the bay.

The boy's father is an employee of the steamship line at Cherbourg, and when little Marti Dessaux looked for the last time on his native land upward of two hundred of his schoolmates were on the wharf waving their goodbyes to him and wishing him success in the land of liberty. Young Dessaux is said to be unusually bright for one of his age, and Mrs. Cleary declares that his future in this country is assured. She will adopt the boy as soon as the legal part of the matter can be adjusted and in all likelihood within a few years as a man Marti Dessaux will be heard from in no uncertain way.

PREVENT FLY BREEDING; MOVE OF HEALTH BOARD

In connection with the posting of the abstract of the State law in regard to the protection of food products from dust and flies, it is the intention of the Board of Health to use all possible means to prevent the breeding of flies. As fully four-fifths of these pests are hatched in manure piles and like collections of filth, the board intends to see that the requirements of Article No. 5 of the Sanitary Code are fulfilled. This article relates to the keeping of barns and stables in a clean and wholesome condition, and to the proper storage of manure in covered vaults and its frequent removal. If we are to be rid of flies and the frail of annoyance, disease and filth which they leave in their wake, their breeding places must be abolished.

If owners of stables will see that the proper provisions are made for the storage and removal of manure, the Board of Health will be saved the necessity of serving legal notices to that effect, and the owners will also save themselves the annoyance of having such a notice served on them.

NOT AFRAID THAT AUTOS WILL END HIS EXISTENCE.

U. B. Crane is about convinced that automobiles will never kill him or be the cause of any serious damage to his healthy frame. Last Saturday Mr. Crane's automobile skidded on the wet pavement on West Front street and tried to climb a tree, but didn't succeed and neither he nor the other occupants of the machine was injured.

Monday afternoon while Mr. Crane was standing by his bicycle in front of 164 East Front street, an automobile driven by Robert Meeker, Jr., skidded across the street, striking Mr. Crane and smashing his wheel, but fortunately did not hurt him. It was an accident and it won't prevent Mr. Crane's carrying out his intention of bringing home a mess of weakfish on Thursday next. He thinks he stands a good chance to break the record for weakfish catching this season.

Morbid fancies, diseased imaginings and distorted perspectives are the results of looking into the pit of shame and folly. Impelling impulse, compelling purpose toward the true, the beautiful and the good, flow from pure feeling, high thinking and slow living. Game for Children.

Geographical letters is a good game for older children. A bowl filled with letters is placed in the center of the table. All the players seat themselves and the leader draws a letter, throwing it face upward on the table. The one who first calls out the name of a town beginning with that letter is entitled to the letter. When the bowl is empty the players count their letters and the one who has the most wins the game.

Heat the Knife Blade.

To spread the hardest butter easily on the thinnest bread, have a cup of boiling water handy, into which dip the point of the knife each time before cutting a piece from the butter. This renders it just right for spreading evenly. New bread or cakes can be cut without jagged edges if the blade of the knife used be heated for a second in a clear fire.

LIE IS PASSED IN LAWYERS' QUARREL

The District Court at Elizabeth yesterday was the scene of an unusual proceeding when Attorney Aaron Jablow rushed into the courtroom and declared that Attorney Charles L. Mason, of Newark, had threatened to do him bodily harm and that he wanted the court's protection. Judge Clark McK. Whittemore assured Mr. Jablow that there was no need of fear, as Mr. Mason wouldn't harm him.

"He's bigger than I, Judge, and afraid," said Jablow.

Mr. Mason was called and explained that it was all a misunderstanding. He said that he didn't want to strike Mr. Jablow and didn't intend doing so.

"Well, you called me a 'liar' and said you'd settle it right out in that corridor," responded Jablow.

"You two go into the other room and follow the instructions of the court," commanded Judge Whittemore.

The instructions were previously given to Mason to furnish Mr. Jablow with the names of several witnesses in a case that was adjourned until next Monday. Jablow represented Samuel Shilman, while Mason was an attorney for a man named Reuff.

The case was on contract in which Reuff is endeavoring to collect $300 on a note given him by Shilman.

When the case was called Jablow asked for an adjournment because he had not been able to obtain the names of the other members of the company whom he wanted to produce as witnesses.

"Why, Mr. Mason has the names and he'll give them to you," said Judge Whittemore.

Mr. Jablow agreed and Mr. Mason apparently acquiesced. Both lawyers left the courtroom evidently to transfer the names. When they had reached the rotunda, Jablow said last night, Mason called him a liar. Mr. Jablow insisted that he wanted the names.

One word drew on another when Mr. Reuff exclaimed, according to Jablow:

"Don't give him any names."

Then Mason, it is alleged, said:

"Let's settle this thing right here," at the same time taking a hold of Jablow's hands. Jablow then broke away and dashed into the courtroom. The trouble was amicably settled.

WANT LICENSES RETURNED.

Elizabeth Saloonkeepers to Again Make Application.

Four Elizabeth saloonkeepers who have been refused renewals of licenses will again make application for new licenses at the meeting of the Board of Excise tonight. These are John Mihalkowitz, 339 Magnolia avenue; Nathaniel H. Astfalk, 1214 East Grand street; James Byrnes, 642 Pearl street, and William Artman, 214 First street. Astfalk's application came up at the last meeting of the board, but action was deferred.

There is much speculation as to what the action of the board will be on these applications. It is said that two members have emphatically refused to vote for Astfalk's license, and it was impending defeat that caused the Astfalk application to be laid over. Strong pressure is being brought to bear, it is claimed, to get back the license for the former chief of the fire department.

Renovating a Carpet.

A soiled, faded carpet may be made into quite a different-looking thing. To a pailful of cold water add five cents' worth of ox gall. Rub this mixture into the carpet with a soft brush. It makes a fine lather, which must be washed off with clear, cold water. The carpet should then be rubbed dry with clean cloths. The green and red figures should be gone over with a weak solution of alum. The colors will come out almost as bright as when new. In tacking down carpets that have been treated in this manner be careful that the floor is quite dry or the tacks will rust and injure the carpet.

Beaten Biscuits.

For lovers of beaten biscuits I would suggest that they try my way. I make the dough as usual, and when made I run it through a small clothes wringer which I keep for this purpose. I screw the wringer to the table and run the dough through about twelve or fifteen times. Try this and you will be delighted with ease with which you make excellent biscuits.

Acres and Bible Letters.

It has sometimes been stated that there are more acres in Yorkshire than there are letters in the Bible. A person hearing the statement for the first time is inclined to doubt it, but it is true, all the same. Authorities differ as to the exact acreage of the county, one giving it as 3,882,848 and another as 3,771,842. But the number of letters in the Bible is said to be 2,566,480, so the acres beat the letters with something to spare.—Notes and Queries.

Indian Days.

Marks of Indian days may be found under many old oak trees in southern California, particularly in the mountain districts. It is not uncommon to discover a large stone or bowlder with one flat side showing a little above the surface of the ground and with a hole as large as a quart saucepan in the center. In such holes the squaws crushed the acorns which were thereby ground into meal for food for the red men.

UNINTERESTING GAME IS WON BY GARWOOD

Dunellen defeated Garwood Saturday in a quickly played and very interesting game. Dunellen obtained a lead of one run in the third; Giles singled to left, stole second and kept on going to third when Bean threw wild and high to catch him stealing. The ball went to Centerfielder Wade, who allowed Giles to cross the rubber when he relayed the ball poorly to third.

Dunellen cinched the game in the fifth. Piddington, the first man up in that inning, singled through short, sole second, went to third on a passed ball and remained there while Clark and Dodwell were striking out. Giddes, the next man up, was equal to the occasion bringing Piddington home on a single to short right. Giddes stole second and Giles brought him home on a long two-base hit over Leftfielder Kein's head.

The nearest that Garwood came to scoring was in the sixth inning. One Montross' fast inshoots cracked Linahan in the ribs; Brown, the next man up, struck out, then Kein knocked a beauty two base hit to deep left, but Linahan, who tried to score from first on the hit, was nailed at the plate, Nonamaker to Montross to Seary.

EDDIE M'NIE WINNER OF A BICYCLE RACE

The regular Sunday morning bicycle race was held by the Plainfield Cycle Club on the Park avenue course Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. There was a large bunch of entrants and the race was a keen one. The course was laid from the Lehigh Valley Railroad tracks at South Plainfield out to Metuchen and back. Slow time was made on account of the poor condition of the road.

Eddie McNie, of Madison avenue, starting from the one minute mark, was the victor. He was closely pushed by E. S. Bird, of East Front street, who was allowed a fifteen second handicap. Raymond Mantz, of Pearl street, came in third but carried off the time prize, doing the distance in fourteen minutes and five seconds. He and George Simon were the only scratch men.

"Dippie" Jones, with a minute allowance, came in fourth, while Eddie Simon and Willie Drake, both half-minute men, were fifth and sixth respectively.

First place at these races counts five points, second place three points, and third place one point toward the medal to be given to the winner of the greatest number of points at the end of the season. The time prize also counts as one point.

Foot Notes.

Femininity must study her footgear as she has never done before, and the flat walking shoe, so long the favorite wear for walking, is quite as dead as the dodo, if not more so. Heels are not, however, extremely high, and a considerable length of foot is the effect of the moment. Varnished leather is easily first in smartness and extravagance.

N.P.A.C. TOO STRONG FOR NORTH BRANCH A.C.

The N. P. A. C. won from North Branch A. A. at North Branch Saturday afternoon by the score of 4 to 1. It was a fast and well played game, the N. P. A. C. getting the needed runs in the eighth and ninth innings, the score being 1 to 1 up to this time. In the eighth inning, with Feiring and Coriell on first and second, Lambertson hit a hot liner to left field, Feiring scoring. Coriell tried to come home on the hit but was nailed at the plate, Skillman to Higgins.

Higgins then threw the ball wild when he tried to catch Lambertson stealing third, Lambertson scoring. North Branch tried hard to score in their half of the inning, but was prevented by Feiring, who caught Higgins' hot liner, doubling up Kline, who was on second at the time, unassisted. Just to make the game sure the N. P. A. C. added another run in the ninth inning. W. Perry pitched a fine game, getting nine strike-outs and issuing no passes. Haver got but three strike-outs. G. Perry caught a fine game. Baldwin put up a good game at short. Mr. Shaw, the umpire, did well, neither side having any kicks coming over his decisions. Next Saturday N. P. A. C. will play the Gillette A. C. at Gillette.

GESANG AND T. V. WIN TWO MORE GAMES

The Gesang and Turn Vercin added two more victories to their credit on Saturday. The Wayside F. C. fell by the wayside by the score of 5 to 1; the Finderne A. C. were slaughtered on Sunday by the score of 15 to 6. With the score of 6 to 2 against them, the Turners went to the bat in the eighth inning and drove Frolick from the box, tying the score. Porter, the Raritan Jrs.' star pitcher, went in the box and the Turners scored two more runs on Harsen's double and Montross' home run over the left field fence. In the ninth inning Porter was hammered all over the lot, twelve men facing Porter in this inning, for ten hits and seven runs all earned. Montross, the Turners' pitcher, retired in the fifth inning and N. Luthman took his place, with Dixon behind the bat. The lineup for the Finderne game was as follows:

FISHERMAN OVERBOARD BUT MADE GOOD CATCH

Notwithstanding an accident in which three of their number were nearly drowned the Social Fishing Club, of Westfield, brought home about 150 weakfish on Saturday which averaged about two pounds each.

The accident referred to occurred about 4:30 in the afternoon when the schooner Minnie H., with nine passengers aboard, ran into the power launch Dick, on which with the fishing club aboard was anchored off Sea Breeze, S. I. The collision threw Captain Donaldson, J. Sell and H. F. Johnson overboard and they were rescued with difficulty.

Among the passengers of the Minnie H. were four women, three men and two children. The mainsail of the schooner fouled and the vessel turned turtle, throwing the whole bunch into the drink. After an hour's work the whole party were safely put ashore and the Minnie H. towed to Perth Amboy, where she will be righted and repaired.

Those who were on the Dick were Captain G. H. Donaldson, of Garwood; Chester Moffatt, Dick; C. Sell, J. Sell, R. C. Miller, J. H. Weiss and S. Knapp, all of Westfield, and H. F. Johnson, of this city.

GUARDING THE RAILROADS

Well Organized Force Always at Work All Along the Lines.

WATCH OUT FOR CROOKS.

Keep an Eye on Pickpockets and Other Undesirables—What the R. R. Police Duties Are.

But few people realize the efforts which a large railroad corporation makes to protect its passengers and the shippers from thieves and annoyance. In order to do this it is necessary to establish a well-organized police department which guards the property of the railroad and its patrons.

Both the Central Railroad of New Jersey and the Pennsylvania Railroad employ a large number of railroad police and detectives, whose identity is seldom known, although they are usually among the crowds on holiday and other occasions.

An instance of their watchfulness occurred on Monday, when President Taft went to New York on a Jersey Central train. On the way across the North River not an officer was in sight. He appeared absolutely unprotected. A man nearby remarked to a companion how easy it would be to throw a bomb at the Executive. No less than three railroad detectives stood close enough to hear the remark, yet they were not recognized.

The head of the police department of one of the large railroads recently said: "To successfully conduct a railroad police department and patrol on a large road, it is necessary, of course, to have thoroughly reliable, courageous and intelligent men as railroad policemen, and men who are always resourceful and cool in the face of danger. This last requisite is a very necessary adjunct to a railroad police officer, because he is often called upon to face danger single-handed, and, unlike the city officer, cannot obtain assistance by rapping on a nearby lamp post or firing his revolver in the air.

"In the discharge of his duty, the railroad policeman encounters every class of criminal and desperate character. These embrace not only murderers, train robbers and yeggmen, but countless other felons too numerous to mention. We frequently receive requests from chiefs of police and others to be on the lookout for murderers and persons escaped from penitentiaries, jails, and these requests often bear the postscript that the culprit in question effected his escape on one of our freight trains, by riding the trucks or as 'blind baggage' on an express train. These requests are usually accompanied by a description of the criminal wanted, and are at once communicated to the railroad policemen on all divisions. Very often the fugitive is apprehended hiding on the trucks of a train, and then it is that the officer's courage is tested to its limit. Not infrequently does it happen that murderers are run down in this way and great care must be exercised in making the arrest, because these men are, as a rule, in a state of desperation, and will probably shoot to kill.

"Another class that causes the railroads a great annoyance is the tramp. When hungry they do not hesitate to break into a freight car containing merchandise with a view of getting something to eat and a change of clothing. If they are in need of funds to defray their immediate expenses to help them along to the next stopping place (they seldom have a destination), possibly a yeggman will make his appearance with a bottle of 'soup' (nitroglycerine) and suggest blowing open a safe. Many of the depredations committed against the railroads have been by this class of people.

"Understand me," said the official recently, "there are a number of different kind of tramps; for instance, the confirmed tramp, who travels for the love of tramping, and with whom we experience very little trouble, this fellow being satisfied to exist by begging something to eat and sufficient clothing to hide his nakedness. When 'en route' he is satisfied to board a train and conceal himself until he reaches his objective point, and rarely does he do damage to railroad property. There is also the tramp who beats his way from one station to another—the intercity 'bum'—and he also causes us much trouble.

"Another class of crook that causes us no end of trouble is the expert pickpocket. Usually dressed in the 'height of fashion,' said the official, "with a neatly cut tailor-made suit, polished of manner, these persons are perhaps the most expert of criminals. They are often well educated, are versatile conversationalists and possess an unusual degree of intelligence. These people are found bobbing up in a town upon special occasions, such as circus day. Then, too, they often infest excursion trains and will loiter around crowded railroad stations watching for a chance to make off with the pocketbook of some unsuspecting individual, and our men have to be constantly on a close watch for them. Probably few excursionists who enjoy a day's outing at some point on our line are aware that a special railroad officer is on board, constantly on the lookout for pickpockets, confidence men, etc." The official devoted careful attention to an inspection of his Rogues' Gallery, and prides himself that he has the photograph of every crook of prominence in the country. "You know everybody likes to have pictures of as many of his acquaintances as possible," he said, 'and in this respect my collection is quite complete. My 'album' (meaning his gallery) contains the photograph of a number of my acquaintances that I have met at various times in my career as a detective. Unlike other 'albums,' a sketch is kept of the most important events of their career that have made them famous, and in it are included men of all walks of life."

In substantiation of this last assertion he pointed out the picture of an elderly looking man whose face bore every stamp of refinement in the lines of its well-shaped features and whose gray hair bore evidence of advanced years at the time of the "sitting." "This man," it was explained, "started life right and was a banker in the earlier years of his business career. Today he enjoys national distinction as one of the shrewdest of financiers of men and pickpockets, and his diary, could it be gotten at, would probably be somewhat similar for long periods because he has served terms—'done time'—in a number of prisons throughout the country."

The next man to this in the "album" was entirely different, having a coarse, rough face, depicting a criminal of the lowest type of yeggman. He also has a National reputation. Women's pictures are likewise seen in the gallery.

CHARM OF SPEECH.

We cannot all have the advantages of a course of elocution, nor have we all had the opportunity to practice the last fad of the American college for women, which is, after all, too valuable a part of the course to be termed a fad, that daily use, for a fifteen minutes' spell, of desperate character. These embrace not only murderers, train robbers and yeggmen, but countless other felons too numerous to mention. We frequently receive requests from chiefs of police and others to be on the lookout for murderers and persons escaped from penitentiaries, jails, and these requests often bear the postscript that the culprit in question effected his escape on one of our freight trains, by riding the trucks or as 'blind baggage' on an express train. HE ORDERED A MOUNTAIN

And J. B. Duke is Getting One Made That Will Be 100 Feet High.

TRANSFORMING HIS ESTATE.

The Made-to-order Hill Will Cover Twenty-five Acres—To Spend $15,000,000 on Duke's Farms.

"I want a mountain," said James B. Duke. "And I want it here at Somerville, not in Colorado or the Adirondacks."

A mountain at Somerville will be a landmark. For any one who knows Somerville knows that it stands in a plain which is as flat as a pancake.

James B. Duke ordered a mountain just as he would have ordered a cock-tail or waistcoat, with simple, trusting faith that his order would be obeyed, and with that sublime faith which the Holy Scriptures assured us will move mountains. As a stimulus to faith millions are more potent than any magic power old Mahomet could command.

"I want a mountain."

Thus James B. Duke. And, as if some modern Aladdin had rubbed his lamp, straightway the plain of Somerville began to rise. First a molehill, then a little mound, then a bigger mound, then a small hill, and so on. In a few weeks Mr. Duke will have his mountain, and he is not going to be selfish about it, either, for all Somerville will share his mountain, all the Alpine climbers of New Jersey will have a right to scale its dizzy heights and all the small boys to bellyhop down it on their bob sleds.

Oh, the compelling power of money is a great thing, and Mr. Duke's mountain on the plains of Somerville will bear eternal testimony to it, as the compelling power of the multitude of slaves that Cheops was able to put to work.

James B. Duke's mountain will be more than 100 feet high and more than 25 acres in area. Several million cubic yards of earth are required to build it. Steam shovels are loading thousands of cars with earth every day, pushing them up the mountain side and dumping them at the summit. At the present time the summit is 80 feet above the neighboring plain. Twenty feet higher it must go before Mr. Duke's wish will be realized.

While the erection of the mountain is the most spectacular feature of the improvements that James B. Duke is making on his 2,200-acre estate at Somerville, it is really one of the least important. The Tobacco King is trying to make the finest country estate in America, a park which he hopes will excel in beauty and grandeur the palace grounds at Versailles or Fountainbleau.

Accordingly the landscape gardeners draw up plans for transforming the flat plain into a rolling country and for endowing it with every feature that would make it a beautiful park. The transformation is now going on. And it is probably the most extraordinary attempt to build scenery the world has ever known.

The making of the estate, which is three times the size of Central Park, has become Mr. Duke's hobby, his recreation. When he first bought the big tract of land at Somerville he had a trotting farm on it. Tiring of this, he turned his attention to dairy farming. Recently he discarded that fad to give his entire leisure time to making Duke's Park—as his pet estate will be called—the most beautiful spot in America. He has planned to spend $15,000,000 on his hobby—if necessary, $10,000,000 more. Thus, out of smoke—your smoke, my smoke, everybody's smoke—will arise a park which may some day vie with the most famous parks in the world.

Thirty-two miles of drives have already been laid out. Millions of trees have already been planted. More than 100,000 imported trees were planted last summer in addition to those 17 artificial lakes

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 31, 1910.

Topic—My most interesting missionary Hero.—Ps. xlv. 1-4; Acts xxvii, 20-26. Led by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

Every Christian Endeavorer should be possessed of some of the great and interesting events of missions. After all, they are simply the stories of the wondrous works of God in bringing the world to the cross, using men and women as the agents in the work. Moreover, however humble and wrought more wonderful works than in this particular field of all His talents, either in nature or in the government and development of men and nations. The story of missions is the most thrilling story in the world's history. Men have lauded great generals, some of whom have practically conquered the world of their day. They have heaped laurels and erected monuments at the graves of millions of soldiers who have borne sacrifices and endured hardships in fighting for their country. But if they only knew the sacrifices of missionaries, their fearlessness in facing hardships to save the souls of men rather than kill their bodies, they would have a higher regard for the missionaries and their cause. Take the life of Mary Lucinda Bonnell Bunnell, Marcus Whitney, Mrs. McFarland, the only white woman in Alaska for eight months, and many other home missionaries. Recall the great names of the foreign field and be inspired in foreign missions—Judson, Carey, Livingstone, Moffet, Paton and scores of others. Where in all the world are biographies more thrilling, more courageous, more self sacrificing, to be found? Since, as a society, as Christian Endeavorers we should know not an interesting item, but the entire lives, of these greatest of the world's heroes.

We should not only know the great events in these men's lives, but tell them to others. Children should be able to say with the psalmist, "We have heard with our ears, O God; our fathers have told us what work Thou didst in their times in the days of old." Since that God has done still greater things on mission fields, and these things should be made known to all men. Ignorance is the chief source of missionary indifference. Tell men the story, the facts; tell them what God hath wrought and what He is doing today. Interest will be aroused and active participation will be engaged in by the majority of those who hear. And the timid ones might have hesitated, but even they need no longer do so. Our greatest men from personal observation and knowledge have paid and are paying their highest encomiums to missionaries and their labors.

Knowing the great labors and telling about them will deepen our own interest in their greatest cause. We will want to be more and do more for missions.

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. iii, 1-7; Nah. i, 15; Matt. xxviii, 19-20; Acts i, 1-8; xiii, 1-3; xiv, 24-28; xvi, 1-5; xvii, 10-23; Isa. iii, 1; Rom. xi, 14, 15, 19-21.

Not Fully Developed.

Christian Endeavor has not been developed to the highest point of efficiency—not by a little it must remain—essentially a society conducted by the young people, it calls for a closer study on the part of the pastor and all earnest church workers; it calls for trained leadership, the teacher himself being thoroughly equipped for the task of teaching them. This work will most frequently fall upon the pastor's broad shoulders, and he will carry the burden joyfully when he realizes that, after all, it is only a seed basket of the sower, the promise of a harvest for the church unto life eternal. The tasks that committees are set to accomplish will be such as the young people will find worthy of their best efforts and through which they will "learn to do well," as Christians and citizens, "by living." Social life also will be encouraged. Not fewer socials, especially for the younger people, but more, will be held. One society in Texas put a dance hall out of commission by providing for such healthy socials for the boys and girls. We shall come to recognize the need of "play" and the educational value of it, and possibly in the near future the church will ring with the laughter and the shouts of happy children. The prophet saw merry, playing crowds in the streets of the holy city, and he rejoiced. Why may not we?—Ripple in Christian Endeavor World.

A Message From Mr. Edison.

Thomas A. Edison, the great inventor, recently sent this personal message to the world of Christian Endeavor by Mr. Amos R. Wells, the editorial secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor:

If there is any message I can give that might be of value to your young people it would be this: To be interested in whatever they undertake, so that they will be at the moment, to dismiss from their minds everything else but the one thing they are doing at the moment, and to bend all of that one thing in all its bearings, from every viewpoint, and to be master of it. Don't overwork, but when you do it and let nature indicate the necessity for rest. After resting go at the work again with the same concentration. Don't waste time to men who know. To accomplish things there must first be an idea of possibility. Then the patchwork must be try, and keep on trying with enthusiasm and a thorough belief in an ability to succeed. If you are convinced that a certain thing can be done, never mind what the experts say to the contrary, but persist if you are really interested. Forget entirely the word disappointment. Failures, so called, are but finger posts pointing out the right direction to those who are willing to learn. So far as I can see, these principles have influenced me in the years that have passed. In addition, I have always believed that hard work and a deep personal interest in everything that makes for human progress will make men or women valuable to themselves and to the world.

REMEDIES EASILY USED.

To cure hangnails, which are due to excessive dryness of the skin surrounding the nails, try rubbing the base of the nail every night with vaseline or mutton tallow.

If your eyes are weak and are easily tired when reading and sewing it probably means that your general health is below par.

A nourishing diet and plenty of sleep, combined with exercise in the open air, are important.

When you must wink rest your eyes occasionally for a few minutes at a time, and always work in a good light— in daylight if possible.

To relieve a soft corn, try the old-fashioned remedy of binding it nightly in common baking soda moistened with a little water. The most stubborn and painful corns will disappear after three weeks of this treatment.

Cold water, unless taken with meals, will not increase the flesh, but has a tendency to harden and make it firmer.

«LININGS.

Since the double skirt has come into fashion once again the question of the underskirt or lining must be most carefully considered or the gown will be a failure.

Soft silk or satin or su... finished linings are choosen preferably, and then a deep facing or flounce of the material is put on, over which falls the gown, and if the lining is not perfectly cut and fitted, then the task of making the gown is most difficult, if not impossible.

With the transparent materials often two and sometimes three are used in order to gain the desired shade or color, but this again is so difficult a task that the amateur dressmaker will secure much better results if she uses a more expensive lining of silk or satin and a more closely woven fabric, not so close but that the color and sheen of the satin will show through.

For the moment the exaggerated tight skirts are the style, and even when the upper skirts are full the linings are cut very scant, and that the same effect is given, especially when the fullness is gathered with the bias fold or band around the ankles.

This fashion requires to be most carefully dealt with, or the gown will look vulgar and ugly, in fact, two much care cannot be given in copying the original models, as the fashions of the moment are so exaggerated as to be unbecoming to the majority of women.

Never Mind the Setbacks.

Never mind the setbacks,
Life is not all roses.
Thorns are on the roses,
But the roses none condemn.
Never mind the trials,
Bear them with a smile,
It's the goal you're after
That is worth your while.

Never mind the failures,
Buckle in once more,
They are all forgotten
When the fight is o'er,
No one sees your bruises,
No one heeds your sighs,
All the world will cheer you,
If you win the prize.

Never mind the setbacks,
Take them with a grin,
Nothing matters, brother,
If you only win.
Tread the stony pathway
With a cheerful song,
Victory is sweetest
When the fight was strong.

LOVABLE WOMAN.

Very lovable is the woman who has cultivated the disposition to see the good and not the evil side of human nature, who can be severe with her own failings and excuse the faults of others.

We are told that she is a dull, uninteresting creature, and if we take the trouble to look into the matter, we find that she does not laugh at her neighbor's pet weakness; she does not enjoy hitting out right and left at the world at large and is always ready with a plea for unseen reasons, which, if they could be revealed, would go a long way toward modifying harsh judgment.

Our lovable woman may not be witty, she may be a little prosy, but she it is to whom we go when in trouble for sympathy, and confide with a feeling that our secret will not be torn to shreds as soon as our back is turned.

THE CARVING KNIFE.

There is a great deal in knowing how to sharpen the carving knife. The steel should be held in the left hand, which should be on a level with the elbow, pointed toward the right shoulder and the knife held almost perpendicularly in the right hand.

The hilt of the knife's edge should be placed at the top of the steel and the blade drawn downward the whole length of both steel and knife, first on one side and then on the other, so that the point of the knife finishes at the hilt of the steel.

The blade should be almost flat on the steel with the back slightly raised, but with only the edge touching it.

CLEANLINESS TO KEEP MOTHS AND INSECTS AWAY.

To prevent depredations by moths and other insects in a house closed for the summer, cleanliness is necessary, as specks on fabrics and dust or dirt on wood attract household pests.

If the dirt alone were not reason enough for applying soap and other cleansing agents, there is the added fact that washing or airing will exterminate insects.

It is not too much to say that every inch of wood which is not in the light of day should be washed with ammonia water and soap. All borrax and dressing table drawers should be emptied, wiped carefully with a wet cloth and then put into the sun for an hour or so, to dry and air. Fresh papers should be supplied, and every article that has been in the drawers must be shaken and aired.

The fact that garments are not a material that moths will attack is no reason for omitting the precaution of shaking them, for there are insects that prey on cotton as well as woolens.

Lavender flowers or a few drops of oil of lavender in chests and drawers serve as preventatives.

All heavy draperies must be sunned as well as brushed and shaken before being packed away for the summer. Silk curtains should be carefully brushed or shaken to remove dust before laying them away.

If there are woolen carpets on the floors and the rooms are to be darkened, special attention must be given to the edges of them. For example, the carpet should be swept and then wiped with a heavy cloth wrung out of strong ammonia water. Then the windows must be opened to dry the carpets before camphor, tar balls, or other moth preventatives are scattered over the rugs, etc., and ground into the nap by walking on the balls.

Closet doors, in rooms tightly closed, must be opened so more air will be admitted and the retreat be less snug for moths. Whatever articles are wrapped in newspapers should be done so that no persistent intruder can get into them around the edges, and the safest way to accomplish this is to turn the edges and tops and sides twice before tying the bundles.

Rugs are likely to go through the warm season in good condition if laid flat on the floor, putting plenty of moth preventative over the surface, as the carpets are treated.

A PLACE TO GO.

There's a place that I can go to when
my plans all go astray,
There's a place that I can go to when
I've had a grouchy day.
There's a place that I can rush to when I need a bit of cheer,
It's a seat upon the bleachers, now the baseball season's here.

There's a place that I can sneak to when my brains refuse to work,
There's a place that I can hike to when I really want to shirk;
I can dodge the bill collectors, and the office bores who call,
On a seat upon the bleachers, now the boys are playing ball.

O, I tell you what, it's splendid to have somewhere else to go,
When your business worries fret you and your head is aching so,
And I grab my coat and derby and
I hurry on my way
To a seat upon the bleachers when the team is home to play.

Gentlemen—Your committee would respectfully report that it has examined the ground, and is of the opinion that the present bridge should be extended.

Your committee would recommend that the extension be made for a length of about sixty-five feet, of the same size of the present bridge, namely four feet span by three feet high, the cost not to exceed the sum of $700.

Part of this extension will occupy the sidewalk and on this section we would lay a concrete sidewalk on top of the new bridge.

Your committee would recommend that a communication be sent to the Borough Council of Roselle Park Borough, stating that this board will expect the Borough Council to pay to the County of Union seventy-five cents per lineal foot for each lineal foot of sidewalk that may so constructed by the county in the building of this bridge.

Respectfully submitted,

JOSEPH PERRY,
ELSTON DARBY,

Freeholder Krouse moved the report be received and the recommendation adopted which on roll call was so ordered without dissent.

By the Committee on Elizabeth Draw-bridge.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Elizabeth Drawbridge it has recently make an examination of the superstructure of the Summer street drawbridge, Elizabeth. We find that the steel work of this bridge is disintegrated very badly in places. The floor beams will have to be entirely replaced. Parts of the chords of the main trusses of the bridge are also very badly rusted in several places.

Your committee has obtained a preliminary estimate of the cost of making the necessary repairs, and, based on that estimate, your committee is of the opinion that the repairs will cost not less than one hundred to fifteen hundred dollars.

This bridge is a very light construction; so light in fact that no city fire engines are permitted to go over it.

The foundations of the bridge are in good order and probably would be capable of supporting a heavier bridge than the present one without much additional cost to the foundations. Your committee is of the opinion that before this expenditure for repairs is made an investigation should be made as to the cost of replacing the superstructure of this bridge with one of heavier design.

We would therefore recommend that a committee be appointed to investigate the need of replacing this bridge and to report at the next meeting of the board as to such necessity and the probable cost of the work.

C. J. JENSEN,
T. F. HAVILAND,
JACOB MARTIN,
Committee.

Freeholder Krouse moved the report be received and the recommendation adopted, which was so ordered. Director Cady appointed as said committee Freeholders Jensen, Haviland, Martin, Krouse and Wilbur.

Sea Bathing.

Sea bathing is excellent for strengthening the system. It will very often prevent a disease from developing and restore the original vitality to a constitution which has been broken up by some dreadful malady.

There are some persons who are not strong enough to endure the shock of a cold sea bath, and for such as these a warm salt water bath taken at home will be very beneficial.

Temperature of bath waters:

A cold bath ..... 60-70 degrees
A tepid bath ..... 80-90 degrees
A warm bath ..... 90-98 degrees
A hot bath ..... Above 98 degrees

The Refrigerator.

In building our pantry we had our refrigerator put up two feet from the floor, against the north wall of the house. This arrangement brings the refrigerator shelves where they are easy to reach and clean and makes an excellent dry, cool "lock-up" below for raisins, nuts, loaf sugar, chocolates, etc. A window at the back admits the ice in summer, leaving it open in winter makes ice unnecessary. Only two separate steps to this window, so that the iceman is not obliged to track either kitchen or porch.

Historic Courthouse Sold.

The old Passaic County Courthouse was sold under the hammer Wednesday to Marcus Cohn for $30,000. The courthouse was erected in 1839 and was the scene of many noted trials.

WON BENCH SHOW PRIZES

A. G. Hooley Captures Gold Medal for Best Setter Bred by Him.

ALSO THE McALEENAN CUP.

Fred Moore Scores Twice—Gets Blue Ribbons in Toy Poodle Class—Mr. Minturn Loses $3,000 Bull Dog.

The famous Meadowbrook team of English setters, owned by A. G. Hooley, of Rockview terrace, again proved themselves to be invincible at the annual dog show of the Monmouth County Kennel Club, which was held in the Long Branch Casino, Saturday. Mr. Hooley's dogs not only won both championships in their breed, taking every first, but in the competition open to all, which brought together over three hundred champions as well as many famous European winners, they scored complete victories.

The prizes won by the Meadowbrook Kennels include the President's cup for the best of all breeds; the Henry McAleenan cup for the best setter of all varieties; the champion gold medal for the best setter bred by exhibitor; the Harry Content cup for the best American bred champion; the James Smith trophy for the best team; the Robert Guggenheim cup for the largest and best exhibit; and the Alexander cup for the best bred setter in New Jersey.

Fred Moore, of Park avenue, also won prizes in the toy poodle classes with his Sunny Lad and Little Elk. Both of these dogs received a blue ribbon. This makes three blue ribbons and two reserves for Sunny Lad this season, and two blues and one reserve for Little Elk.

Mrs. J. D. Anderson, also of this city, obtained two blue ribbons in the toy poodle class with her bitch Maidie. In the limit class, Maidie received winner over Champion Dainty Lady. She also took blue ribbon in the open class.

The Long Branch show is one of the finest in the country and the exhibition on Saturday was attended by the most prominent people of New York and Philadelphia society. The entry list included over nine hundred dogs from the leading kennels of the country and the competition in the judging was keen.

On his way to the show John W. Minturn, of Green Neck, lost his $3,000 bull dog, Lord Wilton. Mr. Minturn had brought the bull dog to the show in a case, strapped to the rear of his automobile. When the case was opened at Long Branch the valuable bull dog was found to be dead. It is thought that poor ventilation and gasoline fumes were the causes of the dog's death.

EASY WIN FOR AARON B. AT SATURDAY MATINEE

A good sized crowd watched the races of the Fair Acres Driving and Riding Club at the matinee held Saturda afternoon on the track of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club. While the finishes were not close in any of the events the card of four races furnished some excellent sport.

TALKED ON 23RD PSALM

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring's Address at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp.

IMPLEMENTS FROM PALESTINE.

Fine Music and Singing at Service Sunday Afternoon—Four-Year-Old Astonishes Audience.

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring was the speaker at the service in the auditorium at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp Sunday afternoon and he made such a plain and convincing illustration of the meaning of the twenty-third Psalm that the children to whom the discourse was especially directed became absorbed in the simple story of the Shepherd. Dr. Herring used the native Staff and Rod to explain the actual duties of the shepherd, telling the children that he had brought the implements from Palestine last year.

The statement of the source of the staff and rod caused the youngsters to open their eyes wide and wonder. Dr. Herring told how the shepherd on the plains about the Far Eastern country knew the names of all his sheep and how they would answer the shepherd's call. He likened it to Jesus who knows every soul by name and expects an answer when He calls. A knife of peculiar shape, which Dr. Herring explained the use of, also delighted the children and the pastor was so struck by the attention given to him that he turned to the little ones and thanked them. They, in turn, sang a little song of thanks not only for Dr. Herring, but for all those who had assisted in the service.

Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, of East Seventh street, sang two solos and Chester Chamberlain sang just before the offering. During the taking of the collection Martin A. Korff played a violin solo with much expression. Miss Evelyn Berg was the pianist. Meetings will be held every evening this week except Saturday.

A feature of the afternoon was the Little Margaret Withers, a four-year-old girl who repeated the twenty-third Psalm without a break. The tiny voice could be heard to the remotest part of the building. The meeting was led by J. F. Parker.

SATURDAY'S RESULTS ON THE GOLF COURSES

In the fourball handicap for Classes A and B at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday in which the best ball counted, Messrs. Kauffman and Erickson turned in the lowest score, their net being 62 for the course.

Some exciting play resulted in the tennis singles for the championship of Plainfield at the Plainfield Country Club's courts on Saturday afternoon, extra games being required in the match between H. J. Cochran and W. Barlow, and H. J. Cochran and D. W. Mulford in the semi-finals. As A. D. Beers and S. W. Mayhew did not play, the finals will be played next Saturday, the winner of the last named match playing A. J. Cochran for the title.

DIED WHILE ON A VISIT

Miss Byrne, of Chicago, Succumbs Following Appendicitis Operation.

GUEST OF MRS. J. E. MARTINE.

Taken Ill Sunday She Passed Away at Hospital Monday Morning—Leaves No Relatives.

Failing to rally from an operation for appendicitis which was performed Sunday evening at Muhlenberg hospital, Miss Byrne, of Chicago, Ill., died Monday morning at 7:30.

Miss Byrne was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Martine and on Saturday accompanied Mrs. Martine on a shopping tour to New York. In the evening they, with Mr. Martine, took dinner on the roof of the Waldorf-Astoria and returned to this city at about 11 o'clock at night.

Sunday morning Miss Byrne complained of feeling ill and could eat no breakfast, later she became the victim of excruciating abdominal pains. Dr. Thomas C. Blair was hastily summoned and diagnosed the case as one of acute appendicitis. Dr. Blair suggested a consultation and Dr. W. T. Hellmuth, Jr., a specialist from New York, was telegraphed for. He immediately confirmed Dr. Blair's diagnosis and suggested an immediate operation. Miss Byrne consented to this and the ambulance conveyed her to the hospital, where the operation was performed at 5:15 o'clock, with the above noted result.

Miss Byrne leaves no relatives. Her sudden death has prostrated Mrs. Martine, who was a life-long friend. Miss Byrne was about thirty-eight years old. The funeral service will be private.

FREDDIE IS BREVETTED IN FOWLER MUD BATTERY

Emulating the example of the New York Journal, which picked Charley Murphy's interesting political letters out of a waste paper basket at a sanitarium in Michigan for the edification of New Yorkers, the Plainfield Village Buzzard by such methods has procured the correspondence of F. Willingly Done. These letters are just as genuine as that purported to have been written by the unwilling recruit of the Fowler Mud Battery, and are no more genuine.

Here is the first of the communications he has received:

Fred Willingly Done,

Down in the storm cellar.

Our dear Fred:—

For meritorious service in the campaign we have brevetted you major satatrap of the Fowler Mud Battery.

My boy, my boy, you have nerve if nothing else except gray hairs. You did fine to keep up the bluff that you were the author of the letter we gave you to sign, but you must not walk up again and offer that man Runyon your hand. If you do we won't have you appointed a census enumerator again.

That incident on North avenue, the morning following the publication of our letter, has become known all over. When you walked up to the judge as he was talking with Amos Andrews, one little urchin shouted to his pal: "Come on Jimmy, here's where de judge gives that bloke a Jack Johnson cut dat will land him down dat storm sewer."

Last night I had a horrible dream and I woke up all in a perspiration. I dreamt as you reached out to shake the hand of a man that less than twenty-four hours previously we got you to fib about, you said:

"Judge, you know I never meant those things; you know I know they're not true, but I simply had to do it. They put the paper in my hands and said 'sign there,' and I did. You know I was given that job as a census enumerator and they didn't do that for nothing. Judge, I am not a coward nor a rogue, mere an ordinary little inoffensive man, and I've been used as a tool. It was a pretty mean piece of business. Judge, here' my hand!"

Freddy, I'm glad it was only a dream, for if you had owned up that way, you would have exposed us. Another thing, Freddy, don't be seen in the company of Amos Andrews. You know we have been handing it out that we are for municipal ownership; that was our dodge to get the New Idea to smile on us. Keep a stiff upper lip and don't let on anything about how we got you to sign your name to the letter. Then some people will believe that you are a student of politics and a writer. Carry a copy of Cicero under your arm and Emerson's Essays in your hip pocket. In other words throw out a bluff—that's our game.

AMBASSADORS OF CHRIST

LOYALTY TO CHRIST ESSENTIAL

"Put the Cross of Christ Ahead of the Flag at the Ballot Box or Endanger the Welfare of the Country."

The third of the series of union services was held in the First Baptist church Sunday night. As usual there was a goodly sized congregation despite the warm weather. There were several beautiful anthems rendered by the choir of the First Baptist church, the solo work being well taken by Miss Harris and Miss Hatfield, the new soprano and alto of the choir.

An invocation was made by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, and prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First Methodist church. The sermon of the evening was preached by Rev. John Y. Broek, of the Trinity Reformed church.

Mr. Broek took for his text the combination of First Corinthians 1-23, and Second Corinthians 4-5: "But we preach not ourselves but Christ Jesus the Lord Crucified." The sermon was in part as follows:

"Paul was an all around man but he was a man of one definite idea—balance conveyed her to the hospital, where the operation was performed at 5:15 o'clock, with the above noted result. balance conveyed her to the hospital, glory in the Christ, his Saviour, and hence comes his determination to preach Christ crucified. The 'but' in the text suggests that the Corinthians had not always heard about Christ and this was so. They would only listen to preachers who came to them with the words of a religion, which was steeped in heathen paganism, and to preachers who could cover these thoughts with the most beautiful declamation. And so Paul feared lest he would not have an audience for he was no orator and the word which he brought was the simple gospel of Jesus Christ. Like Lincoln's Gettysburgh address, the gospel is great because it is simple.

"And then Paul feared that he would be refused a hearing by these people on account of the narrowness of the gospel, which is simply God in Christ. A minister is a sort of an ambassador of Christ but every Christian can be a member of Christ by his conversation and the example which he or she sets. But in preaching this Christ, the Christian should guard against self-glorification and remember that he is preaching only for the sake of focussing more light upon his Saviour.

"In the coming political campaign, the man who does not stand by Christ and put the Cross of Christ ahead of the flag of his country at the ballot box, is endangering the welfare of this country and its people. Paul's great message was loyalty to Christ at all times. But why should a Christian be loyal? The reasons are just these:

"In an age of religious upheavel, when men are thinking far more about themselves then they are about religion, and when education is attempting to substitute itself for the gospel, then it is that the Christian should stand firm and loyal for all other isms are broken by the simple message of the cross.

"The Christian should be loyal to Christ because he is the highest ideal of manhood that we have. Christ touches the blest as well as the unblest. He gets the influence of Christ is another reason for the Christian being loyal for Christ is the impulse of every life. That Christ is the remedy for sin and that the love which saves is the love which keeps, should make the Christian loyal.

"And then the last reason is that Christ brought reconciliation between God and man in the atonement, which is simply the sinner's hand and the hand of God clasped together through Christ. And so we can all preach Christ crucified by a life that's loyal."

Fruit Store Burglarized.

Some time between 11:30 Saturday night and 2:00 Sunday morning the fruit store of Toyfon Zacarapoulos, on Park avenue near Front street, was entered and the cash register rifled. Forty-seven dollars was the booty secured by the burglar, and he left no clue. Entrance was effected through a rear window.

THE UMPIRE SAID 9 TO 0.

Plainfield Was Ahead When Downpour Came—McLaughlin and Knoth Were Batted Freely.

The Plainfield Baseball Club journeyed over to Rahway Saturday afternoon and came back a disgusted lot of men. Disgusted at themselves? Not at all but thoroughly provoked at the Rahway baseball justice. It was the same old story of the Rahway pitcher having lots of speed and the umpire being evidently control that dissatisfied the Plainfielders. The Rahway A. C. team was out for blood and so was the sporting public of that quiet little town, and the umpire was out to lunch when it came to giving a square deal.

In other words Plainfield was ahead 7 to 0 when the floods descended and it was Rahway's turn at the bat. But the diamond soon became a lake and both teams started to leave the field. Then the rain held up a bit and the umpire realized that the game would count as a victory for Plainfield, so he called the teams back to play. Of course there was a strenuous kick but his nibs insisted and Rahway had it all their way with a slippery ball for the Plainfield boys to field. After enduring the free benefit for a while, the local team refused to be the goats any longer and so they stopped. The game was then forfeited to Rahway, 9-0.

Both McLaughlin and Knoth were batted freely but the Rahway twirler was inclinded to be wild at times. Seven errors were charged against the Plainfield team, Emery being responsible for three of them. The popular third baseman certainly had an off day. Boyd was the star hitter of the game with three safeties to his credit, while Martin and Carlstrom registered two clean ones each.

For Rahway Armstrong, Boltz and Boyne were the shining lights, each of them getting two hits beside playing well in the field.

AN UNUSUAL PRIVILEGE GRANTED BY POPE PIUS

Because this year marks the seventh century of the foundation of the order of Friars Minor, or the Franciscan Fathers, the Pope has granted a privilege to Catholics throughout the world, which has never been granted before. This is in connection with the well known plenary Indulgence of the Portiuncula and it will be granted Monday and Tuesday, August 1 and 2, and Saturday and Sunday, August 6 and 7. August 2 is the anniversary of the dedication of the little Church of Our Lady of Angels, near Assisi, Italy, the parish church of St. Francis of Assisi, the founder of the Franciscan Community. St. Francis himself obtained from the Holy See in the year 1223, the concession of the plenary indulgence. For many years this indulgence could only be obtained by a visit to the church at Assisi.

At St. Joseph's church this privilege will be extended from the afternoon of August 1 to sunset on the following day.

SOMERVILLE 'DEAD EASY'

Frederickson Pitches in Fine Form for the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. Nine.

THE SCORE WAS 6 TO 2.

Wilcox and Marsh Show Up In Good Shape As Batters and Hand Also Shines.

In a slow, listless game, which was void of anything like excitement, the Plainfield Y. M. C. baseball team took the scalps of the Somerville B. A. nine by a score of 6—2 on the Oval Saturday afternoon. The locals pinched the game in the first inning and, as the Somerville team would, it could not get a look in to even make the contest an interesting one. It was simply a question of opportune hitting and steady playing in the pinches that scored a victory for the Plainfield team, although the pitching of Frederickson, a new man from the "Netherwoods", played an important part with the scarcity of Somerville runs. Only three measly hits were secured off his delivery and he sent thirteen of the opposing batsmen to the bench via the strike-out route.

Brunt started in to pitch for the Somerville team and the locals got after him with a rush. Wilcox, the first Plainfield man up, singled, reached second on Taylor's sacrifice fly, and came home with the first run on Peacock's sharp hit to second base. Fritts then laced out a beautiful three bagger, bringing in Peacock. Platt Adams, of Olympic fame, then sent a hard grounder down the third base line, but the third baseman in his haste and anxiety did the skyrocket stunt with the ball over the catcher's head and Fritts and Adams jogged home.

Plainfield added another in the second on a couple of hits and an error. Then in the third, Dumont sent a shudder through the Somerville delegation by banging out a neat three sacker. Hand kept up the cannonade with a single and Mr. Brunt took a walk out into left field, Henderson replacing him. From then on the scoring ceased for the Y. M. C. A. boys, who could not seem to bunch their hits off Henderson's delivery.

Somerville never looked dangerous although two runs were scored by them on errors and a hit. For the visitors Henderson was the whole show with his steady box work and clever fielding. Van Pelt on third base also did good work in Somerville. Wilcox and Marsh carried off the honors for the Plainfield boys in the batting line but for a good steady game, Frederickson and Hand deserve credit.

ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY

PRINCE LAUNCHES THE BOOM.

State Commissioner of Banking and Insurance Will Fight for Gubernatorial Honors.

Vivian M. Lewis, state commissioner of banking and insurance, was formally indorsed for Governor at a dinner given in his honor by the members of the Passaic County Republican Committee at Paterson, last night. He accepted the indorsement and said he would be a candidate. More than 100 prominent men in the party were present and shouted their approval of the choice of "Our Viv." The cries of "We want you; we want you, Viv!" "The next Governor!" were heard above the music.

The diners were not satisfied until they heard from Mr. Lewis. When he arose to speak there were more cheers and shouts. Mr. Lewis went right into the matter of his candidacy, and after reviewing the political past he placed himself on record as being in favor of the establishing of a reservoir for the conservation of the waters for the people of northern New Jersey. He referred to the water bills passed by the last Legislature and urged the amendment of the public utilities bill.

County Chairman George W. Poltit presided. The gathering was an informal one. Present were State Senator John R. Prince, Assemblymen Morgan Laydon, Morris Pikart and Radcliffe, County Clerk John J. Slater, Sheriff John Rancier, Former Senator Wood McKee, State Water Commissioner George W. Wright and county officials.

Vivian Lewis and Professor Prince were late in arriving. The doctor motored all the way from his home and met Mr. Lewis as he arrived on the train from Trenton. After a short rest at the Hamilton Club they went to the Colt Restaurant, where the diners were waiting. The entrance of Mr. Lewis was the signal for a rousing welcome. All stood up as a big red, white and blue banner was unfurled in the rear. The band struck up the "Star Spangled Banner," and changed quickly to "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," all present joining in the chorus.

Senator Prince was the first speaker, responding to a toast "Organization." The speaker said he was in favor of some plan for the education of the young man on organization lines, explaining to them the system of government, city, state and national. He then proposed a toast to Mr. Lewis.

"I ask you all to drink with me to a man whose life has always been a life of results; a record that has always been a credit to his party; one who has served his state faithfully, quietly and capably; an ideal public servant—Vivian M. Lewis, our next Governor." Hardly had the speaker sat down when there were insistent cries of "Lewis, Lewis, our next Governor; oh, you Viv!"

After the din the voice of a tall, smooth-faced young man in the rear could be heard: "Hear, hear." He was recognized. He was Fred V. Moore, county committeeman of the Second district of the Eleventh Ward. Mr. Lewis's own ward. Mr. Moore read the following resolution:

"Whereas, The Republican party in September of this year is to nominate a candidate for the office of Governor of New Jersey, and

"Whereas, Passaic County is the home of a man, born and reared in the city of Paterson, who in every office he has held has exhibited a capacity in his work in a manner which has the respect, confidence and approval of the people throughout this state, regardless of party affiliation and

"Whereas, Believing him fully equipped to administer the high office of Governor of New Jersey; therefore be it

FRONT ST. MERCHANTS TO PLAY BASEBALL

The merchants of East Front street claim that they can beat the West Front street store-keepers at baseball and a game has been arranged between these nines for tomorrow afternoon on Crescent Oval. It will be in the nature of a celebration of the Thursday half-holiday. Both teams are in fine fettle and are out for blood—that's why the game is to be played near the hospital. No admission is to be charged, the contest being only for the sport and for the decision of the championship of Front street's commercial members. The game is to be called at 2:30 sharp.

A. C. Lohrman is the captain of the East Front street contingent, while J. Weinberger is the leader of the other team. The line-up of the East Front street nine will be: Harry DeMeza, left field; David Coleman, right field; Archer Levy, center field; Benson Meaney, shortstop; Charles Post, third base; Robert Barnard, second base; Fred Becker Jr., first base; Charles Ferraro, catcher; and A. C. Lohrman, pitcher. For some unknown reason the West Front street aggregation is keeping its line-up secret. But a good game is promised, nevertheless.

MANY ARE MOURNERS FOR NEIL M'CARTHY

Funeral services for Neil A. McCarthy, assistant State factory inspector, who died very suddenly at his home, 867 Martin street, Elizabeth, Saturday night, were held yesterday morning at the church of the Holy Rosary, in Elizabeth.

The church was thronged with relatives and friends. A delegation of members of the Metal Polishers and Buffers' Union and from the Singer plant, where he was employed up to six years ago when he received the appointment as assistant factory inspector, attended the services. The Rev. James J. Reynolds, of the Holy Rosary church, of which Mr. McCarthy was a communicant officiated at the high mass of requiem.

The floral tributes were beautiful. Among them were a large pillow bearing the words "My Husband," a large standing wreath from the Metal Polishers and Buffers' Union, a large pillow from the Get Together Hunch, of this city, inscribed, "G. T. H.," a wreath from the William Hatzman Association marked "Our Friend," and a wreath from the Bergen Association.

The pallbearers were Andrew McCardell, William Tompayne, William Schlachter, Daniel Dillon, Henry Young and Thomas Y. Bye. Interment was made in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Elizabeth.

HOUSEKEEPERS URGED TO HELP IN EARLY CLOSING.

Housekeepers are reminded that on Thursday afternoons during August the merchants will close their stores so that their clerks may have the afternoon and evening off, and they should govern themselves accordingly about their purchases. The adoption of the rule to give the clerks a half-day a week during the warm weather has met with popular approval, not only by the clerks, but citizens generally, and it is believed that all will co-operate to make the change a success.

The local stores will close at noon and customers are urged to plan their trading so that the clerks can get away promptly at 12 o'clock. Tomorrow the clerks at the store of A. E. Force & Co. will be given the entire day, and they will go to Asbury Park with the Trinity Reformed church excursion. Tepper Brothers have decided to close their dry goods store all day Thursday during August.

JUPITER PLUVIUS & JOVE

LIGHTNING PLAYS PRANKS.

Barn at Greenbrook Destroyed, Trees Struck and Grass Ignited—Fire Threatens Buildings in Martinsville.

With the possible exception of the lightning and wind which accompanied the thunder storm of yesterday, the farmers and market gardeners got what they have been longing for ever since the beginning of July—a good heavy rain. Although the rainfall was less than an inch, .84 to be exact, it took on the proportions of deluge in its early spurts and did a tremendous amount of good.

In some parts of the city as well as in the suburbs heavy hail preceded the downpour of rain and considerable damage was done to corn and standing grain in different parts of the town. In Washington Valley it is said the full force of the wind was felt. Here the wind resembled a hurricane in strength and what it did not blow down it bent close to the ground and created a feeling of uneasiness.

Lightning got in some pretty work in the heavens and at the same time played havoc with some people's property. Over in Martinsville several trees were uprooted and others were struck by the bolts of Jove. A tree on the premises of John P. Van Nest was struck and began to burn. The same bolt set fire to the underbrush and grass nearby and communicated to the fence. The fire crept up close to the outbuildings, which in a moment would have caught, but the ensuing rain aided Mr. Van Nest in subduing the blaze.

In this city hailstones half an inch in diameter fell for several minutes, but as far as can be ascertained did no particular damage. It was rumored this morning that a man had been struck by lightning in the vicinity of Fanwood at 8 o'clock last night, but the story was not verified this morning.

A barn belonging to Mrs. Elizabeth Harris, of Greenbrook road, Dunellen, was struck by lightning last evening during the height of the thunder storm and was entirely consumed together with several tons of hay. Fortunately the team of horses with the harness and two wagons were rescued from the burning building. The loss is estimated at $500.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE OPENS AT POCONO PINES.

The conference of Young People's Societies of Presbyterian churches at Pocono Pines Assembly, Monroe county, Pennsylvania, opens tonight with an address by Karl Lehman, interstate secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor. Walter Firstbrook, the delegate to the conference from the Hope chapel society, writes that from all indications this conference will greatly excede the last one in size and influence. Delegates are present from New Jersey, New York, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Washington, D. C., Maryland and West Virginia.

Through a suggestion made by Mr. Firstbrook last winter, the conference will hold a Christian Citizenship and Temperance evening, with Rev. Dr. Johnson, of Washington, N. J., the chairman of the State Christian Endeavor Christian Citizen committee as the speaker.

RUNYON WILL SPEAK AT SESSION OF ELKS

A summer session, which promises to be a big social success, and which will be featured by a talk by Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, who will probably be the Republican candidate for Congress from the Fifth district, will be held in the Elk club rooms at Elizabeth tomorrow night. There will be no initiations.

Another feature of the session will be the report of the grand lodge representatives, Augustus W. Schwartz, on the Elks' convention at Detroit. The finance committee has an interesting report to submit at the business session to the effect that a permanent loan on the home has been obtained.

Fine entertainment has been provided by the house committee, composed of George L. Hirtzel, Victor Morris and Rober. McKean. The second floor of the new home has been tirely fitted with handsome furniture. Visiting Elks now claim that the local lodge has the finest home in the state.

REVISED BUILDING CODE IS NEARING COMPLETION

The Councilmanic fire and building committee will meet tonight to further consider the revised building code, which will be presented to the Common Council probably early in the Fall. Many changes have been made in the code, bringing it up to date so that it will meet present-day requirements in building, and the members will probably set aside one whole meeting for its consideration.

During the time that the code has been under revision representatives from the various trades have met with the committee, making suggestions which were invited by the committee as a guidance in framing the code, in this way the builders have been a great help to the committee. There is no idea of compiling a code that is going to be a hardship, but it is proposed to have one that will fully protect the city as well as the builders.

ROUTED FROM BED BY CRUEL JOKER.

Last night about 11 o'clock Mrs. Bertram C. Firstbrook, of Plainfield, who, with her sister, Miss Clara Guyer, is stopping at the Newburgh hotel, was roused from slumber when the clerk of the hotel received a telephone message, presumably from her husband, stating that he would be down on the 6 o'clock train early this morning. Together the two ladies clambered out of bed dressed and sat on the front porch ready to greet Mrs. Firstbrook's hubby when he arrived, but they waited in vain, Firstbrook came not. It was no doubt the work of some practical joker who would better have been lost in slumber himself. —Asbury Park Journal.

UNCOVERED FOODSTUFFS

Board of Health Gives Dealers Until August 8 to Make Changes.

WILL THEN BEGIN CRUSADE.

Some Opposition Met With Among City Stores and Specious Arguments Heard—Must Obey Law.

The inspectors of the Board of Health who have been busy during the past week watching the changes being made in some of the stores by which fruit and other things exposed for sale are to be screened from flies, have met with some opposition in the enforcing of the provisions of the statute which provides for this protection, but as John O'Brien, the health officer does not wish to appear as working any hardship on any dealer he does want to see the law complied with.

Believing that those who have not yet complied with the request of the board will ultimately see the reasonableness of the law, Mr. O'Brien has allowed them until next Monday to comply with the provisions of the act. After that day a systematic inspection of all the stores will be made and action taken as seems to warrant in each individual case.

The law provides that all food stuffs exposed for sale must be covered with a protecting screen or other device which will prevent contamination from flies and dust and flies and all the way up from $50 according to the offense.

The notice requiring the changes to be made to protect fruits and other food was issued during the week ending July 23, and the Board of Health believes ample time has been given to all the dealers in town to make the necessary changes in their stores. However, the added time allowed for those who have not yet seen fit to follow the suggestions made to them. Wagons in the street are subject to the same law and it won't do for the bakers and peddlers to neglect their duty in regard to protecting the goods they deliver or carry on their wagons, for they also will be carefully inspected and perhaps will have to be prosecuted.

The argument has been raised that fruit while on the tree or vine is not covered and therefore is unprotected, but this will not alter the law. After Monday the crusade will begin in earnest, says Mr. O'Brien.

HLIZABETH'S BUDGET TOTALS $603,532.97.

The Elizabeth Board of Aldermen at its monthly meeting Monday night passed on its third reading the annual appropriation ordinance for the support of the city government. The budget this year is $603,532.97.

Fire Commissioner Charles S. Chandler was reappointed by the Mayor for a term of five years and was confirmed by the board.

The Mayor, on the ground that there was no general demand for free concerts during the balance of the summer and fall in the city parks vetoed a sundry appropriating $450 for this purpose.

Alderman McGurn asked that steps be taken by the Railroad Committee to prevent the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad from obstructing with its cars the Amboy avenue grade crossing.

The total valuation of Elizabeth this year will be, it is estimated, about $54,000,000.

Praise Superintendent McDowell.

Persons who have occasion to drive through Rock avenue between Front street and the brook, are sounding the praises of Superintendent McDowell, of the City Alms House. He has cleaned the road of all weeds, straightened the gutters and otherwise improved that thoroughfare. Residents in this vicinity appreciate Mr. McDowell's interest and work, declaring that it is the first time in a long time that the road has been improved.

OUTING OF EMPLOYEES OF A. E. FORCE & CO.

Tomorrow the employes of A. E. Force & Co., following their usual custom, will enjoy the whole day in an outing. By way of a change from the usual trip to the mountains they will this time take in the beauties and pleasures of the seashore at Asbury Park.

The employes will gather at the store tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock and march in a body to the station where they will take the special car provided for them which will be attached to the train on which Trinity Reformed Sunday school will travel to the shore. Special arrangements have been made by the firm with the management of the Hotel Brunswick at Asbury for the entertainment of the employes, the Japanese parlor being specially set apart for their use. Here an ample dinner will be provided with the accompaniment of a string band to furnish the music.

The committee has left nothing undone that will tend to the comfort of the faithful workers in the White Store. Every point of interest will be visited and it goes without saying that tomorrow will be a red letter day in the history of these annual outings. Returning the train will leave the shore at 7.10 and will arrive home at about 9 o'clock.

MUST BRING BACK WHEEL STOLEN ON MAY 12

The wheel which was stolen from William G. Cramer, of Dunellen, on May 12 last has been traced to L. Bray, Jr., of Plainfield avenue, who bought it of Ollie Faines, a colored boy, who in turn obtained the bicycle from William Totten who stole it and who is now in jail at New Brunswick awaiting the action of the September grand jury.

Faines was in court this morning and admitted buying the wheel from Totten for $4.50 and selling it to Bray, for $12.50 on the instalment plan. Faines seemed to think that he was not guilty of receiving stolen goods and did not show any concern regarding his position until Judge Runyon filled out a complaint against him. Then he changed his mind and told the judge that he would see Young Bray and try to secure the return of the wheel. The court allowed him until Friday morning to accomplish this result.

No blame is attached to Mr. Bray for purchasing the whel as he was unaware that the bicycle was stolen, but it is quite likely that both he and Faines will get into serious trouble unless the wheel is in court on Friday morning.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL DECLINES TO FURNISH AN OPINION.

In reply to a letter, addressed to him by V. W. Nash, Jr., on July 27, Edmund Wilson, Attorney General of this State, declares in a letter received by Mr. Nash this morning that it is out of his province to answer the questions propounded and declines to set the matter straight in so far as it relates to the nominations of City Judge, Councilman at Large and Board of Education aspirants.

In the letter, which is a printed circular, the Attorney-General says that "As the Attorney-General has no legal power to give official answers to the questions contained in the letter of Mr. Nash, he begs to be excused from indicating any opinion."

Thus the matter remains in statu quo and everybody will have to interpret the law, as printed in the Daily Press on July 27 to suit himself.

Mrs. Leonard Kip Here.

Mrs. Leonard Kip, of Amoy, China, who is home on furlough, is the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Daniel Rapalje, of Carlton avenue. She will return to her station in the fall. Mrs. Kip, is the wife of Rev. Dr. Leonard Kip, who died recently, and for many years she and her husband were associated with Mr. and Mrs. Rapalje, when they were missionaries in China, and their talk over the old times is very interesting. Mrs. Kip has many friends here, who will no doubt be pleased with the opportunity to meet her while she is in town.

HAYMAKERS TO MEET HERE

Arrangements About Completed for State Convention on Saturday.

1,000 DELEGATES EXPECTED.

Business Sessions, Parade and Banquet Provided for—Committee of Arrangments Announced.

Arrangements for the State convention of Haymakers, which is to be held in this city on Saturday, were completed by the supervising committee from the Plainfield Hayloft, at a meeting last night. "Everything is now ready," said A. E. Willard, the chairman of the committee on arrangemnts to a Daily Press reporter this morning, "for the greatest convention of lodge men that has ever been held in Plainfield. It is a State convention and delegations will be here from every Hayloft in New Jersey. The Wetumpka Hayloft is doing everything possible to make the day an enjoyable one for the assembling brothers."

It is expected that one thousand Haymakers from all over the State will be in this city. All the State officers will be present as many important matters pertaining to the State lodge are to be discussed. Several prominent men have promised to address the Haymakers during their stay here.

The officers are due to arrive in town tomorrow night, while the other Haymakers do not come here until Saturday. A grand convention of officers is to be held on Saturday morning in the local Hayloft from 10 to 12 o'clock. During this time the other members of the lodge are to be entertained in Proctor's theatre and shown about the city by a committee appointed for that purpose.

At 1 o'clock all the Haymakers including the officers, will line-up in marching order in front of Proctor's theatre, the spectacular parade of lodge men ever seen in this city, will then begin. Several bands have been engaged for the occasion and it is expected that a thousand men will be in line.

The parade upon starting, will march up West Front street to Liberty street; down Liberty to Fifth street; down Fifth street to Madison avenue to Front street; down Front street to Park avenue; down Park avenue to North avenue; down North avenue to Watchung avenue; up Watchung avenue to Front street; up Front street to Park avenue; down Park avenue. Here the parade will halt and speeches will be made.

Among the speakers for the occasion are: Ex-Mayor Nowry, of Camden, the chairman of the State finance committee, and Alfred Hayley, State collector of straws.

After the speechmaking, the Haymakers will adjourn to the banquet hall in the Stillman building, where dinner is to be served by a New York caterer, who is a member of the Haymakers. He is to be assisted by several local members. During the banquet, the Haymakers are to be entertained by Joseph Wood and his New York talent.

Many of the nearby Haylofts will make the trip to this city by wagon. The Perth Amboy lodge, sixty strong, will come here in two wagons, each drawn by four horses.

The committee on arrangements from the Wetumpka Hayloft is composed of: A. E. Willard, R. W. Osland, F. W. Wagner, Michael Armstrong, Matthew Murscoe and E. F. Dorman.

NEIGHBORS CALLED POLICE WHEN FAMILY QUARRELED.

Because the neighbors butted in when Joseph Stalb and his wife, of West Third street, were having a family jar last night, the police were summoned and Stalb brought to headquarters where he was locked up pending a hearing.

This morning Judge Runyon suspended a sentence of sixty days over Stalb's head in an effort to insure his future good behavior. Stalb was insolent to the court and only escaped getting off this time because of the fact that he is the father of five children, the youngest of whom is four months old.

Church Being Repaired.

The interior of Grace M. E. church is undergoing thorough repair and renovation, and a new carpet is to be laid. The service was held last Sunday, but next Sunday the pulpit will be occupied by Rev. Mr. MacRorie, of Mt. Horeb.

SCARCITY OF MILK NOW

Investigation Made in Important Dairy Section Discloses Marked Depletion.

NOT FEEDING IT TO THE HOGS.

Dairymen Deny That They Are Over-Producing and That They Feed Good Milk to Swine.

Putting aside the many statements, conflicting and contradictory, that have been made regarding the milk situation, one fact has been clearly established—that there is a scarcity in the supply. Why this is so seems to be less certain, for there is, apparently, a number of factors of almost equal importance contributing to it.

As representative of the New Jersey dairy farm industry, the northern part of the State was selected for an investigation of the situation and a member of The Press staff was sent there early this week for the purpose. It took him only a short time to learn that neither an overproduction of milk nor anything else is leading farmers to feed good milk to their hogs, as had been stated in certain quarters.

Dairymen of North Jersey disclaim any share in circulating the report that farmers of the section were getting more milk than they could dispose of and were, therefore, feeding it to their hogs. Nevertheless, the statement went forth with an alternative: Were the men who owned the dairies displeased with the prevailing price for the commodity and rather than suffer a loss in shipment or to force a shortage, put the fluid to the best use at home? At first glance, the second proposition seemed to have some reasonable grounds, considering the present price of pork.

To the first statement The Press reporter received a general denial. It was emphatically declared by a score of farmers that the pigs were not getting any share of the daily product of good marketable milk. This applied to the men who were selling through most of the several agencies, or companies, having stations in the upper part of the State. The principal reason why the latter era, or any other animal on four legs, was not getting milk as an article of diet, it was said, was that there was not enough milk to spare for such purposes.

When it came to the second question there was also a general negative answer. It was tempered occasionally by the plaint that the farmers were not getting the price they should receive, all things considered. At the same time the exchange quotation at present is the highest in forty years for July, it was stated.

No farmer could be located in the territory visited who would admit that he was holding back milk from his dairy because he was suffering a loss. Those questioned, while willing to accept as tenable the supposition that there might be isolated cases of stock owners keeping away from the market in part because of prices, or in the hope of better quotations. They could not name, however, any specific case.

A creamery man, who pays exchange prices, was asked if he knew of any such conditions existing, as had been lately reported. He responded by declaring that he would like to meet any farmer who was throwing away, or feeding his hogs, any excess milk.

"I'll take it and be glad to get it; we've been short on usual receipts the month now," he said, and estimated that the shortage so far as his plant was concerned was about five per cent. below the July average. In no instance, so far as could be learned, were the creameries turning away any cans.

The dairymen were a unit in saying that there was a shortage in the production. To show how great an extent opinions differed, the more conservative believed that five per cent. was a reasonable estimate; others thought that the decrease is greater, while the belief was also advanced in another quarter that the situation was becoming about normal.

The reasons for the scarcity, as stated, were numerous. The chief cause assigned for the decrease in supply, apparently, is the lack of pasturage. Big stretches of field, which under normal weather conditions might supply food for many cattle, were pointed out to the reporter. There was no pasture at all.

Since the close of spring, which brought an abundance of water, there has been so little rain that the herbage is literally burned off. In more favored locations, where large streams have not entirely dried up, the low-lying meadows afford some grazing, but in general the cows are suffering for the lack of natural food, and in consequence are shortening up in the quantity of their daily milkings.

Other factors were told of, which have, the farmers say, contributed to the decrease in the milk supply, as contrasted with the claim to the contrary. The cost of production is one of these. Labor, feed, to say nothing of the price of cattle, are all higher, and, it was added in some quarters, the requirements of boards of health are items which increased the burden of the farmer and result in another cause for less milk—less cows.

Cattle of the better milk producing breeds, which sold five and six years ago at from $45 to $68, are now bringing $57 and over. Ninety dollars is not an excessive price to pay for a good milch cow. This is held on good authority to be one of the reasons why stock is not being imported as extensively as formerly.

The present exchange price for milk is three and one-half cents per quart, or $1.40 per forty-quart can. This is, as stated, a record for July. The farmers hold that at this price milk is not as high as it ought to be, but they are not in control of the situation. The Dairymen's League, formed several years ago, has now 50,000 cows subscribed and is forming a permanent organization. The league takes in dairymen in the Northern Jersey territory and in Orange county, N. Y.

Members of the league say it is up against a peculiar proposition in that it may be characterized as a com*bination in restraint of trade.* It was the original plan of the leaguers to secure a sufficient number of cattle to be able to at least hold the balance of power so far as regulating the supply of milk is concerned, and lawyers are now said to be engaged in framing the organization so that it will not conflict with any statute prohibitions.

JAMES J. CORBETT WITH HONEY BOYS

Arrangements have been definitely concluded by which James J. Corbett will become a member of George Evans' Honey Boy Minstrels the coming season. Contracts have been signed and when the Honey Boys are seen in the Plainfield theatre on Wednesday evening, August 10, the audience will see the first appearance on any stage of James J. Corbett in black face.

He will act as the interlocutor of the show and in the scenic bower of "The Crimson Trellis" first part, where all is black face as in the good old days, Mr. Corbett will have to black up just the same as "Bones" and "Tambo." Later on during the performance he will be seen in his famous monologue in which he will present a model of sartorial elegance and in which he will tell his latest joke about the recent quarrel in Reno.

The engagement of James J. Corbett with the Honey Boy Minstrels is without a question the record contract for an interlocutor in the world's history of minstrelsy, his salary being sufficient to keep the average family of some of the minstrel shows in the good old days. Corbett has an unusually interesting talk prepared on the affair at Reno and his engagement at the American Music Hall Roof in New York has packed its capacity for the past three weeks. Plainfield will be second to New York in hearing Mr. Corbett.

Failing to secure a bondsman, Peter Baker, the alleged embezzler of funds of the Public Service Corporation, was taken to the county jail at Elizabeth, Saturday morning.

Friday afternoon Baker was given a final chance to make an effort in his own behalf, but it seemed that he did not care to do it. Superintendent W. H. Chandler, of the Newark office, who came here yesterday, offered inducements to Baker to divulge the amounts and names of those from whom he had secured payments of bills of the company, but Baker replied indifferently to the propositions put to him and laid blame for his offenses to company men instead of accepting their overtures for mitigating the alleged crime.

Mr. Chandler, it is said, offered to secure bail for the accused man if he would only tell where and when he had received and appropriated the moneys of the company to his own use. Mr. Chandler even proposed to secure bail and allow Baker to refund the amount to his alleged stealings at the rate of two dollars a month if he would make a clean breast of the affair. This offer was made purely on behalf of Baker's wife and child, but the only reply received by Mr. Chandler was "I'll think it over."

This action by the accused man has alienated the sympathy which was at first felt for him and the law will now have to take its course. Much sympathy has been expressed for Baker's wife.

Not Worth While.

"Yes; I found that telling lies gets you into almost as much trouble."—

BIG AVIATION MEET FOR $30,000 IN PRIZES

The greatest aviation meet in the United States will be held at Asbury Park from August 10 to August 20, under the auspices of the Asbury Park Aero and Motor Club. Prizes aggregating $30,000 will be competed for by the most famous aviators of the country and Europe, while a popular feature will be contests and exhibitions by well-known amateurs.

Some of the daring bird men who will enter the lists are Walter Brookins, the protegee of the Wright Brothers, who has developed into a prodigy; his driving partner, Coffyn; Hoxsey, Johnstone and La Chapple. In addition, it is expected that Glenn H. Curtiss will attempt to establish a new high speed record in a race twenty-five miles to sea and return for a $10,000 prize. A similar prize will be awarded to the aviator who beats the world's altitude record of 6,175 feet, recently made by Brookins at Atlantic City. Clifford B. Harmon has also been invited to give demonstrations with his machine.

Flights are scheduled for every day except Sunday, the 14th, from 4 to 6 p. m., and at such other times as weather conditions will permit. August 20th will be amateur day, and on August 13 a hot air balloon contest between Leo Stevens, of New York, and Frank Wilson, of Cincinnati, will take place.

A huge aviation field, delightfully situated at Interlaken, on the northwestern boundary of this city, and now being pushed to completion, will be the scene of the meet. The field will be enclosed by a 15 foot canvas fense nearly two miles in circumference, while a grand-stand with a seating capacity of 12,000 is being erected. Parking spaces capable of accommodating a thousand automobiles and twice as many carriages will also be provided. The free field, or concourse, will permit 30,000 more persons to witness the events.

There will also be a "midway" laid out on one of the broad avenues leading to the grounds, most of the attractions and side shows being those that are booked for the Interstate Fair at Trenton. The director-general of the meet will be Adam Weiler, who managed the several years has so successfully man*aged the Interstate Fair. The execu*tive committee is headed by President J. M. Ralston, of the Seacoast National Bank, and Mayor T. Frank Appleby, and many of the most prominent citizens of Asbury Park and Ocean Grove are enthusiastically active in fostering the enterprise, which is being financed largely by popular subscription. Incidentally, it has been decided to make the general admission to the field fifty cents and to the grand-stand section one dollar. Special transportation facilities will be provided by the railroads from all points in the East.

WHY DID SHE DO IT? IT HURT MORE THAN ONE.

There is no accounting for the caprices of extreme youth, especially the vagaries of the female mind in absolute babies. But as one woman said yesterday "what a shame!" and her companion exclaimed "isn't it dreadful."

It was all of the latter. A child, not more than eighteen months old, who lives with its parents not more than a mile from East Front street and Sandford avenue, sat complacently on the bottom step of the front porch yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock when another child of the funds of the public service corpora- neighborhood, flaying the discarded end of an umbrella in her hand stealthily approached and without warning whipped the weapon around and inflicted a resounding smack on the upturned face of the younger child.

Only a miracle prevented the steel ferrule of the stick from penetrating the eye of the younger child and with a scream she fell on the step holding one little hand to the injured face and calling for "Mamma." The one who had inflicted the cruel blow sneaked down the side of the house and pretended not to know that anything unusual had happened and in fact it is doubtful if the mother of the smaller child knew why her little one was weeping.

Who is going to fathom the impulse that will account for the action of the older child. But, as one of the passing women exclaimed, "what a shame!" and she didn't know that a reporter of The Daily Press witnessed the incident.

Variety of Laces.

The skillful dressmaker does not hesitate to combine several varieties of lace on one gown, even if it is necessary to applique one variety with another to get an unusual effect. Lace in various ways play one of the most important roles on the gowns for mid-summer. It may be a handsome lace polonaise, and here the black Chantilly laces are used to excellent advantage, or a more general form is the deep flounce of lace, of which two and even three are sometimes used. Again the material may be draped to display an underskirt rippling with ruffles.

LITERARY

The August issue of the Woman's Home Companion is called "The Grand Time Number," and it lives up to that title in every particular, giving ideas for summer enjoyment of every sort. The fiction is of the light, happy variety with, in most instances, the atmosphere of vacation days charmingly depicted. "Mlle. Mystic," a midsummer comedy by Anna Steese Richardson, will doubtless be acted in many gardens during the summer, and a remarkably timely article on the Outdoor Play, by Walter Prichard Eaton, will help in a large measure to make al fresco theatricals the popular thing during the summer.

The Fiction Number of Scribner's Magazine has one of the most distinguished lists of contributors that has ever appeared in a single number, although the record of previous Fiction Numbers for twenty years has been remarkable. The great Victorian Novelist, who but recently died, George Meredith, leads the number with "The Sentimentalists," a comedy which had such a charging performance in London recently and is probably to be seen in one of Mr. Frohman's theatres in this country. The brightness of the dialogue and the air of polite comedy, with the ever-present Meredithean wit, make it a real piece of literature by the master of the Comic Spirit. The last scene is in blank verse. Mr. Roosevelt's article describes two of his most picturesque experiences. He was one of the first white men to see and describe the killing of a lion by th Nandi tribesmen, armed only with shields and spears. It is a thrilling narrative. He then pictures a unique journey of one hundred and sixty miles from the shores of Lake Victoria Nyanza to Albert Nyanza.

The leading feature of the August number of "Success Magazine" is a most absorbing novelette called "Molly Make-Believe," by Eleanor Hallowell Abbott. It is a story of unusual originality and fascination. Fred Bates Johnson, in his article "The Homesteader in Western Canada" gives an honest exposition of what the chances are for the settler in that remote region of North America. "Tariff Making by Barter and Sale" by Arthur I. Street, in his series: "Uncle Sam in Blunderland" contains extracts from interviews with Senators who have had a leading part in the framing of the tariff *and also shows the real way the tar*iff was made. In "The Preacher and a Potato" William Justin Harsha describes in a very interesting way his profitable step from the pulpit to the farm.

Among the many excellent and instructive articles which appear in the August Wide World, those on "Unknown Arabia" and "The Mysterious Ruined Cities of Yucatan" are perhaps the most interesting. Both are written by travelers who are apparently intimately acquainted with their subjects. The "Pinkin Festival at Nice" and "Witchcraft in Wales" are also full of remarkable and little known facts. W. Lacey Wason's article of "The Town that was Born Lucky"—Medicine Hat, which is situated over an immense area of natural dry gas which supplies all the heat and power necessary to run the city. Among the purely adventurous articles are "A Tragedy in the Gulf Stream," "The Lure of Gold," "The Queen-Mother's Plot," "Jeff Kent, Outlaw," and "The Execution of Ning Wo." The illustrations, mostly from photographs, are as numerous as they are interesting.

Upton Sinclair, who not long ago published some startling details of his experiences with the fasting cure, has written for the current issue of Physical Culture a recital of some further investigations into this novel method of health-building. This magazine has also arranged to publish a series of articles by Raymond Duncan, who, with his family, has of late created quite a furore in Eastern cities by reverting to the costume and manner of living of the ancient Greeks. That Duncan is far from being a scatter-brained crank his writings amply attest, and the introductory portions of the material he has prepared for Physical Culture are uncommonly readable.

A notable contribution to the fiction of the month will be found in the first part of a serial story by Edith Wharton entitled "The Letters." There are four lively short stories, as well as an instalment of Mary Shelair's serial "The Creators." A Comedy," for those who are watching with interest the evolution of the church in its relation to human affairs, and who have noted what many believe to be the signs of an impending change in the nation's religious life, the Rev. Washington Gladden's paper on "The Missional Church," in the August Century, will be rich in suggestiveness. Dr. Gladden delves down to some of the basic truths of Christianity, and from a careful analysis of these truths and their bearing on Christian living builds up an ideal organization the realization of which, he contends, would go far toward solving many of the problems of philanthropy, while at the same time it would strengthen church unity. Already something resembling Dr. Gladden's proposed Municipal Church has been started in Columbus, Ohio.

In addition to the usual group of twenty-eight portraits of our most beautiful actresses, The Red Book Magazine for August contains the portraits which will follow in the September issue, have been selected by a committee of representative critics as the thirty foremost actors identified with the American stage.

If anyone is desirous of learning the complete details of the controversial career of the Administration, he should read "The Administration on Trial," which begins in the current number of the Metropolitan. Therein, during the next few months, each member of prominence of the two houses of Congress will write his defense or complaint—Messrs. Payne, Bristow, Norris and Clark this month. The story of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks by Lindsay Denison is interesting. In "Amusing the People" Frederic Thompson gives the psychology of the summer amusement. "Fifth Avenue," a retrospect by James Barnes, is illustrated with some splendid etchings by Walter Hale. Gouverneur Morris, Stephen French Whitman and Jacques Futrelle have done some of their best work in providing fiction for the August Metropolitan.

The August Everybody's Magazine is a fortunate combination of delightful summer fiction, with articles of wide interest and true importance. As pertinent to the coming campaign, Frederic C. Howe contributes, under the title, "Ask Your Congressman," a suggestion of real practicability looking toward the betterment of national conditions. "Boy-Power Applied," by Frederick Mather Caldwell, is the story of a juvenile republic where the youths we call "delinquent" are given a fair chance to redeem themselves—and do it. "The Question 'How?'" is one of Dr. William Hanna Thomson's essays in fine philosophy, always uplifting and suggestive. "Instead of an Article" is an inside story of magazine editing, with some correspondence about Pittsburg between the editor and Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo as the text.

To work two afternoons in the hayfield under a baking sun, side by side with his own farm laborers, scarcely sounds like an attempt at a Cincinnatus pose. Facts like this have had much to do in endearing Mr. Roosevelt to the great masses of the American people. When we reflect how a European potentate or great man, as the phrase goes, would spend his vacation after such a triumphal tour through Europe, after such a reception in his own country as Mr. Roosevelt had, we inevitably picture all manner of luxury, a train of flunkies, and the like. The pic*ture of Mr. Roosevelt's working side* by side with his farm hands is surely a more bracing one and far more admirable. At least it is so in America, where the majority happily still believes in that type of summer holiday, rather more than in that spent about the Newport Casino.—From "Roosevelt the Husbandman," by Henry James Forman, in the American Review of Reviews for August.

Entire Wheat Bread.

Two cups scalded milk, one-fourth cup sugar, one teaspoonful salt, one yeast cake dissolved in one-fourth cup luke warm water, four and one-third cups entire wheat flour. Combine the first three ingredients and when cool add dissolved yeast cake and three cups of flour; beat until light, add remaining flour, beat, cover and let rise to double its bulk; again beat, turn into greased bread pans one-third full, let rise not quite double, bake; making and baking to occupy five and one half hours.

Parboiling Steaks.

To parboil a steak is about as good as to cook over the coals. Use an iron frying pan if possible. Heat very hot, but do not use a drop of grease. When the pan is smoking put the steak in and turn rapidly from side to side. This will help to keep in the juices. Then brown and cook slowly. All meat should have a very high temperature at first to sear the outside; then it must cook more slowly. Meat is ruined if it is cooked very quickly.

Egg Toast.

This is a popular Southern supper dish. Butter a shallow pudding dish but in a layer of toast cut into narrow strips, then a layer of the whites of hard-boil eggs sliced, then another layer of toast. Put on top of all the yolks of the eggs, "riced" by passing through a vegetable press. Pour over all a rich cream sauce, highly seasoned, and place in the oven until it is well browned.

The Other Side.

"I see you employ a number of old men."

"I do."

"How old are they?"

"Too old to be interested in canoeing or mandolins, or racehorses, or girls, or tennis. That makes 'em fine for work."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

GOVERNMENT PLANS FOR POSTAL REFORMS

If the Federal administration adopts a suggestion soon to be made by the Postmaster-General, Representatives in Congress may be shorn of nearly all the patronage now allotted to them. The Postmaster General is going to urge that all postoffices of the second and third class, with salaries ranging from $1,000 to $2,900 a year, be covered by the classified service. At the same time, however, it will be pointed out to President Taft that the experiment of applying the merit principle to the appointment of fourth-class postmasters has proved a failure.

By an order issued by President Roosevelt a few months before he left the White House, the civil service commission was empowered to appoint fourth-class postmasters in the New England and Middle Atlantic states, and in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. Mr. Roosevelt had long believed in the classification of postmasters, and yielding to suggestions made by several reformers, consented to authorize an experiment in the states named. It has not worked out satisfac*torially, and postal officials* are convinced that in time all fourth-class postoffices will be at least partly removed from the control of the civil service commission.

It is explained by the officials that the appli ation of the civil service commission rules to fourth class offices has not proved satisfactory owing to the difficulty of securing lists of eligibles. The compensation of fourth class postmasters ranges from a few dollars to a figure just below $1,000 a year. The communities supporting fouth class offices are small. Their population is never over a few thousands, and sometimes only a few hundred, and the number of available candidates, therefore, is limited. The authorities have found it difficult to induce people to take civil service examinations in such communities, with the result that in many instances the administration of the postal business has been hampered.

Doubt is expressed by postal authorities that the merit principle will be abandoned entirely, so far as fourth class postmasters are concerned, but it is being suggested now that these appointments should be made direct by the postmaster-general, the applicants to be subjected to a simple written examination designed merely to test their business ability.

As to second and third class postoffices they are located in fair sized towns, and the compensation, it is said, is large enough to attract desirable candidates. Postal officials believe that appointments to second and third class offices could be filled successfully under the rules of the civil service commission. While they do not expect the administration to adopt the idea at once, they are hopeful that the reform will be formally urged at no distant date. Under a policy inaugurated by Postmaster-General Cortelyou, postmasters generally are retained in office now as long as their records are satisfactory, but this rule may be defeated on occasion by senators and representatives.

Every effort is to be made by department authorities to induce the administration to favor the classification of second and third class offices. Postal officials believe that for a great many years to come offices of the first class, such as New York, Chicago, and St. Louis, will be used to reward political service. For the present they will devote their energies to removing second, third and fourth class offices from the realm of politics, trusting to public sentiment eventually to, force the classification of first class offices.

Governor's Day at Meet.

Governor's Day at the aviation meet, to be held at Asbury Park, August 10 to 29, will be August 18. Governor J. Franklin Fort, Governor Charles E. Hughes, of New York, and Governor Edward S. Stuart, of Pennsylvania, have been invited to attend with their staffs and the members of both houses of the State Legislature have also been asked to attend. August 16 has been set apart for the artists, and will be known as "Scientist's Day." Many celebrities in the scientific world will be asked to attend the meet. Among them will be Thomas A. Edison, the Wizard of Llewellyn. A "speech*less dinner" has been planned for* that night, at which the men of science will be guests. Speeches will be printed on the menus, but no one will be allowed to address the diners.

HOME FROM STATE CAMP

WERE SUCCESSFUL IN SPORTS.

After a pleasant vacation and with a goodly addition of avoidupois on them, sixteen boys of the local Y. M. C. A. returned home Friday afternoon in company with C. E. Bingaman, George L. Listman and Charles Line, directors in the Plainfield association, from the Y. M. C. A. state camp at Lake Wawayanda.

This is the largest delegation that has represented Plainfield at the camp in many years. In all contests and meets with the associations from other cities in the State, the local boys showed up nobly, not only reflecting credit upon themselves but also upholding the name of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. The success of the boys from this city is largely due to their efficient coaching, training and organization at the hands of Mr. Bingaman, the boys' work secretary of the city association. Each member of the local delegation entered into the camp spirit with unbounded energy and this was largely responsible for the success of the state camp this year.

The Plainfield boys made themselves useful about the camp as well as having a good time. A ten foot well was dug and built by the local boys on the main land to supply the camp with water. The work was done under the supervision of Mr. Bingaman. The camp has named the spot, "Plainfield Well." In addition to this, three rustic benches were made by the Plainfield delegation and the corner, in which they are placed, is known as the "Plainfield Corner." A fund was also started by the boys themselves to purchase some useful article for the camp next year.

In the athletic events at the camp, Plainfield took several honors. Joseph Sattells, Jr., won the championship of the second section at quoits, with Franklin Newell and Gilbert Lewis qualifying in the finals. Joseph Sattells competes in the state tournament in a few weeks for the quoit championship of the state camp.

Franklin Newell, Craig Blair and George Leighs and Ray Manley passed the Volunteer Life Saving examination, Newell's percentage was ninety-seven, which is an excellent record, considering the difficult examination. Hoyt Thompkinson and Charles Moraller were given buttons for having learned to swim at least twenty-five yards. Joseph Sattells, Jr., Benjamin Cooley, Robert Duny, and Hoyt Tompkinson received buttons for having learned to dive. Gilbert Lewis and James McNamee were given gold buttons for each teaching one fellow to swim.

During the whole encampment the boys enjoyed the best of health and the average increase in weight was five pounds. Every member of the party has a hearty coat of tan by which to remember the experience.

Those who camped for four weeks are: Benjamin Cooley, Robert Duny, Hoyt Tompkinson, Russell Lee and Joseph Sattells, Jr. In the two weeks party were: Craig Blair, Russell Berlien, Irving Manley, Raymond Manley, Richard Goodwin, Franklin Newell, Collis Case, Gilbert Lewis, Charles Moraller, James McNamee and George Leighs.

New Use For Vacuum Cleaner.

Mosquitoes do not disturb the slumbers of John T. Lyman, 143 Cooper avenue, Upper Montclair. There are many of the little winged pests in that section of the mountain town this summer, and, despite the fact that outer doors and windows are carefully screened to prevent their entrance, many mosquitoes get into the house each day. Mr. Lyman has found a novel way of clearing the rooms of them. According to Mr. Lyman's story, he has a small vacuum carpet cleaner which is run by the electric current obtained by removing an electric light bulb and connecting the motor of the cleaner to the socket. Just before retiring, Mr. Lyman says, he runs the cleaner over the walls of the sleeping rooms, not allowing it to touch the wall, but keeping a distance of several inches away. The result is, he asserts, that every mosquito, fly, moth or other insect that has secured entrance into the house is sucked into the dust bag at the lower end of the machine. This work accomplished after two minutes to each room, Mr. Lyman and his family retire to their beds, where they can remain, undisturbed by insect pests until morning.

"No; I don't suppose I can. It is probably your wife and children who would get stuck."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE JUNGLE HAT.

A SAILOR SHAPE FOR THE SUMMER GIRL.

Could anything be better adapted to keep off the rays of the sun and at the same time prove a becoming frame for a pretty girl's face than the sailor hat seen in the picture?

It is called the Roosevelt or jungle hat and was suggested to an English designer of woman's millinery after looking at the hat "our Teddy" wore while in Egypt. The necessary feminine modifications were made, and the hat stands a blessing to the girl who goes out much in the strong sun or who loves canoeing.

A Return to Nature.

"I'm sick of this bony style of beauty," a man was heard to remark a few days ago. "This walking skeleton, bisected, hollow cheeked, meager creature that the modern woman has made herself into does not suit me. I like it when I see a plump, comfortable, round faced, laughing eyed woman with a waist which does not suggest torture and indigestion."

Whether this is a sign of a "return to nature" in the body of woman one cannot tell. This may be but "the one sane wail from the one sane man," but it is set down as a possible straw which may indicate a change in the wind.

A wealthy New York woman went to her physician recently. She was "feeling bad" in a good many different ways. He asked her all sorts of questions and discovered that she was engaged in the same mad hunt that nine-tenths of our women are carrying on for slenderness and the invisible waist.

"Madam," he said sternly, "you need no medicine. All you need are three square meals each day, with perhaps three or four hours of good hard housework and plenty of fresh air."

You can imagine how mad she was.

Parson a Mossback on Suffrage.

There's a clergyman in England who does not want women to get their rights. He says so frankly and vows that if women ever get them he will leave the country. He is the Rev. A. J. Waldron, vicar of Brixton. "Women want their rights," said he. "When they get them I will emigrate." He does not see why women should wish to enter politics or even want to vote. His contention is that women should remain at home, should not work for a living unless absolutely compelled to and should give up women's clubs. He says women are destined for the home and should not be permitted to vote.

When Genius Burns.

When she is writing, Mrs. Wilson Woodrow says, she wants to bite something hard. So she keeps near her a box of brittle candy. One day she found that she had eaten a whole pound of it during her work upon a single chapter of "The Beauty." Another time she was working with a glass pencholder and bit it clear in two.

Cooling Drinks.

Tea to be iced should be made rather stronger than for drinking hot, as illustrated. When it has stood seven minutes pour it from the leaves, sweeten it to taste and stand it in a refrigerator for seven hours. Serve in dainty glasses with a spoonful of vanilla ice cream on the top.

Pear Water Ice.—Peel, core and cut into thin slices eight good sized pears, put them in a saucepan with half a pound of sugar, one and a half pints of water, two inches of cinnamon stick, rind of two lemons and cook till the pears are tender. Remove the rind and the cinnamon and rub through a sieve. Mix in a little red coloring to give it the desired tint, add one cupful of syrup and the strained juice of two lemons. Set aside to cool and freeze. This will make one quart of ice.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 7, 1910.

Friendship has been the theme of philosophers and poets throughout the generations. It has been one of the choicest themes of the Christian pulpit. Marked illustrations of friendship have been recorded both in sacred and secular history, and men have been charmed with the stories of these sacred ties that have bound men to men. Every human being craves a friend, one with whom it is "knit together," one from whom no confidences are kept and no betrayals dreamed of, one who extends the helping hand in the hour of need and seems almost like one's other self. Without it our life would be a dry and dreary waste. Such friendships are not unusual even between brave and strong men, illustrated by that between Jonathan and David, Damon and Pythias and as lately revealed in the papers, Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson.

But human friends cannot always fulfill the demands and needs of the human heart. Therefore each one needs to have the one friend who is completely able to do even this—Jesus Christ, "the friend that sticketh closer than a brother."

1. Christ is a friend in need. "A friend in need is a friend indeed." Jesus shows this friendship best at such a time. When human sin was in need as the result of the entrance of sin into the world He manifested the greatest friendship possible toward the human race by dying for it. "For greater love hath no man than this—that a man lay down his life for his friends." In the darkest hour of God's church Christ appeared, and in her darkest hour then, as at all times, He has been the church's friend. In individual lives the same has been true in millions of instances. To Mary and Martha He came in their dark hour of bereavement and proved a great friend in restoring their brother Lazarus to life again. In proving by His own resurrection from the dead that our departed friends will themselves shall rise again He has also brought profound comfort to the human race and to individual human hearts.

What a friend we have in Jesus,
All our sins and griefs to bear!
What a privilege to carry
Everything to God in prayer!

2. Christ is a divine friend. What force this adds to His friendship! It assures its constancy. The best of friends will often fail, but Christ, being divine, can never do so. It would disprove His character of Deity. In this character also Christ possesses the power to meet every want and need in our lives. Abraham was the friend of God, and God blessed him. So Christ can and will bless us if we are His friends.

3. The condition of friendship with Christ is obedience to His will. "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you." But why shirk such a condition? "His yoke is easy, and His burden is light."

Enthusiastic Christian Endeavorer.

The Texas Christian Endeavor union is indeed fortunate in obtaining the services of Miss Tyler Wilkinson for the difficult work of the field secretary. She is well known for sound judgment, winsome personality and enthusiastic energy, all of these backed up by a substantial experience in Christian Endeavor work. In the first place, as president of the Bell County Christian Endeavor union she made a brilliant success. Soon she became secretary of the state union and afterward its president. When the pressure of other duties forced her to resign for awhile she was not allowed to remain long out of the service, but was called to be the field secretary of the Oklahoma State Christian Endeavor union, doing splendid service as a Christian Endeavor pioneer in that state. Miss Wilkinson devotes all her time to traveling, corresponding and organizing new societies, visiting conventions and in other ways building up Christian Endeavor in the great state of Texas.

Why Sign the Pledge?

Christian Endeavorers should need no argument for pledges. We understand the importance of setting up a standard. We know that if a thing is worth doing it is worth promising to do. We have learned how a promise strengthens one in a good course. We see pledges required of the strongest men in all occupations—of our judges, of our executive officers, our lawyers. We use pledges in the marriage ceremony and when men join the church. Why not, then, in regard to this matter of so great importance sign a pledge? Let us show our colors; let us take a stand. However able we may feel ourselves to remain strictly temperate without a pledge, let us remember that we may not always be so strong and that in any case there are many that are weaker. Let us set them a good example.—Amos R. Wells.

The C. E. Convention in India.

In speaking of the Christian Endeavor convention held in Agra, India, the Outlook says: "The whole body of delegates constituted an evidence of the interchurch, international and the interracial character of the Christian Endeavor movement. This occasion was, in fact, a realization of the dream of that cobbler missionary, William Carey, who foresaw a hundred years ago the time when missionary stations would form a chain from northern India to Ceylon."

SET ASIDE $22,000 FOR CONTINGENCY FUND

The Common Council, at its August meeting, Monday night, decided on $22,000 for the contingency fund for the coming year, as against $22,000 last year. This fund is intended to cover any necessary expenses between the estimated budget and the actual amount needed for the year's expenses.

While it cannot be told at this time what the tax rate for the coming year will be, members of the Common Council say that it will be less than this year. The members in making up the budget have sought to curtail expenses as far as possible with a view to lowering the tax rate.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE CASE.

With a look of horror and indignation on her usually placid features, Miss Cynthia Barker sat back from the window of the elevated train, relates Youth's Companion. The train was speeding above a congested tenement district, and looking down from the window, she had seen a policeman clubbing a prisoner.

There had been a crowd round him, but the flashing speed of the train had given her no chance to take in the details of the picture. But she did get a clear view of the policeman's face. Of one thing she was certain: she would know the brute if she ever again saw him. And another thing she had determined: she would write an indignant protest against having such men on the police force and take it to an editor with whom she was personally acquainted.

That night she wrote her protest, and about noon of the next day started downtown to take it herself to her friend on the newspaper.

Her way led through a public park, and as she looked ahead of her she saw a policeman sitting on one of the benches. He was surrounded by children, to whom he was telling a story, and the picture increased Miss Cynthia's indignation toward the policeman of the day before. This, she told herself, was what policemen should be like—big, strong and tender-hearted.

She drew nearer and the policeman looked up at her over the head of a curly-haired youngster perching on his knee and playing with his brass buttons. It was the same policeman.

Miss Cynthia gasped. Then her step slackened. She hesitated, turned, and approached the officer. Her hand was on the letter in her pocket, and it gave her courage.

"Officer," she said, "may I ask you a question?"

"Certainly," said the policeman.

"Are you the same man who arrested yesterday somebody down in the North End and clubbed him unmercifully?"

The policeman nodded.

"I don't know about the 'unmercifully,' ma'am. But I did take a chap down there yesterday, and I did use the club a bit on him."

"I saw you," said Miss Cynthia, "from the elevated. It was terrible! How can a man who seems to love little children treat a fellow being in that awful fashion?"

The policeman thought it over.

"No."

"Well, if you had, maybe you would have noticed that they were just ripe to rescue him. You see, ma'am, I don't really like to club a fellow being, as you call him, any more than you do. What I like better is to sit here in the park and tell yarns to these youngsters. But the fact is, ma'am, if I hadn't used my club yesterday I wouldn't probably be sitting here today. Hospital or cemetery. If you'd been down there on the street instead of up in the elevated—"

Miss Cynthia nodded, and looked again from the man to the children impatiently waiting for him to resume the interrupted story.

"I think I see," she said, presently.

Particular Diner.

"What was that man making such a fuss about?" asked the restaurant proprietor.

"He found a couple of hairs in the food, sir," replied the waiter.

"Oh, is that all?"

"You see, sir, he's a vegetarian and you can't get him to eat anything but vegetables."—Yonkers Statesman.

CHANCERY COURT MUST DECIDE PRINCETON GIFT

On the construction of the will of Mrs. Josephine A. Thomas Swann, who died at Princeton on March 2, 1906, leaving a large estate, hinges the disposition of about $326,000 left to the university for the erection and maintenance of a graduate college.

Mrs. Swann's will expressly provided that the building shall be erected "upon the grounds of the said university." Since that time two large gifts have been received for the same purpose, that of the late Isaac C. Wyman, of Salem, Mass., whose bequest, it is expected, will total at least $2,000,000, and that of William Cooper Procter, of Cincinnati, who has offered $500,000 conditional upon the raising of an equal amount.

These latter beneficences have been arranged to be used for the erection of a great graduate school on the present golf links, a fine tract of land comprising some 225 acres. This tract, however, was acquired by the university subsequent to the death of Mrs. Swann.

Now the trustees of the university, through Lindabury, Depue & Faulks, have applied to the Court of Chancery for a ruling whether this land, now, but not at the time of Mrs. Swann's death, owned by them, may be considered as being embraced in the terms of her will, so that advantage may be taken of her bequest.

In the bill of complaint the university trustees, after reciting in great detail their rights and powers as to the acquisition and control of real estate under the law conferred since the founding of the College of New Jersey in 1748, tell of the death of Mrs. Swann and the probate of the will. This instrument was dated July 30, 1902, with a codicil dated July 24, 1905.

The will was admitted to probate in due course and on April 5, 1907, the executors delivered to the university trustees $192,748.99, being the residuary estate of the testatrix. This sum has grown by various accretions to about $320,000.

The emphasis of the will devising the amount named to the uses of a graduate college, construction of which is now sought, are as follows:

Terms of Bequest.

"I give, devise and bequeath all the rest, residue and remainder of my estate, of whatsoever kind or nature, and wheresoever the same may be situate, unto the trustees of Princeton University, in trust, nevertheless, to devote the same, or the proceeds thereof, as soon as practicable, to the erection and construction, upon the grounds of said university, of a building to be known as the John Thomson Graduate College of Princeton University, the said building to contain sitting and sleeping rooms for officers and students, with a dining hall, kitchen and the necessary appurtenances, in a portion of the building entirely separate, and apart from, such sitting and sleeping rooms.

"The living-rooms shall be rented at the best prices they will command to the graduate, senior and junior students of the university and the income derived from such rentals, after deducting the cost of maintaining such building, shall be devoted to the maintenance of as many fellowships of $400 each as the funds will provide.

"These fellowships shall be awarded by a committee to be designated from time to time by the trustees of the said university and shall be given to bachelors of arts of the male sex of high character and ability who would not otherwise be able to continue their studies at the university, and they shall be terminable at the discretion of said committee. The fellows, to a number not exceeding thirty, shall have unfurnished rooms in said building free of rent. The tuition fees of the fellows shall be remitted by the trustees as a condition of this gift.

"The number and situation of the rooms allotted to the officers and fellows shall be fixed by the said committee, but in no case shall the rent of more than thirty rooms be remitted. The board at the college table shall be regulated by the committee, and the fellows of the graduate college shall pay the regular charge therefor, and they shall eat at the college table, unless dispensed therafrom by the dean of the graduate faculty. * * *

For Literary Research.

"I further direct that the said fellowships shall be bestowed upon bachelors of arts who are engaged in literary and scientific research other than that directly connected with professional studies, so-called; that said fellowships shall be known as 'the John R. Thomson Fellowships,' that in making appointments to said fellowships bachelors of arts of Princeton University shall have preference in the order named:

"First, from the Borough of Princeton; second, from the county of Mercer, and third, from other parts of the state of New Jersey; provided always, that the attainments of such persons are fully equal to those of other applicants.

"It is my desire that my executors shall be fully consulted respecting the character and location of the said graduate college, which is designed by me for a permanent memorial of the interest felt by my late husband, John R. Thomson, in the higher literary and scientific education of his countrymen."

The executors named are Professor William M. Sloane, Bayard Stockton and Francis Larkin, Jr., to whom letters testamentary were issued. They have agreed to the use of the golf links for the site of the school, subject to the approval of the Court of Chancery.

The trustees making the request for the construction of the will were Moses Taylor Pyne, Stephen S. Palmer and Cornelius C. Cuyler.

LAST SAD RITES FOR SAMUEL DREIER

The funeral services of Samuel Dreier, who died suddenly on Saturday at Bradley Beach, were held from his late residence, 429 West Front street, Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Isemann, of New York officiated.

There were a large number of friends and relatives of the departed at the services. A representation from the Newark lodge, No. 59, O. B. A. was also present. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, wreaths being sent by the various organizations of which Mr. Dreier was a member, and also by his friends and relatives.

Interment was made Tuesday afternoon at Gateville near Bound Brook. The pall bearers were: Morris Abrams, Nathan Meyers, Samuel Taub, Hyman Adelberg, Jacob Stanberg and Herman Moldezky.

SILHOUETTE PHOTOGRAPHY.

Silhouette photography is not new; it has been practiced in all probability since impressions on sensitized paper were first introduced in the "fifties". I have also seen some remarkable daguerreotypes and ambrotypes in which the figures are taken, probably by mischance, in complete shadow, says a writted in The Strand Magazine. The chief drawback to pictures which by accident, or the lack of adroitness on the part of the photographer, are made to appear in silhouette, is that the subjects do not stand out in perfect profile.

There remains, however, another plan, not less ingenious, and vastly more entertaining in its results. It consists in collecting profile snapshots, or trying to make them for the purpose, and converting them into silhouettes by the very simple device of blackening with India ink and cutting away the background with a pair of scissors. A large album may, if the collector be industrious, be filled in this way with very fantastic and humorous specimens of celebrities in silhouette, ranging from royalties down to popular singers on the vaudeville stage.

The quantity of material at the disposal of the collector is enormous, for quite a wide range exists for his scissors in the numerous pictures of crowded face course enclosures, garden parties and military functions at which numerous persons of celebrity are customarily, if not invariably, present.

EARLY MORNING BLAZE

THE LOSS AGGREGATES $1,000.

Both City and Borough Departments Work Hard to Save Property—Origin of Fire a Mystery.

Fire destroyed the candy shop and pool parlor of John Consoli, which is located at 43 Somerset street, at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning. The store was completely guttered, the loss of the stock amounting to over a thousand dollars. This is partly covered by insurance. A wholesale liquor store at 23 Somerset street, which is next door to the burned building, and a cigar store at 25 Somerset street, which is owned by Herman Keller, were slightly damaged by water and smoke.

The fire was discovered at 2.50 a. m. by one of the Plainfield policemen who immediately turned in an alarm from box 12. Marshall Keller, of the borough force, turned in an alarm for the North Plainfield department from box 141 at the same time, and both whistle and bell sounded their numbers in unison. The apparatus from the West Second street house and headquarters quickly responded and the North Plainfield combination hose wagon reached the scene of the fire at the same time.

The building at 43 Somerset street which is owned by Mrs. Lena Hoester, stands directly on the dividing line between the city and the borough. The building is numbered according to the Plainfield system, one corner of it lies in North Plainfield. But both the city and borough department started in to work on the fire without arguing about county lines or anything else. The fire spread quickly and it wasn't long before the inside of the building was completely wiped out. The water pressure was strong, fortunately, and the fire was soon gotten under control. It was completely extinguished within an hour.

The blaze originated in the rear of the store, but the cause of its origin is unknown. Consoli left the place at 12.30, and as far as he knew everything was all right at that time. Chief Doane spent considerable time this morning in an investigation, but was unable to obtain the clew to the origin of the blaze.

PROTEST AGAINST THE DELIVERY OF LIQUOR

The August meeting of the Dunellen Common Council was held in town hall Monday night. C. E. Richards, president of the board, who is the acting mayor in the absence of Mayor Sandford, occupied the chair. Routine business was disposed of and several remonstrances from Michael Gallagher were heard. One of these was against the borough for allowing Plainfield liquor wagons to come into the borough with only a Plainfield and not a Dunellen license. Mr. Gallagher also called the council's attention to the carrying on of business by George Huff in his son's name. Marshal Hollon was also reprimanded by Mr. Gallagher on the ground of being unfit for and neglect of duty.

The report of the sewer committee was received. It is planned that Dunellen join with North Plainfield in the trunk line sewer on a pro rata capita basis. An expenditure of $250 was recommended for the preliminary survey of the proposed sewers in Dunellen. Herring and Fuller of New York being recommended as the engineers. The report was referred to Walter Hatfield, Jr., the borough counsel, for its proper arrangement in legal form.

THE BRIGHTER SIDE.

One of the easiest things in the world is to form the habit of grumbling. The one remedy for discontent at one's lot soon develops into chronic pessimism, a state of mind that sheds gloom around and completely overshadows the natural brightness of every normal healthy being.

There's an old saying that puts the matter in a nutshell: "If you can't have what you like, like what you have." Try to see the good that may lie far beneath the surface of your lot, but in the effort to unearth it there will be developed a greater strength to withstand the harder knocks of the world.

The grumbler is a very unwelcome person. He is in a constant state of displeasure with everything in general and himself in particular; it is a reputation that few of us envy or covet, and one that, if care be not used in the daily attitude toward life, will grow upon us until we are the slaves of a disagreeable habit.

MAXIMUM TEMPERATURE LOW.

Local Weather Prophet Presents Interesting Facts and Figures for Quarter Century.

July established a record for being extremely dry, in fact never before in the history of the local weather bureau has there been a month like the one just passed. COMMON COUNCIL ROUTINE

SEVERAL PETITIONS RECEIVED.

Numerous Ordinances Passed to Third Reading—Official Returns of the Special Election.

The August meeting of the Common Council Monday night, was one of the most important held in a long time. The session lasted about one hour, and a portion of that time was taken for a recess to allow the auditing committee to complete its work. Before the regular business was taken up, a public hearing was granted on the ordinance calling for the improvement of a portion of Leland avenue. No one spoke for or against the ordinance.

The Public Service Corporation called the attention of the members to the recent trial of the Tungsten lamps in the business section, explaining that they were not satisfactory to the merchants. It suggested installing cluster lamps, and offered to take the matter up with the light committee. The question was referred to that committee.

Residents of West Eighth street, between Grant and Hobart avenues, petitioned for lights, and another petition from the same section requested that a fire hydrant be installed on West Eighth street, west of Grant avenue. Both petitions were referred to the mayor. Also residents of West Fifth street, near McDowell street, asking that thoroughfare be graded and improved.

The official returns of the special election, abolishing the voting machines in the city, were read by the clerk and filed, as was also a fire insurance policy on the Brush automobile sent in by Chief T. O. Doane.

The League of American Municipalities sent the usual invitation to the Common Council to attend the annual convention to be held this year at St. Paul August 23-26. This was referred to the public affairs committee, and later Mr. Mygatt offered a resolution, as a joke, that the committee on laws and ordinances be sent to the convention and that a sum not to exceed $9 be appropriated for that purpose. Needless to say the resolution was not passed.

Clerk H. G. Adams, of the District court, reported receipts of $116.37 for the month and expenditures of $32.87, leaving a balance of $83.50. Inspector of Buildings T. O. Doane reported that he had granted twenty-seven permits, and Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett reported the granting of fifteen permits during the month.

In accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, the city treasurer was authorized to borrow $3,000 on account of fire fund and $1,000 on account of poor fund.

Mr. Glenk moved that when Council adjourn it be to meet on Monday night August 22, and he then offered a resolution, which was adopted, providing for the advertising for bids for doing the work and furnishing materials for macadamizing a number of streets as specified in the resolution. They will be received at the adjourned meeting.

Several ordinances were passed on third and final reading, including the one to extend the sanitary sewer system, one to improve a portion of Leland avenue, the general ordinance providing for police pensions, the one to govern the storage of gasoline and the supplement to the tax ordinance, while the ordinance calling for certain specifications and provisions in the future regarding all thoroughfares to be accepted as public streets was passed on second reading and ordered advertised. One amendment was made, however, before this was done, providing for public hearings when requested. Otherwise if the street commissioner approves the plans this will not be necessary.

At the request of the Public Service Corporation, the Common Council passed resolutions calling for four electric lights on West Front street, between Giraud and Grant avenues, and one at Bank place. These lights will now be installed. The previous action merely referred the petitions to the committee with power.

The Purist Behind the Counter.

"I've just happened to remember that my wife told me to get a tin pan that will go under the icebox. Have you any?"

"No, sir; but we have some that can be stored under the icebox. Won't that do just as well?"

"I think not, young man. My wife is a bit particular about my getting the exact thing she tells me to get. I presume I can find it at some other store. Good day, sir."—Chicago Tribune.

WATER RESTRICTIONS IN GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

"Public Service", a monthly periodical issued in Chicago, has an interesting account in the August number of the water famine threatened at Grand Rapids, Mich., which is the home of Rev. John Y. Brook, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, and who is now there visiting his mother. The water plant at Grand Rapids is controlled by the municipality. During July all watering of lawns, parks, trees and shrubbery and all street sprinkling were prohibited by the city.

Commenting on the subject, "Public Service" says:

"City officials could not be criticized for adopting this rule and restricting the sprinkling of lawns to certain short portions of the day. These drastic mukeshifts were rendered absolutely necessary because of the hazard to life and property from fire." It is further stated that during certain days in July all the high districts of the city were without water. There was no water in bathrooms in half the city area, which made such a grave menace from disease that it drew a protest from the board of health. Part of the trouble in Grand Rapids was due to faulty machinery at the pumping station, but in the main the conditions are no different from many large cities throughout the country during the past month.

CIRCLES ON THE SQUARE INDORSE CITY JUDGE RUNYON.

Circles on the Square, a civic organization of Berkley Heights, met Saturday night and elected William Jeffrey as president to succeed Frank Shaffer, who resigned. The first business transacted by the club after the election was to indorse Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, for Congress. Mr. Jeffrey referred to the Judge as being "tried and true, strong and able." Mr. Jeffrey added that the Judge had promised to come out with a statement on August 9, when he would let the people know where he stood on important issues.

The organization also indorsed John F. Wahl, of New Providence, for Freeholder, but refused to make any other indorsements until after the primaries.

Mr. Jeffrey announced that he would not stand again for member of the county committee.

The club appointed a committee to arrange for a celebration on Labor Day. Nine delegates were also selected to attend the Union county Republican outing August 13.

SOME OLD FRIENDS.

An inspection of the materials for Spring and summer wear shows that certain old-time, reliable materials have returned under new names, but our mothers will recognize their friends in the shape of the coarse linens that resemble "oat meal" cloth, hopsacking and the various basket weaves.

The feature that commends itself to many women is the fact that the weave is so evident that it serves for decoration, and, therefore, requires very little other ornamentation. Simple knitting stitches or buttons are generally sufficient for the mother's dress, while the square meshes of these coarse fabrics form excellent backgrounds upon which designs in cross-stitching (done with woolen or linen threads) may be added.

When the individual touch of embroidery is added these materials are excellent for afternoon wear, and although the design is more conventional than the trailing vines worked by the weavers of fifty years ago the effect warrants the time expended in the construction.

CHINTZ APPLIQUE.

This work is to be recommended for its beauty and richness, and, let it be whispered, for the repairing of that cluny and antique lace insertion in the curtain that has seen too hard service on the washboard.

Huge colorful blossoms from English chintz or cretonne are sewed upon the lace with their raw edges in evidence and then covered along their edges with white or cream cottonbraid.

When this work is well and firmly done, there will be no danger in its being laundered with the ordinary care given to any curtains. The appliqué work should, however, be laid face downward upon a soft flannel cloth during ironing.

CHECK MAKER CAPTURED

Harry T. Clement and J. S. Klugman, Who Tried to Cash Them, Arrested.

RELEASED ON $200 BAIL.

City National Bank Cashed One Check for $36, but This Amount is Refunded—Result of Poker Game, 'Tis Said.

An alleged attempt to defraud the City National Bank was made Monday and Saturday on two checks, one for $16 dated July 29 and the other for $165 dated July 30. The complaint was sighed William F. Arnold, cashier of the bank and the arrests were made Monday. J. S. Klugman, who claims to be the treasurer of the Independence League of New York, a Hearst organization, and Harry T. Clement, of South avenue, were the men accused. Both men were put under $200 bail, which was furnished for a hearing on next Tuesday morning.

A poker game seems to have been the cause of the issuance of the two checks by Clement who has no account in the City National Bank. Ciment, it is said, was the loser and in order to make his losses good gave the checks to Klugman who promptly attempted to cash them.

On Saturday Klugman presented the check for $36 to the bank and through a misunderstanding between the teller and Mr. Arnold the check was cashed. When Klugman presented the other check Monday morning and the previous mistake having been discovered, Klugman was promptly taken into custody by Patrolman Saffron who had been called by Mr. Arnold.

This morning at a preliminary hearing before City Judge William N. Runyon the story of the issuance of the checks was told and during that process Clement exhonerated Klugman of wrong intent, but in order to thrash out the matter thoroughly Judge Runyon held both men in equal amounts. H. L. Stamper, a reporter for the New York Times produced $200 in cash as bail for Klugman and Clement was released by putting up a similar amount later.

When Clement's New York address was ascertained by Chief Kiely yesterday he promptly notified the detective firm of Byrnes and Sheridan, of New York to apprehend the man. They went to his office at 526 St. James building, but were unable to locate their man. Clement is a clothing designer and has his office at that address. However, Detective Sergeant Overbaugh was detailed to watch Clement's house and at 10 o'clock last night nabbed his man as he was about to enter his home. He was locked up in police headquarters over night as was Klugman.

In speaking of his arrest this morning Klugman declared that he personally had cashed the checks which were handed to him by Clement and that in order to get his money back had brought them to this city, and as the first check for $36 had been readily cashed he believed the larger one would also meet with a ready acceptance by the bank.

This does not, however, in the minds of those vitally interested in the matter explain why the two checks were not cashed by some bank in New York, taking the regular course through the clearing house. Klugman maintained that he brought the first check merely to ascertain whether Clement had an account in the local bank and not necessarily to get the money, but as the money was thrust at him through the paying teller's window he did not refuse it. Then, after assuring himself that the checks of Clemnt were all right he had no hesitation in presenting the second check for the larger amount.

It is a knotty question which will have to be solved by Judge Runyon next Tuesday. He will be helped by counsel for the two accused men, Franz J. Bintz for Klugman and Winfield S. Angleman for Clement.

The amount of the first check, $36, was refunded to the bank by Klugman yesterday.

A COLORED TIE.

The paisley tie has a pretty touch which will add richness to the mid-summer shirt waist, and while the fashion expert persists in the passing of the separate shirt she suggests more and still more ties that will, like the paisley print, harmonize with this skirt, which is not in question, but out of the count. -

All of this is a tacit consent to the cool shirt waist; but wear the white blouse with a white linen skirt whenever you can, instead of dividing yourself, and the pretty tie will prove none the less effective.

Color enters in here, for the Parisian prefers some in all tones and tints, and the paisley tie is only at its best on you when it is chosen in a becoming general tone.

"Now, stranger, it isn't etiquette in Frozen Dog to ask a man why he came here."

"I know all about that. It's the same way in Paris."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

CHIEF DOANE GETS $75 FOR HIS TRIP

The Common Council at its August meeting, last night, voted $75 to cover the expenses of Chief T. O. Doane to the annual convention of fire chiefs to be held at Syracuse, N. Y. It was originally planned to give the chief $100, but some of the members favored the lesser amount. Mr. Montgomery, one of those voting against the $75 proposition, stated that Chief Doane could not stop in Syracuse for less than $7 a day, and that $75 would not be sufficient.

However, the majority of the members favored the $75 appropriation, and that sum was passed upon, Councilmen Montgomery, Mygatt, C. C. Randolph and Tolles voting against the resolution. They favored giving Chief Doane $100.

TWO SIDES TO THE PRESENT HIGH COST OF LIVING.

"How do you account for the high cost of living?"

The rubicund gentleman addressed glanced at a check for $8.35, representing the cost of his modest meal, handed the waiter $10, with instructions to keep the change; pulled out a cigar that the interviewer recognized as a 5-center, and leaned back in his chair.

"All rubbish," he said. "People live beyond their means and then growl about it. It's their own fault."

"I see. You believe that everybody should save part of his income?"

"Exactly."

"Umph-umph. Sounds reasonable. But what proportion of it do you think he should salt down? Suppose, for instance, the man earns $1-10 a day, and has a wife and five children, and some of the babies get sick occasionally, and the older ones need clothes to go to school, and the landlord wants the rent right on the nail, and a pair of kid's shoes lasts a month, and the installment on the sewing machine is 50 cents every two weeks, and he carries enough insurance to bury him, and cough medicine for his wife is half a dollar a throw, and everything that the members of his household eat and drink and wear costs more than it used to, and get higher all the time, do you think he ought to save a very large proportion of his income?"

"You do not state the case fairly. Doubtless the man has vices. I am certain he smokes."

"Yes, he does. Yes, he pays 5 cents a package for tobacco and a package lasts ten days."

"Ha! Shiftless fellow. And, of course, he has the nerve to complain. He'll cut out luxuries before he gets any sympathy from me."—Philadelphia Ledger.

BOAT RACE ON FRIDAY.

With the arrival of the midsummer season at Lake Hopatcong has come the great August influx of hotelists and visitors, who, together with summer residents, haave filled that whole region with life and activity. The lake shore and its islands are dotted with hundreds of campers and boats.

The present season at the Hotel Breslin has eclipsed all those of the past. The hotel is crowded to its utmost capacity with summer folks that include many Plainfielders. On last Sunday over 1,200 guests were served with luncheon, and many had to be turned away.

The fishing boat race which was to have been held last week off Nolan's Point, was postponed because of a change in rules and will now take place Friday afternoon. James Rinbor is in charge of the arrangements and now has about thirty entries. The Plainfield boats to take part are "Hardtack," owned by Clarence Teel, of Craig Place, and "Woodie," owned by Edson Woodhull, of West Front street.

Camp Ram's Horn, on Halsey Island, conducted by Tom Muir, was visited by a party of wood end people Sunday who enjoyed dinner beneath the pine trees and afterwards had a pleasant launch ride about the lake. The party included. Mr. and Mrs. Donald McInnes, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Miller, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Robinson, Mrs. James Stewart, Mrs. John Rogo, Miss Flora Miller and Miss Edith Robinson. Guests at the camp this week are William Coddington, of Grove street, who arrived Sunday for a two weeks' stay; Frank Duer, of New York; William Lawrence, of Brooklyn, and Edward Keim, of Philadelphia. Miss Adams and John Vieck, of Newburgh, will arrive at the camp Thursday for a week's stay.

Freeholder and Mrs. S. P. T. Willber, of Westervelt avenue, who spent the month of July in Maine, reached the lake yesterday and will occupy their cottage, "Elkwood," for the remainder of the season. Mr. and Mrs. Blake Tatnall, of Baltimore, their daughter and son-in-law have been at he cottage for the past two weeks and will remain until the middle of the month.

Andrew E. Kenney, of Watchung avenue, and J. J. Kenney, of East Second street, have leased "Sanford Oaks" cottage in Great Cove and with their families will occupy it for the present month.

George Wilson, of Madison avenue, is tae latest arrival at camp "There-He-Goes," on Halsey Island. He will remain two weeks. Mr. Wilson, or "Pusher," as he is known to his many friends, is prominent in amateur minstrel circles and has been invited to take part in the annual minstrel show of the Lake Hopatcong Yacht Club. He will probably be one of the end men.

Mrs. Anna Moore, Miss Hazel Moore and Carlton Moore, of West Fifth street, and Miss Evelyn Hillyard, of North street, who enjoyed cottage life near Bass Rock for the month of July returned home yesterday.

The Misses Rae and Anna Warnock, of Craig place, and Miss Elsa Palmer, of Fanwood, are guests at Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hayne's cottage, "Chotola," in Great Cove. Miss Anna Warnock will probably remain all summer.

Russell Morris, of West Seventh street, is spending a week at Barwood cottage as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Woodhull. He will return to Winfield Friday and will not be seen after for a two weeks' canoeing trip in New Hampshire with Frank Wilcox and Edward Abbott.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ivamy, of West Second street, are guests at Schafer's hotel, in Breslin tove. They will remain until August 15.

A Proposal.

"We used to be sweethearts when we were kids," said the man.

"We did," said the maid.

"Since then I have been divorced three times. And you?"

"Twice."

"Well, now that we happen to be unmarried simultaneously, suppose we hitch up?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A NOVEL CRAFT INVENTED BY AN AUSTRIAN.

In a recent report sent from Chemnitz Consel Thomas H. Norton says that in German sporting circles interest is excited over the possibilities of a newly devised form of locomotive for use on water, termed the "hydrocrcle."

It is of exceedingly simple construction. A couple of parallel, pointed water-tight tubes of galvanized iron, ten and one-half feet in length, are attached to each other two and one-half feet apart. A light framework supports a seat. Beneath this is a pair of pedals, the motion of which is communicated to propeller blades. A handle bar in front of the seat is connected with a rudder.

The traveler using this novel craft, by a pedal action identical with that of the ordinary bicycle, moves easily over the surface of the water, and attains a high rate of speed if he will. He has an advantage over the rower in facing forward, as does a canoe paddler.

The total weight of a one-seated hydrocycle is sixty-six pounds. The inventor, an Austrian (Herr Fr. Kaspar), attained a speed of six to seven miles per hour. The new craft offers an agreeable variation from ordinary rowing, for use on inland waters and along the seashore.

More elaborate construction, provision for more than one passenger, and other improvements on the fundamental idea, may enable it to become a popular feature in marine sports.

MUST BE BORN AGAIN IF HE WANTS NEW TEETH.

"Ouch!" sa'd the man in the dentist's chair.

"Does it hurt?" asked the dentist, removing the buzzer.

"No, but I thought you must be getting pretty close to the nerve."

"No, that's a common error," said the dentist. "A tooth hurts worst near the surface. The thing in the centre, which you call the nerve, is really not a nerve at all, but an organ."

"What's it for?"

"It builds up the tooth. After the tooth is full grown 't really hasn't much of any function. The nerves that hurt are all through the tooth, especially near the surface. They are extremely minute."

"Can you do something so my teeth won't be so yellow?" asked the patient, changing the subject.

"You must be born again," said the dentist. "Your teeth are yellow because you are an Anglo-Saxon and because of your complexion. Do you realize that if you had pure white teeth they wouldn't match your complexion, and would spoil your looks? A blond mustn't spend time wishing for a brunette's white negro's."—Exchange.

SOME READY-MADES.

The season of the ready-to-wear is at hand, and those who walk along the line of least resistance buy whatever is thrust before them, to the relief of the overburdened dressmaker, but to the final dissatisfaction of the too-easily satisfied.

Now, there are ready-mades and ready-mades, and the discriminating eye alone can detect the difference every time it lights on either one.

The good shopper is born, not educated. The woman who has all her life been mistaken purchases will, no doubt, continue to spend the family money (or her own) and regret it later. She rarely profits by experience.

The observant one will cast an eye in all directions, but will turn eventually to her mental directory for the address of the successful silk buyer or the best man in cotton frocks. Year after year the established reputation follows the astute shopkeeper who keeps his goods up to the mark.

Do you, as a buyer, as a spender of your husband's hard-earned money—do you know where you can best buy the simple frock—the best value for the least money? No? Then it's a poor shopper you are, and one not to be trusted with the savings of the household.

Let the fashion expert help you out. Good value in a cheap silk frock results in the richness of the silk. The "crispy" ones won't wear. Good *lines lie within the bounds of com*mon sense in an inexpensive frock. The cheap imitation of an elaborate creation is never good value. The trimmingless condition proclaims the quality of the silk. When overornate, there usually are defects, or one main defect of quality, to conceal.

The semi-plain dress may be retrimmed, and than this advantage there is no greater. A little new *trimming or a personal touch signi*fying your own taste differentiates the dress from the other ninety and nine of the hundred lot from which you selected. Look at quality, at the fit and next at the ease with which the present decorations can be removed (or recovered), and then buy. But not before.

Hard Luck.

Mrs. A.—You seem to have pretty bad luck with your cooks.

Mrs. B.—Yes; the first stayed only three days, and the second, I can't get rid of.

BLUE REIGNS SUPREME.

The sudden, certain popularity of blue in Paris and, incidentally, all over the world of fashion, has brought about an almost unprecedented use of blue for all occasions and a wild riot of shades, if anything so calmly satisfactory as blue can contribute to a riot. Certain it is that those vivid, warm and most royal shades are placed in very close juxtaposition to the greenish sea blues with a daring not dreamed of a few seasons ago; and then, too, their combination with purples and pinks is unprecedented in the past history of fashion.

Most useful is the well-known blue serge for traveling and all ordinary wear, and even this has been exalted to a place above its usual standard. Although its finish is still the tailor's best, its accessories are more elegant. Collars are worked with blue embroidery, as are jabots and turned-back cuffs. Various bits of cashmere patterned silk or figured foulard contribute to the general effect of the blue costume by color well placed on the revers. A simple blue serge street dress, belted at the waistline, shows a peep of chintz—Kaspar), attained a speed of six to seven miles per hour. The new craft offers an agreeable variation from ordinary rowing, for use on inland waters and along the seashore.

More elaborate construction, provision for more than one passenger, and other improvements on the fundamental idea, may enable it to become a popular feature in marine sports.

Millard has carried the day by its adhesion to this rule of blue. In no other plain or figured color could it have become so popular and at the same time have remained so choice. The dark-blue foulard is more durable than are some of the more delicate colors, and its cool aspect on the warmest day recommends it to be the place of the usual pretty wash dress.

Parasols of blue have even a more cooling effect upon the summer countenance than has the large blue hat. The blues of the hat vary, as do those of the parasol, from king's blue to Mediterranean.

The first is the royal, but 'is not so cooling in its effect upon the observer as is the sea blue, which is greener.

Green satin under chiffon of Mediterranean blue is a wonderful combination for the most perfect of evening models. Blue is a generally becoming color, but in the phase of it has only lately been understood. Time was when only the most delicate of blondes wore blue with an assurance of its becomingness, and its use positively stopped with those of blue eyes.

Borrowing a color sense from the Japanese, or cultivating it, we have learned to love certain shades of so-called "old blue" with dark hair, a rich complexion and brown or hazel eyes. Royal blue is not so becoming to this type, but any blue verging on the dull or greener shades is fascinating with dark hair.

BATHING-SUIT FASHIONS.

"Today the well-dressed girl's bathing outfit is a convincing illustration that fashions, at least along some lines, improve as the days go by," says Grace Margaret Gould, in Woman's Home Companion for July. "Bathing suits reflect the trend of the prevailing fashion They are smart in style and decidedly shapely—occasionally a little too shapely—and they are made of models fabrics and are trimmed in most attractive ways.

"And not the smallest accessory of the bathing-suit is forgotten—every little detail is considered. The girl who studies her clothes and who cares especially for appropriateness in dress is very particular about her bathing costume. She wants it to be stylish, to be sure, but she is equally anxious that in no way shall it be conspicuous.

"In deciding upon the color of her suit she generally selects either a dark blue, dark brown or black. Such shades as gray, light tan or white are permissible for a well-dressed little girl. The grown-up girl keeps the foundation coloring of her bathing suit dark, and introduces the bright color note, if she must have it, in the trimming."

THE GRADUATE.

The graduate is hard to guess,
That fact is very plain.
She wears a thousand dollar dress
Yet lugs a daisy chain.

You'd think with such a fine array
That she would hardly deign
To go through graduation day
Without an orchid chain.

If daisy chains are good enough,
Why can't she wear a dress
That's made of inexpensive stuff?
She's very hard to guess.

SOMERSET G. O. P. PLANS FOR CLAMBAKE

Mayor N. B. Smalley, B. B. Waldron and E. P. T. Smith, of this borough, attended the meeting of the Somerset County Republican Committee at Somerville, Monday, when plans for a clambake and outing to be held sometime this month were discussed. Mr. Smalley was made chairman of the outing committee and this will insure a good time for those who attend. Considerable time was taken up in discussing plans for the fall campaign.

Charles P. Sebring, of North Plainfield; Robert Kay, of Bernardsville, and Joseph Fuzga, of Somerville, all candidates for sheriff, met the committee and presented their claims for recognition. The opinion seemed to be that Mr. Sebring is at present the strongest candidate in the field.

CLAIMS TO BE SON OF COLONEL SWOPE.

The executors of the estate of the late Colonel Thomas H. Swope, of Kansas City, are taking evidence at Flemington in the case of the executors of the said estate against Elmer C. Swope, of Martinsburg, W. Va., who claims to be the son of the late Colonel Swope, although the executors contended that it was a Peter M. Swope that was the father of the claimant.

It is claimed by his attorney that Peter M. Swope married in the West before Elmer Swope's mother died. The records here show that the man who married Elizabeth Carroll on March 7, 1861, married her under the name of Scope and not Swope.

Testimony was taken here in the office of Willard C. Parker. Dr. Isaac S. Cramer, of Flemington, who practiced medicine for more than half a century in the vicinity of Sergeantsville, testified that he was present at the marriage of Miss Carroll, which took place at the home of the bride's parents. He was called at the birth of Elmer Swope on June 2, 1862.

The man who married Miss Carroll is said to have been known to but few persons in the vicinity of Sergeantsville, where Miss Carroll lived. It is contended by the claimant that while buying horses for the government in 1861 the late Colonel Swope became acquainted with Miss Carroll and married her. In the event of Elmer Swope establishing his kin to the late Colonel Swope he will *receive somewhere in the neighbor*hood of $4,000,000.

Time was when the newspapers believed they were indulging in good-humored fun if they referred to Sagamore Hill as in any way a notable spot in the United States. Yet there is no question but today it is at least as well known as Monticello, Hawarden, or Karlsruhe. Within the last nine years the owner of Sagamore Hill has become the greatest figure of the present generation and perhaps one of the greatest in history. It is no wonder, therefore, that the public manifests an interest in the little estate at Oyster Bay, in its owner, and in the daily life he leads there. And truly, the life which Theodore Roosevelt leads upon his hill is in itself so absolutely wholesome and so typically American that we cannot but envy it. It is a sane and a healthy outdoor life, the kind some of us who are city-pent constantly yearn for. Quiet that life could easily be upon the sun-drenched hill, but politics, that exacting occupation of Mr. Roosevelt's, pursues him even here and now in his retirement, and breaks in upon his tranquility.—From "Roosevelt the Horseman" by Henry James Rorman, in the American Review of Reviews for August.

J. F. DRYDEN MAY GET DR. L. D. WARD'S SEAT

Although the question as to who will succeed Dr. Leslie D. Ward as first vice president of the Prudential Insurance Company has not yet been considered by the directors of that corporation, it is generally conceded by those who are best qualified to speak about the matter that the place will go to Forrest F. Dryden, the present second vice president. In that event it is likely that the other two vice presidents of the company will be each advanced a place and that either Richard V. Lindabury, the general counsel, or John K. Gore, the actuary, will be made the fourth vice president.

In support of this slate it is pointed out that it has always been the policy of the company to not only recognize, but to reward, merit in its official family and among its employes. As a rule when vacancies have occurred they have been filled by the promotion of those next in line. That has been made possible largely through the Prudential's course in so training its officers and employes that each has what is to all intents and purposes an understudy in the person of his immediate subordinates.

It is said that in the business of the corporation this method is followed down even to the office boys, and that in putting the theory of the thing into practise the company keeps an exact record of the work of each member of its large force. With a system of debit and credit marks and the recognition of suggestions for the improvement of the company's methods or the increase of its business, the officers and employes from the highest to the lowest are pretty well on record, and, all other things being equal, the logical candidate for a vacancy is the one next in line.

On this groundwork of reasoning it is contended that with Mr. Dryden's advancement the directors will move the other officers a step forward. In that case Jacob E. Ward, a brother of Dr. Ward and the present third vice president, would be made "second vice." Wilbur S. Johnson, the fourth vice president and comptroller, would then, in the natural order of things, be made third vice president. That move would leave the office of fourth vice president vacant and there, in the minds of the slate makers, arises the first real doubt as to what will be done.

In a way there is no direct heir to that place. It may be filled by the selection of one of several men without in any way reflecting on the other or being considered by them as a failure to receive what might be regarded as their due. In view of that situation the vacancy on the fourth vice president may be filled either by the selection of Mr. Lindabury or the election of Mr. Gore, or possibly one of the other officers.

It is likely that if the higher officers of the company are advanced some promotions will be made among the junior officers and their immediate subordinates, but just what these changes will be none of the slate-makers has attempted to figure out. What is to be done in the matter will probably be decided upon at the meeting of the directors next month.

It is not likely, however, that the vacancy created in the company's board of directors by Mr. Ward's death will be filled for some months. Up to the present time no one has been publicly talked of for this place.

As for the vacancies created by Dr. Ward's death in the boards of directors of the Fidelity Trust Company and the Union National Bank it is not likely that anything will be done for some time. The probability is that no action will be taken by either bank for several months.

In these institutions, as in other large enterprises, the disposition is to cut down the number of directors, and it would not be surprising if both these banks, instead of electing a successor to Dr. Ward, simply reduced by one the size of their boards.

MOTOR LAW BAD, SAYS ASSEMBLYMAN EDGE.

Assemblyman Walter E. Edge, of Atlantic county, in an interview yesterday concerning the retaliatory legislation of New York, Pennsylvania and other States directed against motorists of this State because of the temporary tax levied on motor vehicles from all other States, declares the law, while producing a nominal revenue only, means an annual loss to hotelkeepers, garages, other tradespeople and motorists of several hundred thousand dollars.

As an remedy Colonel Edge, who fathered a bill to repeal the law which provoked the retaliatory legislation in other States, suggests the appointment of a commission of two or three members of the Legislature from New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut and this State to be named by the governors of these states for the purpose of suggesting legislation that might solve the problem.

LOG CABIN GUN CLUB BECOMES INCORPORATED

The Log Cabin Gun Club, of this city, has filed with the county clerk at Elizabeth articles of incorporation, and the object named in the articles is "to practice shooting with firearms". Werms, Percy H. Stewart and Samuel Huntington.

The ground [illegible] for the shooting are those of the Watchung Hunt Club, for which permission has been granted. The former grounds of the club have had to be abandoned owing to their being used for another purpose. The club will begin the season's practice in the early fall.

NOVELTIES PLANNED BY NEW PHYSICAL DIRECTOR

On September 1, Thomas Whittaker, the newly appointed physical director of the Plainfield Young Men's Christian Association, will assume charge of his duties in the local physical department. On this same date George L. Listman, the present physical director, will go to the Montclair association to take charge of the physical work there.

Mr. Whittaker comes here from Reading, Pennsylvania, where he has been the director of municipal playgrounds this year. He has also had charge of the department of instruction in swimming in the city of Reading. Mr. Whittaker intends to make a course in swimming among the leading features of the work of the physical department for the coming winter.

Although the new physical director has not as yet officially announced his plan of action, it is understood that he will follow the regular routine of physical department work. Mr. Whittaker, however, has a whole lot of new ideas, which he will try to incorporate in the local association's physical department. A Y. M. C. A. football team is being talked of, and if this idea matures, it will be a big help to Plainfield athletics, for at present there is no regular football team here except the high school elevens. Mr. Whittaker will also endeavor to promote the interest of swimming and track athletics in the local high schools. The association is intending to make a renewed effort toward co-operation with the city and borough high schools through its new athletic director.

Mr. Whittaker will fill a long felt for want in this city—that of an all around, impartial, athletic director, who can organize, coach, and direct the athletics of Plainfield in a business-like, energetic, manner. Leagues are to be organized among the school boys and various clubs in the different branches of sport.

EMPLOYEES DISCHARGED

MEN IMPLICATED IN THEFTS.

Chief of Detectives Gray Discloses Identity of Alleged Thieves Who Had Enough Stuff to Start Department Store.

Whether Garret Garretson, of Harrison avenue, North Plainfield, and W. J. Heiner, of Washington avenue and Fourth street, wanted to or had contemplated starting a ship chandlery or a department store will, perhaps, forever remain a mystery, but the fact will remain that they made a good start by appropriating enough miscellaneous articles from freight shipped to this city to do both or either and therefore they are no longer in the employ of the Central Railroad of New Jersey in the freight department.

Chief of Detectives J. E. Gray, of the Central, reported this morning that these two men had been dismissed from the company's employ and that the charges preferred against them was stealing from the cars and depot of the company various articles of wearing apparel and other things and that the goods were found on their premises. Several employees of the company were discharged for the same offense some time ago, and the revelations of Chief Gray will account for some of the mysterious disappearance of delivery had been made of original packages to the merchants of this city. The source of the information by which the thieves were detected could not be learned, but enough was told this morning to convince Mr. Gray that he had caught the right men.

Garretson and Heiner were discharged on July 17 after a search of their homes revealed an assortment of stuff alleged to have been stolen from the local freight house which would have started any ambitious person on the road to fortune. Among the articles found at Garretson's home were a pair of button shoes, two quarts of onions, four cans of condensed milk, two hams, a quantity of salt codfish, a pair of silk booties, and other things. Besides confessing to these thefts, Mr. Gray said that both men confessed to having tapped a barrel of whiskey from which small quantities were taken from time to time.

The list of stolen stuff to which Heiner confesses is partly as follows: Women's underwear, needle work, 3 yards, two pairs of men's trousers; 1 pair high rubber boots; 1 pair shoes; several pair of sandals; some bacon, butter, lime, condensed milk, canned goods of various kinds, some sole leather, some shoe heels and cut soles, cakes of chocolate, two screw drivers, two carpet-tack pullers, and other tools.

The other men alleged to have been implicated in the looting of the freight packages and who have been discharged are: Charles Stetler, Geo. Smith and Thomas Martin.

HARVARD'S BIG OFFER FOR AIRSHIP CONTEST

Prospects that Harvard's airship meet in September will be the most important ever held in America, which recently appeared dubious because of the feud between Glenn Curtiss and Charles K. The list of cash prizes already total $40,000, to which must be added many valuable pieces of plate, including the $1,000 Harvard Cup for accuracy.

NEW COMPANY TO BUILD

International Vending Machine Co. to Begin Operations in Short Time.

MACHINE HAS GOVT. APPROVAL

At a meeting of the International Vending Machine Company held in the parlors of the Kensington Hotel Wednesday it was decided to incorporate the company under the laws of this State, taking over the assets of the old company originally incorporated under the laws of Delaware.

The new company will issue $300,000 in stock of which $50,000 will be in 7 per cent. cumulative preferred shares and $250,000 common stock in shares of $100 each, full paid and non-assessable. The incorporation papers are being drawn up by Judge Isaac P. Runyon and will probably be filed with the Secretary of State within the next ten days.

The International Vending Machine Company will establish a factory in this city for the purpose of manufacturing their stamp, and other Vending machines. The officers have not yet been chosen, but they will be elected at a meeting to take place probably within two weeks hence.

The machines which this company will make have been approved by the United States postoffice department and already orders have been received from various parts of the country for the product. The device will fill a want noticeably felt in every city and town in the country. The main object is to supply stamps at convenient points in all cities for which the people will pay a small amount for the convenience. The machine made by this company is the only machine of its kind and its special feature is a coin detector which prevents foreign or spurious coin from working the machine.

Provisions have been made in the estimate for the coming year by Postmaster General Hitchcock, for printing eighty-nine million stamps of the one and two cent denominations in strips for this machine, which shows that the seal of government approval has been put upon the enterprise. Judge Isaac P. Runyon will be the legal adviser of the new company., Provisions will be begun just as soon as a suitable site for the factory can be obtained. R. H. Pollock, of Baltimore, is the inventor of the new device and with Charles Matt has succeeded in forming a strong company in this city for the purpose of manufacturing the machines. It is firmly believed that the new concern will eventually rival the great National Cash Register Co., of Dayton, Ohio, which todays employs upward of 7,000 people.

GOVERNOR TOUCHED BY INAUGURAL VISITOR

Governor Fort was asked the other day what had been his most amusing experience since becoming the chief executive of the state. He replied, and here it is:

"Probably the most amusing experience I have had during my period as Governor was that which occurred on the day I was inaugurated. During that afternoon I shook hands with several thousand persons, and as each one came to me he was introduced by a member of the military staff, who first asked each person his name.

"Along toward the end of the afternoon a rather seedy-looking individual came up to Col. Gilkyson, one of the aides, and said that he knew the Governor, and that there was no necessity for telling his name, so the colonel allowed him to take my hand.

"I had no recollection of having seen him before, and you can imagine my great surprise when he leaned over and whispered in my ear:

"'Governor, I want to congratulate you, and then more softly said, 'Say, I'm broke, can you let me have the price of carfare to Freehold?'

"If there hadn't been so many people coming along the line, I might have helped him out, but the possibilities for future demands were too great."

NEW JERSEY AUTOISTS WILL BE ARRESTED THERE

The recent conference between Commissioner of Motor Vehicles J. B. R. Smith, of New Jersey, and the State Highway Commissioner of Massachusetts, regarding the automobile retaliatory troubles, has availed little according to the latest move of the Bay State authorities. The Massachusetts commissioner has placed in the hands of all superior police officers, judges and other officials throughout the state letters explaining the new restrictions imposed on visiting machines from New Jersey. This is what the Massachusetts people say:

"From now on all New Jersey motorists who come into this state without having in advance secured a Massachusetts license will be placed under arrest, taken into the nearest court and fined.

"Visiting machines from any state in the Union except New Jersey may be operated here for ten days without registration, but New Jersey autoists are not even to be given a chance to come into the state for a license. They must do that by means of the mails. If a man in Newark wishes to motor to Boston or any other point in the state he must first write to the Massachusetts Highway Commission and secure application forms. Then, after filling out the blanks, he must wait until they are returned, properly approved, before he may venture the trip with safety. Otherwise he may expect arrest and a fine.

"All this is because the authorities here feel that the New Jersey lawmakers were unfair in refusing to grant in their state the privilege to visitors which are granted here and in other states. Consequently the discrimination against the New Jersey people who come here.

"The State Highway Commission was authorized to take the retaliatory measures just inaugurated by the last legislature. The new statute became effective July 10."

JOS. HARRIGAN ELECTED DICTATOR OF THE MOOSE

The Plainfield Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, held a meeting Thursday in the rooms of the Knights of Columbus. Some fifty candidates were obligated and officers were installed. There were a large number of the brothers present and a most enjoyable evening was passed.

Worthy Dictator, Theodore Stirling resigned on account of other pressing business. Joseph Harrigan was elected as his successor. Secretary Irons, of the New York Lodge, assisted State Organizer Nichols in the installation, after which Mr. Bush made an eloquent address to the order, telling of the ideals, founding and origin of the Loyal Order of Moose. The officers installed last night are as follows: Past Dictator, Andrew Marden; Dictator, Joseph Harrigan; vice-dictator, Francis J. Blatz; treasurer, C. H. Holstein; prelate, John Green; secretary, J. J. Carty; trustees, H. P. Greenwood, C. W. Fogarty and W. W. Wilson; sergeant-at-arms, William Adler; inner guard, Miles Wilson; and outer guard, Fred Dunn.

On the night of August 16, the grand officers of the order and a team from the Trenton lodge will confer the degree upon the Plainfield dodge and close the charter of the local lodge. The meeting will be held in Saengerbund Hall, being preceded by a large street parade, with a full band. Refreshments will be served after the meeting. Delegates from the Camden, Trenton, Lambertsville, Milltown, New Brunswick, Perth Amboy, Asbury Jersey City, Hoboken and New York lodges, together with several mayors from these lodges, will be present on this occasion.

EDUCATION COSTS MOST

ALTOGETHER COST $222,750,000.

About $405,000,000 were spent in 1908 in maintaining and operating the city departments of the 158 largest cities in the United States having an estimated population of 30,000 or more in 1908, whose financial statistics for that year have been collected by the Census Bureau at Washington and are analytically presented in its annual report on the statistics of cities for the year 1908.

The maintenance of schools represents ninety-five per cent. of the total expenses of cities for "education' and cost more than any other municipal function, while the protection of life and property by the police. fire and associated departments was second in cost. These two functions of education and protection of life and property cost fifty-five per cent. of about $405,000,000, which was the total expense of maintaining and operating city departments. For the whole group of cities the average per capita expense for schools was $4.70; for police departments, $2.25; and for fire departments, $1.72. These per capita averages vary greatly among the several cities. Salt Lake City expended $8.18 per capita for schools; Newton, Mass., $8; and New York, Boston, Washington, Newark, Denver, Springfield Mass., and Sacramento each expended over $6 for the same purpose, while Montcomery expended only $1.63; Charleston, $1.81; Norfolk, $2.15; St. Joseph, $2.17; Memphis, $2.19; Knoxville, $2.28; and Manchester and Galveston, each $2.34.

The increased cost of maintaining the government departments of cities is forcibly illustrated by the fact that in 147 cities of over 30,000 population in 1902 it was $13.36 per capita, while for the same cities in 1908 it was $16.81.

The costs of maintaining the police department during the same interval for that purpose have risen steadily from $1.90 to $2.26 per capita; the fire department, from $1.32 to $1.72; health conservation, from $0.22 to $0.30; sanitation, from $0.91 to $1.38; highways, from $1.72 to $1.83; and schools, from $3.99 to $4.70.

The city of over 200,000 population with the smallest running expenses was New Orleans, with Milwaukee a close second.

Expressed in per capita averages, the cities of over 200,000 population with the highest expenses were: Boston, $21.58; New York, $24.71; and Washington, $24.64; and those with the lowest were New Orleans, $12.76, and Baltimore, $13.34. The cities of from 100,000 to 300,000 population, with the highest and lowest per capita payments for expenses, were Denver, $24.44, and St. Paul, $15.55. Of the cities having from 50,000 to 100,000 inhabitants, the highest was Yonkers, $19.33, and the lowest, Savannah, $7.20. Of those having from 30,000 to 50,000 population, the highest was Sacramento, $20.34, and the lowest, Joplin, $5.82.

SUES PREACHER FOR DIVORCE.

Mrs. Anna B. Carter, of Vernon Township, through her counsel, Addison P. Rosenkrans, of Paterson, has started suit for divorce against the Rev. George C. Carter. The suit is brought on the statutory ground. Efforts are being made to find the clergyman, who is said to have charge of a church in upper New York state.

The couple were married on Sept. 16, 1891, and it was while Carter was preaching in the Baptist church at Old Bridge, Middlesex county, that he became acquainted with sixteen-year-old Elsie Smith, an orphan. As a result of their friendship he was brought up on charges, and at a conference of Baptist ministers held in Trenton he was expelled from the church.

When Mrs. Carter heard the rumor about her husband's conduct she refused to believe them, but when the case was brought before the ministerial association and Carter was proved guilty, she left him, taking with her their fourteen-year-old boy. After that Carter worked as a painter and paperhanger, but is now said to be in charge of a church again.

TO MARK SLAVE'S GRAVE

"Caesar, an African" Was a Teamster in the Continental Army.

BURIED AT SCOTCH PLAINS.

Union County Board of Freeholders Will Place a Stone Over His Resting Place—Gen. Drake Found Grave.

General J. Madison Drake, of Elizabeth, who, last year by authorization of the Board of Freeholders, located the grave of every Civil War soldier and sailor in the various cemeteries of Union county, nearly 1,300 in number, has made a discovery in the Baptist church graveyard at Scotch Plains that not only surprised but interested him. General Drake, for some months past, has been engaged in the laborious task of locating the graves of soldiers of the American Revolution as well as those who served in the second war with Great Britain—1812-1815. He has already found the resting-places of more than 400 Continental soldiers, very few of which have been marked by the Sons of the Revolution, and expects that the number will be considerably increased.

By authority of the freeholders, who imposed this task upon him, General Drake will make requisition upon the war department for a beautiful white marble stone, appropriately inscribed, for each grave.

While in the Scotch Plains cemetery, the general ran across a crumbling brown stone bearing this legend:

General Drake, with no thought that the negro, whose resting-place is so chronicled, could have been a soldier in the Continental army, merely copied the inscription in his note-book, on account of its singularity and the great age of the man. Strange to say, on looking over his revolutionary record and MSS. the general discovered that "Ceasar, an African", was a slave belonging to a prominent family in Westfield, and was a regularly mustered Continental soldier, who served during the war as a "Teamster" in Captain William Davison's Team Brigade, accompanying Maxwell's New Jersey Brigade in most of its campaigns.

THE OPENING GUNS OF THE CAMPAIGN

Opening guns in the Republican campaign for the coming primaries and convention will be fired on the night of August 9, at a big meeting to be held by the Downtown Republican Club, in German Parish Hall, Third street, Elizabeth. Booms, it is expected, will be launched for various offices, principally among them being that for Mayor. Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, who has announced his candidacy for the nomination for Congress from the Fifth district, to succeed Charles N. Fowler, will be the principal speaker of the evening, and the occasion has been announced as a "get together" at which Mr. Runyon will explain to the voters just where he stands.

In his opening address to the voters of the county, given at the recent outing of the Sixth Ward Republican Club, of Elizabeth, he stated that he would, within a few days, issue a statement telling just how he stood on the leading questions of the day. It is expected and has been announced that this statement will be made public by him from the platform at Parish Hall.

Republican clubs from all over the county will be represented at the gathering, and the occasion promises to be a big pow-wow.

The boom for Assembly candidates will probably be launched. Just what the powers that be have in mind regarding the candidate for Assembly is not known at present, but it is expected that this office will be one of the important ones under discussion at the meeting.

Among the men invited as speakers for the meeting are Robert B. Cissel and School Commissioner Walter B. Timms, of Elizabeth.

The Carnival at Oak Tree.

There will be a carnival on the grounds of the Mareonnier chapel at Oak Tree on the evenings of August 23 and 24 for the benefit of the chapel. Besides moving pictures there will be a shooting gallery and a typical country store. There will be refreshments of all kinds for sale on the grounds, and lots of good music. Everybody will be welcome.

GUBERNATORIAL BOOMS

THEY MAKE SOME STATEMENTS.

Woodrow Wilson's boom for the Democratic nomination for governor was conspicuous by its absence at the annual outing of the Mercer County Democrats which was held at Trenton Wednesday afternoon and participated in by 3200 party men recruited from all sections of the county. The college president's name was not mentioned once during the public speechmaking and no one among the crowd, although there were many there from Princeton, espoused his ambition to sit in the gubernatorial chair. Even the letter of regret at his inability to attend the outing, which he sent in acknowledgement of an invitation to be on hand to meet the Democrats of his home county, was not read to the throng of voters who gathered at the Interstate Fair grounds to meet and listen to their Democratic aspirants. Charles H. Gallagher, Mercer county's representative on the Democratic state committee, who declared himself in favor of President Wilson for governor early this week, was unable to attend the outing on account of being called to Baltimore to visit a sick relative, announced before he left town in the morning that now that Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., had said that he would accept the nomination if it was tendered to him by the state convention, he was for the latter. Mr. Gallagher was the only Mercer county Democratic leader who had received the suggestion of nominating President Wilson in a favorable light.

While the Wilson boom was studiously ignored by the Democrats attending the outing, Mr. Katzenbach was hailed a number of times as the next governor of New Jersey, and his name was cheered to the echo every time it was mentioned during the afternoon. In a carefully prepared speech Mayor Walter Madden, of Trenton, proclaimed it to be a fact that Mr. Katzenbach was practically the unanimous choice of Mercer county Democrats for the gubernatorial nomination and declared that it would afford them "universal pleasure" to again support the latter for chief executive of New Jersey.

In marked contrast to the attitude of the crowd toward the Wilson boom was the treatment the assembled Democrats accorded to Senator George S. Silzer, of Middlesex county, and Mayor Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City, who as avowed candidates for the governorship were greeted enthusiastically when they were introduced during the speechmaking period. In this view it was apparent that President Wilson was not remotely regarded as even a second choice of the Mercer county Democrats.

In his speech Mr. Katzenbach again declared that he was not seeking the nomination for governor. Incidentally he made na indirect reference to Mr. Wilson but it aroused no interest among the crowd. He stated his position in the following language:

"I appreciate what my fellow citizens did for me three years ago. This year my friends have again kindly sought my nomination. I made a statement a few days ago that exactly interpreted my feelings. I would like to have you all read it. It is not my wish to receive the nomination. I will serve only if drafted. My earnest desire is that you would select some other candidate. I believe that I have done my whole duty to the Democratic party. I want you to take my utterances exactly as I have made them. There is no deceiving, no dissembling. If you are my friends you will respect my wishes, and I know that you are my friends. The Democratic party is rich in candidates. We have Mayor Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City, and we have in our own county a candidate who desires the nomination and who occupies a high and prominent position, and one who would give this State an excellent administration."

Senator Silzer made his appearance as an avowed candidate for the nomination without any "ifs or ands." "If Mercer county does not furnish the candidate," said Mr. Silzer, "I may be pardoned for indorsing and making the statement that Middlesex county will feel proud to furnish to the State a successor to its present governor. No matter, however, what the result of the coming convention the Democrats of Mercer can rely upon this fact, that Middlesex county will be loyal to the nominee, and they believe that if the nomination should come from Middlesex county that Mercer will likewise show it loyalty. On our part this is not a mere promise, for Middlesex, which went 1744 Republican in 1906, was carried for Mr. Katzenbach. Last year Middlesex went 1879 Democratic and we believe that this will this year be duplicated for the Democratic nominee."

Mayor Wittpenn arrived at the outing late in the afternoon after many of the guests had departed for home. He made a brief speech from an automobile. He said that he expected to come to the Sate convention with a solid Hudson county delegation behind himself for the governorship. Later on Mayor Wittpenn had a conference with a number of Mercer county Democratic leaders in the Trenton House and was assured that there was not the slightest possibility of President Wilson capturing any delegates from Mercer county to the State convention.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF ALEXANDER B. MALLINSON

The funeral services of Alexander B. Mallinson, of West Fourth street, the oldest druggist in this city, who died last Tuesday, were held from his late home Thursday afternoon at three o'clock. The services were largely attended by the many friends and relatives of the dead man. There was also a large representation of the Plainfield Druggists' Association present.

Rev. Dr. John A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which Mr. Mallinson was an active member, officiated. Dr. Chambliss read several appropriate passages of Scripture and spoke at length of the useful life of the dead druggist. Several solos were sung by Elmer Runyon.

The floral tributes were many in number, among them being a handsome wreath from the Druggists' Association.

The interment, which was made Friday morning in Hillside cemetery, was private.

NO BOOMS FOR ASSEMBLY IN THE MINORITY PARTY

There is not the slightest indication at the present time as to who the men are who will be chosen to make up the Democratic Assembly ticket. None of the leaders, so far as can be learned, are making a stir to find good timber and the slate will probably remain in its present unfilled condition until the Democratic outing, which will be held on Wednesday, August 17.

Apparently there are few Democrats who are in any way anxious to get in the Assembly race and the few who are and who could be counted upon to be among the vote-getters and consequently not the kind of candidates the leaders care to run. The Democratic Assembly ticket, as in former years, will probably remain unprepared until the eleventh hour. The outing in August occurs one week before the time for the filing of petitions, which must be filed at the office of the County Clerk by August 24. The necessity for getting on the job at the earliest possible moment has apparently not been realized up to date.

Abram P. Morris, of Union, who was an Assembly candidate last year, prominent local Democrats believe will ran again. Mr. Morris ran on the ticket last year with Joseph T. Hague and Franklin Halliday. John Woodruff, a prominent Democratic worker in the First ward in Elizabeth, and identified with the Independent Social Club of that ward, has also been mentioned as a candidate. Woodruff is popular in the downtown wards in Elizabeth, and a speaker of ability. He is a member of several large fraternal organizations.

For Congress, County Chairman W. E. Tuttle is the only Democrat who has been prominently mentioned. He will probably be the candidate.

Deep-laid Scheme.

"Why are you so anxious to send that man to the Legislature? He never was a friend of yours."

"That's just it," replied Farmer Corntossel. "I enjoy seein' him unprosperous. In the present state of feelin' a member of the Legislature wouldn't dare to get rich.—Washington Evening Star.

WARNS AGAINST LOCUSTS

State Entomologist John B. Smith Tells of Pest Due in May 1911.

HOW TO PREVENT DAMAGE.

Cicada Will Probably Devastate Trees in Every County of the State—Will Disappear in June.

State Entomologist John B. Smith has issued a note of warning against the "Seventeen-Year Locusts" which are due to make their appearance next May and remain throughout June. The locust is particularly voracious in the eastern part of New Jersey, hence the following circular is of great interest to Union county.

"Brood II. of the periodical Cicada, or, as it is better known, the 'Seventeen-Year Locust,' appeared in New Jersey in 1894, and is due to appear again in 1911. According to the records gathered in 1894, the brood covers practically all of Bergen county, scattered areas in Passaic county, small areas near Huntsburg and Papakating in Sussex county, practically all of Morris, Union, Essex and Hudson counties, a few areas in Mercer county, irregular areas all over Middlesex county, scattered points in the eastern part of Monmouth county, small patches in Ocean and Burlington counties, Pensauken and vicinity in Camden county, scattering sections at the southwestern part of Gloucester and Salem counties, irregular areas throughout Atlantic and Cape May counties, and all the wooded sections on the Cape May Peninsula. There is, therefore, no county entirely free from the insects; but they do not approach the Delaware River closely except in Camden county, and, in a general way, may be said to be most abundant in the eastern half of the State.

"The insects will appear during the last days of May, 1911, and will continue throughout June; disappearing by the end of the month. The injury is done by the females in laying eggs in twigs and small branches, making slits that do not heal. These result in the ultimate death beyond the point of injury of every punctured branch less than one-half an inch in diameter, and, where there are many punctures on the trunks of small trees or on branches up to three-quarter inch, these are apt to be seriously injured or killed.

"Farmers, fruit-growers and others who contemplate setting out trees or shrubs during the fall of 1910, or spring of 1911, in the infested areas, are warned of the danger of injury from the cicadas. If trees or shrubs must be set, put out either very small trees and cut back severely, so as not to offer attractions to the insects, or set large trees with many branches and cut back no more than absolutely necessary until after July 1, so as to offer the insects a tree to oviposit in wood that can be spared. Burn all the cut infested wood.

"In established, young orchards or other plantations, do not prune more than necessary, so as to distribute any injury that may be caused. On large trees no appreciable injury will be noted, but there may be a serious cutting of the crops borne on small shoots and branches. There is no way of poisoning the insects, for they do practically no feeding, and it is not in the least dangerous to handle them. All insectivorous birds feed freely on these Cicadas, and so does the ordinary farm poultry of all kinds. Sparrows take a malicious delight in tearing them to pieces, and little damage need be expected where these birds occur in large numbers.

"The undersigned will be grateful for all information as to the places where the insects appear.

"JOHN B. SMITH,
"Entomologist."

Big Bones Found at Gladstone.

In the dooryard at the home of Mrs. Rachel Melick, at Gladstone, is what is considered a portion of the remains of a prehistoric skeleton. Italian laborers are busy cutting down the hill between Gladstone and Chester in the road which is being macadamized, and it was while at this work that the skeleton was found buried in a rock. It was in a limestone deposit and about ten or twelve feet below the surface. The object appears to be the leg and foot of a huge animal, and it was embedded in the solid rock when discovered.

Congregational Supplies.

Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Goodrich and son, of West Seventh street, will leave Monday for Waterville, N. H., to spend the month of August. They will be registered at Elliott's Hotel. Rev. Dr. J. B. Clark, of New York, will occupy the pulpit on August 7, and Rev. Dr. James M. Whiton, of New York, on August 14. The church will be closed after the latter date until the preparatory service on September 9.

CRANFORD CLUB'S CIRCUS

HELD BURLESQUE ON BIG FIGHT

Screamland, the circus given by the Cranford Golf Club at the clubhouse and grounds Wednesday night, brought one of the largest gatherings of society people that ever came together in the town. The house and surrounding grounds had been transformed into a veritable Coney Island in the midst of which the revelry and fun continued until a late hour of the night. Screamland and its attractions will long be remembered by those who attended.

Nothing funnier has been seen in Cranford or anywhere else, for that matter, than the parody on the Johnson-Jeffries fight. It was a four-round bout including the moving picture men, referee, etc. S. Wetherill represented Jack Johnson, while Edward Wild took the place of the stocky Jeffries. S. M. Yeaman refereed the bout in true sporting style and the screams of the spectators could be heard for a mile.

The museum of freaks disclosed Mr. Marshall disguised as the bearded lady, and Miss Frances Bourne as the midget. J. H. Vidal looked the part of the fat lady, while E. Stevens was the much tattooed man, and E. A. Cruikshank looked uncomfortable as the human pincushion. J. Frank was the Hercules of the show and Miss Laura Cochrane the snake charmer.

If Edward Babcock had ever struck his head on the bottom of the tin bathtub in which he did the diving stunts as Miss Annette Killaman, his obituary would have to be written instead of plain statement of facts like these. He amused the crowd immensely with his antics. Others who amused and entertained were Mrs. Charles Harris, as Mme. Lightfoot; Mrs. G. S. Veit, a pretty mechanical doll; the artful dodger, by F. C. Irwin; Miss Edith Hillier, as Rebekah at the Well. Miss Grace Birdseye had charge of the grab bag. Ice cream cones and hot dogs were sold by Mrs. A. S. Wrenn and Miss Stratton, while the wheel of fortune was spun by Mrs. C. C. Ventries and Thomas Wrenn was the artist on the job.

Among the barkers for the side shows were Harvey N. Fisk, president of the club; E. G. B. Riley, J. H. Frazier, S. M. Yeaman, Charles Voorbees, C. C. Ventries and Robert C. Miller. Mrs. S. Witherill and Mrs. R. B. Wasson attired as Dutch girls were in charge of "Under Den Linden." One of the best patronized features of the show was the Royal Gypsy Queen, the only genuine fortune teller, impersonated by Mrs. Frank T. Sloan. A large sum was realized for the building fund of the club. Following is the committee who had the circus in charge: Mrs. Frank Sloan, chairman; Mrs. C. C. Ventries, Mrs. J. H. Vidal, Mrs. R. B. Wasson, Mrs. S. M. Yeaman, Mrs. S. Wetherill, Mrs. G. S. Veit, Mrs. Frank Harriott and Mrs. E. H. Miller.

WHO OWNS THE LICENSE?

FORMER HEAD MUST EXPLAIN.

They Sell Bananas, But As to Who Has the Right Is a Mystery—Newark Firm Split As to Ownership of Permit.

If George Duker owns the license card and his partners in the firm of Duker and Company own the tin license tags, who has the right to sell the bananas?

That is the question which will have to be adjudicated by Judge William N. Runyon when Mr. Duker presents himself in the City court, if he ever does.

Several of Duker's partners were in the court room Saturday hoping that Duker would show up and explain his action in keeping the blue card receipts issued with each license and using it to peddle bananas in this city, while his former partners are haled to court for not having the card.

So far as could be learned this morning Duker was a member of the firm of Duker & Co., but withdrew several weeks ago to go it alone. Whether he sold out to his partners or not is a moot question, but the fact remains that he is tradling with the blue card while the other four members of the firm are trying to carry on business with the tin tags.

Of course it is contrary to the ordinance for two persons to trade separately with but one license, and it is necessary to determine who has the right to use the license which will become plain when Duker comes forward with his story. All the other members of the original firm were in court this morning, but Duker failed to put in an appearance.

Judge Runyon decided that the other members of the firm, of which Joseph Massino is the head, could sell their bananas until Duker had been apprehended and explanations made. Massino declares that Duker is no longer a member of the company and that the company want the original license, as they have bought out Duker's interest. The firm, which is a Newark concern, was represented by W. V. Nash, Jr.

GAVE EUCHRE FOR ST. MARY'S CONVENT

Mrs. John Walsh, of 307 Madison avenue, gave a euchre party and tea at her home Friday night, for the benefit of St. Mary's Convent. The grounds were illuminated with one hundred electric lights and Japanese lanterns and decorated with numerous large flags and bunting.

A profusion of cut flowers and potted plants were used in the decorative scheme. A feature of the affair was Mme. Tom, the gypsy wonder, who revealed the past, present and future to many delighted patrons. There were twenty-five handsome awards, after which dancing was enjoyed. Music was furnished by Allen Squire's orchestra.

Voting Machine Elections.

The result of the Plainfield and Paterson votes on the voting machine issue Tuesday was what was expected. The almost unanimous decision against the machines shows how the people feel toward these voting contrivances. Plainfield has now been rid entirely of them, while Paterson has thrown them out in nineteen of the twenty-one districts where they had been placed. This ought to be enough in the way of an expression of opinion to satisfy the State Legislature that the people want the voting machines wiped out entirely. The question of honest or dishonest voting is not involved in the desire to put an end to the plan of voting by machinery. The people have tried the devices faithfully and have found them entirely unsatisfactory.—Elizabeth Journal.

POLITICIANS AT SEA GIRT

JUDGE WM. RENYON IN CROWD.

Most of the Big Guns of the Party Spent the Day Discussing the Situation—Fowler Was Not There.

Among the 500 guests of Governor Fort at his annual reception and luncheon at Sea Girt Thursday none attracted more attention than Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, the candidate for the Republican Congressional nomination in the Fifth district to succeed Charles N. Fowler, who aspires to a ninth term. There were former governors, judges of the higher courts, members of the Legislature, newspaper editors, State officials and men prominent in all walks of life in the big gathering.

State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, of Morris county, was on hand with a big delegation of Morris politicians. They freely predicted that Runyon would have a walk-over at the primaries in their county. The Union county politicians were equally certain that there would be no opposition of any consequence against the popular Plainfielder.

Among the Plainfielders present were Mayor Charles J. Fisk, State Supervisor of Roads Robert M. Meeker, Factory Inspector Andrew McCardell, George J. Tobin, Tax Collector William R. Townsend and District Court Judge William Newcorn.

There were some Republican leaders who have had their differences of opinion with Governor Fort. The most notable instance was the presence of David Baird, the Republican leader of South Jersey. Senator Kean was on hand early. He gave no evidence of the least anxiety as to the outcome of his contest for reelection. Edward C. Stokes, an aspirant for the Senatorial toga, was on hand. Among others were Vivian M. Lewis, Banking Commissioner; Mahlon Pitney, the Chancellor, and William P. Martin, the Essex county New Idea exponent.

Of the Democrats who have been mentioned for the nomination for Governor, Frank Katzenbach, who was defeated three years ago by Governor Fort, was unable to be present. Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton, sent his regrets, while George S. Silzer, State Senator from Middlesex, was present. Edward Kenny, of East Newark, was another Democrat who spent the day in camp.

Congressman Fowler, present Congressman and aspirant for the United States Senate, sent his regrets. Judge George R. Gray, of the Court of Errors and Appeals, and Chief Justice William S. Gummere were the two prominent representatives of the judiciary of the State.

The managers of the Morris Plains Hospital for the Insane held a meeting yesterday morning, as did also the Riparian Commission. Governor Fort meeting with both. The State Highway Commission also held a brief meeting, and discussed plans for spending the $50,000 appropriated at the last session of the Legislature.

To the soldier boys the feature of the day was the review of the 1st add 5th regiments by the Governor. The visitors lined up opposite the two regimental camps, while the regiments were formed in front of their respective camps. When the Governor and his staff rode around the regiments, as the detachment from Battery A roared out the Governor's salute, the crowd cheered vigorously.

Then the two regiments passed in review, and the splendid marching and steadiness of the men in the ranks called forth applause and encomiums for their military bearing. It was indeed a great day for Governor Fort, but a greater one for the 1st and 5th regiments.

Goods Not Cheaper Abroad.

Women who feel to regret that their means will not permit them to join the army of travelers now on the Atlantic highway and heading for Paris and London, where they expect to replenish their wardrobes, may be comforted in the fact, well known to those who cross either side, that the clothing shops in the world are to be found right here at home, and the things for sale in them are not only just as handsome and as stylish as those found in shops abroad, but they are to be bought for less money. With every year of American invasion into foreign countries the prices have soared a trifle higher, until now, unless one crosses out of season during the winter, between October and May, when goods fall to rational prices again, it does not pay to shop at all except for the few articles which cannot be found at home.—Leslie's.

AUTOMOBILE STRUCK POLE

WAS TAKEN TO MUHLENBERG.

Ignorant of the roads and naturally confused, John Gehle, of 115½ South Orange avenue, Newark, in company with four companions driving a seven passenger Rambler from Newark, collided with a telephone pole near Manning's corner Saturday morning about 3 o'clock with the result that Gehle is in Muhlenberg hospital with a fractured leg and cuts about the head, and the other men who were slightly bruised have returned to their homes in Newark.

According to stories told to the police and facts gathered elsewhere, the party of five were trying out a car which had been in the garage of the Newark Automobile and Machine Company for repairs. The route led through Westfield, Cranford, Scotch Plains and this city and they were evidently intending to return by way of the mountain roads and Summit when the car took its jump for the telephone pole.

Immediately after the accident one of the men got into communication with Gus Barfuss and Mr. Barfuss went to the scene of the accident and took Gehle in his automobile to Muhlenberg hospital after Dr. C. J. Gesswein had been aroused and had given first aid to the injured. Dr. Gesswein accompanied the injured man to the hospital and made a thorough examination of his injuries. He found that Gehle had a bad fracture of the right leg and possibly was injured internally besides having been severely cut by flying glass from the broken wind shield. The other men who were only slightly injured had their wounds dressed and departed. The car was badly damaged.

It was first supposed that the accident was the result of a joy ride, but L. R. Thompson, the superintendent of the garage who was in the car, said that the car had been in the garage for some time being overhauled and that he and his companions were giving the machine a final tryout before turning it over to its owner. The car will need some more repairs now. Mr. Thompson said the car left Newark about midnight and it was the intention to go as far as New Brunswick and back, but unfamiliarity with the roads was alone responsible for the accident.

At the spot where the collision with the telephone pole occurred there is a sharp turn and unless one is thoroughly acquainted with this particular part of the road an accident is probable, especially at night.

Those in the car besides Gehle and Thompson were Paul Hoffman, 107 Howard street; Charles Warner, 115½ South Orange avenue, and M. C. Barbour, 318 Broad street, all of Newark.

TROLLEYS HELD UP BY DISABLED TRUCK

Traffic was tied up for some time Saturday at Richmond and Second streets, when one of the four horse trucks, belonging to the Hand Storage Company, broke down. The truck was carrying a sixteen-ton drop forge base from the Spicer Universal Joint Company's plant on Fourth street out to its new plant at South Plainfield. In turning into Richmond street from Second street, one of the pieces of flagging, which forms the gutter at this corner, broke under the weight and let one of the truck's wheels drop. This caused the breaking of the spring on the truck. The trolley service was blocked for half an hour when the broken wagon was moved out off the way.

The route over Richmond street had to be taken by the truck on account of the weakness of the other bridges which span Cedarbrook.

NICKEL COST ZELLER $25

Fined for Assaulting Supervisor George Luhr and Thomas Duffy.

FINAL SCENE OF ROW IN JULY.

Judge Runyon Declares Rowdyism on Trolley Cars Must Cease—Next Fine Will be Heavier.

It cost Theodore Zeller, of Leland avenue, just twenty-five dollars for refusing to pay a nickel to the Public Service Railway Monday when Judge William N. Runyon declared that he would put a stop to rowdism in the trolley cars if the big fines could accomplish that object. Zeller will probably not repeat his offense.

On July 23, according to the evidence of George Luhr, conductor Thomas Duffy, Mrs. Lorensen, William Brown, a machinist, of Garwood and Edward Green, an employee of the Levering and Garigue Company, Zeller refused to pay his fare on a main line trolley car when it arrived at the fare zone at Terrill road on the afternoon of Saturday, July 23. On being informed that he would either have to pay or get off the car he refused to do either.

Following the main line car was a special with some sunday-school children bound on a trolley ride around the loop. This special was in charge of Supervisor of the fifth division George Luhr and when his car arrived at the corner of Terrill road and he noticed that the car ahead was being delayed he went forward to inquire the cause. When Duffy informed him of the action of Zeller, Luhr entered the car and explained the situation and rules of the company to Zeller and gave him five minutes in which to make up his mind to either pay or get off. At the end of this time, Zeller continued to refuse to act either way and Luhr declared he would have to get off.

When Luhr took hold of Zeller's arm to enforce his command, it is alleged that Zeller struck him in the face and after a struggle in which both attempted to choke him. Conductor Duffy then pulled Zeller off Luhr who got up and gave the order for the car to proceed, the total delay on the line having been eight minutes.

When the car reached Leland avenue, Zeller got off the car after handing the fare to Duffy, but his belligerancy had not ceased. Here it is alleged that Zeller again offered to fight Duffy and the testimony showed that he made a pass at the conductor and offered to fight either Duffy or Luhr for $5.

There were no witnesses to testify in behalf of Zeller, whose counsel, Judge William Newcorn, admitted a technical violation of the peace, Judge Newcorn made a strong plea for leniency in behalf of his client while Clarence L. Case, counsel for the Public Service Company demanded that punishment adequate to the offense be administered.

Judge Runyon said that the testimony of the witnesses was convincing enough to make him believe that Zeller was guilty of the offense charged and fined him one twenty-five dollars, saying that if this fine did not act as a deterrent he would make the fine for the next offense heavier.

'PLAINS TEAM MEETS DEFEAT AT BOUDD BROOK

The Scotch Plains team went to Bound Brook, Saturday afternoon, and was trimmed by a score of 8 to 2. Not a hit or a run was made by either team until the fifth inning, when Ortlieb drove a liner along third base. Slocum, his opponent in the box for the 'Plains, was the first one to make a hit for the visitors. It came in the eighth. Three men received minor injuries before the contest was over. Only one, Meyer, first baseman for the 'Plains, was unable to finish. Bound Brook made seven of its eleven hits in the seventh inning. The summary:

STANDING ROOM ONLY AT NETHERWOOD CAMP.

A large attendance was on hand to hear Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp yesterday afternoon. Dr. Anderson interested the little folks from the beginning to the end of his remarks. Miss Laura Gesswein and Miss Jessie Haynes were the soloists and the singing by the children was remarkably fine.

The meeting was led by James F. Parker. The seating capacity of the pavilion was taxed beyond its limit so that many persons had to stand outside and listen without being able to see. It was the largest gathering of the season and went far toward encouraging the workers at the camp.

WOMAN MAN'S SAFEGUARD

A BULWARK FOR THE HUSBAND.

How to Avoid Domestic Unhappiness —Mutual Understanding Necessary—Bravery of Wife of Biblical History.

If every married woman in this city would have heard th discourse delivered by Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, at the Congrgational church Sunday morning thew would today have a more exalted opinion of their worth and a deeper pity for their husbands, particularly when the latter are peevish, ugly and uncompanionable. In "The Wife of an Tempered Man," Pastor Goodrich told a story of domestic unhappiness and of a woman's wisdom and her mission and finally her triumph.

The text for the story was found in First Samuel, 25:32 and had to do with the lives of Nabal and Abigail and 'she was a woman of good understanding and of beautiful countenance, but the man was churlish and evil in his doings." How did they ever come together? How in the world did he ever get such a woman for his wife?

"I don't know, but do you know it may be that people may have asked the same thing about us." It is only the mercy of God and the grace of woman that any man gets a good wife. But,however, humble, we may feel today, this is not quite a true picture of our case, but it is not such an uncommon one. It does seem at times that the best women had the worst husbands. Perhaps it is the mercy of God who knows that the worst men need the best wives most. In fact, however, it is the unwise choice of young women who choose with too little thought, who overlook too serious faults, who idealize man too much, and marry not the real man, but an imaginary one, created out of their own faults and lives to repent their mistake. All Abigail endured is not told, but the climax is.

"Nabal was at Carmel shearing his 3,000 sheep, near where David and his followers were staying to avoid Saul. David sent to Nabal asking for provisions for himself and his small army. The request was brutally refused by Nabal. It was not a good message for an unprotected sheep herder to send to a man backed up by 600 armed outlaws, and shortly after the message was received by David, 600 of his men were hastening on their way to destroy Nabal and all his household.

"But Abigail, the patient wife, who knew what suffering must follow an invasion by David's men, made haste to save the day for her surly husband, and became the wife to rescue her husband from the results of his rashness. Nabal had not taken his wife into his confidence, a mistake many men of today make. It would have been better for him if he had. He thought to himself, 'I can manage my own affairs.' How often this has proved a mistake. Abigail learned of all that had occurred and had determined to do all she could to undo the wrong. She did not consult Nabal about it. There was no mutual understanding between them, which is far from an ideal of domestic happiness. Nabal was called son of Belial, with reason. He was unapproachable, unreasonable. No wonder that Abigail did not want to talk the matter over with him. It is an unfortunate state of affairs when a wife does not feel free to tell her husband all her hopes and hopes.

"But the god wife is not the person to remain idle when the occasion arises for action. She does everything in her power to save her husband to shield him from any evil which threatens him. She wards off trouble and hides her own pain. In Abigail we find traits at once astonishingly distinguished; quickness of decision and readiness of resource. She got together the provisions David wanted and went forth to meet him. She went alone and faced an army to save her husband from the consequences of his rash acts, and if you will read the story in the first book of Samuel you will read one of the most courageous and most eloquent appeals ever made by woman for her home.

As all good stories end let the hero and heroine marry. What we pray for is that every young man may choose for a wife one such as Abigail. One who will be a restraining influence against sin, who will stimulate noble desires and who will make the spiritual seem real. For all young women we pray that they may be such.

PLAINFIELD Y. M. C. A. WALLOPS ORANGE Y.M.C.A.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team kept up its winning streak Saturday afternoon by taking the scalps of the Orange Y. M. C. A. nine at East Orange by the score of 7-2. The local boys clinched the game in the second inning by bunching a couple of hits and a couple of bases on balls, thus scoring five runs. Two more runs were added in the ninth by hard slugging.

Frederickson pitched his usual good game, keeping the Orange hits scattered and striking out nine men. The Plainfield fielders had an easy time of it, not a single fly going out in their direction.

Platt Adams surprised himself by clouting out a three bagger, a two-bagger and a single. Only one error was charged against the local team and that wasn't costly while two mistakes were made by Orange.

HURT IN RUNAWAY ON NORTH AVENUE.

The kingbolt of the shafts of a runabout driven by Alfred Widdowson broke at the corner of North avenue and Park on Saturday afternoon at about 6 o'clock frightening the horse which promptly ran away. The sudden stoppage of the vehicle threw the two occupants, Mr. Widdowson and James Glaser, five years old, both of Alton, out and the little fellow received several cuts and bruises.

Simon Sobel, of New York, who was passing the corner at the moment of the accident jumped to the side of the runabout and throwing his weight against the wheels prevented it from falling on top of and crushing the Glaser boy. Glaser was taken to police headquarters where Dr. Albert Pittis dressed his wounds. The horse fell down after running as far as the North avenue station and was returned to his owner by Patrolman Saffron.

Mr. Widdowson was not hurt much and after repairs had been made proceeded on his way home. Young Glaser had cuts on his knees, head and over the eyes.

SIXTEEN INNING BATTLE

Plainfield Baseball Club and Mc Nulty Bros.' Team Unable to Reach Decision.

SCORE WAS A TIE—TWO TO TWO

After Fourth Inning It was Nip and Tuck Between Pitchers—Sensational Fielding a Feature.

After one of the longest and most exciting games of baseball ever seen in this city, the Plainfield Baseball Club divided honors with the McNulty Brothers' nine, of New York city in a sixteen inning battle at Crescent oval Saturday afternoon. The game had to be called on account of darkness, the score at the end being 2 to 2. Both teams were out for blood and neither of them would give in until the last drop was shed and so the two hundred loyal fans, who had taken the trip to the oval with the expectation of seeing a ogod game, came far from being disappointed.

It looked at the start as if the New Yorkers were going to take the Plainfield scalps again for they opened the game auspiciously by landing men on second and third with only one down. But McLaughlin was there in the tight hole and easily retired the next two batsmen. Then in the second inning, the visitors made their first tally, Carrol, the first batsman up, got to first on an error by Barnes and stole second, coming home when Mullin returned Archer's hit in the skyward direction over Mullin's head. Another run was added to the McNulty score in the third round, when "Warry" made a balk thus giving Morris a free trip to the first sack. The Plainfield pitcher followed this with a free pass to Carroll and Morris scored on Donley's hit.

By this time Plainfield fandom was getting anxious and the crowd began to yell for someone to start the ball a rolling. Well it started in the fourth inning. With one down, Emery walked and Jack Martin advanced h'm a peg in his usual sly way—and Jack was safe too. Then Barnes added a hit to the collection but Emery had to stop on third. Nelson flied out to short right and it began to look as if another golden opportunity would be lost by the Plainfield team. But "Warry" McLaughlin hadn't been counted on when that figuring was done, and he was the next man at bat. The husky pitcher selected his favorite stick and stepped to the plate like the Casey of old. But unlike the famous batter of the Mudville nine, Warry was equal to the occasion and saved his own game by slamming a sizzling two bagger into deep center, scoring Emery and Martin.

Of course, the crowd was thrown into wild delight at this climax but in the jubilee, the fans in the grandstand added to the fuss by becoming too boisterous and the stand collapsed, throwing fifty loyal baseball rooters into an undignified heap. Fortunately no one was injured in the accident but the game stopped for several minutes.

After the fourth inning the game was a constant see-saw, back and forth. Plainfield really should have won out in the eighth if there had only been a little careful base running. Brit Martin opened the eighth with a beautiful two sacker, but overran third in attempting to purloin that station and was tagged out. And that was just the aggravating part of it for Boyd, the next batsman, laced out a clean single. This was the last chance that Plainfield had of getting anywhere near that winning tally.

Both pitchers were in excellent form although the Plainfield slab artist seemed to have the better of the argument. Warry's pitching was stronger in the sixteenth than in the opening round. The locals banged Archer for thirteen hits while the Yorkers only managed to get nine safe clouts from McLaughlin's delivery. Six errors were charged against the locals, two of them being responsible for a run.

McLaughlin and Barnes were the leading sluggers for the Plainfield nine while Boyd, Emery and the two Martin brothers carried off the fielding honors. Brit and Jack Martin each pulled off plays that were little short of sensational. Pfeiffer was the whole show for the visitors, his work at short being responsible for thirteen put-outs.

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT SWACKHAMER'S PLEA

Upon the request of Chairman Michael Scully, S. S. Swackhamer addressed the members of the Democratic County Committee, at Somerville, Saturday afternoon, at the close of the business session. Mr. Scully, in requesting Mr. Swackhamer to speak, said that while in the Legislature he had proved himself always on the side of the people, and that he would like to see him nominated for Congress.

Mr. Swackhamer acknowledged the compliment and said that some of his friends had even expressed the wish that he might be nominated for Governor but that there was something nearer his heart than any nomination or any office. He then made a plea for local self-government including the license question, on an equal footing with all others, and stated that in his judgment the Democratic party would stultify itself and bring down public distrust and lamentable defeat upon its head if it failed to declare for this right of the people.

Mr. Swackhamer restated, in brief, his argument recently made in Saengerbund Hall, and told the committee that the eyes of every voter of the state would be fixed upon the convention to see whether the party would take the plain path of duty and offer the people their rights which the Republican party had denied to them or cringe and cower before the enemies of home rule. He expressed the hope that the Somerset county democracy would stand firm and resolute for this right of the people and bring their undivided influence to bear upon the State convention.

GOLFERS TIE IN 18-HOLE CONTEST

Notwithstanding that a majority of the members of the Plainfield Country Club are out of the city, there was a good field out Saturday on the links. The event was an 18-hole match play competition against par, 70, the players taking three-quarters of their handicap. The contest was keen and many close scores were made. In Class A, there was a tie for first place between William T. Glenney and E. T. Willson, both being three down to par, while E. P. Goodwin and H. D. Hibbard were four down.

In class B, there was also a tie for first place between Dr. F. E. DuBois and T. W. T. Maxwell, both being five down to par. J. P. Murray was six down, H. S. Brown and ten down and J. V. Beekman was fourteen down.

Besides the events on the course, the social features were much enjoyed. Superintendent John Hilton was kept very busy serving lunches and dinners at the clubhouse. Although so many members are away, those at home find the clubhouse a convenient place to get their dinners, and the service as well as the menus are most attractive. Every night the club is the centre of attraction in this respect.

HOW OBSTACLES ARE OVERCOME

Large Congregation Attends Union Service at First M. E. Church—Music by Trinity Choir.

Union services were held Sunday night in the First M. E. church. The attendance was the largest of any of those at these services, probably on account of the cool weather. The services were in charge of the Rev. John Y. Brock, pastor of the Trinity Reformed church and the singing was by the choir of that church. Prizes anthems were ably sung by the quartet while Miss Raybert and Mr. Cutter sang the offertory duet in excellent voice. Arthur L. Titsworth, the organ'st of Trinity, presided at the organ. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First Methodist Church led in the prayer.

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, was the preacher of the evening. He took for his text, Acts 9-11, "Behold he prayeth. He spoke in part as follows:

"We often ask ourselves the question—why do we pray? The reason is just this—because Christ did it and when we pray, we are obeying the command of God. There are certain definite laws of nature, one for instance that water will not run up hill. But in the case of the lifting pump, this law is seemingly defied for the water is raised against the force of gravity. Yet in reality there is no defiance of a law in this case for the water is raised by the overcoming of one force by another. And so it is with prayer—our obstacles are overcome by that silent power for God stands behind all of his laws and has ordained it to answer prayer.

"There are four elements in prayer, the first one being adjustment and resignation. With this idea in mind prayer might be defined as the harmonious adjustment of our thoughts and feelings to the thoughts and feelings of God. Christ said, "Let the cup pass from me, Father—but not my will but thine be done." This shows the application of the first element of prayer. No matter whether our prayers are answered or we would have them or not, God always answers prayer by giving his peace, which passeth all understanding.

"The second element of prayer is that it brings us in close touch with God. We know this because we find it repeatedly in the Scriptures.

"The third element of prayer is that it is the means of opening the avenues of power into other lives and leading these souls to salvation. As the railroad locomotive on the track has no power to work without the direction of the engineer so we have no power to do good unless we pray.

"And the fourth element of prayer is the meditation which it demands. Pray daily and pray thoughtfully until your life has been transfigured to a higher level through the avenues of prayer."

Samuel Dreier, of 429 West Front street, the oldest Jewish resident of this city, died suddenly on Saturday afternoon at the summer home of his son, Garrett Dreier, at Bradley Beach. Death was due to Bright's disease, from which Mr. Dreier had been suffering for the past week. The end came at half-past four, and the body was brought to this city yesterday morning. Mr. Dreier had gone on a visit to his son at Bradley Beach, intending to remain there for about three weeks.

He was engaged in the clothing business at Madison avenue and Front street for many years in the store now occupied by his son, Harry Dreier, and also at 110 West Front street. HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR HENRY PIERCE

A memormial service for the late Harry Pierce, who died July 7, was held at the Salvation Army tent, last Sunday, under the direction of Captain Hewitt, and was of an impressive nature. The services opened with a hymn, "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder I'll be There," after which Adjutant Mrs. Jackson offered prayer and Captain Hewitt read the Scriptures from I Thess., fourth chapter.

Many touching tributes were paid to the life of the departed one by those who knew him, especially his Sunday school teacher, Mrs. Minnie Apgar, who told of his life in the Sunday school, also his private life and his beautiful Christian character. Adjutant Mrs. Jackson and her daughter, Captain Jackson, sang a beautiful duet, entitled "One Day Nearer Home." The service was brought to a close by the singing of the favorite hymn of the departed, "Jesus Lover of My Soul." Meetings were announced for Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, of this week.

NEIL A. McCARTHY DIES SUDDENLY IN ELIZABETH.

Neil A. McCarthy, for the past six years assistant state factory inspector under Andrew McCarthy, died suddenly at his home, 867 Martin street, Elizabeth, last Saturday evening at 7 o'clock. Mr. McCarthy was forty years old and is survived by his wife and one son, Eugene, four years old, besides two sisters.

Mr. McCarthy worked all day on Saturday with Mr. McCardell and when he arrived at his home at 6 o'clock appeared to be enjoying his usual robust health. He was taken suddenly ill at 6:30 and Dr. A. In Joseph Edwin Walker, eighty-two years old, of 495 Chilton street, it is believed Elizabeth has the champion long-distance walker, as considered. Mr. Walker frequently walks twenty miles a day. He is actively engaged in the real estate business here. He was born at New Bedford, Mass., on the anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill, June 17, 1788. He has a son, who lives in Newark. To walk to his son's office in Newark and back is just a bit of exercise for the octogenarian.

ELKS' GAME TOMORROW

GEORGE JOHNSON TO UMPIRE.

Great Preparations Made for Visitors —MacLaughlin and MacNaughton Local Battery—Game Starts at 2.30.

What the local Elks' baseball team intend to do to the visiting team from Burlington tomorrow is a secret yet, but judging from the practice and preparations which have been going on for the past three weeks a warm reception awaits the antlered bunch from the big county.

BURLINGTON ELKS BASEBALL TEAM.

That the Burlington ball tossers are a formidable aggregation there can be no doubt. They come to peaceful Plainfield with a reputation for prowess on the diamond second to no fraternal organization in the State. Hence sparkling play is looked for from them.

It is expected that the visitors will arrive in this city at 12.45 o'clock tomorrow accompanied by a large delegation from their lodge. They will be hospitably received by the local representatives and escorted to the club rooms on West Second street where they will be entertained until the hour for the game to begin at the oval. More than five hundred tickets have been sold for this game and they are still selling like hot cakes, so a big crowd will be on hand to root for the home team.

Everything points to a fast and hotly played contest. None of the local boys has dropped his interest in the playing and preparation of his muscles and it is said that the way some of them have rounded into shape will astonish even their most intimate acquaintances. MacLaughlin, who will occupy the mound for Plainfield, can toss 'em over with benders to 'em which would put Big Six's slants in the has been class.

As for the receiving end of the battery it is only necessary to say that MacNaughton will don the mask and protector.

Manager Mooney, of the Burlington club has announced his line-up as follows: Perkins, 3b.; Morgan, p.; Kettler, c.; Donnelley, 2b.; Stecher, ss.; Lawrence, 1b.; Satterthwaite, lf.; Mitchell, cf.; Thomanson, rf.

Plainfield's line-up will probably be as follows: MacNaughton, c.; MacLaughlin, p.; Blimm or Woolston, 1b.; Hoyt, 2b.; A. Van Arsdale, ss.; Harry De Meza or Cadmus, 3b.; A. Smith, lf.; McCullough, cf.; Nicol, rf.

Special trolley cars will be furnished by the P. S. C. to accommodate the crowd before and after the game so that there will be no unnecessary crowding, the only thing that remains to be looked after is the weather. If the dealer in the elements can be induced to turn out a clear sample of Jersey dryness there'll be a warm time at Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon. The game starts promptly at 3.30 and George Johnson will be judge of the play.

Major Martin on State Rifle Team.

General Bird W. Spencer has picked a squad of 12 men and 4 substitutes to represent the State in the national rifle tournament at Camp Perry, Ohio. Major William B. Martin, former captain of Company K, is a member of the regular team, which will leave Sea Girt on August 17, arriving at the tournament grounds the following day. The tournament will begin on August 21.

ROBBED HIS EMPLOYER; HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Morris Deutch a cobbler, of 326 Watchung avenue, caused the arrest of Axel C. Johnson, a Swede, who had been in his employ for the past few months, today, on a charge of stealing between fifteen and twenty dollars' worth of rubber heels and shoe blacking. At the hearing before Judge William N. Runyon, this morning, Johnson was held under $100 bonds for the action of the October grand jury.

In telling his story to the court, Mr. Deutch said that Johnson had taken the rubber heels and disposed of them he knew not how, but that he had traced two pair of the heels to the son of Mrs. Lundstrom, a neighbor of Johnson's and when accused of this theft Johnson acknowledged that he had taken them.

Johnson, who was not represented by counsel, declared that Deutch would have to prove that he (Johnson) had stolen more than the two pairs he acknowledged taking before he could be prosecuted. Judge Runyon took a different view of the matter and held the prisoner.

ENSIGN AND MRS. JEHU LEAD SALVATION ARMY SERVICE.

The services of the Salvation Army last night in the tent were in charge of Ensign and Mrs. Jehu, of Elizabeth. They were accompanied by Edward Hall, the ex-saloon keeper, and William Meyers, both of Elizabeth. Mrs. Jehu spoke and played the cornet. Ensign Jehu rendered several solos on the guitar.

Mrs. Jehu took for her text the thirty-sixth Psalm, speaking on the "Love of God". She said in the course of her remarks that God should be served through love and not through fear.

The local corps took advantage of the crowd, which turned out to see James J. Crobett parade, and held an open air meeting at the corner of Park avenue and Second street. The meeting in the tent was well attended.

MISS CARSON ENTERTAINS WITH INFORMAL PARTY.

HOLD A SECRET SESSION

Fowlerites Meet Behind Closed Doors and Bar the Newspaper Men.

CONGRESSMAN MAKES SPEECH.

"We'll Have to Clean Up this Court House Crowd and Get Men in There—"—That Was All the Reporters Heard.

Behind closed doors the followers of Representative Charles N. Fowler held another meeting at Elizabeth, Monday night, with Mr. Fowler present. The session was not open to newspaper men and according to the county seat newspapers not a word as to the proceedings was divulged after the session, although two reporters waited patiently outside until everyone had dispersed.

The only information forthcoming was that an advisory committee to make a canvass of Elizabeth in an effort to get men in line for Fowler delegates were appointed. When Census Supervisor Louis V. Hoagland was asked for the names of those on the committee, he said: "There'll be no names published, I'll tell you that."

A newspaper man got a tip that the Fowler forces were to get together. He was in the little room adjoining that of the census supervisor when the clans gathered, and when Mr. Fowler, amid the applause of a score of his admirers, took the platform, the scribe, fearing his identity would be known got into a corner. He pulled down his cuff and gripped a stub lead pencil between his thumb and index finger. But something happened. Someone whispered, "Who is that?" and the jig was up. The reporter was courteously informed that he would have to leave as the meeting was of a private nature and what Mr. Fowler had to say was not for publication. When he left Mr. Fowler began.

The reporter could hear the voice of the ex-Congressman from the sidewalk below, where he stood for two solid hours. It was not clear to him what Mr. Fowler and the others were talking about. He waited just the same in the hope that something might happen. Nothing did.

At 10 o'clock along came another newspaper man. The waiting scribe called him to one side. "Fowler's upstairs," he said, "but I can't get in; they put me out. It's private." The late arrival said he'd try anyway, and scaled the two flights of stairs to the meeting room. The door was partly opened and through the aperture came the words of a Fowler man, "We'll have to clean up this courthouse crowd and get men in there ——" that was all.

JERSEY AUTOISTS WANT EFFECTIVE LAMPLIGHT LAW.

Those Jersey automobilists who are engaged in stirring things up in a political way on account of motor vehicle legislation in this State are anxious not only to have the present law amended in so far as it applies to have the lamplight legislation made clearer and more effective than in its present form.

The present law provides for an immediate arrest and a $10 fine and collection in case of violation by automobilists. The cause in the same law in regard to the lighting of horse-drawn vehicles provides for a $1 fine, and that must be prosecuted and if collected it goes to the township and not the State.

Auto Club Must Fix Road.

The North Plainfield Township Improvement Society has taken up the matter of the damages done to Johnson's Drive by the last hill climbing contest. The Plainfield Automobile Club agreed to repair the road after the contest, but as yet nothing has been done toward fixing the torn roadway. A committee from the society has the matter in hand and will take it up with the Automobile Club.

Governor's Summer Plans.

Governor Fort has arranged to leave Sea Girt and close the "Little White House by the Sea" on August 20th, following which he will enjoy a vacation from official cares until the first of September. After Labor Day he will be in the State House every Tuesday and Friday until his term of office is finished in the second week of next January.

St. Peter's Lawn Fete.

The Young Ladies' Society of St. Peter's German Lutheran church will hold a lawn fete at the home of the Misses Ruschke, 431 West Sixth street, on the afternoon and evening of Thursday, August 18. There will be on sale home-made cakes, ice cream, tea, coffee and fancy articles.

EDWARDS AND KOENIG THREATENED BY CRANKS

Threats have been received by several of the heads of departments in New York city today, among them one directed to Commissioner Edwards, whose efforts to subdue the shooter in yesterday's assault on Mayor Gaynor in New York probably saved the Mayor's life. The letter received by Mr. Edwards this morning reads as follows:

"Beware! You dog ——. You will be where Gaynor is in forty-eight hours. A friend of Gallagher."

The letter was regarded as the missive of some harmless crank by Commissioner Edwards, but his friends are keeping a close watch upon him as well as upon Secretary of State Koenig, who also received an intimation that he would be the next victim of "discharged city employes".

JERSEY EDITOR WILL EXPRESS HIS OPINIONS

Looking back over his trials and tribulations in the field of politics, and as a political fighter as an editor, Henry T. Hagaman, publisher of the Lakewood Citizen, has declared a new policy for his paper in the approaching campaign. Noting that candidates for offices are bobbing up on every side in Ocean county, Mr. Hagaman opines:

"It will be impossible for me to support them all and I have come to the following iron-clad conclusion. In the past the newspaper editors have given their time and money and in return have received nothing but kicks and cuffs if they dared to have an opinion that differed from the bosses. Thousands of dolars have been spent for rum and other things that deprive and deprave. Hereafter the editorial columns of my paper will reflect what the editor has to say from time to time on political matters and nothing else will appear in the interest of any candidate unless it is bought and paid for at the regular advertising rates. The politicians can buy space or buy whiskey just as they wish."

WORK BEING DONE BY STREET DEPARTMENT.

The Public Service Corporation has rebuilt its tracks on East Second street from Richmond street to Nechcrwood avenue. The road has been macadamized eighteen inches on each side of the track and the city men have been working on the remainder of the road.

The Richmond street storm sewer is almost completed. The 33-inch and the 24-inch pipe toward Second street is nearly finished. The work on this sewer is being done by contract, Edmund F. Saxton, of New York being in charge. The laying of the pipe is being done by members of the city gang, who are being employed by Mr. Saxton.

Woodland avenue is being scraped and rolled by the steam roller. This is a much needed improvement and will make the approach to the Plainfield Country Club considerably better.

Found Lost Pocketbook.

Mrs. C. J. Van Ohl, of Central avenue, lost a long black leather wallet, containing several dollars worth of change and a check book, on Somerset street last Thursday. She immediately made known her loss through the Daily Press lost column and received the pocketbook yesterday. The missing wallet was found by Mrs. J. A. Powlison, of Fairview avenue, who reads the Daily Press, and she immediately turned the discovered article into the Daily Press office.

Merchants Postpone Game.

On account of the Elk's game on the Oval tomorrow afternoon and the Knights of Columbus excursion, the baseball game scheduled to be played tomorrow afternoon between the East and West Front street merchant nines, has been postponed. A double header will be played on the oval between these teams next Thursday afternoon.

MAYOR GAYNOR IMPROVES

Latest Reports from Surgeons Would Indicate Recovery.

THE BULLET SPLIT IN TWO.

Messages of Sympathy Received From President, and Mayors of All Big Cities in the Country.

That Mayor William J. Gaynor, chief executive of New York city was not killed outright by the bullet which struck him yesterday is a miracel accordine to reports from the surgeons who have the Mayor in their care and who have issued bulletins every hour since early this morning. A half-inch deviation from the course the missile took would have caused instant death. The bullet split in two pieces after entering the skull and it is not believd that an operation is imperative at this time. Dr. Ernest J. Lederle, Mayo Gaynor's physician, declared this morning that no symptoms of poisoning had developed and that every indication of recovery was present.

The graphic story of the shooting which appeared in all the New York dailies this morning conveyed but a faint impression of the feeling aroused throughout the country at the attempt on Mr. Gaynor's life, but it served to show in what high esteem he is held in every section where his splendid administrative abilities have become known.

The surgeons of whom there were four with the patient all last night declare that the Mayor was conscious all the time he was awake and that his sleep was a natural one. He was able to eat some ice cream and take iced brandy at intervals.

When the mayor was shot he was standing on the deck of the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which was to have taken him to Europe for a month's vacation. About him were many members of his official family to bid him good-by. President Pedro Montt, of Chile, who was to be a fellow passnger, had spoken with the Mayor not half a minute before the shooting, and appeared to be glad that they were to be fellow passengers, and they were going to swap experiens on the way over. Mayor Gaynor said to President Montt, "You think we're running a big city is pretty near like running a big country. We have much to tell each other."

Street Commissioner "Big Bill" Edwards, who was nearest to the Mayor when the shots were fired jumped upon the would-be murderer bearing him to the deck by main strength and weight. But even while lying prostrate Gallagher managed to discharge his revolver twice and it was the first of these shots which struck the Mayor. Mayor Gaynor's private secrtary, Robert Adamson, made the first grab at Gallagher and was trying to take the smoking revolver from the man when Mr. Edwards interposed his bulk and downed Gallagher. All was confusion in the moment and at first it was reported that the victim of the assault was dead. Happily this proved untrue.

Messages of sympathy for the Mayor and his family were received in quantities all day yesterday and long into the night. Some of those who wired their messages were Governor Hughes, of New York; and nearly every mayor of a large city in the country. President Taft was one of the first to telegraph and his message read: "I am greatly shocked to hear of the outrage of assault upon you. I am very glad to hear that the wound inflicted upon you is not serious. I earnestly hope and pray that your recovery may be rapid." All other messages were of a similar import.

The case of James J. Gallagher, who shot the Mayor, will probably be heard by the Hudson county grand jury today.

The penalty attached to Gallagher's crime is stated to be twenty-two years in prison and a fine of $6,000.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon it was stated by Dr. E. J. Lederle that Mayor Gaynor was resting quietly and that his chances for recovery are now very bright.

WARNING AGAINST THIEF WHO ROBS IN DAYLIGHT

Chief of Police Kiely has issued a warning to residents of this city to be careful at and during the lunch hour. A sneak thief is doing the rounds, and yesterday made an entrance through the front screen doors of two residences on West Seventh street, securing some money and a gold watch, getting away without being either heard or detected.

At the home of Otis E. Hovey, 307 West Seventh street the thief secured eleven dollars in money. At 705 in the same street four dollars in money and a gold watch belonging to a Miss Lee, a visitor, were taken, and in neither place did thei ntruder leave any trace of his visit. It behooves residents in the light of these events to securely lock their outside doors during the hours they spend indoors.

NETHERWOOD C.E. SOCIETY ENJOYS LAWN SOCIABLE

After the business meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Second Reformed church, last night, the young people adjourned to the lawn at the home of the Misses Florence and Maude Disbrow, of Columbia avenue. The lawn was beautifully decorated and Japanese lanterns shed a pretty glow over the grounds, which were used for playing games and other entertainment.

It was practically decided to organize a lawn tennis club among the members of the society, and to that end a plot of ground adjacent to the church will be secured and a tennis court laid out.

Another thing which was taken up seriously by the young people was the raising of money to help along the parsonage building fund. It is the intention of all to do something to further the project, and before long some definite steps will be taken to raise money.

There was upward of seventy-five young people present last night, and after the adjournment of the business meeting a couple of hours were spent in enjoying suitable outdoor games and refreshments. This society is enjoying great prosperity and bids fair to become one of the strongest in the city. The pastor of the church, Rev. Royal A. Stone, was present and entered heartily into the spirit of the evening.

BOARD OF ELECTIONS READY FOR BUSINESS.

The Union County Board of Elections met yesterday morning at the courthouse, Elizabeth, and organized. The only change made was the election of Peter J. Tillman, of Rahway, as clerk, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of S. Rusling Ryno. Robert H. McAdams was again named chairman, and George Stewart, secretary. Oliver Conlon is sergeant-at-arms. The other two members of the board are Frederick Zior, of Elizabeth, and Ralph L. Morrow, of this city.

It is expected that the board will receive the names of the election officers for the various polling places throughout the county by August 15. Mr. McAdams said this morning that he expected a very busy season. Because of the primaries being held two weeks earlier than usual this year, the members of the board are compelled to "get on the job" a few weeks earlier.

Position in Postoffice Filled.

Warren Chapel's Excursion.

One of the most popular excursions of the season is that of Warren chapel to Asbury Park. This year Thursday, August 18, is the date for the trip to the shore and, of course, a large crowd will enjoy the outing.

F. E. Smith and son Fred, of Central avenue, leave Saturday for a trip through Lake George and the St. Lawrence River.

RUNYON OPENS CAMPAIGN

STANDS BY ADMINISTRATION.

Congressional Nominee Denies That He Indorsed Fowler's Open Letter and States His Platform.

Judge William N. Runyon, who is the candidate for the Republican Congressional nomination in the Fifth district, opposing the present incumbent, Charles N. Fowler, formally opened his campaign at a meeting of the Downtown Republican Club, of Elizabeth, last night, and judging by the large number of people present, some of whom could not get in the hall, and the enthusiastic reception given, the Plainfielder will be one of the most popular candidates in recent years.

The meeting marked the opening of the campaign in Union county and there is every indication that Judge Runyon will set a pace from now on that will be exceedingly difficult for his opponents to follow. As he opened his batteries against Congressman Fowler, denied frankly that he had indorsed the latter's recently published letter and presented his platform in a clear, concise and convincing manner. Everyone agreed that the judge made himself solid with the voters, last night, and is sure to conduct a whirlwind campaign throughout the district.

Plainfield sent a large delegation to the meeting, and, in fact, there were notables present from all parts of the county. Charles Wagner, president of the club, presided and introduced the speakers. County Chairman Frank H. Smith was also present and during the evening held a conference with leaders of the party.

In his speech Mr. Runyon said that there was no truth in the reports that attempts had been made to bribe him, or that he had sold out to bosses."

Mr. Runyon's speech, in part, follows:

"Since announcing my candidacy for Congress I have heard reports that there is someting sinister about my stand which makes it dishonorable.

"One insinuation is that in running for Congress I have forsaken every principle that I formerly stood for, that I have sold out to the bosses. In reply to this I have to say that not a man in the Fifth Congressional district has suggested to me a bargain of any sort. I am impeded in no way and am free to do as I want.

"Another insinuation is that I am not a bona fide candidate. If I live until September there will be at least one vote cast in the Second ward of Plainfield for Runyon delegates.

"Another insinuation is that someone is paying my freight, meaning that my nomination and election is being bought and that someone is doing the buying. Has the time come when a man as poor as I am is not allowed to seek public office? Must I earn a goodly competence and then say to my constituents that I am eligible for candidacy?

Another insinuation is that I am guilty of heresy. When did the time arrive when any free man lost the right to announce his candida y for a public office? There may be two or there may be 100 candidates, but I have just as much and no more right than any of them.

"At the present time my position savors of dishonor, probably because of my reputed qualified endorsement of an open letter recently published. Until now I have taken no steps to deny this report.

"On the Friday preceding the publication of that letter I was asked to meet the gentleman who is now my opponent for the Congressional nomination.

JAMES PANGBORN ALIVE

Former Borough Resident is Identified on Blackwell's Island by Chief Weiss.

WAS SUPPOSED TO BE DEAD.

Wife, it is Said, Recognized His Dead Body and is Alleged to Have Claimed Insurance of $1,000.

James Pangborn, formerly of the borough, who was supposed to be dead, and whose insurance was being claimed by his wife from the Prudential Insurance Co., was positively identified Friday afternoon as being one of the prisoners on Blackwell's Island by Chief Marshal Weiss, of the borough police force. Chief Weiss identified Pangborn at the prison among a group of twenty-four convicts in their striped uniforms.

Upon Chief Weiss' positive identification of Pangborn rests the entire clue to the mystery surrounding the one thousand dollars insurance, which was claimed by Pangborn's wife, who stated that her husband was drowned near Newark some four months ago. Mrs. Pangborn went to the Newark morgue last May and identified the body of a man found as that of her husband. The body, it is said, had been in the water for four months and was badly disfigured. But Mrs. Pangborn was positive of her identification, it is said, and immediately demanded the $1,000 insurance, which her husband had carried on his life. Pangborn had not seen his wife for eleven months, it is said, but he told Chief Weiss yesterday that he had been writing letters to her up to a few weeks previous. From this it is believed that she must have known all the time that her husband was alive for the drowned man had been dead for over four months. In addition to this, the body held in the morgue was of a man nine inches taller than James Pangborn. The drowned man measured six feet, five inches in height, while Pangborn is only five feet, eight inches tall. This fact could scarcely have been overlooked by Mrs. Pangborn in her identification, at the morgue, it is believed.

Soon after the identification of the body at the morgue and the application for the $1,000 insurance by Mrs. Pangborn, the Prudential company began to suspect the truth of the identifier's statement and started an investigation. Pangborn was formerly a resident of Cornelison avenue, being the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pangborn, who formerly lived on Linden avenue, but who now reside on the Baldwin farm near Warrenville. William J. Rutledge, one of the company's detectives, was immediately assigned to the borough and Chief Weiss, who knew Pangborn well, with him Friday to identify the man at Blackwell's Island.

At the time of Pangborn's residence in the borough, he was employed as a harness marker in Huff's harness shop on Somerset street. He married Miss Cora Dunlap, of East Fifth street, this city, and shortly afterwards the couple removed to Newark. The pair never got along well together, it is said, and Pangborn had been arraigned in the borough court several times on non-support charges. Eleven months ago Pangborn, it is said, deserted his wife and a few weeks ago was sentenced to a term in prison on the charge of grand larceny.

"Poor Bob's" Almanak.

"Poor Bob" (R. F. R. Huntsman), of East Front street, advertising manager of the Brooklyn Standard-Union, seldom fails to provide The Daily Press with a copy of his "Almanak," and August is no exception to his generosity. The little book is full of truisms anent Mr. Huntsman's views of newspaper advertising and among the sapient things full of the wit and wisdom of the versatile writer and manager we find this terse and pointed hint:

"Halley's comet was a good deal like the darkey's definition of a train of cars. 'Dar she comes, dar she goes, where am she?'"

"Like some newspapers' circulations she was a disappointment, being scarcely visible to the naked eye."

Chief to Attend Convention.

Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department, will attend the annual convention of fire chiefs to be held at Syracuse, N. Y., August 22-26. He will leave here Monday morning, August 22, and the convention will continue until the following Friday. The Common Council has appropriated $75 to cover the chief's expenses.

For Eyebrow Growth.

It is said that growth of eyebrows may be promoted by applying the following lotion: Lavender vinegar, one and one-quarter ounces; glycerine, five ounces; fluid extract jaborandi, one dram. Apply with camel's hair brush at night. Care should be exercised to avoid the liquid reaching the eyes.

GAVE CARNEY THE LAUGH

The North Avenue Gang Beat Him to It and Have a Bath Anyway.

ICE CREAM CONES BRIBED BOYS.

They Cleaned up the Hole Filled It With Water and Gave "the Boss" the Merry Ha! Ha!

They gave Dave Carney the merry ha! ha! so they did, but not because he got in bad on his history but because they took a bath in his cellar and didn't care who knew it, not even Dave himself. And this is the reason:

Mr. Carney had removed from his cellar the large printing press which sat in a depression about two feet deep. After the press was removed there remained a lot of debris, including dirt and remnants of mortar. To clear this out was a problem soon solved. Getting together the North avenue bunch, which included "Babe" Paoli, otherwise known as "Little Taffy"; Johnny Cody, the midget; "Second Street E. Smith; Arthur Laury, whose sobriquet is "Little Newsy"; Little Mullen, "Maneater's" brother; "Kid" Murphy, the scrapper; "Greenbrook" Wicht, the ball player, and several other lads of about the same calibre, Mr. Carney, with a judicious use of ice cream cones and a few con. words got the bunch into the cellar and the dirt was quickly flying; in a trice the twelve-foot hole was cleaned out.

During the breathing spells Dave confidently expected the work-men that he was going to cement and otherwise fix up the depression for a swimming pool and he would invite the gang in to have baths in it when finished. For some reason, occult or otherwise, the kids didn't propose to await the boss's pleasure in the matter of a bath, for no sooner had Mr. Carney gone to lunch than they began to fill up the hole with water, and when a few moments later he returned the sounds of hilarious joy emanating from the cellar caused him to descend to the depths to investigate. And oh! was a sight met his wondering gaze! There they were splashing and pretending to swim and incidentally throwing the water in all directions, to the destruction of piles of paper. Persuasive measures were immediately taken to oust the boys out of the pool, and finally they accepted Mr. Carney's invitation for more ice cream cones.

This all happened before the rain of Wednesday. On that day the torrential downpour caused the water to seep in through the back of the cellar and the pool filled up and overflowed. Had the kids forgotten the spot? Not a bit. Cody, the midget, was first to remember the newest swimming hole in town and, gathering the rest of the bunch, they soon were splashing away for dear life, clothed only in what nature had provided them with. The noise produced by the little bathers again caused Mr. Carney to descend to the cellar. When he was discovered by the boys the merry Ha! Ha! mentioned above was given the boss, and the laughing echoes rang out. Not because of what he saw, but because of the way the little fellows fooled him by sneaking in without his knowledge.

BOOM IN OAK TREE PROPERTY.

Eugene VanCourt, of Oak Tree, has just sold his forty-acre farm at Oak Tree to Elston M. French, of this city. The consideration is said to be $15,000. It is said that Mr. French plans to cut the property up into building lots and develop the tract at once. This deal, together with other recent ones at Oak Tree, has caused a big boom in real estate in that section.

THE WOMAN WHO KNITS.

If you would make a sensation with your knitting on the hotel porch this summer start one of the new Roman scarfs in fine Shetland wool. They are the most fetching thing in light, warm wraps that have appeared for many a day.

These scarfs are about a yard wide and as long as one likes, from a yard and a half to two yard is the average. They are knit loosely with large wooden needles, and any one who can knit need not fear to attempt one.

The chief beauty lies in the coloring, which copies closely the Roman silk scarfs of an earlier generation. The stripes are knit across and are formed of four colors, each outlined on both edges alternate stripes of white of varying width.

Full directions can be had for knitting this scarf, but a practised knitter can easily arange her own coloring and spacing.

The colors chosen are blue, pink, violet and green, each color outlined by a warm yellow for a row or two. Eight hanks of the wool are needed, three of the white and one each of a color—if the set directions are followed.

DREAMED HE HAD DIED; SUCCUMBED NEXT DAY

A cablegram was received by Felix Fuld at his home in South Orange Thursday night announcing the sudden death Thursday morning of Louis M. Frank, member of the firm of L. Bamberger & Co., of Newark, who went abroad in June in search of health.

Mr. Frank died in the Palace Hotel at Lucerne, Switzerland, of apoplexy, and according to cable advices received here his demise came as a sequel to a dream he had the night before; the circumstances of which he said to have related to his friends a few hours before he was fatally stricken.

*Mr. Frank, according to the cable*gram, dreamed he had died and as he told of it to his companions in the hotel yesterday morning, it is said they noticed evidence of its depressing effect on him.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank when he succumbed besides his widow were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bamberger, who accompanied them on the trip abroad. A cablegram was received from Mr. Bamberger this morning at the firm's office in Newark, stating that he would sail for this country on Tuesday with the body. Until the travelers reach home no arrangements will be made for the funeral.

Besides the widow, Mrs. Carrie B. Frank, Mr. Frank is survived by his father, Mayer Frank, who is ninety years old, and who is summering at Atlantic City; Jacob M. Frank, a brother, and Mrs. Charles Heidelberger, a sister, of Philadelphia.

Mr. Frank was troubled with a stomach disorder when he sailed for Europe, but his condition was not such as to cause any alarm. The party intended to tour the continent and expected to spend almost another month on the other side of the Atlantic.

Letters received by Mr. Fuld and other friends of Mr. Frank in Newark indicated that the trip had proven beneficial, and as late as Wednesday Mr. Frank touched Mr. Fuld that his business partner had practically regained his health and was one of the merriest in the party of tourists. Having met some friends in Lucerne, the communication stated that Mr. Frank was enjoying the trip immensely and that his illness had entirely passed away.

Following the letter came a cable message which reached Mr. Fuld Thursday morning conveying the information that Mr. Frank had been again stricken. The dispatch stated he was seriously ill. Mr. Fuld tried to get into communication with the Bamberger by cable to learn more about Mr. Frank and was anxiously awaiting a reply when the death message reached him about 5 o'clock Thursday night.

Mr. Frank was fifty-four years old and was born at Lewistown, Pa. He removed with his parents to Philadelphia, where he received his first business training. About seventeen years ago, with Mr. Bambergar, he came to this city and founded the business with which he was identified at his death.

TROLLEY JUMPS TRACK ON RICHMOND STREET

At a little before 11 o'clock Friday morning, as the Netherwood trolley car, in charge of Motorman O. Johansen and Conductor Thomas Dorgan, approached the curve between Putnam avenue and East Seventh street on Richmond, it jumped the track and, running at a tangent for twenty-five feet, struck a tree with terrific force, smashing a tree with and breaking several panes of glass in the windows.

There were ten passengers in the car, all of whom were considerably shaken up, but none seriously hurt. Motorman Johansen stuck to the controller until the car struck the tree, and escaped injury by a miracle.

According to the best information obtainable the car was going at half-speed, which is a circumstance to which the passengers and crew probably owe their safety from serious if not fatal injury. It is believed that a stone lying in the track threw the forward trucks off the rails and, losing the control of the brake from the sudden shock, the motorman was unable to bring the car to a stop before striking the tree.

The damaged car was removed to the car barn for repairs, but before taking it away it was examined for the purpose of ascertaining if it was fitted with wheels which were in any way defective. Nothing was discovered that would point o tdefective equipment.

Potato Cakes and Maple Syrup.

Press enough boiled potatoes through a ricer to make two cups. Add two level tablespoons of butter, two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two level tablespoons of flour, two level tablespoons of sugar and one beaten egg. Make up into flat cakes and bake in quick oven. While hot split open, butter and serve with maple syrup.

DR. WILSON WON'T TALK ON PLATFORM TOPICS

In response to a request that he express his view on the public questions that are paramount in New Jersey, Dr. Woodrow Wilson states in a letter to the Trenton Evening Times that to grant an interview now would clearly open the interpretation that he was seeking the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination.

Dr. Wilson says that in his statement announcing that he would accept the nomination, if "a majority of the thoughtful Democrats" of New Jersey wanted him, he meant exactly what he said, and that is all he cares to say now.

"Allow me to acknowledge with thanks your letter of July 30. I am sorry to be obliged to say in reply that I am granting no interviews just now.

"To do so would be inconsistent with the statement I have published with regard to my attitude toward the Democratic nomination for Governor. I, of course, meant exactly what I said in that statement. I spoke entirely without reservation of any kind. To grant interviews to the newspapers now would clearly be open to the interpretation that I was seeking the nomination."

The questions submitted to Dr. Wilson by The Times were as follows:

Do you favor a public utility commission, with ratemaking powers?

Do you favor the direct primary for Governor and Congressman, as well as for the county and city officers?

Do you favor an employer's liability law, and along what general lines?

Do you favor the election of United States Senators by the people?

Do you favor stringent legislation against campaign contribution by office-holders, including judges?

In the event of your home county being against you in the State convention, would your position as a receptive candidate remain unchanged?

RIKER & HEGEMAN MAKE DRUG COMBINE

Officials of Hegeman & Co. and the William B. Riker & Son Co., of New York, completed negotiations Thursday afternoon for the merging of the two large drug concerns into a new company, to be known as the Riker & Hegeman Company, and which is to be capitalized at $15,000,000.

No statement was given out as to when the combination will become effective, but it is undersood that the details of the arrangement will be made public soon. No radical change in the policies of the present organizations is contemplated, and it is said the new company may sell its drugs at a still lower margin of profit as a result of the economies of administration which will obtain due to the combination.

At the present time the Riker company owns and operates twenty-five retail drug stores in Greater New York and vicinity and several in Boston. Eighteen are located in Manhattan, five in Brooklyn, one in Newark and one in Mt. Vernon.

The Hegeman corporation owns twenty-two stores, twenty in Brooklyn, one in Jersey City and one in Yonkers. The new concern will probably do away with some of the stores and open up new ones in other sections of the city. It is quite likely that the new company will expand its operations to other cities, with the ultimate view of owning a chain of stores throughout the United States.

John H. Flagler, president of the Hegeman company, will be president of the new organization; Alfred H. Peaden, now president of the William B. Riker & Son Company, will be first vice-president, and George Ramsey, vice-president of Hegeman & Co., will be selected second vice-president. Frederick H. Pouch, who is treasurer of the Hegeman company, will be treasurer of the new corporation, and Edward D. Calhoon, treasurer of the Riker concern, is to be secretary.

The capital of the Riker & Hegeman Co. will be divided into $5,000,000 preferred stock and $10,000,000 common stock. It will probably be incorporated under the laws of New York State.

Ballad of Various Hards.

The weeklies have their rhymsters
Who frame a roundelay
Or string a rhyme
From time to time
And draw their modest pay.
The monthlies have some others
Who slightly higher fly.
We must allow
That they know how,
Perhaps, to versify.
But, as for real poets,
The same are few, alas.
I rhyme a bit,
But I'll admit
That I am second-class.

TUBERCULOSIS CAMP SURE

Report of Special Committee Approved by Board of Freeholders.

WILL COST ABOUT $50,000.

No Site Yet Secured, but Several are Under Consideration—Bonds to be Issued for First Cost.

Union county is to have a tuberculosis camp, and that immediately. If the present plans of the committee from the Board of Freeholders go through as fast as they believe they will. Thursday the committee made its report on the subject, and it contains interesting information.

According to Messrs. J. Hervey Doane, Henry J. Krause and Thomas F. Haviland, the members of the committe, they have visited the tuberculosis camps in and around Boston, accompanied by Dr. J. H. Carrington, the expert in such matters, and are thoroughly convinced that a camp on similar lines to those visited is an imperative necessity in this county.

It is suggested in the recommendations of the committee that an administration building and four leantos be built at the start, and that ground be purchased having an area of fifty acres, so that room may be had for additional lean-tos as they are required by additional patients. It has been estimated that the primary outlay for the ground and buildings will not exceed $50,000, and that the cost of maintenance per patient will not exceed $10 per week.

At present no definite site has been located for the proposed camp, but several places are under consideration, and the committee will have the assistance of Dr. Carrington in selecting finally the location of the new enterprise.

The committee has been empowered to engage a competent architect to draw plans of the administration building which will have accommodations for physicians, nurses, etc., which will have to be submitted to the State Board of Health for approval. The county attorney has also been notified to draw up the necessary papers for the issuance of bonds in the sum of $50,000 to cover the initial expenses for the project.

J. Hervey Doane, the chairman of the committee, was out of town today so that it was impossible to ascertain what sites had been under consideration of the committee.

During the dog days it becomes rather a problem to keep the little pad worn under one's corset steel fresh and sanitary.

One girl has solved the prbolem satisfactorily by discarding the usual scented wad of linen or other material in substituting one of tissue paper, which is discarded at the end of each day.

For the covering of it she uses the softer and better quality of paper napkins, which are made of real rice paper.

One of them is folded lengthwise over a strip of sanitary cotton goods, which is sprinkled with any sachet preferred.

TIMELY HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

Cocoanut matting may be cleaned with a large course cloth dipped in salt and water and then rubbed dry.

Knives which have been used for onions, and smell of them, can be cleaned by drawing them though a piece of carrot several times.

To remove hot water marks from japanned trays use sweet oil. Rub in well till all marks disappear, then polish the tray with dry flour and a soft cloth.

When gilt frames or moulding of rooms have specks of dirt from flies and other causes upon them they may be cleaned with white of egg applied with a camel's-hair brush.

Pour hot fruit into glass dishes is very likely to result in breaking the latter. To prevent this, stand the glass dish on a cloth wet with hot water and then pour the fruit into it.

To soften hot water put one ounce of quicklime into four gallons and a half of water. Still it thoroughly, and allow it to settle. Then pour off the clear solution, which will be enough to add to four barrels of water.

To avoid soiling paint when cleaning brass take a piece of cardboard about ten inches square, and in the centre cut a hole through which the knob will pass. When about to polish hold the cardboard tightly against the door, and keep it so while polishing.

FIRE CHIEFS MEET TO DISCUSS ASSN. BY-LAWS

At a meeting of the special committee of the Firemen's Relief Association held Thursday at Sea Girt, Chief T. O. Doane, who is a member of that committee, attended and besides being present at the relief committee's session he also was present at the meeting of the executive committee and of the Board of Governors of the home held at the same place.

The special committee which was appointed at the Atlantic City convention last year, met to confer on some changes to be put before the next convention in September relating to the by-laws of the association. The revision of these laws was necessary because of the discussions arising from time to time in which objections have been made. This committee will recommend the elimination of the law providing for the election of life members over which much feeling has been expressed. The convention to be held at Atlantic City on September 8 will pass upon the desirability of doing away with this particular law.

At the meeting of the governors *of the Firemen's Home it was decid*ed that the only chance for Charles Zuchsworth, the only Plainfield fireman now at the home, would be to have his leg amputated in order that his life may be saved. Mr. Zuchsworth has been suffering much from a disease which makes amputation practically necessary to save his life, and it was agreed that this should be done.

There will be delegations from all over the State at the convention in September, preparations being made for at least 800 members of the organization.

The conferene Thursday was held with Bird Spencer, the president of the organization. Mr. Spencer has presided over the deliberations of the association for the past twenty-seven years.

RECORD RELATING TO SIEGE OF JERUSALEM FOUND.

*In a letter to the London Stand*ard a correspondent writes that a record of very great interest concerning the celebrated siege of Jerusalem by Vespasian's army, under command of Titus, has been discovered in upper Egypt, consisting of a wooden panel, with raised borders or frame, on which a Latin inscription of some fifty lines, of which thirty-seven are still perfectly legible.

Apart from its historical import*ance this relic with the exception of* the tablets found at Pompeii, containing some accounts of a banker there, is the most valuable specimen of Roman calligraphy extant. The contents of the text, however, are what will be considered the chief result of this acquisition, because they embody the formal enregistration of the discharge, after long active service, of some eagles of a veteran who, as one of the Tenth Fretensis Legion, had taken a distinguished part in the Jewish campaign and was present at the investment and sack of Jerusalem, that city, Hiersolyma being specially mentioned.

The name of the old warrior was M. Valerius Quadratus, and in the *newly recovered document, he for*mally attests that it is a duplicate of an imperial edict promulgated in his favor, and in that of some other comrades in the legion, by the Emperor Domitian, by the hands of the imperial legate Sextus Hormetidius Campanus, in December, A. D. 93.

One copy of this honorable discharge was, the tablet states, deposited in the proper temple for containing such archives at Rome, as was the custom with all such military deeds, registering completion of service, while the other had been forwarded from Rome to the governor of Egypt, M. Junius Mettius Rufus, and was kept in the chancery at Alexandria. It is of this Egyptian edition of his discharge that Quadratus on his panel records gives us a copy, which he had made July 2, A. D. 94, at Alexandria.

The old soldier had probably been recruited in Egypt, because it is known that before the Jewish war the, Fretensis Legion was stationed there. Here, with his three children to end his days at the little town of Philadelphia in the Fayum. There amid the ruins of his house, among a number of papyrus documents of the second century, the panel he doubtless prized was found. These memorial inscriptions have been found by officers who took part in the famous Palestine campaign, usually styled therein the "Bellum Judaicum,' but that is the first authentic contemporary documents emanating from a soldier actually engaged in the siege of Jerusalem, and referring to that event, thus confirming the statements of Josephus and the classic historians.

"It was a great mistake," sighed the man who was sued for breach of promise.

"What do you mean?"

"I used a nom de plume in my literary work instead of disguising my identity in my love letters."—Washington Evening Star.

WEST ENDERS VICTORIOUS

Defeat East Front Street Merchants in Hotly-Contested Ball Game.

FINAL SCORE WAS 26 TO 11.

Business Men Celebrate Mid-Week Half-Holiday—Another Game is Scheduled.

In a hotly-contested game of baseball Thursday afternoon on Crescent Oval, the butchers, bakers and candlestick-makers, of West Front street chalked the East Front street merchants up on the cash register to the tune of 26 to 11. As can be learned from the score, the game, referred to above, was due entirely to the heat. But two things were accomplished by the great diamond battle; the East Front street nine will no longer boast of prowess in the national game, and secondly, everyone had a good time and a happy half-holiday.

When the game started, and that was at 2.30 (not saying when it finished) the East Front streeters won the toss and thus obtained "last raps." But this did not phase Weinbergers's cubs for they went to bat with a will. Captain Lohrman was up to scratch in the first inning anyway and he froze those West Front street batters just as though he was giving the cold bath to a pail of ice cream. In other words, the Weinberger aggregation only fanned the air in the first round. Mr. Lohrman, who runs a confectionery store, was the real lively kid in this first inning—but then, well the score board will tell the tale.

Wilson was on the mound for the West Front streeters and he pitched a strong game although batted hards at times. His support however was even and not all bumps, as was the backing up of the East nEders. But even then the errors on his side were uncountable.

In the second inning Lohrman's arm began to resemble a chocolate caramel but he wouldn't desert the ship even upon advice of his many kind friends, who were just dying to get a crack at the pitcher's box. After a cannonade on his delivery for eight runs in the fourth inning and eleven more tallies in the next round, Mr. Lohrman decided to beat it to the tall grass in center field and employ Mr. Mundy to deliver his goods. And this same Mr. Mundy was all there, too, for the West Front streeters only scored two runs while he officiated in the box. Twice was the applause the ten thousand (?) fans by sending three batters to the club house in one, two, three order after they had fanned the air three times in vain.

It would be hard to pick out any stars on the West Front street team for every member had the playing every member had no reservation allowed his partner in the manipulation of the five ounce spheroid. Shirley carpeted everything that came his way down the third base line and then drove the ball over to first as if he had been driv'ng tacks. Linke was a chain of strength at shortstop while Vail covered up a multitude of errors at his position on first base.

James McCarty was the only member of the East Enders who played the entire game without an error to his credit. Post distinguished himself by scoring nearly every run for the Easterners. The reason for this phenomenon is that Post was so obliging that he ran the bases for nearly every one who managed to reach the initial sack.

The East Front street team took its defeat in a sporsmanlike manner and again challenged their contemporaries to another deadly battle. It is expected that the next game will be played on Tuesday, August 11.

A box score would have been an utter impossibility so the reporter has done his best to give the readers all the sporting news of the day that is fit to print.

The teams lined-up as follows:

West Front street—Vail, 1b.; J. Wilson, l.f.; M. Wilson, p.; Cammack, r.f.; Linke, s.s.; Young, s.f.; Shirly, 3b.; Linke, ss.; Bogart, cf.

Strawberry Face Lotion.

A good vegetable lotion to soften and whiten the skin is made by hulling a quart of strawberries, mashing them thoroughly, then add two tablespoonfuls of strong vinegar to each quart of berries. Let it stand until it draws plenty of juice and strain through a fine muslin. Bottle tightly and keep in a cool place.

Seeking the Glare.

"That man is always anxious to get into the spotlight," said the observant citizen.

"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum, "but he doesn't discriminate. One of these days he's going to stand in front of a locomotive headlight and not realize his mistake till he is run over."—Washington Evening Star.

ELIZABETHTOWN IN 1830

A Summer Resort in the Early Days—Written About by W. Jay Willis.

CAP. VANDERBILT'S SEA HORSE.

"Elizabethtown, an Old Summer Resort, Which Was the Home of Many Prominent New York Families in 1830," is the subject of an interesting article in Town and County of July 16. The writer, Weymer Jay Willis, has revived a period full of fascination in the history of this community. By courtesy of the magazine The Daily Press is permitted to reprint the article, though without the interesting illustrations:

Our ancestors who journeyed to Lady Carteret's green name place in the first decade of the nineteenth century generally left New York in the swift sailing Bellona, now remembered for its captain, Cornelius Vanderbilt, or Governor Ogden's rival Sea Horse. Ladies hid bottles of salts in their reticules, and gentlemen flasks of brandy in their coat tails, for in those days when steamboats were novelties and everybody remembered the terrors of the small sailing craft, even short water trips were regarded with suspicion. At the Point there was the public Flying Wagon, and the quality had their own carriages with liveried negro coachmen, and even an outrider or two, tradition says.

There was a distinctly aristocratic flavor about the life of this ancient community, especially the summer life. Jane Austen, if she had been suddenly transported from Bath and set down in the midst of that Creek society, could have found many an American replica of her haughty squires and their ladies. What could be called the flower of the old South and the flower of Gotham met there every spring.

Made Strong Appeal.

Why Elizabeth Town should have made such a strong appeal to the dwellers below Mason and Dixon's Line no one knew. Almost on the footsteps of the Revolution the first of them began to migrate there, mingling with the French West Indian Colony, once a feature of the place. In the old graveyards we read many of their names—the Mayos—the Carrolls—and the Bethunes. The first Colonel Mayo was the father of the beautiful Mrs. Winfield Scott. Among them we find, in more or less broken lettering, those of Due Buc de Marencille, De Tauchimbert, Malherbes, Terrier de Laistre and De Clot. It was the last named family who entertained Jerome Bonaparte and his Baltimore bride. "What a world of lost romance, we sigh, as we push back the flowering myrtle." There are tales that some of them died without disclosing their real identity. Old Madame Lapray, who taught Mrs. Scott as a little girl, had gazed upon Louis XVI going to the guillotine. No less a personage than Talleyrand had driven over from Newark in order to visit her and other of his compatriots.

In one old Elizabeth Town house several of the likenesses of these forgotten inhabitants line the faded wall. One is of Chevalier Joseph Louis, Chevalier D'Anterroches, born at the Chateau of Puydarnac, near Tulle, Limousin. He came to America in the British army, and was taken prisoner about the time of the battle of Saratoga. After his capture he begged for pen and paper and wrote to his cousin, the Marquis de Lafayette. Through the influence of this enthusiast for liberty he changed his colors and joined the American cause. He married Mary Vanderpoel and lived most of his life in Elizabeth Town, returning to his home in 1780 to show his parents their grandson Pierre. This John Peter, who sleeps in St. John's churchyard, was presented at court, and the quaint brocaded dress he wore is still preserved in the same old mansion.

Famous Ballroom.

But to journey on to the thirties, when French names were fading into memories, the old de Casse mansion passed into the possession of Charles King, of New York. Cherry Lawn, the family called it, and throughout the Jerseys it became noted for its hospitality. Charles King had been partly educated in Paris under M. Thurat and he was in sympathy with the Elizabeth Town that had French affiliations. The ballroom, destroyed some time ago, where all the older belles and beaux of the surrounding country have danced, was hung with mirrors and portraits. Among the latter were the likenesses of his wife, Eliza Gracie, with her music, and his youthful picture as a Harrow boy done by Colonel Trumbull, the pupil of West. He was a very handsome boy and as a man he was dubbed "the Pink" of good society. A charming anecdote is related of him at Madame Brugiere's famous fancy ball. He changed his costume three times, and the last appearance was greeted by the musicians with "God Save the King!"

All the world of New York visited Cherry Lawn and the equally famous mansion of Archibald Gracie, once owned by the Saiters. Mr. Gracie married Elizabeth Bethune, of Charleston, when she reached the mature age of 17. The family letters to the girl wife are still preserved, telling her to be good—and pleasing—and to mind her manners. She was one of the favorite friends of General Winfield Scott, and on occasions when Mrs. Scott was ill, or gave way to what the town termed her whimsies, she often came to rescue. On one occasion, when Henry Clay was expected at Hampton place, and no preparations made, she sent her own entire dinner and butler over as a favor to the general. The Scott house, which has rather a famous history, is still standing. It was the work of the Colonial architect, William Brittin, who erected Golden Hill, and one of the eight Misses Chetwood, the beautiful blue-stockinged Chetwoods. Dr. Barnet was its original occupant—an eccentric personage, always loyal to little Aaron Burr, who used to romp in Elizabeth Town gardens.

Famous Summer Parties.

In 1805 the property was sold and conveyed by Elizabeth Gilman to Colonel John Mayo, guardian of Jonathan Hampton, presumably a son of the purchaser, from Dr. Barnet. The witnesses of the deed were Jonathan Dayton, Matthias Williamson, George C. Barber and Aaron Ogden, all notables in their day. The Mayos brought to it all the traditional elegance and splendor of the old South, and the summer parties they gave, and the lovely belles who drove up from Richmond to visit them, are among Elizabeth Town's most bedraggled anecdotes and afford entertainment for the imaginative.

As far back as those Livingston graces, living at their farm (Liberty Hall their father called it, but its later occupants had the bad taste to change the name), the place was noted by its gay society. Every house and every shy nook held what has its tale to tell. Time may have let the gardens run wild, filled the creek with refuse, and swept away fine dwelling after dwelling, yet it has not destroyed all the charm of the place. In many a weatherbeaten summer house, made gay by climbing roses, we can picture to ourselves how girls and youths of the ante bellum days. When the Civil war came it cast a gloom over Elizabeth Town. Party feeling ran high and there was enough Southern feeling to hurl forth the air of Dixie into many a burning ear. Friends were friends no longer, and young Archibald Gracie, who had married one of those Southern girls, came home to be greeted by a yelling mob and to be burned in effigy. After the war the place lost its interest as a summer resort. "Elizabeth is changing," old residents whispered among themselves. "Quality Hill's not what it once was!"

CLEVER FOX-TERRIER FRIGHTENS OFF BURGLARS

The barking of a clever little fox-terrier prevented robbers from looting the residence of A. G. Thorn at 620 East Front street, shortly before 4 o'clock this morning. The burglar or burglars left their job quickly and beat a hasty retreat when the dog started to bark.

Upon investigation this morning, Mr. Thorn learned that the robbers had taken a wood-fibre water pail from the back porch and, inserting it in hand, had used it to reach the rear kitchen window. When the burglar stepped on the pail the bottom fell through, and the noise awoke the dog. The family heard the canine bark but thought little of the affair until this morning, when the broken pail was discovered.

The window by which the robbers attempted to gain entrance is in the rear of the house and was open at the time. A screen, however, was over the window. Many footprints were discovered around the broken pail, this leading to the supposition that there was more than one robber. A partly emptied whiskey flask, with the label of a New York firm on it, was found near the window. Further than this, no other clue has been obtained as to the identity of the would-be intruders.

While nearly 500 white pet rats squeaked in their cages Miss M. C. Metzger, owner of the animals, who had just been evicted from the second flat at 1704 Franklin avenue, St. Louis, Mo., patrolled the sidewalk Thursday, and with the assistance of two patrolmen, protected her pets and household goods. Some of the animals were killed and wounded during the removal to the street.

The rats which attracted a large crowd of the curious, are of imported stock, according to Miss Metzger. Most of them are Persian and Japanese animals and there are some of the Chinese variety. All are pure white except the Chinese, which have a broad black stripe running down the middle of the back.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 14, 1910.

Topic.—Do you let God plan your life? Jer. 3, 23; Prov. 16, 1-3. Edited by Rev. Sherman E. Davis, M. A.

Human life is a great mystery. If man alone were to map out his own plan for his life he would surely make a failure of it. He knows not what a day may bring forth, and how, therefore, could he plan his life? His plan might extend over years, as was the case with the rich fool in Christ's parable, and yet his life ended that very night. Had he known this one fact he would have planned differently. But, it not being known, he could not have made a greater mistake than he did in laying plans for his life.

Life is also a matter of great responsibility. Man alone is incapable of assuming this responsibility. What to do and what not to do, what duties to assume and what not to assume, are entirely beyond his ability because of his limited knowledge concerning the ways of life. The man who takes his own life in his hands is most foolish and unwise. The prophet Jeremiah well says, "O Lord, I know the way of man is not in himself; it is not in man that walketh to direct his steps." He is incapable of so doing because of his ignorance of life as a whole.

While man cannot plan his life, there is one who can and will, if permitted to do so—God, who knows the life of man from the beginning unto the end thereof. Therefore God has a plan for each and every life lived in the world. We can thwart the plans of God if we desire to do so through the freedom of our wills. Not wishing to force us to do his will and desiring us to do it voluntarily, God has given us the power to choose, even against Him, even pertaining to the most vital issues of life. Of salvation, the most important factor in life, Christ said, "Ye will not come unto Me, that ye may have life." Men will can therefore thwart God's will. But all of man's opposition cannot thwart the penalty of sin. Man may choose to sin even against God's will, but he cannot escape the punishment for his sins. Therefore how foolish to rebel against God. Rather we should obey the wise man's injunction: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths. Be not wise in thine own eyes. Fear the Lord and depart from evil!"

God's plans for us are always wise and good. He has created us. "We are His people and the sheep of His pasture." He has bought us and not we ourselves. He preserves our life. He loves us and has manifested His love by giving His Son to die for our redemption." Herein is love—not that we loved Him, but that He loved us and gave His Son to die for us.

The attitude of God toward us being love and unstinted interest, should we not appreciate it by conforming our lives to His will, accepting His plan and not one of our own? Trust in the Lord, obey His commandments, and thus we will submit our life to His will and make it fit into His plan.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xxviii. 1-9; xxxiii. 12; xxxvii. 1-5; cii. 1-5; Prov. xxiii. 10; xxvii. 1; Matt. vi. 10, 25-34; Job xxii. 13, 14; Luke xii. 16-21; Ex. iii. 10; John xvii. 1-4; Eph. ii. 10; Jas. iv. 13, 14.

Nothing Lost by It.

A young man had been in business for himself but a short time when the Marysville State Christian Endeavor convention was held in his city. His business required very close attention on account of his being a beginner. At the same time he was an officer in the state union and felt that his duty was much to the convention as to the business. For the few days before the convention he was undecided what he should do, but at the time of the opening session he was on hand and each day spent a large part of his time at the convention performing such duties as were assigned to office. Each morning he attended the early Quiet Hour service and at that time asked God for direction through the day. And each day he spent part of the time at his office and part at the convention. Some of his friends told him he was neglecting his business and would lose by it, but he felt that his first obligation was to God and that He would look out for the rest. And so it happened. During the second and third days of the convention he became one to his office almost unsolicited, and telephone calls that he attended to between sessions brought him the largest volume of business he had for the month. In fact, he said the business he had in those three days amounted to as much as he had during all the rest of the month, and all because he had first served God. This is a true record and should certainly more strongly impress upon our minds the necessity of living out the Scriptural command to seek first the kingdom of God. There is no question in the mind of the true believer that the teaching is true and that to whoever will "seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness" all things will be added.—Alfred S. Day, Secretary Maryland Christian Endeavor Union, in Christian Endeavor World.

Our Society is a School of Christ.

If Christian Endeavor is anything it is a training school for Christian work. Every prayer meeting is a recitation, every committee is a training class, every quiet hour at home is a study period, every failure is an examination. So is every success. If we look upon our society in this light we shall see its importance, and we shall learn to work harder in the Christian Endeavor cause.—Amos R. Wells.

RECTOR STEVENSON WEDS MISS EDITH L. JORDAN

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, was married yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, to Miss Edith L. Jordan, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Jordan, at the home of the latter, "Glen Toft," Grand avenue, Newburg, N. Y. The wedding was a quiet one, owing to the fact that the couple made up their minds suddenly to go to Scotland.

Rev. Melvale K. Bailey, of Grace church, New York city, an intimate friend of Mr. Stevenson, performed the ceremony. Rev. Dr. Searle, former pastor of Mrs. Stevenson, was also present and gave his formal benediction to the union. Rev. and Mrs. *Stevenson left this morning for Scot*land on the Steamship California, of the Anchor Line. They will be abroad about two months.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

I have just been reading with interest the report of a Methodist Social Union dinner, even in New Jersey, where the topic discussed was "What Three Things Does Our Church Need?" The Rev. Dr. Anderson said the first need was "a positive experience of the New Birth as taught by Nicodemus (!) and enjoyed by St. Paul; the second, a belief in the Bible and the third, loyalty to the Church as recorded in the Book of Discipline. Pastor Shoop specified a vital sense of personal responsibility, the, assurance that the work of the Church is a man's job, and growing evangelism. The Rev. Charles S. Kent desired more people like those at present numbered among Methodists, larger activity, and an inspiring preacher. One layman demanded consecrated men, consecrated women, and consecrated children, as the three greatest needs, while another layman said that "nothing gave greater satisfaction than to be with God on the job." Mutatis mutandis, I think we can sympathize with all these utterances. You know the tale of the two American priests, discussing their Bishop in a railway train, oblivious to the Roman parson behind them: he knew not, as they were entering the Broad Street Station, and said: "Gentlemen, you've convinced me of the validity of Anglican Orders but what you've been saying, which I couldn't help hearing, for 'tis plain that your Bishops are just like ours!"—The Living Church.

Chance to Show Sense.

The Plainfield-Union Water Company has decided not to depend on the good sense and intelligence of the people of Plainfield any longer. After making an earlier public appeal through the Mayor of the city, it has been found necessary to shut off the water sprinklers with the threat of removing the water supply entirely if these are not obeyed. It is to be hoped that the people of this and other cities will not be so foolish as to follow Plainfield's foolishness. Doubtless the water companies which have issued warning to their patrons about wasting water by using sprinklers and otherwise would not have taken this precaution unless it had been necessary. It is thoroughly unintelligent, therefore, for people to ignore the warnings which have been given. At bottom the question of whether water shall be wasted or not is not personal; it concerns the general welfare and should be looked at from that point of view. Sharp orders as to water wasting ought not to be necessary in any municipality in New Jersey in view of the fact that there is no let-up in sight from the drought.—Elizabeth Daily Journal.

MISS FLORENCE SMALLEY GIVES A DELIGHTFUL DANCE.

Miss Florence Smalley, of East Front street, entertained a number of her friends Thursday night, at an informal dance and party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Smalley. The evening was spent in dancing on the veranda which was tastefully decorated with Japanese lanterns. Music was furnished by a three-piece orchestra. The dancing was enjoyed until an early hour this morning. During the evening, a collation was served.

Among those present were: Miss Florence Smalley, Mrs. D. C. Smalley, Miss May Cogan, Miss Minnie Serrell, Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Lawrence, Howard Craig, Charles McCormick, David Ogden Rogers, D. C. Smalley, Jr., and Harold Smalley, of this city, and Miss Florence Moore, of Elizabeth, Miss Elizabeth MacComson, of Birmingham, Alabama, George Elliott, of Philadelphia, and William Germann, of New York.

BOROUGH TAX BUDGET

Council Decides That $32,925 is Needed for the Coming Year.

SCHOOL APPROPRIATION LESS.

Tax Rate, it is Said, Will be the Same—New Shade Tree Commission Named—Adjourned to Aug. 12.

The fixing of the tax budget for the coming year and the adoption of the sewer ordinance on third reading, comprised the principal business at the August meeting of the Borough Council Friday night. The budget for the year totals $32,925, which includes $1,000 for a contingency fund. It is estimated that the borough will receive $6,625 in license fees, thus bringing the net budget up to $26,300. While the budget is $1,300 more than last year, it is believed that the tax rate for the coming year will remain about the same, as there is a decrease in the school appropriations.

The budget is made up as follows: Borough, $5,500; bond and interest, $2,025; fire, $3,500; water, $1,500; police, $4,000; streets, $6,900; Board of Health, $600; sewer, $800; poor, $1,200; light, $5,900; contingency fund, $1,000.

There was an increase of $800 for sewers, $400 for streets, $200 for the poor, $300 for the Board of Health, $200 for the police, $1,000 for water, $150 for lights, $150 for water, but there was a decrease of $1,000 in the fire appropriation.

The sewer ordinance was brought up for a third reading and discussed at length. The Council took up the clause in the ordinance regarding the pipe to be used in the system. As the ordinance reads, the engineers are allowed to accept bids on vitrified pipe only. Mayor Smalley thought that there were other kinds of pipe which might be cheaper and which could be used just as well. A letter to this effect was read from Mr. Imbrie, field. The Council was unable to decide about the pipe question and so the sewer ordinance was laid on the table until the next meeting. This will give the Council a chance to become better informed on the question of pipe and allow them to look into the legality of the matter. An adjourned meeting of the Council will be held on Friday August 12.

In addition to the budget and sewer questions, routine business was transacted. Bills to the amount of $2,700 were ordered paid. The report of the recorder showed forty-one arrests during July and $66.50 collected in fines during the month. Councilman Stahl reported $183.63 expenses for the fire and water committee. During the meeting the twenty-fifth annual report of the Mayor was distributed among the councilmen in booklet form.

A new shade tree commission was appointed under the new state law. As the old commission had been appointed under the old law, it was no longer vested with power. The same commission was appointed by the Mayor with the exception of the street commissioner, whose other duties forbade his accepting any other work. The commission is now made up of: H. C. White, Hughes Fawcett and Charles Faber.

Permits were granted to the following people: John I. Brower, for a garage on Fairview avenue; J. E. Fergerson, for an addition to his blacksmith shop; Louis Lupo, Miss Anna Fitzgerald for an addition to her house on Somerset place; C. V. Smith for a bungalow on Greenbrook road near Maple avenue; George Daly for a house on Mountain avenue near Verdon street; Addie N. Laing for an addition to her house on Fairview avenue; Edward Brokaw for a barn on Regent street.

The problem of what to do with a baby carriage after Warren Wright, of Chicago, against whom it had been used as evidence, was found guilty of stealing it, troubled Municipal Judge Wells until it was stolen by a policeman, who ran out of the court-room with and escaped, says a Windy City paper.

"I've got some kids at home," he shouted, as he disappeared through the doorway, "and I can make good use of it."

The bailiff followed him, but by the time he reached the sidewalk the policeman was half a block away, running at full speed, pushing the baby buggy.

"I don't think I'll try to find out who the policeman was that stole the buggy," said Judge Wells. "It was a good way to get rid of it."

Meeting a Situation.

"What will we say to those commuters who want to come up to the office and protest against the methods of the road?"

"Encourage them to travel," replied the railway president. "Tell them that if they will organize large parties and come often enough we'll give them special excursion rates."—Washington Evening Star.

W. M. CLARK PRESIDENT

Chosen as the Head of the New State Trust Company.

E. F. FEICKERT VICE-PRESIDENT.

New Directors Hold Organization Meeting—Modern Safe Deposit Vaults to be Used.

At a meeting of the incorporators of the State Trust Company, held on Wednesday evening, the following directors were elected to hold office until the annual meeting in January: William M. Clark, George S. Clay, Dr. J. H. Cooley, Frederic Coriell, Dr. A. H. Dundon, E. F. Feickert, George M. Holstein, Alexander Milne, Nelson A. Miller, Judge William Newcorn, A. W. Ransome, Morris C. VanArsdale and J. V. E. Vanderhoef.

These directors held their organization meeting last night at which time the following officers were elected: President, William M. Clark; first vice-president, Edward F. Feickert; second vice-president Morris C. VanArsdale; secretary-treasurer, Frederic Coriell.

The alterations to the banking room, which are to be located in the Marsh building, 201 Park avenue, are now under way, and when the company takes possession in September its equipment will be complete in every detail.

Its safe-deposit vaults will be of a more modern type than any at present installed in this city, and in every department of the company's business it will be its policy to give its patrons the advantage of thoroughly up-to-date facilities. Inasmuch as the company does not intend to rely entirely on Plainfield for its business, but will reach out over the State for "banking by mail" deposits, and as its stock is to be widely held by individuals of the community, its success seems assured.

The Manganese Safe Company has been given the contract to furnish the new vaults for the company, and it is said that they will represent the very latest in banking equipment.

EDSON WOODHULL'S BOAT FINISHES THIRD IN RACE

Visitors at Lake Hopatcong last Friday, among whom were many Plainfielders, witnessed the novel race between the power fishing boats, commonly known as "kickers." The events took place over a five-mile triangular course, starting and finishing at Nolan's point. There were twelve contestants and the winner was "Benny H.," owned and operated by Benjamin Hummer, of Lake Hopatcong. The owner received a handsome silver mounted fishing rod and reel. "Close Shave," owned by Frank Loughlin, of Princeton, was second and "Woody," owned and operated by Edson Woodhull, of Plainfield, was third. A large number of the spectators rooted enthusiastically for the Plainfield boat and Mr. Woodhull was greeted with cheers when it crossed the line.

Another Plainfield boat, "Cholola," owned by A. Haynes and Clarence Teel, of Craig place, was entered in the race, but did not start owing to a break down in he engine.

The contest was the first of its kind ever held at Lake Hopatcong and proved so successful that it will be an annual event. The idea originated with Frank Loughlin and Jas. Rishor, of Princeton, both of whom are well known in this city. There are about forty "kickers" now at the lake and it is believed that the number will be increased to 100 by next season.

POINTERS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS.

The best housekeeper is the one who passes less time in making things clean and more thought in keeping them clean as she goes.

Keep camphor in cupboards where clothes are stored, for not only will it keep away moths, but also mice, which dislike it exceedingly.

When making bread for puddings, always soak it in a cold liquid. Bread that has been soaked in cold milk or water is light and crumbly, whereas that soaked in hot liquids is heavy.

The best way to extract the juice from an onion, when needed for flavoring, is to cut a slice from the root and press onion on a coarse grater, using a rotary motion.

When boiled mutton has served its purpose as a dinner meat in one family, it invariably returns at luncheon or supper as a salad, and always with sandwiches filled with mayonnaise mixed with chopped capers.

An alarm clock kept in the kitchen may be set to ring at the time the vegetables should be put over the fire, or the hot bread or the cake or pudding is due to be done, and as a guide to time in many other matters.

HIS FEET "HURTED" HIM

Patrick Quinn Therefore Helps Himself to a More Comfortable Pair of Shoes.

COBBLER IS VERY GENEROUS.

When Max Pollock left his shoe repairing shop on Saturday for a few minutes he left the door open. This was the opportunity that Patrick Quinn, of Brooklyn, was looking for. With an old overcoat over his arm he entered the store, appropriated a pair of oxfords which had just been repaired and made off toward Fifth street and Watchung avenue. Mr. Pollock happened to see Quinn leaving the store, and, becoming suspicious, entered his store and discovered that he had been robbed of the shoes.

Following Quinn to a house on Fifth street, Pollock found the shoes hidden in the folds of the overcoat, and when he demanded their return from Quinn the latter asked for a dime for them, refusing otherwise to give them up. Chief Kiely was passing at the time and Quinn was handed over to him on a charge of stealing made by Pollock.

When he was arraigned before Judge Runyon developed some amusing stories from the silb-tongued Quinn. He said that he was sixty-seven years old and never had been arrested before. For twenty years he had served Uncle Sam in the regular army, having seen service in Cuba during the Spanish-American war; was a cook and orderly at Forts Slocum, Hamilton and Wadsworth in New York harbor and at the time of the placing of the body of Uulysses S. Grant in the tomb on Riverside Drive he was one of the guard of honor.

This story was accompanied by the largest sized crocodile tears, and when put to it Quinn could scarcely remember a single military term nor the names of the regiments in which he served. His answers to the judge's questions were given with that inimitable brogue which provoked the court to broad smiles and the spectators to laughter.

"Me feet hurted me so after walkin' from Lake Hopatcong yisthirday that I wanted a pair av ould shoes to aise me fate," said Pat. "It's a good thirty-two miles to this town from there and I was feelin' the pains in me fate somethin' awful. I did not intind to sthale. I jist wint in to ask the man for an ould pair and as he wusn't in I tuk thim shoes he has there."

Judge Runyon appeared to not want to punish Pat very severely, and after Mr. Pollock had obtained the shoes he generously refused to prosecute and the judge allowed the prisoner to go to Hackensack, where he claims to have a brother.

ALBERT JENSEN HAS MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Albert Jensen, of Little Creek, Delaware, who is employed as a lineman by the New York Telephone Company, had a narrow escape from death Friday afternoon, when a pole on which he was working on Jackson avenue broke off at the base, causing the lineman to fall thirty-five feet to the ground. It was witnessed by Frank Loughlin and Jas. Rishor, of Princeton, both of whom are well known in this city. There are about forty "kickers" now at the lake and it is believed that the number will be increased to 100 by next season.

Jensen had been sent up the pole to remove some telephone wires which were interefering with the removal of a house on Jackson avenue. This house is owned by U. B. Crane, of East Second street, and is being moved from Jackson avenue to Brook avenue. The pole had rotted away at its base and when Jensen removed the wires, the pole went down with a crash, carrying him with it. That the lineman escaped death and even a broken bone is regarded by those who witnessed the accident as miraculous.

TREASURE SHIP HUNT.

Believing they have a $400,000 treasure in their grasp, men are guarding night and day what is believed by them to be the wreck of the steamer Atlantic, off Long Point, in Lake Erie. The Atlantic was sunk in collision in 1852 by the steamer Ogdensburg, and 150 lives were lost. Many were drowned in their berths.

The wreck lies in 158 feet of water. In the hold, it is believed, divers will find two safes *containing $400,-*000 in gold. The wreck of the Atlantic was found virtually intact. No skeletons were found in the superficial examination.

Plainfield, N. J., August 11, 1910.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

In "The Great Divide", which is playing at the Academy of Music, New York City this week, Corse Payton has found not only a play which appeals powerfully to his patrons, but one for which his company is peculiarly well suited. Claude Payton's manly presence is excellently displayed in the rugged role of Stephen Ghent, the big-hearted but uncultured miner, and Minna Phillips is quite at home in the emotional role of Ruth Jordan, the Eastern girl, whose environment becomes that of a rough western camp.

The next week, beginning with the matinee on Monday, August 15, Mr. Payton will present "The Christian," in which Viola Allen and Edward Morgan played so successfully. New York playgoers showed how well they thought of Hall Caine's stirring drama, with its intense heart interest, when it was originally produced by Sliber & Co. at the Knickerbocker Theatre and afterward for a long run at the Garden Theatre.

Minna Phillips will, of course, play Glory Quayle, the impetuous daughter of the old vicar, who leaves the Isle of Man fishing village to become a Music Hall singer in London, and Claude Payton will have another rare opportunity as John Storm, the son of a nobleman, who has been Glory's childhood sweetheart, and who, against his father's wishes, becomes a clergyman and then follows his love to the city and rescues her from the allurements of her many wealthy admirers.

"Seven Days," sole survivor of the season's successes on Broadway, is not only surviving the summer but is getting stronger each week of its phenomenal run at the Astor Theatre. The tremendous success of this exceedingly brilliant comedy furnishes an interesting object lesson in theatricals. It shows that the American public will pay its money more cheerfully and in bigger chunks and keep handing it out longer for a play that makes it laugh than for any other form of stage entertainment. And "Seven Days" provides the laughs, or rather, one laugh which starts the first moment of the play and lasts till the audience is home and in bed. One goes to sleep laughing over "Seven Days" and wakes up still grinning. A play that spreads the brightness and happiness and good cheer that "Seven Days" does is a public boon. Undeniably this is the best comedy and the jolliest entertainment the American stage ever has had. See it and you'll say so. The Wednesday matinee is at reduced prices. Of course there is a Saturday matinee. Matinee or night, "Seven Days" is a week of gaiety compressed into two hours and forty-five minutes of delirious joy.

OF MAYOR OF NEW YORK

LIFE STORY W. J. GAYNOR

Victim of Attempted Assassination Was Strong Probability For Presidential Nomination.

MAYOR WILLIAM J. GAYNOR of New York had served but seven months of the four year term to which he was elected when he was shot down and seriously wounded by James J. Gallagher just as he was starting upon his first vacation from the multifarious cares of his office. In that brief period he had demonstrated that he, and not Tammany Hall, was mayor of the metropolis. He had effectually disposed of the pre-election prophecies that he would be merely Murphy's man, the puppet of the Tammany chief. Gaynor himself has been indistinctly the entire mayor of New York with no overlord or understudy.

The new mayor attracted much attention throughout the country by walking to the city hall from his home in Brooklyn every morning and walking back home every evening, no matter what was the state of the weather. He made the three mile walk at a swinging gait, and, despite his fifty-nine years, there were few men who cared to undertake the pedestrian trip with him as pacemaker. Having been reared on a farm, he determined to get as much outdoor exercise as possible, even though plunged by the ballots of his fellow citizens into the midst of the activities of the most exacting municipal office on earth.

Mayor Gaynor is the son of a farmer and was born at Whitestown, Oneida county, N. Y., in 1851. After receiving his education at Whitestown and in Boston he went to Brooklyn in 1873 and worked on Brooklyn and New York newspapers while he was studying law. He was admitted to the bar in 1875. He became nationally known for his work in breaking up rings in the local Democratic party. He secured the conviction and imprisonment of John Y. McKane, the Gravesend and Coney Island boss, for election frauds. He was elected to the bench of the supreme court of New York and served two terms. Twice he declined the Democratic nomination for governor of New York. He also declined to run for judge of the court of appeals and for mayor of Brooklyn before the consolidation which made that city a part of Greater New York.

Judge Gaynor was nominated for mayor of the greater city in 1909 and was elected over William R. Hearst, independence league, and Otto T. Bannard, Republican. He was supported by Tammany, which years before had turned him down as a prospective candidate for the same office. Mr. Gaynor was one of the first American public men to speak against discrimination in freight rates. He made many addresses on the topic.

Mr. Gaynor was divorced from his first wife, but remarried and has a large family of children, living happily for many years at his Brooklyn home and on his farm at St. James, Long Island, where he spends much time in the summer.

The farmhouse is a stately old fashioned one that fills the eye. Around it is a well-kept lawn of five acres with pleasant gardens. The barn, wagon houses, henhouses, cornerib and sta bles are across a road and 200 yards away. The air that blows from the sound is brisk and bracing.

Mr. Gaynor Loves Horses.

Mr. Gaynor takes much pride in his horses. He likes to stroll into their stalls and rub and pat them. "This one took a prize this year," he always tells his visitors, patting the flanks of *a beautiful creature that bears the un*romantic name of Lemons. Then he stood with his hands in his pockets and contemplated Lemons for minutes at a time.

"You see," he is fond of telling his visitors, "I was raised on a farm. I have always been fond of farm life. So I got this place to live the 'simple life.'" being crowded with books. And the books are not for ornament, but for use. His favorite reading is in the direction of political economy and history. He has a pretty extensive acquaintance with novels, but never read modern fiction very much. He is fond of Fielding and has followed the adventures of Tom Jones for years.

Of late years he allowed even his relationship with the old magazines to lapse and did very little reading in that line, although he never quit it. There were a few of the old favorites he read time and again. The story of the books such as Dickens' "Pickwick Papers" and Thackeray's "Vanity Fair" had been made reflecting upon the mayor's administration.

Gaynor has attended many dinners and public functions, and in every instance where he made a speech he said something that attracted wide attention. For many months he has been looked upon as a strong prospective candidate for the presidential nomination on his party in 1912. Mr. Gaynor supported Hearst in 1906 and has been always a regular Democrat. He always resents any imputation of being "Tammany's man," and his administrative acts indicate that he is controlled only by an earnest desire to execute his duties for the benefit of the four millions and several hundred thousand people of his city.

Mayor Gaynor has a liking for old clothes. Why he should want to wear a pea jacket in the house may be difficult to figure out, but he has used it as another man would use a smoking jacket. The golf cap is no beacon light to the links; Gaynor wears it not because of golf, but because of its comfort and its appropriateness to a long walk.

Unemotional, but Polite.

During his campaign for the mayoralty it was said by Gaynor's opponents that he was a cold, unresponsive person, with little of the human in his manner, but the correspondents who visited him at his city home and at his farm painted a far different picture of his personality. One of them wrote:

"You are immediately at ease with him, not because of any effort on his part to put you so, but rather the contrary—rather because he receives you with a cordiality that makes its way through doors, and there is no mistaking that slow, dispassionate, deliberate delivery for that of any other man on earth. If Mr. Gaynor had to call anybody a liar to his face it is very doubtful if his tone of voice or his freight car century would change an iota."

Immediately after Mr. Gaynor succeeded George B. McClellan as mayor of New York in January, 1910, the general public began to sit up and take notice that an interesting individualist was in the executive chair. As a jurist and a citizen he had criticised most caustically the police system of the city, and he soon began to get after this system in strenuous fashion. Plain clothes men were sent back to pound sidewalks in uniform. District and precinct commanders were transferred, and the police were given to understand that they were the city's servants, not its masters. The mayor "snooped around" considerably, seeing with his own eyes how the patrolmen and their superior officers were executing their duties or assuming authority which the law did not allow them. He visited the night courts and took notes as a result of which he published a letter declaring that most of the arrests of persons brought into these courts were wholly uncalled for and that the policemen making the arrests were utterly ignorant of their duties. This utterance of the mayor brought him into high and unenviable notoriety and undoubtedly valuable friends, and under no circumstances, except those which provide homesteads sites for bona fide settlers, should individuals or corporations be allowed to acquire leasehold or fee rights therein, without giving for the same a full and fair equivalent.

I believe in such federal regulation of corporations doing an interState business as is based upon equity and justice to all concerned, and in the honest and impartial execution of all laws relative thereto. I believe in the framing and passage of such additional laws as shall remedy any shortcomings in existing laws deigned to regulate the said corporations.

I believe that the tariff upon imports should be sufficient to provide adequate revenues for the needs of the government, and should, in addition thereto, as scientifically as may be, best conserve the combined interests of the producer, the consumer and the workingman. I believe that the membrs of the Tariff Board, appointed by the President for the purpose, will ascertain and compile such facts as will best serve as a basis for any future revision, and when their work is sufficiently complete to warrant a general revision along scientific lines, it should be made.

I am opposed to any legislation which may be designed to favor the so-called "special interests" at the expense of the public welfare. Such legislation is repugnant to the very spirit of Democracy, and not to be tolerated under our free institutions.

With reference to the rules and management of the House of Representatives, I am in favor of such system as shall best secure fairness and equal rights for all members. The founders of our government intended that the House should be, both in spirit and fact, the popular branch of the national legislature, and with the policy of maintaining it as such I am in thorough accord.

I am unqualifiedly in favor of the gold standard. I am, however, in favor of such changes in our currency system as will make it more easily adaptable to the ever growing needs of business, as well as to the requirements of sudden changes in economic and social conditions.

I believe in independence of thought and action, and if elected, my highest aim as a Republican representative shall be to attend faithfully all sessions of the House; to give my best study to every public question; to deal fairly and honestly with every proposition brought forward for the consideration of Congress; and to make the affairs and interests of my own district matters of prime importance.

In my opinion a question in all respects as vital as any heretofore discussed, is that of a large minded but no less real economy in the management of our national appropriations and expenditures. I thoroughly approve the action of our President looking to this end, and if elected, shall do all in my power to help further his purposes. This, I believe, is conservation of the broadest character.

Finally, I believe that this country needs to be pervaded with a greater spirit of optimism than is at present prevalent; that it is high time for those who really have its welfare at heart to draw inspiration from the glorious past; to look forward hopefully and with confidence to the future; to cease charging adverse opinions and methods with corruption in all cases, and instead, to make the uplifting, the betterment and the progress of this noble land of ours the common purpose of all.

Respectfully yours,

I met him in New York and we and luncheon together. During luncheon the letter was read to me. After it was concluded I was asked what I thought of it, and was told in a few days it was going all over the State.

"I answered that the letter was going to cause a great deal of trouble if published, saying that the men attacked would have to fight or else lie down like dogs. I told Congressman Fowler that if the letter was not put before the public he would be the unanimous choice of the Republicans for the Congressional nomination, as all ill thoughts of him would pass away in the meantime.

"No attention was paid to my remarks. I was asked if I had any suggestions to make, but repeated my former statements. That is my so-called endorsement of that letter. I suggested no changes in it and not a line of it was of my making."

Mr. Runyon declared himself to be in favor of the present tariff. He read statistics showing, as he said, that high tariff was levied only on luxuries.

In conclusion he urged his followers to do away with the former mud-slinging campaigns. He asked them to vote for him, to work for him, and he would thank them, "but," he added, "do not say an unkind word that will leave after it a cut or a scar."

Judge Runyon announced his platform as follows:

As heretofore announced, I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for Representative in Congress from this district.

Already in a general way, I have intimated the principle which shall govern me in the serv on of my election, but I believe that the citizens of this district are entitled to know in detail the views of a candidate upon current matters of public importance, and accordingly I herewith present my own.

In the first place, I believe in upholding the administration of President Taft, and in doing whatever is possible to aid him in placing such laws upon the statute books as shall fulfill all the promises contained in the last Republican National platform. It was that platform which commended itself to a great majority of voters throughout the country at the Presidential election in 1908, and to carry out its provisions is to obey their mandates.

I am heartily in favor of the conservation of our public lands and resources. Congress is directly responsible to the people for the stewardship of these great and immensely valuable holdings, and under no circumstances, except those which provide homesteads sites for bona fide settlers, should individuals or corporations be allowed to acquire leasehold or fee rights therein, without giving for the same a full and fair equivalent.

I believe in such federal regulation of corporations doing an interState business as is based upon equity and justice to all concerned, and in the honest and impartial execution of all laws relative thereto. I believe in the framing and passage of such additional laws as shall remedy any shortcomings in existing laws deigned to regulate the said corporations.

I believe that the tariff upon imports should be sufficient to provide adequate revenues for the needs of the government, and should, in addition thereto, as scientifically as may be, best conserve the combined interests of the producer, the consumer and the workingman. I believe that the membrs of the Tariff Board, appointed by the President for the purpose, will ascertain and compile such facts as will best serve as a basis for any future revision, and when their work is sufficiently complete to warrant a general revision along scientific lines, it should be made.

I am opposed to any legislation which may be designed to favor the so-called "special interests" at the expense of the public welfare. Such legislation is repugnant to the very spirit of Democracy, and not to be tolerated under our free institutions.

With reference to the rules and management of the House of Representatives, I am in favor of such system as shall best secure fairness and equal rights for all members. The founders of our government intended that the House should be, both in spirit and fact, the popular branch of the national legislature, and with the policy of maintaining it as such I am in thorough accord.

I am unqualifiedly in favor of the gold standard. I am, however, in favor of such changes in our currency system as will make it more easily adaptable to the ever growing needs of business, as well as to the requirements of sudden changes in economic and social conditions.

MISSING YOUTH FOUND

TAKEN HOME ON MONDAY.

Tony Del Cippi, the partially demented youth who has been missing from his temporary home at Rahway, was picked up by Deputy Sheriff William Wright, of that city, Monday, near Fanwood and was returned to his parents shortly afterwards by Chief of Police Kiely.

Tony was working on a farm near Potters Station on the Lehigh Valley road when he disappeared and rewards had been offered by his father for information leading to his recovery. Although not mentally sound, the boy is harmless, and was of considerable help to his parents. He disappeared on July 27 and up to yesterday no trace of him could be found.

While driving through Fanwood Monday morning Sheriff Wright saw Tony emerge from the woods directly in front of him near Fanwood and, stopping his horse, asked the boy if he knew where his father was. The boy appeared dazed and could give no coherent answers to the question, but understood when asked if he was hungry.

The boy declared that a kind woman had recently fed him and that he was feeling all right. After a while Mr. Wright coaxed the youth to get in the buggy beside him and then drove direct to police headquarters in this city where Chief Kiely took care of him until he was taken care of.

Chief Kiely immediately communicated with Tony's father, who hastened to this city to recover his lost son. The meeting between father and son was pathetic, and the elder Del Cippo appeared to be overjoyed at recovering his wandering offspring.

On Saturday, July 30, late in the afternoon, Del Cippo was discovered by the sexton in the cemetery connected with the Presbyterian church at Woodbridge. The young man had slept in the cemetery the two previous nights. Del Cippo was taken before Justice Dunn. When questioned by the justice as to what he was doing in the cemetery, Del Cippo said, "I live there." Justice Dunn then asked, "Are you alive?" Del Cippo answered "I took poison." Justice Dunn next inquired, "What have you been drinking, Moxie?" He then ordered that Del Cippo be put on a trolley and sent to Rahway, but did not send anyone with him or communicate with the Rahway police.

FRELINGHUYSEN ACCEPTS

State Senator Wants to Be the Republican Nominee for Governor.

TELLS VOTERS HOW HE STANDS.

Issues a Statement Setting Forth His Views on Public Questions —How State Affairs Should be Conducted.

State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Raritan, known as the author of the automobile law bearing his name, issued a statement yesterday, accepting the indorsement of the Republicans of Somerset county as the Republican candidate for Governor of New Jersey this fall. The Senator's friends have been quietly booming him for the nomination, and they believe he has a good chance.

In declining to accept the nomination, the Senator gave out this statement, setting forth his views on pub*lic questions:*

It is my belief that the Governor should exercise as much, if not more, care in the administration of the affairs of the State as he would in the conduct of his own business.

That the affairs of the State should be conducted in a business-like and economical manner.

That the transactions of every department, State, county and local, should be checked and audited as carefully as a prudent man would his private business of similar magnitude, so as to deter, if possible, unscrupulous men from engaging in the service of the public.

That the laws should be strictly enforced to prevent individuals or corporations from resorting to improper methods to further their selfish ends.

That the industries of the State *should be encouraged and its govern*ment should be such that it will be viewed with confidence.

That corruption or unfair conduct on the part of any public official should be exposed and all guilty parties punished.

That judicial appointments should be based solely upon ability and integrity, that the judiciary should be absolutely divorced from politics, and that political help or contributions by any of the judiciary should not only be condemned, but made a cause for removal from office.

That the selection of grand and petit jurors should be absolutely divorced from politics.

That the educational funds should not be decreased, but that negligence, extravagance and dishonesty in their disbursement must be stopped.

That the powers of the Public Utilities Commission should be enlarged, so that it can thoroughly investigate public service and quasi-public service corporations, determine all matters of difference between them and the public, including their relating to rates, and enforce such conclusions, as it may reach, subject to the right of the courts to determine if the process of law has been observed.

That methods should be devised to encourage the people to take a more active and direct interest in the selection of candidates and generally in all public matters.

That the number of saloons should be restricted in each locality to a certain proportion of the population, that the excise laws should be revised so as to correct evils disclosed by the investigation of the Excise Commission, and that the laws should be fairly and impartially enforced.

Experience shows that revenues now derived from automobiles are not sufficient to repair the damage caused by them to our roads. Should we relieve residents of other states from the payment of any license, our revenues would decrease, the use of our roads would increase, and as a necessary result unless the automobilists of this State were called upon to pay a higher license, or unless the people at large were called upon to pay more for repairs than they now do, our roads would deteriorate and they would soon lose the reputation which they now enjoy.

That automobiles do serious damage to our roads is not open to dispute. All owners of automobiles should pay a fee and all who operate them should be licensed.

No change should be made until the people at large show a willingness to pay more than they now do for the maintenance of the roads, and until they express a desire to grant to automobile owners of other states the free use of our roads.

HAYMAKERS' CONVENTION

LINWOOD H. SMITH, CHIEF.

A. E. Willard and E. I. Bowen Elected as Trustees—Street Parade and Vaudeville Performance Enjoyed.

The seventeenth annual convention of the State Haymakers' Association of New Jersey was held in the Hayloft of Wetumpka Haymakers' Association No. 229½, at 212-214 West Front street this city, on Saturday last, about 400 visiting Haymakers from all over the State being present. Large delegations came from Bound Brook, Red Bank, Atlantic City, Trenton, Camden, Phillipsburg, Clinton, - Somerville, Bayonne, New Brunswick, and among others, Chief Haymaker Francis J. Oughten, of Ahwaga Hayloft No. 88½, of New Brunswick.

After the convention had been called to order by State Chief Haymaker L. H. Smith, the representatives and alternate representatives of the various haylofts were admitted by official credentials; were ceremoniously presented with handsomely created watch-fobs and seated. State Chief Haymaker Smith then very ably rendered a cordial welcome to all present. The official roll of State officers, representatives, alternate representatives, etc., was then called by State Collector of Straws Alfred Haley. The annual report of the national representatives was read by Past Chief Haymaker Hall W. Schablon, of Hackingsackkey Hayoft No. 189½, of Hackensack, by vote received and placed on the minutes of the convention. By vote of the convention a continuous session was ordered until the finish of business.

Nomination of officers of the State Association for the ensuing year was then made as follows: For State Past Chief Haymaker Linwood H. Smith; for State Chief Haymaker, Lewis P. Day; for State Vice-Chief Haymaker, Walter Farrell, Alfred E. Willard and Edward I. Bowen; for trustee for three years, Thomas Tootsell; for State Collector of Straws, Alfred Haley; for State Keeper of Bundles, Clark Cole; for State Representative to the National Association, Wm. A. Adkins, John Laughlin, Emil W. Schablon, Henry C. Axen, E. K. Sherer.

By vote it was decided that when voting for representatives as above, the Companion receiving the lowest number of votes should be considered elected for one year. By vote, where but one nominee appears for an office, it was then decided that the State Collector of Straws should cast the ballot.

Companion Joseph M. Snyder was then appointed Judge, and Charles J. Harper and G. J. Edwards, tellers. By the casting of the ballot by the State Collector of Straws the following were unanimously elected: Past State Chief Haymaker, Linwood H. Smith; State Chief Haymaker, Lewis P. Day; Trustee for three years, Thomas Tootell; State Collector of Straws, Alfred Haley; State Keeper of Bundles, Clark Cole. Companions Edward I. Bowen then declined to run for State Vice-Chief Haymaker, 112 ballots were cast for the two remaining nominees for State Vice-Chief Haymaker, of which one was spoiled. Walter Farrell received 22 and Alfred E. Willard 89. State Chief Haymaker L. H. Smith then declared Companion Alfred E. Willard, of this city, elected State Vice-Chief Haymaker. 111 ballots were then cast for Representative to the National Association, of which Companions Wm. A. Adkins received 82; John Laughland 102; Emil W. Schablon 91; Henry C. Axen 53 and E. K. Sherrer 73. Wm. A. Adkins was accordingly declared by the State Chief Haymaker to have been elected for two years; John Laughland for two years; Emil W. Schablon for two years, and E. K. Sherer for one year. The report of the State Collector of Straws was then read, stating the number of Haylofts in the State in good standing to be 73; the present membership to be 2,828; the receipts for the year to be $672.70; expenditures, $434.39; balance on hand, $238.31. Both of the said reports were received and placed on file.

By standing vote the place for the convention to be held in 1911 was decided to be Asbury Park.

After considerable discussion, the amount expended for mileage by the State Collector was then ordered refunded to them. The State Keeper of Bundles was then ordered drawn upon for the Bundles for the expenses of the representatives and officers of the State Association to the National Association. Matters relative to the nomination, election and installation of officers were then by vote referred to the committee on laws. The new officers were then installed, Past State Chief Haymaker Charles J. Harper acting as installing officer; Linwood H. Smith, State Past Chief Haymaker; Lewis P. Day, State Chief Haymaker; Alfred E. Willard, State Vice-Chief Haymaker; Alfred Haley, State Collector of Straws; Clark Cole, State Keeper of Bundles. The newly installed State Chief Haymaker, Lewis P. Day, then made the following appointments: E. Strife, First Farmer; E. Madley, Second Farmer; D. Scully, Guard of Hayloft; and H. Patten, Guard of Barn Door. State Collector of Straws Alfred Haley read appointments as follows: J. E. Nowery, R. W. Osland and Harry Weeder, on the finance committee; E. D. Schafey, Charles Williams and Joseph M. Snyder, on the committee on constitution; Joseph A. Mear, Joseph Baumeister and D. Kurts, on the committee on appeals.

After the street parade the Haymakers adjourned to the banquet hall in the Stillman Building, where they enjoyed, besides a bountiful repast, a splendid vaudeville entertainment.

MANY NOTABLES TO ATTEND G.O.P. DINNER

The Republican dollar dinner to be held in Elizabeth in October under the auspices of the Downtown Republican Club, acting in conjunction with members of the Union County Republican Committee, will be the biggest and, according to members of the committee of arrangements, one of the most notable events of its kind ever held in the State. Those arranging for the big event feel confident that the chief speaker of the evening will be either United States Senator Lodge or some other Republican of equal National prominence.

Some of those present at a meeting held Monday at which the various committees were appointed suggested that an effort be made to get Colonel Roosevelt to come to Elizabeth. Whether the former President will consent to honor the city by his presence at the dinner is a question. All the Republicans of note in the State, however, including Governor Fort, are expected to be present.

It was decided to hold the dinner on Thursday, October 6, at Turn Hall. Tickets will be sold only to members of the general committee of arrangements and will be placed on sale shortly after the Republican outing. Because the seating capacity of the hall is not more than 700, the committee has decided not to sell any more than 700 tickets.

The officers of the general arrangements committee are: Sheriff Robert J. Kirkland, chairman; Edward Bauer, secretary; James White, chairman; Edward Bauer, Dr. J. B. Rowe, William Randolph and J. W. Crane.

Committee on arrangements—Sidney W. Williams, chairman; Henry Young and Charles Cox.

Printing—Georg Stewart, chairman; Edward Bauer and William Randolph.

The reception committe will consist of the various committees, including the county chairman and the president of the Downtown Republican Club.

IN PARIS FROCKS ARE MADE SHORT.

In Paris all evening and afternoon frocks are short.

For dancing nothing is so nice, but to see a room full of women and no trains among them is a new sight in Paris, and not altogether a pretty one, since, after all, nothing is so graceful as a trained skirt in the house or a ballroom that is not too crowded.

Paris couturiers are always carrying things to the extreme, and they are at present so much in love with the short skirt that they are adopting it for every possible occasion. Almost the only dresses made long are those intended for dowagers and large women of 50 or thereabouts.

All the short skirts are round at the bottom. They are indeed queer looking, with the straight round hem and the rest of the skirt pulled in with mousseline, chiffon or soft silk. Changeable silks are sometimes used for these mousseline or lawn foundations, and the effect is far better with the mousseline itself, for then the picture is a more airy one. When the dress is of silk or satin and mousseline the silk or satin is as soft as possible.

Dresses are no more solid than they were in winter. That is to say, they are composed of sheer silk or mousseline or of several layers of mousseline. For summer the idea is not a bad one, and were the Paris climate different, the cool frock would be hailed with delight; but just as likely as not there will not be a single warm day throughout the entire season. With the exception of one year, that of 1906—and persons look back with delight to that summer—there has been absolutely no summer in Paris. Nothing but a long season of continual rain, the lengthened days of summer months making the only difference.

SEBRING NOT ENDORSED

North Plainfield Township Improvement Society Cannot Approve Candidate.

NOT A POLITICAL ORGANIZATION

Rev. Dr. C. A. Eaton and Mayor Smalley Address the Meeting—Lively Discussion About Telephone Service.

There was a large gathering of enthusiastic citizens at the meeting of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Society at Texier's Mills, Monday. Important business was transacted, several municipal affairs were discussed, and two stirring speeches were made, one by Mayor Newton B. Smalley and the other by the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton.

William de La R. Anderson, president of the Society, called the attention of the members to the inefficient service offered by the New York Telephine Company, the so-called "Farmers' Service," which is on at present at the reduced rate of $18 a year. According to Mr. Anderson, the telephone company had given practically no attention at all to complaints and had placed an unlimited number of instruments on each line. The president also said that the company had obtained its subscribers by the old system and had then changed over to the new system without proper explanation. Mr. Anderson said that he "escaped" this new idea and fortunately still continues with the old system.

Upon being asked to make some suggestions for the work and welfare of the Society, Mayor Newton B. Smalley said that the principal thing for the improvement of that section was to have a good approach from Plainfield. The "Gap," according to the Mayor, is a natural beauty spot for such an approach and that with a broad and smooth road built through this section, there would be little trouble in getting new residents there. The extension of Watchung avenue through David Mundy's place would bring innumerable benefits to the community. Mr. Smalley said that the township had been asleep for the past fifty years, the men holding office in that time, having used methods of two hundred years ago. And so there was much to be accomplished. The Mayor promised the society that if there was anything in the power of the borough or himself, which would be of aid in improving the conditions of the township, it would not be overlooked.

Rev. Dr. C. A. Eaton made a forcible address on the subject of good roads in general. He told of a visit recently made to the mountains of Kentucky, where it has been found that good roads are as essential as schools and churches.

President Anderson said in the course of his remarks that articles had appeared in the newspapers, which gave the impression that the society had indorsed Charles P. Sebring for sheriff. This was not so, Mr. Anderson said, for while the society wished Mr. Sebring success, it could not engage in political affairs.

The Greenbrook section claimed that it was not properly represented in the society, so a committee, composed of Messrs. Tetlow, Beetham, Fuchs, Shotwell, Sebring, Svolnack and Trust, was appointed to investigate the matter. A committee was appointed to look after the extension of Watchung avenue in the township. It is composed of C. B. Conte, L. C. A. Eaton and W. D. Hall. Anderson. The committee in charge of the road work at the end of the Somerset street trolley line, reported the work done.

Rev. Dr. Wilding Preaches.

Rev. Dr. George C. Wilding, of Perth Amboy, preached a strong sermon to a large congregation at the First M. E. church, Sunday morning. Dr. Wilding is one of the foremost ministers in the Newark Conference, and he was heard with much pleasure and profit.

LONDON BANK CLERKS.

A hundred years ago the number of bank clerks in London must have been inconsiderable. The old banks needed only small staffs. Quite late in the eighteenth century one of the biggest conducted its business with two clerks. The engagement of a third created great excitement. His arrival was still more exciting, for we are assured that "he wore a lodg flapped coat with large pockets; the sleeves had broad cuffs, with three large buttons, somewhat like the coats worn by Greenwich pensioners; an embroidered waistcoat reaching nearly down to his knees, with an enormous bouquet in the buttonhole; a cocked hat, powdered hair, with pigtail and bagwig, and gold headed cane." This, no doubt, was something of a peacock, even for his time, but a few years later, in the early part of the nineteenth century, the correct official garb was knee breeches, silk stockings, shoes with silver buckles and often a white tie. One can scarcely imagine a dress more suggestive of sober opulence.

But it does not seem that, according to our ideas, the manner of life was quite in harmony with this impressive appearance. Not for the bank clerk of the early eighteen hundreds the immediately clean and elaborately fitted restaurants of the modern city. Not for him tea shops with varieties of harmless drinks and tempting light food! If he wanted a meal he went to the butcher and bought himself a chop or steak for fivepence halfpenny or thereabouts. Then he carried himself to an adjacent public house, where they cooked it for a penny. The public house, in fact, played no small part in his life.

Is it not a tradition that the clerking house grows from the meetings of clerks in a tavern, where they met for the purpose of settling up accounts among themselves?—London Telegraph.

RARE WILD BEASTS.

The Kadiak Bear and the Tufted Ear Rhinoceros.

There are a number of beasts specimens of which are ardently desired not only by the zoological gardens of the world, but by the professional menagerie keeper. Among these may be mentioned the Kadiak bear, an extremely rare animal and one calculated to make a Rocky mountain grizzly appear insignificant.

South America contains a prize in the form of the tapir, a species of jaguar never held in captivity. This jaguar is of tremendous size and coal black.

There are two rare birds in the Amazon forests whereof no specimens have ever been brought away—the "bell bird" and the "lost soul." These names are derived from the effects produced by the cries of the birds, the former having a voice likened to that of a silver bell and the latter possessing the eerie accompaniment of crooning in such a manner as to produce gooseflesh on the unfortunate person who hears its song.

The naturalists will also vote an expression of heartfelt thanks to the individual who will fetch them from farthest Burma a specimen of a rhinoceros having a black hide and big, tufted ears. No one has ever actually seen this rhinoceros; but, it is averred, white men have frequently seen his hide.

New Zealand is a land of animal mysteries. The most perfect of the rare beasts whereof specimens are longed for by the civilized world is a kind of duck billed beast. No one seems certain what it should be called. Darwin, it is added, was always of the opinion that the duck is a true lizard-i. e., not a flying lizard, but a true missing link between the birds and the reptiles—might be found in New Zealand.—Harper's Weekly.

The Catalpa Tree.

The catalpa tree is the smooch of the forest. It has a brief season of beauty, but this outburst of charm is so exceedingly ephemeral when compared with the long weeks and months when it seems to be fairly reveling in litter that the wonder is the species is tolerated to the extent it has been in years gone by. We believe it was Lord Byron who once indulged in a few rhapsodical utterances over the catalpa blossoms, but it is safe to say he never had to clean up a yard which was marked by the presence of one or more of the trees or the sentiments expressed would have been in other than poetic vein.—Des Moines Capital.

European Tattooers.

Tattooing is not by any means confined to the savage peoples. There are races in Europe which make it a regular practice, and men, women and children bear on their bodies ornamentations that are as ornate and queer, although not as extensive, as are markings on the bodies of the south sea savages. These European tattooers are among the Albanians and Bosnians, who live in the famous Balkan peninsula.

Pride All Around.

"I'm proud to say," boasted the man with the large stomach and the immense solitaire, "that I ain't never wasted any time readin' poetry."

"Well," ventured the gentleman with the seedy clothes and the high brow, "I'm sure you were asked they would probably agree that they were proud of it too."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A HOT CAMPAIGN IN UNION COUNTY

There has never been a campaign in Union county within the last twenty years when the political situation, both as regards the Republican and the Democratic party, has been in such a mixed and unsettled condition. Factional fights in both organizations will make the coming political struggle one of the most bitterly fought in years. The early start given the campaign by Representative Charles N. Fowler through his open letter attacking United States Senator John Kean and the Republican organization in the Fifth congressional district has given the fight in the Republican ranks great impetus.

Lined up with Fowler in his fight against the Kean forces in Union county are James T. MacMurray, city clerk of Plainfield; William Carl, Harry Hooley, Robert J. Aljoe, Freeholder Henry Krouse and Excise Commissioner Thomas Y. Bye. The latter is a candidate for the assembly and has been brought into the fight, it is claimed, to exert such influence as he has through his membership in the excise board to elect Fowler delegates in the lower wards of the city. The Fowler faction in the county until this year lacked an organizer. Several years ago the late Mayor John C. Rankin was the pilot of Mr. Fowler's organization. Since his death, however, the Fowlerites have been without a real organizer, until the congressman's fight in the present campaign was taken up by Mr. MacMurray, assisted by Census Supervisor Louis J. Hoagland.

For weeks past the Fowler followers and supporters have been busy perfecting different ward organizations. The work of forming the Fowler men in the various wards has been carried on secretly. Little was known as to what the plans of the insurgent's men were until a meeting was held last week in the Dix building, when a temporary organization was effected for a political club to be known as the Republican Organization of the Fifth Congressional District. The leaders mentioned above were present. It has been learned that the chief object of this organization which will embrace Warren and Morris counties, is to put up a fight for the election of Fowler delegates in every district in the Fifth congressional district. The battle between the organization and Fowler delegates in the thirty-two election districts in the city has already been started.

Arrayed against the Fowler forces is the Republican organization with its leaders, Hamilton F. Kean, County Chairman Frank H. Smith, James White, chairman of the Elizabeth Republican city committee; County Clerk James C. Calvert, Andrew McCardell, of Plainfield; Sheriff Robert J. Kirkland, former Assemblyman Charles Tilden, the doubles Peter Meisel and Deputy Sheriff Wright. These supporters of United States Senator Kean compose what has lately been called "The Court House Ring."

The real clash between these warring political organizations will come at the primaries. The regulars will strive to elect delegates pledged to support Judge William N. Runyon, of Plainfield. The Fowler forces will work for the election of Fox delegates, pledged to the insurgent congressman. It is generally conceded that the organization will control the delegates selected for the State convention, and that the delegates will give their support to the strongest Republican candidate for governor. By this plan the "Court House Ring" may control the appointments to be made in Union county by the governor-elect. The organization leaders, even at this early stage, do not hesitate to predict that the Fowler forces will be beaten for delegates in all the Elizabeth election districts and in most all the wards in Plainfield and Rahway.

FOWLER LITERATURE BARRED FROM CITY OFFICE.

Fowler campaign literature is being spread around this city by his agents and some of it received by City Clerk James T. Mc Murray. According to report those receiving same encumbered the office of the clerk to such an extent that Mayor Fisk objected to it being stored there.

The story goes that the Mayor directed the removal of the stuff saying that the city office was not the place from which to distribute campaign literature.

Delightful Vacation Experience.

Miss May Vincent Whitney and Mrs. Mary McNeil Hopcraft, who who closed their musical studios in the Babcock building early in July, are spending the summer at Queen Terrace Bixby, Knox Scotia. Mrs. Hopcraft writes to a friend that "the green and beautiful summer land is without heat, with cherry trees bending with fruit, peopled with the thrifty and honest householders. Roads that never get muddy and gardens that are ever green." Mrs. Hopcraft and Miss Whitney will return home in September.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Praises James E. Martine.

To the Editor of the Newark Evening Star:

That the time has arrived for the discontinuance of Republican rule in this State even the most casual observer can have but little doubt. Reactionary policies, failure to truly represent the common people, and glaring failure to give relief from intolerable conditions have fanned the prevailing political unrest to fever heat.

Such being the case, the public eye has turned with considerable interest upon what the Democratic party will do as regards a suitable and worthy candidate for Governor in this crisis. For back of all laws and all schemes of government lies "The Man."

The Democratic party has a man to whom all may safely look for a square deal—a man, who, if given the opportunity, would be fair to capital, considerate to the toiler, asking only that each obey the laws—a man who is honest and honest—one who would be quick to frown upon injustice and oppression.

Will the Democratic party overlook this man whose conscience is as clean as his character, whose ability is unquestioned, whose sympathy is open to those with a just cause? I think not. For if ever there was a man fit to meet the requirements of a good Governor of the State of New Jersey that man is James E. Martine, of Union county.

THE ONLOOKER.

The West End A. C. baseball team, of this city, was overwhelmed on Saturday by the North Branch nine at North Branch. The score was 9—1. The local team was completely outclassed and its ragged work in the field, coupled with the heavy batting of the North Branch boys, are the causes of the disastrous defeat.

Riker, of Elizabeth, twirled for the North Branch aggregation, and only seven scattered hits were made off his delivery. Conshea, the Plainfield twirler, did good work, but twelve hits and seven errors were too much for him.

The score by Innings:

HARRIS DEFEATS CRAIGIN IN FINAL TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP.

The challenge round of the White Mountain lawn tennis championship was won Saturday by F. H. Harris, the intercollegiate champion, who defeated W. B. Craigin, of this city, the holder of the title, by 4-6, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2, in a decisive match.

Harris played a fast game all the day and lost most of his games to Craigin's terrific drives. In the doubles Jones and Henshaw met defeat at the hands of Carl and Foster, a Boston pair, who have been playing well.

MAYOR FISK FOR GOVERNOR?

"The news that Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of Plainfield, is in a receptive mood, so far as the Republican nomination for Governor is concerned, has been received with much interest throughout the State," says the New York Tribune. "According to Mr. Fisk's friends, he is now looking over the ground, and if he feels that conditions are suitable he may go into a contest for the capture of the Union county delegates.

"Senator Kean lives in Union, and if a candidate for Governor were nominated in that county it would have an embarrassing effect on his chances of being chosen to the United States Senate again."

GESANG AND TURN VEREIN BEAT ORIOLES HANDILY.

The baseball team of the Gesang and Turn Verein had an easy game with the Orioles on the Cricket field, Saturday afternoon beating them by the score of 14 to 6. Van Zandt, the old P. H. S. pitcher, was touched up for 16 hits. Eight errors registered by the Orioles made matters just so much the worse for Van Zandt. Luthman pitched good ball for the Turners after the second inning.

Score by innings:

Rahway, 16; Scotch Plains, 3.

The Rahway Baseball team took the measure of the Scotch Plains nine at Rahway, Saturday afternoon and did the trick up in good shape to the tune of 16-3. It was a decided off day for the Scotch Plains players. In the absence of Slocum, Manager "Joe" Alberts did the twirling for the Scotch Plains boys and he got his bumps for fair. Poor support also helped along in the defeat of Albert's team.

NETHERWOOD CHURCH TO BUILD A PARSONAGE

The Consistory and the advisory board of the Netherwood Reformed church, at a meeting held at the church, Monday night, decided to purchase the lot on the northwest corner of Leland and Midway avenues, and erect a parsonage thereon for the occupancy of the pastor, Rev. Royal A. Stout. The decision has been received with much pleasure on the part of the members of the church. When completed the parsonage and land will aggregate a cost of about $4,500.

The lot was formerly owned by George W. Cole, and is 50x166 feet, a good size for the kind of a dwelling to be erected. The house will be two and a half stories, the plans now being drawn by Fred Lancaster, the architect. It will have eight rooms, with all improvements. The pastor's study will be on the first floor to one side of the main hall, the parlor being opposite.

The Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed Church in America will contribute $1,000 toward the building fund, which has been started. John Johnston, of 935 South avenue, is the treasurer of this fund. As the church is now a corporate body, the Consistory purchased the land and is arranging for the erection of the parsonage in accordance to the provisions of the corporation.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR PRESTON DUNNING.

"A miss is as good as a mile," the old saw says, and it was proved a fact Monday night at about 7.30 when Preston Dunning, the special delivery messenger of the postoffice slipped on his wheel in front of a main line trolley car near Proctor's theatre.

Dunning in trying to get across the street in front of the car started rather fast. His wheel skidded on the west brick pavement and in a second he was nearly under the fender. Retaining enough presence of mind to roll out of the way he escaped injury. His bicycle, although it rolled under the fender appeared to have been undamaged, for as soon as Dunning could regain his feet he was up and away riding for dear life, none the worse for his mishap.

The Youthfulness of Maud

"Not if I know it," said Maud with an unaccustomed flavor of slang in her voice and words. "Never again will I venture back to the home of my early youth."

"Why not?"

"Didn't you have a good time?"

"What was the matter with Glenville?"

The bachelor girls, who had gathered in Maud's pleasant rooms to welcome her on the evening of her return from a holiday visit to the country, asked these and other questions in chorus.

"Tell me, do I look very aged?" Maud inquired of them in turn.

"Aged!" repeated the chorus with the proper air of amazement.

"Our blooming Maud look aged! What a preposterous idea!" said one.

Maud smiled appreciatively at the author of this last reassuring remark. "Thank you, dear," she said. "Now I feel better. I was afraid that what I have recently gone through might have left traces of decrepitude. You see, my mind is now on the subject of age. Gray hair, round shoulders and dotage seem dangerously imminent. I only hope I'll be a real cheerful, nice-looking old woman."

"What nonsense are you talking?"

"I'm not talking nonsense. On the contrary, I'm quite serious," she protested.

"You'd be serious," explained Maud, "if you had suffered an experience like the one I've had. You see, girls, I've been so awfully busy and so happy in my work that I never noted the passing years or reflected upon the fact that I am no longer 16. Even my birthdays haven't meant anything less delightful than candy, flowers and matinee tickets. I seem to have been singularly neglected about watching the flight of time. But all is different now —I've been to Glenville.

"The first blow I received was at the railway station when I was looking around for the man Aunt Sarah had promised to send to drive me over to Glenville proper, which is a few miles from the railroad.

"'Yes, I am,' I answered, joyously.

"'Well, I seen you when you got off the train, but I didn't speak to you, because I wan't expectin' to see such a young-lookin' person. Ain't you Jedge Abel Stearns' girl?'

"'Yes,' I said.

"'I thought so. I was figurin' up your age as I was drivin' over here and as near as I could reckon it you was born in '76, the summer of the great centennial show in Philadelphy. I remember your pa went to it, but your ma couldn't go, 'cause you were too young to leave at home.'

"'You have a wonderful memory,' I remarked weakly, and earnestly hoping that the other inhabitants of Glenville were not so gifted in that direction.

"'Mercy on us, Maud!' said my dear old Aunt Sarah as she embraced me. 'You're a perfect wonder. I never saw any one change as little as you do. I declare, you don't look a day older than you did when I was in Chicago six years ago, and then you looked mighty young for a woman of 28. I don't see how you keep so fresh.' She held me off at arm's length and gazed at me admiringly and I could only smile and thank her —thank her for making me feel older than I ever had felt before in all my long life."

"'You poor dear!' said her sympathizing friends.

"'Oh, that was only a beginning. Every old settler remarked at my marvelous youthfulness until I began to feel like a centenarian. One of the neighbors asked me confidentially how I kept the wrinkles out of my face. 'Wrinkles, indeed!' And the dear old doctor who took care of mother when she was a little girl said it did beat all how well preserved I was.

"But the last straw was the night that a cousin of my aunt's came in to ask me to 'look on' at a young people's dance. 'Not that you don't look as if you could still dance yourself,' she said when my face, I suppose, betrayed a little surprise at the invitation. 'You certainly are mighty girlish and spry for your age. Dear me, how times have changed! You know your mother's mother was a grandmother at 37, and you ain't even married at 32—or are you 34? But with your young looks you needn't give up hope yet.'

"'I don't see how you stood it,' said one of the girls, sympathetically.

"'I didn't. I fled the place, inwardly vowing never to go back until my hair is snow white. Now, girls, if you love me, don't ever tell me how young I look. It would be more than I could endure—at my age.'

Victorious Youth.

At 29 Scipio gained the battle of Zama, Watts revolutionized the industries of the earth by making steam the most powerful agency in the progress of mankind, Josiah Wedgewood discovered the secret of making the china which bears his name, and Shelley died after enriching the world of literature with his unrivaled poetry.

IS THE PRICE SOME PAY FOR LOVE WORTH WHILE.

Somewhere a poet has used the phrase that clings in the memory, "The price of learning to love." It is a phrase to ponder over. We say a price for so many things—freedom, health, happiness. Must we even pay a price for learning to love?

Some women seemingly pay no price. Love comes to them without obstacle or fret. He stays with them happily and it seems to the outside world as if trouble or misfortune never comes to their door.

With others, however, sorrow comes with love. They pay a heavy price for learning to love. Is it worth the price? Or do they pay too much?

Many a woman has given a man all the love of her heart and devotion of her life to awaken some morning to find him gone with another woman and her life's happiness a wreck.

Another discovers the one whom she honors and trusts and loves to be dishonest, to have dishonorably appropriated other people's money. Her home is a ruin, herself and children are disgraced; worst of all, she has broken her box of precious ointment unworthily.

The years bring to another a drunkard in place of the man she has loved—a man who debases himself to all that is low and disgusting, who, perhaps, even debases her, whose sin is visited on their children in the form of disease, perhaps for life.

Have these women paid too high for love? Would it have been better to shrink and ennoble any life it enters.

If they look at the immediate present, when they sit among the ruins of their life, they may say yes. But love in itself is so pure and beautiful a thing that it cannot but enrich and ennoble any life it enters. The nature of the woman who loves is broadened, deepened. She touches the experience of all mankind. She gains a great human sympathy. She knows through love the heights and depths of life. It has taken her to the mountain tops. If it also takes her to the valley she should not repine. It is worth while, provided that when it does depart she does not let go the good and the beauty it has brought into her life. If she sits among the ruins and sees nothing but ruins, if she lets the experience warp her life, then, perhaps, she might have been eventually a better woman not to have loved. But if, in spite of all the trouble that may come, she clings to the good that love has brought she cannot but be a finer woman for love's coming, no matter how great the price she paid.

YOUR WINDOW DRAPERY.

The better the curtains the better the case. All window curtains require the personal supervision of the housekeeper at this season of the year, whether they be of lace or merely some plain sheer material.

In the eyes of the artistic home decorator those of plain surface are more to be desired, and certain it is that they need just as careful laundering as lace.

The first thought in taking down of sheer curtains is that little brass rod, which will tear the hem unless the housewife's own hands remove them from their position.

They are now soaked in cold water and then wrung out and put into a second clean bath of clear cold water to take out the collection of soot and dust that was scarcely noticed while the curtains hung.

Now lukewarm soapy water, several baths for the constantly changing waters take the place of the washboard. Curtains should be persistently soused up and down in their several waters, squeezed rather than rubbed.

Rinsing in clear cold water is again in order, and drying in bright sunlight is a necessity.

After the sheer stuffs have been well dampened and tightly rolled overnight they are ironed on a very large flat ironing table, with all possible thoughts for the grain of the goods.

The ordinary laundress will rarely take the trouble to renovate curtains with any degree of feeling for their material or for their future smoothness of outline.

It is altogether possible to so straighten the damp material, while beneath the iron, that it will hang in long straight folds instead of puffed ridges.

Curtains are folded or rolled. Lace curtains need a long roll on which to rest them over summer. Less expensive plain materials are folded and placed in a drawer or rehung, and invariably they should be pressed into long narrow folds and then lapped once across their length.

Length of the Limbs.

According to the result of many measurements made at the anthropological labratory in London, the right arm of human beings is, in a majority of cases, longer than the left arm, while, on the contrary, the left leg is longer than the right leg. Sometimes, however, the relative proportions are exactly reversed, but very seldom does perfect equality exist between the two sides. The tendency of the right arm to exceed the left arm in strength is somewhat greater in men than in women, while equality of strength in the two arms occurs almost twice as frequently with women as with men.

CONVENTION DATE SEPT. 20

DISCUSS AUTO LAW CHANGES.

Many State Notables Attend Committee Meeting at Newark—Apportionment of Delegates.

Discussion of the agitation among automobilists for a modification of the New Jersey automobile law, so that out-of-the-State owners of cars can use the roads of the State at will without the payment of any license fee, took up most of the time of the members of the Republican State Committee of New Jersey at the meeting in Newark yesterday. Some of the members of the committee professed to be greatly alarmed at the spread of the agitation, so, in an effort to win the support of the automobilists the following resolution, introduced by Hamilton F. Kean, was adopted:

"Resolved, That the State committee recommend to the Republican convention the consideration of a resolution at the next session of the Legislature to provide for reciprocal privileges between automobilists of this State and other States."

The resolution, however, did not pass without vigorous opposition from the representatives of the rural counties, among them D. Harris Smith, of Salem, and Samuel K. Robbin, of Burlington, Ex-Governor Murphy, chairman of the committee, who, like Mr. Kean, is the owner of a high powered car, enthusiastically supported Mr. Kean's resolution and it was adopted.

Tuesday, September 20, at the Taylor Opera House, Trenton, was agreed upon as the time and place for holding the convention at which the Republican candidate for Governor will be nominated, and Chairman Murphy issued his call showing the following appointment of delegates by counties:

County.	Delegates.	Districts
Atlantic	36	44
Bergen	50	78
Burlington	32	46
Camden	76	105
Cape May	12	19
Cumberland	25	34
Essex	171	205
Gloucester	20	28
Hudson	173	194
Hunterdon	14	27
Mercer	56	69
Middlesex	43	51
Monmouth	39	62
Morris	35	47
Ocean	12	26
Passaic	66	65
Salem	16	18
Somerset	18	30
Sussex	9	25
Union	54	69
Warren	16	28
Totals	873	1,207

The chairman also appointed two committees of one of which he is the head, the head of the other being Senator Edmund W. Wakelee, to prepare statements on national and State legislation, which will be issued from time to time.

Although all the candidates for Governor with the exception of Senator Wakelee were conspicuous by their absence, the candidates for United States Senator were out in force, every one of them being present. These are David Baird, Mr. Murphy and ex-Governor Stokes, and Senator Kean, and hopes that he will be chosen again. There were also present Senator Briggs, Winton C. Garrison, treasurer of the State committee; Congressman John J. Gardner, of Atlantic; Theodore Strong, of Middlesex; John Rotherham, of Hudson; C. Asa Francis, of Monmouth, and Henry M. Doremus, of Essex.

There was considerable gossip as to who the next Republican candidate for Governor would be, and Vivian M. Lewis, of Paterson, had a number of warm advocates, among them being Senator Briggs, Theodore Strong and Congressman Gardner. Many of those at the meeting, however, refused to tell whom they favored, among them being David Baird and Alfred N. Dalrymple, chairman of the Essex County Republican Committee.

The name of ex-Judge Gilbert Collins, of Jersey City, was mentioned, too, but the opinion was advanced that Senator Kean and Mr. Murphy were the ones back of Mr. Collins' candidacy.

A Hint to Hostesses.

Don't give parties—except actual masquerades—where you must ask your guests to appear in any special costume. They dislike the trouble and rightly feel that they are coming to be entertained and not to help in the performance. Sometimes the command to "wear a white shirtwaist and skirt" or "represent a famous book" really means a great deal of trouble to its recipient. If the success of your party depends on this co-operation on the part of your guests, by all means give another kind of party.

AUTOISTS TO HOLD BIG MASS-MEETING

The very strong resolutions passed Monday night by the board of trustees of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club have aroused considerable enthusiasm amongst the members, as may be evinced by the numerous telephonic communications received by the officers of the club during the day.

It is expected that the action of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club in calling for a mass-meeting of motorists for August 17 will be the forerunner of the State-wide campaign that will be inaugurated to changing conditions in New Jersey.

Every candidate for political office in the fall will be requested by the club to state his views on the motoring laws.

President Bissell, in speaking on the matter, said:

"The New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club stands for reciprocity and wants reciprocal arrangements with its neighboring States. We want to afford every tourist an opportunity to travel over our excellent roads and we want the tourist to be enabled to do this easily."

The New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club, by the resolution adopted, places itself on record as favoring more liberal automobile laws and also advocates that the present system of double taxation on automobiles shall be removed. They contend that the present State fees on motor cars should be the only tax.

It is expected that at the mass-meeting of the club J. B. R. Smith, commissioner of motor vehicles, will be present and that there will be representatives sent from every other motoring club and organization in the State.

This action on behalf of the club will be hailed with joy by the many motorists of New York, Pennsylvania and the New England States and will tend to lessen their feeling of animosity toward New Jersey, and the outlook is that the meeting of August 17 will be one of the largest ever held by the people interested in the motor vehicle.

NEW YORK'S AUTO LAW NOT UNJUST TO JERSEY.

New York's retaliatory law regulating automobile traffic became operative Monday and, according to Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Smith of this State, it is not so bad as many motorists believe.

At first it was supposed that motorists of this State would be required to take out an annual license in New York before being permitted to operate in the State because of the New Jersey law which requires all foreign motorists to register and pay a license fee of $1 for eight days' use of the State roads in one period of eight days or four of two days' each.

An examination of the New York law by Mr. Smith shows, however, that resident motorists of this State will be subject to no more restrictions in New York than residents of the latter State are here. This is shown in the following except from the law: "The provision of this (penalty) section, however, shall be operative as to a motor vehicle owned by a non-resident of this State only to the extent that under the laws of the foreign country, State, territory or Federal district of his residence like exemptions and privileges are granted to motor vehicles duly registered under the laws and owned by residents of this State."

It is not alone Plainfield that is urging the protection of foodstuffs. In Atlantic City the most rigorous measures have been taken by the Board of Health to enforce the provisions of the law enacted in 1909. TROLLEY RIPS OFF ROOF

PASSENGERS THROWN DOWN.

All Escape Injury Excepting Conductor, Whose Arm is Bruised.

An accident to a main line trolley car at about 7 o'clock Thursday morning, occurred at the Dewey Park car barns which for a few moments looked as though it would have serious consequences. However, nobody but the conductor was injured and he but slightly. The car was crowded at the time and many of the passengers who were compelled to stand were thrown off their feet. The rear trucks of the car took the "Y" at this point instead of following the forward trucks on the main tracks and ripped the roof from the dining room and cigar store of Ferdinand Denckian, causing $200 damage. The accident was a peculiar one and had never been feared by the employees of the Public Service Railway.

The car, which caused the trouble, left Bound Brook at 6:15, being operated by Motorman Jenson. As the car approached the "Y" at the car barns, the front trucks continued on the straight track, but the wheels of the rear truck followed the "Y". The rear end of the car was naturally thrown around and in so doing it tore the extension roof from the lunch room building as clean as if cut off purposely. The rear platform of the car was damaged considerably and was taken to the shop for repairs. The passengers were transferred to another car and they arrived in Plainfield only ten minutes late.

The accident was probably caused by the switch at the "Y" being set after the wheels of the front truck had passed over it. When the accident occurred, all the passengers in the car, except two, immediately jumped out, fearing that the car would topple over on its side. If the rear trucks had gone a foot further on the "Y" the car would have fallen on its side and the passengers been severely injured.

PATRIOTIC SONS OF AMERICA WILL MEET AT HOBOKEN.

Gala arrangements are under way for the annual State convention of the Patriotic Order of Sons of America. The affair this year will be held in Hoboken and the members of the committee that has full charge of making all the preparations for it are working like beavers in their endeavors to make it one of the most successful as well as enjoyable sessions in the history of the order.

The convention will last two days and the scope of it will be in Odd Fellows Hall, between Fourth and Fifth streets. The affair will take place on Tuesday and Wednesday, August 16 and 17, and indications are that hundreds of visitors will be in Hoboken on those two days. The headquarters of the executive committee will be at Naegel's hotel, Third and Hudson streets.

One of the features will be a long street parade, which will take place on the evening of August 16. There will be fully 1,000 men in line and all residents along the line of march will show their patriotism by decorating their homes in honor of the occasion.

P. S. C. ISSUES AN ATTRACTIVE FOLDER-MAP.

An attractive folder of thirty-six pages has just been issued by Public Service Railway. It is of handy pocket size being four by nine inches. The outside covers are done in four colors, the front showing a view of Broad and Market street, Newark, and the back a pretty bit of scenery along the upper Passaic river near Singac.

A general map nine by twenty-four inches gives one an idea of the extent of the company's system and the lines in Newark, in Jersey City and Hoboken and in Camden and vicinity are shown in separate detail maps. The folder conta'ns a large number of illustrations, a description of trolley routes and other information about distances and rates between the various cities and towns served by trolleys.

Honored at World's Convention.

At the recent world convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union held in Glasgow, Scotland, New Jersey was honored in many ways. The principal honor coming to this State was in the appointment of Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson, of East Seventh street, as World's Superintendent of Social Meetings and Red Letter Days.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. MARY E. FLANNERY

Funeral services of Mrs. Mary Ellen Flannery were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. George H. Johnston, at Scotch Plains. The house was filled with relatives, friends and neighbors, who had known and loved the departed during her many years' residence there. Rev. Franklin K. Matthews, pastor of the Baptist church, of which Mrs. Flannery was one of its oldest members, had charge of the services and spoke kindly words of sympathy to the relatives and retold the many virtues of the dead woman, which had endeared her to all.

During the service "Abide with Me," and "Lead, Kindly Light," were sung by Judge William N. Runyon. The floral tributes from friends and neighbors were many and beautiful, including a pillow from the son, J. E. Flannery, with the inscription, "Mother," and a tribute from the Ladies' Aid Society of the Church.

Interment was made in the family plot in the Baptist Cemetery. The bearers were Robert Walpole, Augusta L. Frentz, Dr. F. W. Westcott, Henry Keuhn and Alexander MacCauley.

TRINITY EXCURSIONISTS ENJOY DAY AT SHORE

After a long, happy day at Asbury Park, the Trinity Reformed church excursionists returned to Plainfield Thursday shortly after nine o'clock Those who had been optimistic and had braved the inclement weather yesterday morning were more than repaid when they reached the Park, for here they found the skies clear and a cool breeze blowing from the ocean.

The weather man only frowned once during the day, and that was at noontime when a gentle shower kept the excursionists under shelter for half an hour. There were very few bathers on the beach, for the temperature of the water was 62 degrees and a heavy surf was running. But at about four o'clock in the afternoon the water warmed up to 68 degrees, an dmany of the excursionists took a short swim before train time.

The excursion was free from any accident, and the only disagreeable remembrance of the day for the excursionists will be a few sore arms and backs from sunburn. The new steel cars, of which the excursion train was composed, made the trip a delightful one.

The employees of A. E. Force & Co. went on the excursion as their annual outing, the store being closed for the day. Dinner was served to the party in the Atlantic dining room in the Hotel Brunswick. After the repast, the floor was cleared and dancing was enjoyed for nearly two hours. Music was furnished by two pianos.

EDMUND RUSHMORE AND DR. BACHE CAMPING OUT.

From away up in the Adirondacks comes a message from Edmund Rushmore, who has been camping out there in which Mr. Rushmore says he and Dr. Bache, of Bound Brook, started on Wednesday for a long tramp through the woods, camping and fishing as they go, taking in the principal lakes and trout streams and that they will be gone for two weeks or more.

Mr. Rushmore also says that they had a twenty-eight mile drive from Northville to Speculator, in Herkimer county, which took them nearly eight hours to accomplish. The country is wild and pretty, but promises lots of good fishing.

Stains on Silver.

To get rid of the egg stains on silver wash the dishes in the ordinary way, adding a little ammonia to the water, then rub the silver over with a little very fine salt and wash again. To remove the taint of onion from silver rub it well over with bread or a little salt, or even lemon juice; in the case of forks these should be stuck in a piece of bread and drawn out, repeating this several times.

Ill from Mosquito Bite.

Mrs. James Roach, of West Second street, is detained at her home with blood poisoning, the result of a mosquito bite. While her condition is not considered serious, Mrs. Roach is under the care of a physician and it will be some days before she will be able to leave the house. Courier-Journal.

A party of thirty "West Enders" went on a picnic to Boynton Beach yesterday. The trip was made by stage, leaving here at 8 a. m., and returning to this city at 9 p. m. While at the beach the party enjoyed bathing and dancing. During the heavy rain the dance hall proved to be a desirable shelter.

COUNTY TO GET SHARE OF OF STATE MOTOR TAX.

Union county is to receive its full share of the State motor vehicle fund for the improvement of its highways. The apportionment for this county is $12,000, the State Road Commission announces. Of this sum $6,000 is to be expended in the improvement of North Broad street, from Elizabeth to Roselle, and to Newark, and the same sum for the improvement of Westfield avenue from Elizabeth to Cranford.

County Collector N. R. Leavitt has just been notified of the apportionment by Col. Frederick Gilkyson. It is an increase over last year, when the apportionment was $10,000. The State motor vehicle fund includes all the money that is derived from the tax on motor vehicles of all descriptions, and the law requires that the money must be expended in making repairs to the roads throughout the State.

MAIL COLLECTOR GLAENTZER RESIGNS FROM POSTAL JOB.

Charles Glaentzer who, for many years was a letter-carrier at the local postoffice, and who for the past year or two has been engaged in collecting mail from the boxes of the city and borough, has resigned his position, and he will probably be succeeded by Augustus Van Arsdale, who stands in line for the position.

Mr. Glaentzer was one of the oldest employes at the postoffice. Shortly after his appointment he had the business part of the city, succeeding the late Edward Hann. The work was too much for him, and afterward Postmaster Bird gave him the work of collecting mail. Mr. Glaentzer has not announced his plans for the future.

HERE AND THERE.

The Boston News Bureau has obtained estimates that 350,000 automobiles are now in use in the United States, as against 7,000,000 horse-drawn vehicles.

In automobile plants are invested $400,000,000, and in these works and accessory trades are employed 200,000 persons.

Automobile-makers, it is estimated, pay $60,000,000 annually for rubber, steel, iron and aluminum, and to the railroads $25,000,000 in freight charges.

These are tremendous figures as applying to an industry not yet fifteen years old. They bear upon the question that is repeatedly raised after a day heavy in motor-car fatalities, whether or not the automobile has as yet justified itself economically in the face of its long mortality record. Presumably we shall meet this question less frequently when the balance of interest between pleasure and business in the dvlopment of automobiles is modified; when the motor-car is less conspicuously the travel luxury of the rich and the ruthless instrument of the speed-mad. Toward this change and toward ultimate high standard of safety and utility there is daily progress based on sound laws, business demands and returning sanity among drivers.

Of course it is a fact that some people think that "information" at the telephone exchange must be an animate encyclopaedia, but can you beat this?

"Is this Central?"

"Well, give me information."

"This is information, is it?"

"Well, at last year when I came out here to visit I hired an expressman to take my trunks from the station to the house. There were two men on the wagon, one being a short stout man and the other fellow rather slender and tall. I would like to know their names so that I may get them to take my trunks to the North avenue station. Can you tell me who they were?"

The resulting shock to Information is not recorded, but who could blame her for feeling weary?

This went s'pping over the wire to Information yesterday.

"Say, Information, this is Mrs. Blank, of Steenth street. A letter was left here by the postman this morning, but it is not for me, what shall I do with it?

"Give it back to the postman," said the patient girl. Click, went the receiver at the other end.

A new study—that of farming—is to be added to the public school curriculum in New York City at the next school term and the Board of Estimate has granted $2,200 for the purchase of seeds for getting the little farms ready. Farm implements, seed and other things will be purchased for planting the spring crops, and the youngsters of the East Side and other congested parts of the city will be taught to differentiate rutabaga from flax and to know beans in the pod when they see 'em.

"If we can instil a knowledge of and a love for farming among the rising generation it will help in relieving over-crowded cities and increase the number of strong limbed sons of the soil that are so necessary to the health and prosperity of the country," said a member of the Board of Education.

A chauffeur who had just returned to the garage in New York City after taking the State examination to determine his fitness to be licensed was asked by a fellow worker what the questions were:

"One of them was about meeting a skittish horse," he replied. "They asked what I would do if I approached a horse which showed signs of being afraid of the car and its driver held up his hand to me."

"What's the answer?" asked a bystander.

"Oh, I had that all right," the chauffeur replied. "I told 'em I'd stop the car, take it apart and hide the pieces in the grass."

The owner of a touring car came out of a restaurant in New York the other day and found a family of strangers occupying his machine. The spokesman of the party smiled ingratiatingly as he explained the situation.

"We are waiting," he said, "to ask your permission to let me take some kodac pictures of my wife and children in the automobile."

The astonished owner granted the request and passersby on Fifth avenue were edified with the sight of each member of the family taking a turn at sitting on the front seat grasping the steering wheel.

"Baxter street will probably soon be flooded with pictures of my machine," soliloquized the owner with a grin.

I entered the department store and said to a sleepy young man behind the velvet counter:

"I want to buy a piece of velvet nine inches wide and twenty-six inches long, to match this sample. It can be a little darker without doing any harm, although not more than half a shade. It is for a collar for a lady's coat. Very likely you sell a great deal of velvet for such a purpose and you know what I want better than I could tell you if I stood talking for half an hour. You are the expert and I will trust your judgment."

The clerk looked dreamily across the store and answered:

"What?"

I turned to the floorwalker, who happened to pass just then, and I said:

"I am trying to buy a piece of velvet to match this sample and I have explained my needs with absolute frankness to this drowsy clerk, but he has not listened to me, and now he wants me to tell it to him all over again. I should think you would have your clerks stay awake in business hours, and not force their employer's customers to turn themselves into phonographs in order to put into their wants understood. A good clerk will anticipate a patron's wishes. This young man should help me get what I desire, but he hinders me instead. He is an obstacle between me and what I want to buy."

The floorwalker looked at me with dull eyes and sighed deeply.

"What?" he asked.

I hastened to the office and said to the girl at the outer door:

"I want to register a complaint against one of the departments of this store. I have tried my best to spend my money here and my efforts have been received with utter indifference. Your clerks seem to think this is a sanitarium instead of a business house."

"What?" asked the girl.

"They seem to think this is a place to rest, not to work," I explained.

The girl drew a pad of paper toward her, took her pencil out of her puff and assumed a writing position. After a moment she looked up with a puzzled expression.

"What was it you said you wanted?" she asked.

"Shakespeare never repeats," I replied sternly, and started to brush past her into the superintendent's office. But she interrupted me.

"Book counter on the first floor, third aisle to the left," she said.

REDUCING THE HIPS.

There is no better exercise to reduce the waist and hips than to stand erect, feet squarely on the floor, raising the hands high above the head and bringing them down with sweeping motion so the finger tips touch the floor. The knees must remain rigid. Should they bend the exercise is useless.

You will not succeed at first in touching the floor, but with practice you will. Of course, no tight-clothing is worn when doing this work. This exercise is alternated with lying on the back and lifting the foot high into the air, bringing it over as near the head as it can be made to go. No bend is to be made at the knees, as the pull must come from the hips.

Another thing is to hug the knees, trying to bring them to the chest. These exercises should be done for ten minutes daily night and morning, until the waist and hip muscles become stronger. Take care that you sit on the end of the spine, not putting the weight several inches from the top, as many persons do.

SASHES.

There is a great deal of art in the wearing of a sash. One can increase one's height or one's breadth, adorn a plain gown, tone down an elaborate one, give a touch of distinction to one's whole appearance, simply by the way in which the sash is draped and adjusted.

Try wearing the sash in shawl style over the shoulders, caught by a stitch in back and tucked over the girdle, to fall in diagonal lengths to just above the ankles.

Or wind it twice around the waist, like a girdle; cross it in front and fasten with a pin on the sides of the skirt below the knees.

Then there is the Scotch tartan effect, especially attractive with a plaid scarf, where there is a broad band over the left shoulder, a narrow draped one over the back and the right, and a knot at the waist on the left side, so that the sash falls in a broad width almost to the bottom of the frock.

The adjustment of the sash may well have reference to the concealment of some defect in the garment it covers—a tiny tear, perhaps, or an ineradicable stain. It should emphasize the good points of the figure and hide defects. That is why the old fashion of the stiff bow at the back was so bad; it made every woman look stout.

Give a little thought to the draping of your sash and half your battle for beauty of appearance is won.

WRAPS OF CHIFFON.

In line with the fancy for transparent tunics and polonaises is the fad for chiffon wraps which reveal all the elaboration of the dainty frock beneath.

Usually there is some arrangement of the material about the shoulders which affords a light protection, but the body of the wrap is of the most transparent stuff, and is a cloak in name only.

Coarse Russian braid, row upon row, soutache in intricate patterns and soutache in hanging knots constitute a trimming for outdoor garments.

Y.M.C.A. DEFEATS RAHWAY

FREDERICKSON'S GREAT WORK.

Young Twirler Fans Twelve Batters and Does Not Give a Pass—The Contest Played in Seventy Minutes.

In one of the shortest and cleanest played baseball games that has been seen in this city for many moons, the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team kept up its winning streak at the oval Saturday in, taking the number of the Rahway Y. M. L. nine by the score of 2-1. As the score will indicate the game was an exciting one but it really should have been seen to have been fully appreciated. To be sure there were errors in the playing of both teams but they were not of the costly variety. There was nothing to delay the good clean playing and the time of the game was only seventy minutes.

The credit of the victory must certainly be handed to Fredericksen. The "kid" was right there with the box work and the result might have been entirely different, if this young pitching phenom, that hails from the wilds of Netherwood, hadn't kept his head and arm working to their uttermost in the tight places. As it was Plainfield held its own after the first inning and when the Rahway pitcher eased up a bit in the seventh, the local association boys got to his delivery for three hits, two runs and the game. After that one bad inning, Hoblitzel was invincible and struck out the last three men in the eighth as though the Plainfield team had never gotten a smell of the horsehide.

Rahway started things moving in the first round. After Atkinson fanned the air three times, F. Hoblitzel reached the initial bag by beating out an infield hit, and then stole second. His brother came up and caught one of Fredericksen's slow in-drops on the nose and sent the sphere riding out to left for a clean single, bringing his brother home on the swat. The next two batters were easily retired on pop flies. After this one inning, the Plainfield box artist had his opponents completely at his mercy, striking out twelve men and allowing only three scattered hits. He had evrything that could be wished for in the line of curves and speed.

It looked very blue for Plainfield until the sixth inning, when the association boys began to find Hoblitzel's delivery. Then in the seventh, round the winning runs were scored. Fritts, the first man up, laced out a screeching single through short stop. Then Bob Adams uncorked another safety into short center, Fritts taking third and scoring on a poor throw, drawn from the centerfielder. Taylor was also there in the pinch and brought Adams home on a Texas leaguer into short right. Of course, the fans went wild with ecstacy and jubilation.

In the whole nine innings not a single base on balls was given by either pitcher. The support given by both teams was all that could be asked for when the pitchers were in tight holes. The work of both outfields was especially commendable. Peacock, of the Y. M. C. A. team, was the star batter of the game getting a brace of singles, while pitcher Hoblitzel of the Rahway aggregation called forth the plaudits of the gallery gods for his fielding work. He had two put outs and five difficult assists to his credit.

REV. MR. FINN GREETED BY FORMER PARISHONERS

Rev. A. E. Finn, former pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, but now of Rochester, Pa., preached in his former charge here, Sunday, and was given a cordial greeting by his former parishioners at both the morning and evening services. Last night there were more than two hundred worshippers at the service. Mr. Finn expressed his pleasure over the privilege of again talking to his friends.

Mr. Finn's morning topic was "A Name With a World-Wide Fame" and the evening topic was "Empty Vessels and How to Fill Them". The preacher is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moore, of Grove street, for a few days. On Wednesday he will go to East Orange and from there to Jeffersonville, Pa., where he and Mrs. Finn are spending their vacation.

EDWARD M'NEE IN THE LEAD FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Edward McNee, starting from the half-minute mark, captured the fifth bicycle race held under the auspices of the Plainfield Cycle Club, Sunday morning. This puts McNee in the lead for the championship with 12 points to his credit. His time yesterday was 13 minutes and 15 seconds, which was fast considering the condition of the road. The race was run on the Mountain avenue course, the distance being five miles. William Drake, also with a handicap of one half minute, finished second to McNee.

George Simon, starting from scratch, won the time prize, doing the five miles in 13 minutes and 3 2-5 seconds. John Todd, also a scratch man, punctured his tire, but finished fifth, next to George Simon.

It was a great day for Simon yesterday, the winner making six points, the second man three, and third and fourth men, one each, with two points for the time winner.

Robert Burns had a bad fall during the race and was forced to drop out. He har started from scratch and was going well at the time of the accident.

The summaries: First—Edward McNee (1½ min.); second, William Drake, (½ min.); third, Albert Brokaw, (1 min.); fourth, George Simon (scratch). Referee, Caspar Waglow; judges, Tony Perretto, Harry Horn, Percy Caruso and Herbert Alberts. Handicapper and timer, Jack Horner; judges of time, Frank Sheppard and Thomas Smith.

J. C. WENDELL DIES AT SOUTH STIRLING

John C. Wendell, aged seventy years, and for more than sixty years a resident of Warren township, died at 9.20 Sunday night at his home in South Stirling. He had been ill for some time and his death was not unexpected. Mr. Wendell was born in New York City, and at the age of seven years removed with his parents to South Stirling, then known as Smalleytown. When he became of age he bought his father's farm, which he continued to work for many years. He sold it three years ago.

Mr. Wendell was a prominent Republican politician in the days of Culver Barkalew, and was also several times chosen a member of the township committee, as well as a delegate to various conventions. He was admired and respected by all who knew him. He was a member of the Mt. Bethel Baptist church for many years. Besides a wife, Mr. Wendell leaves two sons, John Wendell, Jr., and David Wendell; also two daughters, Mrs. Clark Mundy, of the borough, and Mrs. H. A. Moore, of Millington.

SUPT. CONDICT REQUESTS CO-OPERATION OF PARENTS.

The annual excursion tickets were distributed at Hope chapel Sunday school, yesterday, for the outing on Saturday, August 13. At that time the superintendent, G. Herbert Condict, requested that unusual precautions be taken regarding children, especially about allowing them to go from car to car while the train is in motion. He asked that the parents co-operate with the committee in this respect.

Mr. Condict also spoke of the aviation meet to be held at Asbury Park at that time. The Plainfield Baseball Club will play the Asbury Park team that day, and the local team will accompany Hope chaped to the shore.

Aaron R., the fast chestnut gelding owned by Adam Blair, of Park avenue, met defeat in the free-for-all event in the races at the Flemington fair, Saturday. Tokio, a black stallion, blonging to Eugene McLaughlin, of New Brunswick, was the victor over the plainfield horse.

CAMP BOYS VICTORIOUS

IRISH HELPED THE DUTCH.

Many Spectators, Much Enthusiasm, Rollicking Fun and Watermelons Galore—On Saturday.

The Fresh Air Camp at Netherwood was a lively spot Saturday afternoon. The Young Giants from New York, guests of the Camp, defeated the Roselle Stars in a baseball game by a score of 8—2. At the end of the eighth inning it sounded as though Bedlam had broken loose, and there was good cause for all the noise for the Netherwood boys had won a second victory over the Stars.

It must be said, however, that the young "Stars" from Roselle are no mean players.

When Umpire MacIlravy, Superintendent of the Boys' Camp, and coach of the baseball team, called for "batter up", it surely was a sight long to be remembered by those not familiar with the manner and methods of these young New Yorkers. It didn't take long for the Giants to shut out the Stars. "Shorty" Ott, the Tom Thumb of the team, was first at the bat. The clever young pitcher from Roselle, Charlie Black, kept Shorty guessing for a while, but soon Shorty managed to slam out a two-bagger and Netherwood knew that the gods of happiness had bestowed their richest gifts on the young people of Netherwood Camp. They hugged each other, rolled on the ground and laughed and cried for joy when young Goldschmidt, captain of the team, made a two-base hit which brought Shorty home and gave the Giants their first run. Enthusiasm ran high and even the babies seemed to know that their big brothers had done something clever.

The pitcher evidently sized up the next man at the bat as easy, but he didn't know the qualities of the Irish lad, Patsy Gleason. As he stood at the home plate, his orange and black stockings showing up brilliantly, but over his shoulder, Patsy had a determined expression on his freckled pug-nose face, as much as to say, "Who said the Irish couldn't beat the Dutch?" It soon proved that the Irish can't be beat and put the ball out in the field, which brought his "Dutch" friend home.

Mary Miller, one of the girls of the Camp, a typical East Sider and official score-keeper and bouncer of the team, declared that the girls were afraid of Patsy's face, saying nothing of the Orangeman's colors on an Irishman's legs, and so just flew away of its own accord.

The next batter, Charlie Ott, the "Master of the Horse" did some great sliding when he stole from second to third. The shock he received would have stunned any ordinary boy, but then the spectators recalled that he is an "East Sider", one of Miss Curry's boys, and the only thing that will hurt one of his kind is when they realize that "Mama Curry" feels badly because they have disobeyed her or betrayed her confidence, which is very seldom, from all reports.

It is on such occasions when these boys prove how deeply rooted is their love for their "Little Mother". They too feel badly and their usual smile and happy voices give way to looks and tones of sincere regret and grief until they have made amends and been forgiven. It was remarked by several spectators that little strung there was among the boys. They knew that they were well trained and insisted in a gentlemanly manner that their rights be respected.

"I never realized what a great work this Fresh Air Camp was until this summer," said one prominent man from Plainfield. "Just think! here are nearly three hundred and fifty boys and girls from the congested sections of New York city whose surroundings are such as to make the ordinary man shudder, and yet there hasn't been one profane word pass from their little or no slang. I can hardly believe it and yet I see it every time I visit the Camp."

When the last inning was finished the Netherwoods gave the Roselle boys a hearty yell and both teams were anxious to show their regard for each other." A swim in the swimming tank and a watermelon feast concluded the day's jollification and well might Miss Curry and her associates say "Lord if we may, we'll serve another day."

The teams will play a return game next Saturday at Scotch Plains.

Delightful Family Reunion.

Dr. John Y. Brook, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, who is spending his vacation with his mother at Grand Rapids, Michigan, writes that he arrived safely after a most pleasant journey, and that he and his brother had a happy family reunion at home. He says that the weather is delightfully cool, with no rain.

BOUND BROOK WALLOPS DUNELLEN TEAM, 7-2

The Dunellen fans, who went to Bound Brook Saturday afternoon to see their team win, were bitterly disappointed, for the Bound Brookers swamped them to the tune of 7—2. It was a case of fielding errors by Dunellen and opportune hitting by their opponents that turned the tables on the boroughites. Both Ortlieb and Montross were effective but poor support lost the game for Montross.

Dunellen had several opportunities to bring over tallies with the bases full, but hitting timely was not forthcoming. The six hits gleaned by the Dunellen team were far apart while Bound Brook clustered its swats at critical moments.

The features of the game were a home run swat by Pitcher Ortlieb and a throw from deep center by Nolan, a Plainfield boy, catching the runner at the plate. Shaw distinguished himself by clouting out three safeties.

LARGE GATHERING AT NETHERWOOD CAMP

One of the largest audiences of the season attended the meeting Sunday afternoon at the pavilion in the Netherwood Fresh Air camp. So great was the attendance that many were unable to get into the building. The service, which began at 3:30 o'clock, was in charge of Benjamin F. Hadley, and the speaker was Elizabeth.

An invitation which not only surprised but pleased the audience was a choir of about twenty boys and girls of the camp. Their singing was one of the most thuching things about the service. The familiarity of these children with the gospel hymns shows that this part of Miss Curry's work is carried on with hearts to appreciate their meaning and a sympathetic and tuneful voices.

Rev. Mr. Hamilton's talk to the young people was along the line of habits, the correction of evil ones and the cultivation of the best. Mr. Hamilton spoke with the feeling of one whose experience as assistant probation officer has taught what things young boys and girls ought to avoid.

Miss Sara Curry in a short address told of the sustaining power of Jesus Christ in the tremendous work of saving the little ones. The doubts and fears of the undertaking are burdens which He assumes and bears with her and her assistants.

The musical part of the service included a duet by "Patsy" Gleason and Angelina Blakely assisted by the choir; a duet by Mrs. John Manley and Master Raymond Manley and a solo by E. D. Young.

EARLY SUNDAY MORNING BLAZE ON PARK AVENUE.

A fire broke out in the basement of Louis De Brigard's store on Park avenue, Sunday morning at 1 o'clock. The blaze was discovered by G. T. O'Malley, who was passing by the store and who immediately turned in an alarm from box 13. The blaze which was among a pile of picture moulding, was put out after half an hour's work with a stream from the chemical engine.

The fire did no damage to the building and the loss to the stock was slight. The origin of the fire is unknown, although the blaze started in the rear of the cellar near the dark room.

THE WORKINGS OF SATAN

Rev. Dr. Nicholson Tells Congregation How to Avoid the Evil One.

CHRISTIANS MUST BE UNITED.

Union Service at First Baptist Church is Largely Attended—Rev. E. G. Read Offers Prayer.

The first union service for the month of August was held in the month of August was held in First Baptist church Sunday night with mon was preached by the Rev. Dr. George W. Nicholson, of Bridgeport, Conn., who was the supply at the Baptist church at the morning service, Dr. Nicholson was assisted in the service by the Rev. Dr. E. G. Reed, former pastor of the Second Reformed church of Somerville, who occupied the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church yesterday morning. On account of the absence of the choir of the First Baptist church, there was no special music.

Dr. Nicholson took for his text the 31st and 32nd verses of the 22nd chapter of the Gospel according to Luke: "And the Lord said, Simon, Simon, behold Satan hath desired to have you, that he may sift you as wheat. But I have prayed for thee that thy faith fail not, and when thou are converted strengthen thy brethren." His remarks were in part as follows:

"The difference between a sinner and a saint is that a sinner must look out for his sins but a saint must look out for himself. And this is just what we find here in the case of Simon, who was a good man and whom the Devil was tempting with all his power. Christ always thanks people for their fidelity to him and, as we see here, the Saviour is admonishing Simon to be faithful. Lack of appreciation is one of the great sins in the world today and the world is suffering from the lack of little courtesies. Throughout His entire life, Christ always noticed any inattention in courtesy. And so it behoves us to be constantly on guard of our politeness.

"Satan had desired to have Simon to sift him as wheat, but Christ told him to firm in the faith for God never forgets his children no matter how hard the trial or how severe the tribulation. Do your little best. Tears from trials are bottled up by God and become sweet perfumes in the life beyond.

"Christ knew the Devil as a personality and knew his every plan and temptation. As in the case of Simon, Satan always aims to destroy the man through whom the most damage can be caused. And this is just what he is constantly be on your guard for the Devil is a sly fox and never sleeps. Dr. Talmadge once said that more people fell after they were forty years old than under any other age. Only 12 per cent. of the people of the world, who are over 65 years of age, are able to take care of themselves. If we Christians were only one half as shrewd as the Devil, we would have many times more converts for the Devil is constantly working for his aims, but we, I fear, are not.

"Like the boy in the water who is safe as long as he can keep his head above the surface, so are we Christians safe as long as we stand united with Christ, the head of the church. The brightest of characters are usually hewn from the rough edges of tribulation. Get out of Satan's company, live the only life worth living—the life of humble trust and faith in Christ, and everything will work out for good and the advancement of the kingdom of God."

Leighton Calkins played some fine golf at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, when in competition in the 18-hole match play handicap, he covered the last nine holes in 34, three better than bogey. He was tied with Dudley H. Barrows for first place, each posting a net score of 71. The match was watched with considerable interest. Mr. Calkins has just returned from his outing and while away, was several trophies in golf competition. These scores were posted Saturday for Class A and B players:

Dudley H. Barrows, 75, 4-71; Leighton Calkins, 79, 8-71; E. A. Lyon, 97, 25-72; P. C. Langdon, 83, 10-73; E. P. Goodwin, 91, 15-76; R. G. Morse, 95, 13-82.

Mr. Beers Wins Again.

The final round in the open championship was played on the courts of the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday afternoon and was won by Albert D. Beers, who defeated Henry J. Cochran by the following scores: 4-6; 6-2; 6-4; 6-0. Mr. Beers has won the championship for two successive years.

BABY CAMP SERVICES LARGELY ATTENDED

The meeting at the King's Daughters' Baby Camp Sunday afternoon took the form of a service of song conducted by friends from the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday school. Superintendent George E. Hall was in charge of the service, which was enjoyed by the children and mothers now at the Camp, and the visiting friends from Plainfield.

Mr. Hall talked to the children in his usually happy wal, after which was rendered a program of music including two solos—"Face to Face" and "Suffer the Little Children"—sung with marked sympathy and sweetness by Mrs. Robert Humpston; Whitney Frazee gave two cornet solos—"Somewhere" and "We'll There Be Any Stars in My Crown"—while several selections were rendered by a church choir including Mrs. Robert Humpston, Miss Alice Runyon, Mrs. Gerald Olliff, Miss Arline Brown and Miss Florence Hawkins and Robert Humpston presided at the piano.

The service was held on the spacious porch, which made it much easier for both speakers and singers It was on ideal day for a mountain climb, and a number of people manifested their interest in the service by walking to and from Plainfield. Mr. Hall made two trips up the mountain with his automobile to convey friends to the Camp who were to participate in the meeting. This was the first service on the grounds this summer and was greatly enjoyed by the children.

These meetings are to be continued throughout the August and next Sunday's program is to be in charge of Mrs. J. A. Powlison and others from the first Baptist Sunday-school.

"LET THERE BE LIGHT," DECLARES REV. SHAW

"Let There be Light" was the subject of an interesting discourse delivered at Trinity Reformed church, Sunday morning, by Rev. Edwin Shaw, of the Baptist church. He took his text from Gen. 1:3, and during the course of his remarks presented some forcible truths. Pastor Shaw made an earnest plea for light in the conduct of all municipal affairs, especially in the examination of all accounts, which he declared should be made public. He also made a plea for the removal of all screens in saloons and hotel bars, adding that the business should not be conducted behind screens.

Referring to the conduct of all public officials, Pastor Shaw said that their actions should be above board and all the publicity possible given to their acts. The preacher then made a strong religious application of his text. His remarks as regards municipal affairs were not personal in any sense, being general.

PLAY ANOTHER TIE GAME

Plainfield and Morristown Teams Engage in Twelve Inning Contest.

BOTH SIDES SCORE TWO RUNS.

It was a Pitchers' Battle After the Second Inning—McLaughlin and Nelson's Work Prevented Defeat.

Not content with a sixteen inning drawn battle last Saturday the Plainfield Baseball Club played the Morristown A. A. to a twelve inning tie at Morristown Saturday with the score at the end 2-2. As in the game with the McNeill team, darkness stopped the contest, after three extra innings to decide the outcome. It was a battle between southpaws and as far as statistics are concerned, Warry McLaughlin was worsted. But statistics do not decide the result—that is counted in actual runs. Geo. Lacey, the Morristown slab artist was in rare form, allowing only three hits, four bases on balls, and striking out 17 of the Plainfielders. Even with all this, the local boys managed to tie the score and hold the score for three extra rounds.

As was the case last Saturday, Warry was a bit off form in the opening inning and the Morristown team succeed in two tallies before the local boys and Warry had gotten themselves warmed up. It happened like this: Doyle was hit on the knuckles by one of Warry's speedy in-shoots and reached first in safety. Maloney then singled and Doyle came in with a run when Dempsey grounded to short. Dempsey then stole second and reached third when Maloney was caught at the plate. Lyons brought Dempsey in with the second tally when he sent a screaming hit into left field.

In the next inning, the Plainfield boys came back with one tally. "Big Six" Nelson, the star catcher of the Plainfield team, was the hero with the bat at the Scotch Plains game, banged out a long hit into the tall weeds, thus losing the spheroid and trotting home with the bacon and gravy. Jim Emery came across with the other tally in the sixth. He reached second on Maloney's error, and then Jack Martin came up to the plate. Without asking any questions, Jack ripped out a two-base swat into deep center, bringing Emery home and tieing the score. But no one could bring Jack home with the winning run.

Warry McLaughlin improved as the game grew older and struck out fourteen of the Morristown batsmen. He only gave four free trips to the initial sack and kept the other side's hits few and far between. Jack Martin had a big day for keeps, with three put outs, six assists, and only one error. Emery also proved to have another off day, making two errors and failing to get a safety. Boyd played his usual fast game in center field, causing five Morristowners to die in his hands.

Entertained Club Secretaries.

A pleasing reception was given to its local club secretaries by the Larkin Company, at its exhibition rooms, 160 East Front street, last night. The secretaries were received by the manager and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Persons and were shown the exhibit by the gentlemen attendants. A fine buffet luncheon of Larkin products were served. Later in the evening each guest received an appropriate souvenir. The showrooms will be open to the public every day this week, also this and Saturday evenings. Souvenirs are given to the visitors.

String Band at Salvation Army.

The string band and choir from the Swedish Church, Sixth and New streets, will be at the Salvation Army tent tomorrow evening and will give a delightful evening's music. On former occasions when the string band and choir were present the tent has been packed to its capacity and a large crowd is looked for on this occasion. Admission will be free and a cordial invitation is extended to all. In case of rain the service will be held at the hall on Second street near Watchung avenue.

FREEHOLDER'S COMMITTEE UNABLE TO FIND KEYS

The election committee from the Union County Board of Freeholders, of which S. P. T. Wilbur, of this city, is a member, is on the warpath rounding up the ballot boxes in the county and getting them in shape for the approaching primaries and election. The committee has met with no end of difficulty in finding the keys for the boxes and in many cases the old keys have been lost and new ones will have to be made.

In Plainfield twenty-nine ballot boxes are required, and of this number, nineteen of them are without keys. Freeholder Wilbur in discussing the matter today, said that if the boards of registry do not deliver their keys to the County Clerk Jas. C. Calvert and get a receipt therefor, they will get no money when the election bills are presented.

Heretofore, it has been the rule to return boxes to the municipal clerk, but in the future the boxes must be returned to the county clerk and get a receipt for the same. This change has been made by reason of the fact that a committee from the Board of Freeholders has been appointed to take charge of not only the boxes but other material necessary to conduct a primary and an election. The board's committee will meet at Elizabeth, this afternoon, to further complete arrangements for the coming primaries.

A. F. TODD SUCCEEDS LEWIS T. CHURCHILL

Augustus F. Todd was elected a member of the Dunellen Council last night, to succeed Lewis T. Churchill, resigned, and fill out his unexpired term. Mr. Todd's election meets with popular approval as he has been actively identified with borough affairs for some time and is in close touch with the local government. Mr. Todd is also a member of the Dunellen school board.

Mr. Churchill resigned as a member of the council last week, because he has taken a position with Hering & Fuller, engineers, and will be engaged in making the survey for the sanitary sewers proposed for Dunellen. The only other business transacted by the council last night was a discussion regarding the sewer survey.

MARRIED THIS AFTERNOON AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

Miss Winnie Duffy and Thomas Miskell both of this city, were married in St. Mary's church this afternoon by the Rev. Father Bogan. The bride was attended by Miss Mary Connelly, and Martin Cuddy acted as best man. Following the ceremony a reception was tendered the newly married couple at the home of Mrs. Martin Deskin, the bride's sister, on Plainfield avenue.

The bride was attired in a gown of white satin and carried a shower bouquet. Mr. and Mrs. Miskell were the recipients of many handsome presents from the large number of guests at the ceremony.

The newly wedded couple will leave tonight on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls. Upon their return to this city they will reside on Plainfield avenue.

MARION WHEELER BOWLED OVER BY AN AUTOMOBILE.

Marion Wheeler, the eight-year-old daughter of James Wheeler, of Dunellen, became confused this afternoon while crossing Front street, near Rock avenue, and collided with Andrew McCardell's automobile. She was bowled over, receiving slight injuries. Dr. Platt, of Dunellen, was summoned, and after an examination said that the child's injuries were not serious. She was taken to her home in the automobile and Dr. Platt will look after the girl.

Mr. McCardell and his chauffeur, who were alone in the machine, were on their way home from Dunellen, when the accident occurred. Mr. McCardell deeply regretted the affair and di all that was possible for the injured child.

Y. M. H. A. Lawn Fete.

Mrs. William Newcorn will hold a lawn fete for the benefit of the Y. M. H. A. on the lawn of her residence on West Front street, the evening of August 31. The fete was postponed from August 8 on account of rain.

Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., will hold a busy session tomorrow night. A full report of the trustees and the funeral benefit association committee will be received.

ULYSSES AND CLARENCE

Youthful Colored Tramps Walking from Philadelphia to Brooklyn.

HAD LUCK PICKING RAGS.

But Provender For the Inner Man Scarce—Had Several Pieces of Discarded Silverware.

A couple of chocolate colored wayfarers were apprehended on West Front street yesterday afternoon and taken to police headquarters by Patrolman McGinley on general principles. It was the proper move by the patrolman, for otherwise Ulysses Lee and Clarence Garland (just listen to those names) would have had to seek some more uncomfortable shelter than the gridiron at headquarters. Together with the pair of young colored men the police gathered in a small assortment of plated silverware which consisted of four spoons and an oyster fork.

"Where did you get the silver?" asked Judge Runyon of Lee. "Ah picked it outen ash barrels in Philadelphia," responded the darker of the two prisoners.

"Do you like a that peaceful city?"

"No, sah. An lives in Brooklyn wif noah mufver," said Ulysses.

"How about you, Clarence; were you living in Philadelphia, too?"

"Yas, suh. Me and Uly, there was pickin' rags outer barre's and along the streets in Philamadelphia and I only found a pair of spectacles, but Uly, he got dem spoons and dat fork and dey ain't worth much, nohow."

"Where do your folks live?" asked the judge.

"Dey all live in Brooklyn, where we do, an' wese on our way home, walkin' all de way. We hain't had nothin' to eat since Sunday 'ceptin' some apples and a few hunks of cheese dey chewed, so we ain't none dependent on dat account, 'cause wese got people who'll take keer on us when we gets home." This long speech from Clarence had its effect upon the judge, and after telling the two youths that the cool weather was ideal for pedestrian exercise, advised them both to hoof it out of town. They went, taking their small collection of plated ware with them.

"They'll get pinched again for that plated stuff," remarked Chief Kiely, as the two made their way toward the trolley terminus at Fourth street and Watchung avenue.

CHARLES E. AARON BUYS THE SPENCER PROPERTY.

Charles E. Aaron, who recently leased the Milliken house on Central avenue, has purchased, through Mulford's real estate agency of North avenue, the valuable Spencer property at Park avenue and East Seventh street, and will, in the near future, build a fine residence there for his own use. Mrs. Towner, who purchased the adjoining piece of property on East Seventh street, will also improve the same.

Charles Keller, of East Fifth street, has purchased the property at 414 East Fourth street, and Albert Close has purchased two large lots on Netherwood avenue, north of Front street, and will erect two fine dwellings there. Both deals were made by the Mulford agency.

SHORT VACATION AT SHORE FOR WILLIAM JEFFERY.

William Jeffery and his son, William Jeffery, Jr., left this afternoon for Ocean Grove where they will join Mr. Jeffery's father and remain at their bungalow until next Monday.

It is Mr. Jeffery's intention on his return to this city to visit Morris and Warren counties in the interests of Judge William N. Runyon. Mr. Jeffery declared this morning that he would work right up to the time of the primaries in behalf of Judge Runyon's candidacy for member of Congress.

Smith Gets Two Months.

Charles Smith, colored, who was arrested about two weeks ago for the theft of a bicycle from Morris Werner, of West Fourth street, was sentenced this morning by Judge Atwater, at Elizabeth, to serve two months in the county jail. Smith pleaded guilty to the charge. During the time Smith has been in jail awaiting trial he has amused the attendants of that institution by creating several new inventions, including a flying machine and a machine that would produce perpetual motion with initiatory impetus. His antics more than once had his jailors guessing as to his sanity.

TOTAL INCREASE $750,090

GAIN IN ALL FOUR WARDS.

The Figures Completed by Local Board Shows a Total of $24,-180,430 Against $23,430,340 for 1909.

The local Board of Assessors have completed their books of assessment and filed the same with the Union County Board of Taxation. The total figures show a big increase in valuations in all four wards of the city, indicating that there is a possibility of decreasing the tax rate in Plainfield. The total valuations for the different wards here for 1910 are as follows:

First ward, $4,835,640; Second ward, $7,569,305; Third ward, $6,-125,185; Fourth ward, $5,650,300. This makes a total for all four wards of $24,180,430.

First ward, $4,721,675; Second ward, $7,299,050; Third ward, $5-906,365; Fourth ward, $5,503,850. It will be noted that the largest increase is in the Second ward, where there has been considerable building during the past year. The total figures for 1909 were $23,430,340, making a net total increase of $750,090.

President Montt Dead.

President Pedro Montt, of Chile, who was one of the last to say goodby to Mayor William J. Gaynor before the shooting of the latter, died at Bremen, Germany, yesterday, shortly after the arrival of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse at that port. President Montt had intended taking the baths at Bad Nauheim for his health. He was one of the noted men of the west coast of South America and had successfully carried out the work begun by his father, who was also president of the country and who was making an ideal and progressive Republic of Chile.

—The Union County Board of Election met yesterday, but owing to the lack of a quorum, the meeting was adjourned to next Monday.

HE TOOK THE FURNITURE

So Mrs. Josephine Cheever, of Philadelphia, Alleges Kearns Did.

PICKED OUT THE VERY BEST.

Held Under $200 Bonds to Await the Action of Grand Jury on Charge of Larceny.

Lewis Kearns, of Park avenue, discovered this morning that it does not always pay to take it for granted that when occupying another person's residence the movable appurtenances of a home also belong to the occupant. Mr. Kearns was arraigned before Judge William N. Runyon in the city court this morning on a charge of larceny of $50 worth of furniture and bric-a-brac from the home of Mrs. Josephine Cheever, who lives in Philadelphia, and owns the place in which Kearns was the caretaker. Judge Runyon held Kearns in the sum of $200 to await the action of the October grand jury.

Mrs. Cheever pressed the complaint against Kearns and told of the means adopted by him to get the furniture and other things away from the house. She declared that the prisoner not only took the stuff mentioned in the complaint, but neglected to properly look after the premises in fact he had left a "muss" which took a long time to clean up and besides instead of trying to rent some rooms which were not needed by Mr. and Mrs. Cheever, kept the apartments locked up.

In his defence this morning Kearns declared that Mrs. Cheever had promised him not only the furniture but a building lot adjoining the house, but it was not stated for what consideration these gifts were promised. According to Mrs. Cheever, Kearns has been dishonest in his dealings with her and although she was formerly disposed toward him at one time she had lost faith in his promises and believes that he ought to be made an example of.

Kearns was rather taken aback by Judge Runyon's disposition of the case and seemed dazed when he was told he would have to remain in the lockup until the requisite amount of bail was secured. He is a youthful appearing blonde complexioned young fellow and does not seem to appreciate his position. There was no one forthcoming with the necessary bail this morning and failing that, Kearns will be taken to Elizabeth tomorrow.

HAMILTON WILL HAVE TO FACE PRORATION OFFICER.

Edward Hamilton, the twelve-year-old boy who was accused of stoning an automobile in which Chas. Pagliucca was riding in the Moose parade on Monday evening, was arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning and after hearing the two sides of the story Hamilton was told to present himself to Probation Officer Hamilton on Saturday morning.

Pagliucca swore that he had been struck by a missile thrown into the automobile of Arthur Giles on the evening in question and besides had seen Hamilton steal several of the penants which the celebrators were dangling from the sides of their vehicles.

Drunk Once More.

Sherdon Jones, a colored man whose home is any place he can hang his hat, was arraigned in the borough court this morning for being helplessly drunk. He was arrested by Marshal Reinman, last night. This makes the fourteenth time that Jones has been arrested on the same charge in the borough during the past two years. The county jail has had no effect upon him and so Recorder Dollive made it a fine of five dollars, which he is to pay in weekly installments of one dollar. He must also show up at the borough jail every Saturday night sober.

Ephraim S. Ackor, Jr.

Ephraim S. Ackor, Jr., the four-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim S. Ackor, died on Tuesday after a short illness. The funeral services will be held from the residence of the parents, Watchung, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

FACES COURT IN TWO COUNTIES IN TWO DAYS

Apparently the experiences of John Dunn, an Englishman, in the borough police court yesterday morning did not influence him in the right direction for Dunn was taken into custody again yesterday afternoon by the local police on a charge similar to that upon which he was incarcerated in North Plainfield, drunk and disorderly.

When arraigned before Judge William N. Runyon, this morning, Dunn declared that he was having a good time, but did not remember having committed any breach of the peace. He complacently contributed $5 to the city treasury in the shape of a fine and went away smiling.

Dunn was found chewing up a wad of bills in his cell in the borough lockup on Monday, but was prevented from destroying his wealth through the vigilance of Marshal Keller. It was observed that he had started in to tank up again shortly after his release from court this morning, but he had declared his intention of enjoying himself in some other town until his money is gone.

Although Dunn described himself yesterday as a laborer he said this morning that he was a machinist of the best kind capable of earning from seven to ten dollars a day and he did not think it was anybody's business how he disposed of his superfluous wealth.

FREEHOLDERS PLAN FOR COUNTY ROAD WORK

Freeholders S. P. T. Wilbur, Henry Krausse, Charles A. Smith and Peter Meisel, comprising the road committee from the Union County Board of Freeholders, and Director Cady and Engineer Bauer, went over several county roads, yesterday, some of which are now under improvement. Among the roads inspected was Westfield avenue, near Roselle, where it is proposed to spread 1,600 feet of Amiesite; also the new Amiesite road on Springfield avenue, the road extending from Westfield to Mountain avenue, Springfield, and the new highway from Turkey road to Mountain avenue, Springfield.

This committee is devoting more than usual time and attention to county roads, because of the extra heavy wear caused by automobiles. Plans are constantly being considered for the preservation of the county roads and the repair of those highways which need attention. A number of patent preparations have been used on the roads with a view to finding the one that will give the best service, and it is believed that this year will come near deciding this important matter, so that in the future the committee will be able to use one standard preparation and thus do away with experimenting.

BOY SCOUTS OFF FOR CAMP AT LAKE GEORGE.

The boy scouts from this city left yesterday afternoon in charge of Chauncey Murphey for a two weeks' Indian life on the shores of Lake George in Earnest Thompson Seton's experiment camp. The boys made the trip to Albany on the night boat and from there will go to Lake George on a train.

There were six in the party that left this city and one more scout is to be added at the lake. He is Julian Hovey, from Washington, D. C. The boys carried their tepee and camp utensils with them in a large wooden box. It was certainly a happy bunch of youngsters that started for the camp and from all indications they will have the time of their lives.

Those in the party were: Chauncey Murphey, Cedric Ostrom, Frank Dunning, Jr., Murdock Hetfield, Schyler Line and William Thompson.

James Davis Going to Texas.

James Davis has resigned his position as manager for the Plainfield Cab Company, of which William J. Hudson is the owner, and will leave tomorrow for El Paso, Texas, where he will take a position as manager for a large stable, where more than two hundred horses are kept. He will be joined later by his family. John Foster, of the cab company, will succeed Mr. Davis.

AFTER M'CARDELL'S SCALP

Fowler, It is Said, Trying to Prevent the Re-appointment of Factory Inspector.

BECAUSE HE IS FOR RUNYON.

Congressional Contest Leads to the First Factional Fight Between Local Republican Leaders.

Trenton, Aug. 17.—As a result of the factional fight among the Republicans of Union county over the question of whether or not Representative Charles N. Fowler is to be renominated, efforts are being made to induce Governor Fort to refuse to re-appoint Andrew McCardell, of Plainfield, as one of the inspectors of the State Bureau of Labor, a job that pays $1,500 per annum.

For many years McCardell has been one of the staunchest supporters of Fowler in Union county, but when William N. Runyon announced his candidacy against Fowler, McCardell lined up in favor of his fellow townsman. McCardell is foreman of the foundry department of the Pond Tool Machine Company, of which James T. MacMurray, city clerk of Plainfield, is general superintendent. McCardell and MacMurray have always worked together in politics, but they took different sides in the Fowler-Runyon contest. MacMurray remained faithful to Fowler, and except for Charles H. Codding, deputy supreme court clerk, who lives in Westfield, is the most influential friend the Congressman has in Union county.

Notwithstanding their close business association, MacMurray is out after McCardell's scalp as an office holder, and he and Fowler are doing their best to induce the Governor to refuse to appoint McCardell.

The impression prevails about the State House that McCardell will be reappointed. He has the endorsement of Senator Ackerman and Commissioner Bryant, of the Labor Department, is said to be satisfied with the way he has handled his job since he entered the service six years ago.

It was reported today that Councilman William L. Gloak is a candidate for Mr. McCardell's place, and that he has the support of Mr. MacMurray. Mr. Gloak is now one of the State tenement house inspectors, and it is said, that he would look with favor on the appointment of factory inspector which has a larger salary attached. It is known that Mr. MacMurray and Mr. Gloak are warm friends and the former, under the circumstances, would naturally do what he could to advance the interest of Mr. Gloak's candidacy.

BUTCHER'S HORSE WRECKS WAGON IN MAD RACE.

A horse belonging to Frank Vanderhoff, a butcher in the City Market, became frightened on Fifth street, yesterday afternoon, and started on a mad race down Watchung avenue. The horse was hitched to a butcher wagon, which was driven by a young boy.

The animal made good use of its heels and demolished the dashboard of the wagon. Not content with this, the horse banged his head against a telegraph pole, and wrecked the wagon completely. The young boy was thrown backward by the force of the impact and rolled out of the wagon uninjured.

The steed then broke loose from the wagon and ran madly up Watchung avenue. At the corner of North avenue the horse slipped on the wet pavement and fell. Several bystanders grabbed the animal and returned it to the owner.

Ham and Eggs Too Much.

Ham and eggs for breakfast and ham and eggs for dinner with luncheon on ham and eggs was too much for William Brownell yesterday and he told his wife so. Then things began to fly. Brownell received a black eye from his wife who handed him the decoration without an apology. Brownell says his grub had too much of a sameness to suit his jaded palate. Mrs. Brownell declared that the grub was good enough for any man whether it was served every day or every week and if her husband did not like her cook, ing he could provide something different. It is believed that a change will take place soon.

LONG WALK BY W. H. HALL

HE WAS TAKEN ILL HERE.

Found Some Sympathetic Friends Who Eased His Journey For Him—Will Re-enlist in San Francisco.

William H. Hall, footsore and weary, reached Plainfield Friday afternoon, after a jaunt afoot from Syracuse, N. Y. Hall is a discharged private from Uncle Sam's army, but he it understood he was honorably discharged with a recommendation for re-enlistment, and he had the necessary documents proving his identity and services.

Hall was destitute, and was seeking assistance to take him to Philadelphia, where he claimed to have a sister in good circumstances. He was seen in Thomas S. Armstrong's drug store, where he had applied to the druggist for some spirits of ammonia. Mr. Armstrong fixed up the dose gratis for the traveler and afterwards he told his story.

He had left Syracuse nine days ago to walk to the Quaker City, and intended to get there before Sunday if it were a possible thing. Among the discharge papers exhibited was one from the Philippines, another from San Francisco, and the third from Governor's Island. In all of these papers Hall was given a good character, and had notes for bravery endorsed on the Far Eastern discharge, which showed that in fighting the Moros he had displayed the calibre of the best of soldiers.

Having buried his mother last week, the excess of which consumed his little capital of $100, the result of months of saving, the man was all but discouraged. But among the few acquaintances he made in this city he managed to find those who were willing sympathizers and who slid a dime in their jeans and provided the wayfarer with the funds for his transportation as well as enough for several hearty meals.

After a visit with his sister, Hall will re-enlist at San Francisco. He says the army life is the best for him and he likes it.

SENATOR KEAN HITS BACK.

United States Senator John Kean has declined the offer of former Governor Franklin Murphy, who is a candidate for his place, to join in an open conference to see where the Republicans of New Jersey desire the Legislature to choose. Senator Kean sent a letter to Mr. Murphy, which the latter received Friday, telling the former Governor what he thought of his challenge. The latter, however, declined to make it public, saying Senator Kean could do that, while the latter retorted that it was up to Mr. Murphy to give it to the newspapers.

Just what Senator Kean's letter contains is not known, but it is said to tell the former Governor in strong but diplomatic language just what the Senator thinks of the Murphy trick, for that is what Senator Kean and his friends regard the Murphy challenge. The Senator is also said to refer in his letter to the many years of friendship which have existed between him and Murphy, suggests the violation of a gentlemen's agreement among Kean, Baird and Murphy, whereby none of them was to take advantage of the primary law.

Senator Kean's friends and the friends of David Baird are angered at Mr. Murphy, and there was some talk yesterday of efforts to relieve the State chairman of the responsibility of conducting the coming State campaign. Mr. Murphy, it was pointed out, was now an active candidate for United States Senator to succeed Mr. Kean, and it was held that, in justice to his party, he should give up the chairmanship of the State committee and devote himself exclusively to the management of his own campaign, as he could not do justice to both.

Some of the more radical, in fact, looked with much favor on the plan to force Murphy out of the chairmanship.

Prepared Orange.

Oranges that have been gathered too soon can be greatly improved by ripening by stove heat; place them in a moderately heated oven for thirty or forty minutes or until they give to the hand like pulling ripe fruit; the rind will then peel off like a glove and be reduced in thickness; if too hot to hold in the hand, use a fork; when peeled remove the seeds and the core, if possible; then, with a sharp knife, or better, long-bladed scissors, divide into portions easily handled; you can safely add a tablespoonful of water and plenty of sugar.—S. ENDORSE JUDGE RUNYON

AN ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION.

Candidate for Congressional Nomination Says He Expects to be Elected—Rahway on the Edge of "Big Things."

Judge William N. Runyon was given an informal reception by the Republican Club, of Rahway, Thursday night, and it proved to be an enthusiastic affair. It was not intended that there should be any speech-making, but the Republicans insisted on hearing the Judge and the latter said that he was impressed with the unanimity of spirit that existed in Rahway, adding that he believed that Rahway was right on the edge of "big things," considering its wonderful possibilities.

Judge Runyon, in company with a party of friends, enjoyed a trip on the Rahway river, and later was a guest at a beefsteak dinner at Hulsizer's Hotel. Among the other guests were prominent members of the party from Rahway and the county. At the conclusion of the dinner resolutions were adopted endorsing Judge Runyon for the Congressional nomination.

Judge Runyon said that he greatly appreciated the friendly feeling that exists toward him in Rahway, as when he first announced himself as a candidate for the nomination for Congress the first assurance of support came from David Armstrong, of Rahway, and subsequent events only strengthened the assurance.

In speaking of the trip down the river, the Judge said it was a unique one, and one of pleasure; from it he realized that there are great possibilities for Rahway, situated as it is with fine water facilities.

"You are right on the edge of 'big things,'" he said. "It is a pity things are so near perfection and yet with present conditions cannot be attained. There are great possibilities in Rahway for large developments. Rahway ought to be in the circle, and she should be, as there are but few places in the State so favorably situated."

The Judge said: "I am a candidate, expect and hope to be elected, and if so will make all honest efforts to give my district special attention and endeavor to see that your river is made right. My ambition will be to do what I can to help you. Rahway will always have a just cause. If I am placed in a position and there is a failure, it will not be for lack of effort on my part."

COMIC COSIES FOR TEAPOT.

It may be the echo of the recent Chantecler vogue that has produced the cosies for the tea or coffe pot or the egg cup in the form of birds' heads.

Whatever the inspiration that called them forth, they are certainly an amusing little novelty and one worth perpetuating.

They are cut in two pieces, or a double piece, to represent a bird's head with bill. The two pieces are stitched together along the outer edges or glued so, according to preference, and are padded as for the ordinary cosey.

In color and choice of material they can represent great ingenuity on the part of the young needlewoman.

One popular model is the head of a hen or rooster in white, with red wattles and comb, and beads or tiny buttons for eyes.

In the larger size the hen broods over a tea or coffee pot, while in minthe egg cup while he breakfaster sits boys his porridge.

Another cosey of the same comic suggestion is the Old Maid model. This is built over a doll whose bisque face is painted to simulate wrinkles. The wig is formed into corkscrew ringlets and is surmounted by a lace cap with strings. The doll would make a skirt of flowered material, with a hoop skirt, in which the cosey is concealed, and a ruffled apron.

A cosey is either of these comic designs would make a good piece of fancy work for odd moments on the porch, and when finished would make a novel gift or prize for fall giving.

Dean Jolts Cornell's Head.

Jacob Gould Schurman, president of Cornell University, was walking across the campus the other day with the dean of one of the colleges, when the chimes of the library tower began to ring.

"Dean," said he, "the music of those chimes is so beautiful that it always sets me dreaming of the past. My boyhood days—"

"What do you say?" interrupted the venerable dean.

"I say the chimes are very, very beautiful. They make me think—"

"What?" yelled the dignified old dean again.

"The chimes—the chimes—how beautiful—"

"Speak louder," cried the dean once more, "I can't hear you for the devilish bells."—Short Stories.

Scientific "Guessing."

Lord Kelvin, half a century ago, put forth the opinion that the age of the earth might be anywhere from 20,000,000 to 400,000,000 years; but later in life, he cut his maximum estimate down to 40,000,000 years. Seventeen years ago, Dr. Walcott, of the Smithsonian Institution, reckoned that our globe was probably 70,000,000 years old. Professor Joly, eleven years ago, estimated the age of the sea at 80,000,000 years; while Solas quite lately reckoned that "old ocean" had rolled over its sandy bed for a period anywhere between 80,000,000 and 150,000,000 years. And now our geological surveyprofessors, having found the same problem of the earth's antiquity wholly beyond their skill, have resorted to "scientific guessing," like all of their forerunners. They "guess" that this world of ours has been in existence somewhere between 55,000,000 and 70,000,000 years.

Since the dawn of human reason, four great problems have occupied the mind of man, viz.: The earth; the heavens above; God the Creator, and man and his destiny. These are still the master studies of the race, and each successive age gives us deeper insight into them. It is a fine thing when men of intellect take up such studies earnestly and with reverence. The more they investigate in this spirit, the sooner will they trace clearly the lines of agreement that exist between science and the Bible, rightly interpreted, and the less need will there be for a resort to "guesswork," such as that we have seen in relation to the age of the earth.—The Christian Herald.

Lucky New Jersey.

We called attention last week when the 1910 census figures for Jersey City, Hoboken and Bayonne were made public to the fact that New Jersey, though lying between two large states, whose chief cities are on its opposite borders, is not being drained of population, but benefited instead by that proximity. Hoboken has grown in the last decade at about the same rate as Manhattan Borough, Jersey City at about the same rate as Brooklyn and Bayonne at about the same rate as Queens and The Bronx. The figures for Camden, just given out, show that on the western boundary of the State conditions are practically identical.

In the decade from 1900 to 1910 Camden's population increased from 75,935 to 94,538—a gain of 18,602 or 24.5 per cent. That is probably a little larger relative growth than Philadelphia will show. In the preceding decade Philadelphia's gain was 23.5 per cent., while Camden's was 30.2 per cent. Philadelphia has not only not drawn population from New Jersey, but has fostered the growth of the communities on the opposite side of the Delaware River. Instead of being dwarfed by its two greater neighbors, New Jersey finds them generous and constant contributors to its prosperity.—The New York Tribune.

The Downtown Meeting.

The reception given Judge Runyon Monday evening at the public meeting of the Downtown Republican Club was enthusiastic and genuine. The sincerity and frankness of the candidate for the nomination by the Congressional district made an impression with the audience, composed largely of workingmen, which would have pleased any aspirant for honors at the gift of the people. The speech was more apologetic than Judge Runyon will be called upon to make again, since certain charges were made in connection with his candidacy which he thought wise in opening his campaign to clear up for all time. Otherwise the address of the man who would be Mr. Fowler's successor showed ability to discuss the issues of the campaign with intelligence, indicating good grasp of National affairs.

Judge Runyon's statement of principles, which gives the voters a good idea of where he stands on important issues, should be read with care by all those interested in the campaign for the Fifth Congressional District. As the campaign develops he will doubtless give his views more fully on the more important questions which are now before the people. It is sufficient now to note that there is no attempt at evasion, and no desire to dodge issues or radical views. Even on the Cannon issue Judge Runyon is entirely sane, declaring himself, in connection with the rules of the House, in favor of "such system as shall best secure fairness and equal rights for all members."

Judge Runyon's campaign for the Congressional nomination has started off favorably; and if he continues to get hearings all over the district as there can be little doubt about the result of the contest in which he is engaged.—Elizabeth Journal.

The Frelinghuysen Boom.

There are, let us say, twenty thousand citizens of New Jersey who own and operate automobiles in that State. We have not the exact figures at hand, but Frelinghuysen, of Somerville, the leading authority on the motor car in New Jersey politics, would know to a car.

Besides the twenty housand automobile owners, more or less, in New Jersey, it may be estimated that there are at least three times that number of citizens and voters, relatives and friends of the above mentioned twenty thousand, who sympathize absolutely with the views and political intentions of the automobile owners. This is because the interests and participation of the non-owning automobilists are precisely the same as those of the recorded possessors. Mr. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, may not believe that the automobilist voters of this secondary description are so numerous or so much in earnest as we think they are, he has a right to his own opinion in that respect.

These eight thousand voters more or less constitute a factor in the contemporaneous politics of New Jersey which is not only numerically portentous but is also a phenomenon of political solidarity. The eight thousand more or less are animated by a single hope and actuated by a single purpose. Their hope is that the Hon. Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, the father of automobilism in politics, may be gratified in his desire to receive the Republican nomination for Governor this fall. Their purpose, in case he shall be the Republican candidate, is to turn upon him and rend him at the polls and leave him there unrecognizable.

Such is the nature of the Frelinghuysen boom in New Jersey. Few politicians have ever entered the preliminary campaign for nomination with a backing like his. The prayers of the eight thousand more or less who believe that the fair name of the State among her sisters demands the political extermination of the Senator from Somerset county, and who are ready to waive for that reason the ordinary considerations of party regularity, will be most enthusiastically for Frelinghuysen up to the time of the Republican State convention. Somerset has already declared for him. His name and fame ought to sweep the other twenty counties like a gasolene whirlwind.

Afterward, meaning next November, Senator Frelinghuysen will be likely to see what he does see up to the moment of election comes. It is an easy problem in mental arithmetic. Consider the eighty thousand more or less now at his back and latter at his fifth rib. Consider the fact that Governor Fort carried New Jersey three years ago by a plurality of 8,000. Subtract Frelinghuysen's eighty thousand from Fort's eight thousand and add the square root of Woodrow Wilson plus the logarithm of that venerable relic of Democratic common sense in campaign management the Hon. James Smith, Jr.—The New York Sun.

The Tuberculosis Hospital.

The plan of the Union County Board of Freeholders to issue bonds for $50,000 to erect a tuberculosis hospital means that sooner than many had expected the fight against consumption in this section of the State is to be put on a thoroughly scientific basis. Everybody who has studied the situation, even though very superficially, has realized that the crying need of the hour in the "white plague" campaign is a place where those afflicted with the disease can be treated to the very best advantage. It has been seen clearly that it is imperative that some place shall be found to care for those who are wasting away in homes where proper care is often lacking, and where the danger of spreading the disease is too often unceasing—as well as for those who can be cured.

The committee of the Board of Freeholders which has had the task of investigating the problem of erecting a county hospital has proceeded very cautiously and intelligently with its work. It inquired carefully into the need for such an institution as the freeholders had been asked to build; it got into touch with public opinion all over the county; it investigated personally what has been done elsewhere to obtain relief for the tuberculosis victims through the specially adapted hospital. Certainly the committee is to be congratulated on the results of its labors, which, it is believed, will put the county in the front rank among the communities in New Jersey which are persistently and intelligently battling to down a common enemy.

Fifty thousand dollars is a large sum of money to spend for fighting a single disease, but in the end the expenditure will be economy. It has been estimated recently that there is one death in every ten in Elizabeth from tuberculosis, and that one person dies every third day from the disease. On the other hand, it has been shown that tuberculosis is a preventable and curable disease. What kind of economy would it be, therefore, to permit this awful sacrifice of human life to go on without taking advantage of the most effective methods of fighting the menace? How fortunate that our county government has realized, notwithstanding the expense entailed, the immediate necessity of coming to the rescue of the people within its jurisdiction! —Elizabeth Journal.

Eldridge, clerk of the Union County Board for the Equalization of Taxes, has received a report from the State board, placing the value of second-class railroad property in Union county at $3,949,289. MATHEMATICAL WONDER IN MISSOURI PRISON.

Asserting that he has made important mathematical discoveries, Michael A. McGinnis, serving a ten-year sentence for forgery in the Missouri penitentiary, has offered to demonstrate his discovery to any committee of mathematicians Governor Herbert S. Hadley may designate if a pardon will be considered his just reward for success, it was learned recently. His communication was sent to the Governor through Dr. D. J. Simpson, of Clarksburg, Mo. Dr. Simpson says the discovery made by McGinnis is the reduction of the general equation of the tenth degree to an equation one degree lower.

Among the discoveries claimed by McGinnis are: First, that for the general solution of an equation containing literal co-efficients, there also lies a general logarithmic solution for its corresponding numerical equation, thus establishing a general method for solving numerical equations by logarithms; second, that he has found the exact ratio of the diameter of a circle to its circumference.

Since the time of Euclid, the ratio has been supposed to be 3.1416 plus. McGinnis says he knows just what the "plus" is. He says he has discovered the exact root of all numbers and that "imperfect squares" will be no more.

"I have known McGinnis for years," said Professor J. M. Greenwood, superintendent of Kansas City schools. "He taught mathematics in a college at Wichita, Kan., also in southern Missouri. A book of his on algebra written, I am told, during a former term in prison, is a marvelous work. But for his misuse of liquor, this man would be an international authority.

"Mathematicians so far never have been able to solve literal equations above the fourth degree. McGinnis says he can work them in the tenth. European mathematicians say that they have proved it impossible to work them above the fourth degree."

SAMUEL GILES FRACTURES RIBS IN FALL AT BEEF HOUSE.

Samuel Giles, of West Front street, met with an accident Friday Company's house on East Third street, met with an accident this morning, while carrying a side of beef from one place to another. In some way he made a misstep, and fell a considerable distance, with the heavy weight of beef on top of him. Mr. Giles was unable to move until a fellow-workman rendered assistance by lifting the weight from his body.

Dr. P. J. Zeglio was summoned at once and removed the injured man in his automobile to his home on West Front street. The physician was under the impression that several ribs were fractured as a result of the accident and Mr. Giles will probably be detained at home for a couple of weeks at least.

BOLD DAYLIGHT HOLD-UP

THE DESPERADO BEATEN OFF.

A bold highway robbery was attempted yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock on the road leading to Mount St. Mary's convent, when Richard Hooper, a driver for William T. Campbell, a Somerset street livery man, was held up twice at the same place. The would-be desperado was unsuccessful in his attempt and made good his escape. The borough police, however, are keeping a sharp look out for him.

Hooper was driving Miss Helen Wyckoff, of New York city, from the railroad station to the convnet. Just as he turned his horse into Terrill road from Mountain avenue, the animal came to a sudden stop. It was not until Hooper leaned over the side of the carriage that he discovered the highwayman at the horse's head, so completely had the robber concealed himself. Without brandishing a revolver or weapon of any kind, the highwayman demanded all the valuables which the two passengers had with them. Hooper then suddenly applied the whip and got away up the hill to the Convent.

As the carriage started off, the robber yelled that he would get them when they came back. He made good his threat and stood waiting for Hooper when he returned after delivering his passenger. The robber attempted to jump in the carriage but Hooper beat him off with the butt of his whip and then sped off toward Plainfield.

He reported the matter at once to the borough police, giving a description of the man, who was about five feet ten inches tall, wore a black suit and slouch hat, and a heavy black beard and mustache. His clothes were badly worn. Acting Chief Marshal Charles Keller went up to the scene of the hold-up immediately but could find no trace of the man. It is supposed that he beat a hasty retreat into the Watchung mountains.

The fact that the hold-up was committed in broad daylight, on a road, which is constantly traveled by automobilists, and by a man apparently without a weapon of any kind, makes the attempted robbery one of the oddest that has been perpetrated in this vicinity in a long time.

The description given by Hooper of this highwayman tallies exactly with the description of a man giving his name as William Duffy, who appeared in the district court yesterday morning, trying to collect wages, which he claimed were due him from a man named Van Nest, who lives in this city. It is supposed that the man became desperate from lack of money and food.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HAVE PERFECT DAY AT THE SHORE.

There was a sunburned happy crowd of nearly two thousand men, women and children, who returned from Asbury Park Friday on the Knights of Columbus excursion. The affair had been a grand success and everybody was happy. Not an accident of any kind had occurred to marr the pleasure of the trip.

The excursion, which was one of the largest that has gone from this city this season, was also one of the most orderly, the running between cars by the children being an absent quantity. The train was made up of two sections.

While at the shore, the excursionists had a chance to witness the aeroplane flights, which took place shortly before 6 o'clock. The train left Asbury Park at 7.20 arriving in this city at 9 o'clock.

The day at the shore was as if made to order. A cool breeze blew in from the ocean and the temperature of the surf which was 69 degrees, enticed many of the excursionists into its boisterous waves.

Want Education Laws Extended.

Dr. M. P. E. Grossmann, of this city, in an address before the convention of the National Education Association, advocated that compulsory education laws should be so extended that they would meet the needs of the many thousands of children who are now outside of the scope of these laws, and at the mercy of the ignorance or bad will of their parents. His address resulted in the appointment of a committee, of which he was made chairman, to draft suitable resolutions looking toward the extension of the laws.

SHARP WANTED TO DIE

Tried Twice to Hang Himself in Cell at Police Headquarters—Finally Went to Sleep.

DR. LUFBURROW CALLED TWICE

Weaver was on Way to Scotland, but Stopped Here for a Drink—Then Lost Consciousness and Money Too.

Maybe John Sharp, a weaver, of Bound Brook, will be more careful with whom he drinks in the future if the emptiness of his pockets this morning proves to be any kind of a warning to him. Mr. Sharp, according to his story to Judge William N. Runyon last Friday said when he arrived in Plainfield, yesterday afternoon, he had considerable money in his pockets, but all he could find when brought from his cell was fourteen cents and he had a hazy idea that he was touched for his roll during a slight deviation from the path of rectitude yesterday.

Sharp was arrested shortly after 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon while staggering along West Front street helplessly drunk. He was taken to police headquarters where he was put to bed on a cot in the hope that he would sober up. Evidently the demon in the rum which he had taken awakened the desire to shake off this mortal coil and, acting upon the impulse Sharp at once began to make arrangements for his trip to the beyond. He originally intended to sail for Scotland and perhaps thought that such a journey was too short or not interesting enough hence the shorter and quicker route to oblivion.

Sharp detached a piece of the chain from his cell door and made a loop around his neck and attempted to strangle himself to death by throwing his weight on the chain. His attempt at self-destruction made noise enough to cause an investigation to be made, and the would-be suicide was released from the chain and City Physician Lufburrow was called in. Sharp then made a second attempt by Sharpe produced the same procedure over again but he was finally quieted.

Last Friday he told a story of illness and the whisky cure which had the elements of truth in it and he was discharged. He declared that he intends to sail for Scotland tomorrow on the Cameronia of the Anchor line. On his way from Bound Brook he was taken with a sudden chill and on the advice of a fellow traveler he got off in this city and got some whiskey to warm his blood. It must have been pretty strong for no sooner had he finished the second glassful, again at the suggestion of his quandam friend, than he lost consciousness and from that time until he came to this morning his mind was a blank. Sharp claimed that he was a weaver and had been recently working in the woolen mills at Bound Brook and owing to continued ill health was going to his native land for a change of air. Luckily for him his ticket and other things are awaiting him at the Anchor line pier in New York or Sharp would have had to swim to Scotland.

McVEY HOTEL PROPERTY SOLD TO EMANUEL KAPELSOHN

The well-known McVey hotel property at West Front street and Clinton avenue, has been sold to Emanuel Kapelsohn, of New York city, by Tapscott Brothers, of 138 North avenue. The new owner will make extensive improvements and will probably convert the property into apartments. This building was originally erected by the Rising Sun Brewery Company, of Elizabeth, but was not used for the purposes intended, owing to the fact that a license was not granted. The original cost of construction was about $23,000 and the consideration in the recent deal was about $15,000 cash.

Mr. Kapelsohn has sold his Park avenue residence, through Tapscott Brothers, to William Foster, of New York. This property was at one time owned by Charles L. Moffett. Tapscott Brothers also sold the property at 223 East Fifth street to Dwyer Brothers, of Bayonne; No. 817 Richmond street to John Myers, of New York and No. 15 Prospect place to Louis Potthoff, of Brooklyn.

DUFFY COULDN'T COLLECT

ASKS HELP TO RECOVER $20.

Receives No Encouragement From Those to Whom Appeal for Aid is Made—Perhaps Someone Will Take up Case.

Will William Duffy ever get pay for a month's work? He is asking others besides himself this momentous question. And with reason, too. Mr. Duffy entered the office of District Colrt Clerk Horace Adams Thursday and after making known to Mr. Adams why he came to him, told his little tale of woe.

Duffy first said that he was an honest laboring man and farmer, and that he had been engaged by a man at the east end of town to work at "twenty dollars a month and found", but that at the expiration of the first month, the twenty not being forthcoming, he had elected to make a change. He said the man's name was Van Ness and that he refused absolutely to pay him the money. A casual acquaintance told Duffy to appeal to Clerk Adams, who would start the machinery of the law for him in an endeavor to collect the twenty.

"I wouldn't work for that man again even if he let me sit in the parlor and play the piano all day and have nothing else to do, if I had to listen to his blackguardly talk all the time I was in the house," said Duffy. "And I'll give anyone of you decently hot enjoyed in many a day.

After his story was told Duffy had to listen to what his chances were for recovering his wages. He received very little encouragement, and went away a disappointed man. He delivered this peroration as he went out of the door: "Things are coming to a pretty pass when an honest man doing the best he knows how under the promise of receiving pay for his labor, is thrown out into the world without the money for which he has worked so hard. I cannot believe or at least I would not believe while I live that such a thing could happen in this part of the world. What's the use of working if you don't get anything for your labor?" Nobody appeared able to answer this poser, and Mr. Duffy wended his way out into the street, apparently unable to comprehend the full meaning of his situation.

Several well known lawyers were present when Duffy told his story, but none of them could hold out any encouragement of recovering his wages for him.

J. C. DYER PASSES AWAY AT ANDOVER, N. Y.

Word has been received here of the death, recently of J. C. Dyer, a former well-known resident of the borough, which occurred at his home in Andover, N. Y. Mr. Dyer for many years lived on Craig place at the head of Duer street, and it was his house that was removed to Grove street, adjoining the home of Dr. D. C. Adams, to permit the opening of Duer street into the city.

Mr. Dyer was for many years engaged in the millinery business in the Scheplin block on West Front street. After retiring from business Mr. Dyer and his wife removed to Andover, N. Y. The latter died a few years ago. Mr. Dyer leaves no children. He was about seventy years of age.

WM. NELSON'S HORSE SAVED BY MR. RAYBERT'S PLANKS.

Had it not been for the prompt assistance lent by Charles M. Raybert, of East Second street early Friday morning, William S. Nelson, of 322 Watchung avenue, would be minus a horse today.

Mr. Nelson was grazing his horse in the lot at the corner of Church and East Second streets when the hind right leg of the animal disappeared and the horse sank up to his middle in a disused cesspool.

The noise created by the animal in frantic efforts to extricate himself attracted a crowd in a short time and various suggestions were given to Mr. Nelson as to how best proceed to save the horse. Mr. Raybert learning of the state of affairs promptly put into use his brains and with a couple of planks soon had the animal on terra firma much to the relief of his owner.

MAY LOWER TAX RATE A FEW POINTS

The local Board of Assessors has about completed its work of preparing the books to be sent to the County Board of Taxation for approval, but as yet no definite figures can be obtained. It is known that there will be a large increase this year in the valuation in this city, and for this reason the assessors hope to keep the tax rate down; in fact, it has been said that it is likely to be a point or two less than last year. This would be welcome news to taxpayers, who have felt that the rate is pretty high.

The councilmanic finance committee in making up its tax budget has cut down various items, all with a view to lowering the rate. The contingent fund for next year was made a thousand dollars less than last year, and the money received from the state for school purposes will also help considerably. The expense of maintaining the schools here is probably the biggest item in the budget, but taxpayers generally believe that the money is well spent and is justified by the results.

PROGRESSIVES NOT LIKELY TO ENDORSE FOWLER

There is a small likelihood of Representative Charles N. Fowler getting a formal endorsement from the Republican Progressives as a candidate for the United States Senate from Jersey. Mr. Fowler has been setting his political sails so as to catch an endorsement, but the Progressives are wary of running into serious shoals by boarding the former's craft and he will be left to work himself into a safe port.

The Progressives plan to let the voters decide the question of the Senatorship so far as they are concerned. At least, this is the position to be taken by the Essex county Progressive aspirants for membership in the House of the Assembly next winter. These candidates will get together in Newark tonight and it is planned that they will then take a pledge to vote for the Senatorial aspirant who receives the greatest number of votes at the forthcoming primaries. In doing this they will not stand as the special friends of any of the men who want to succeed John Kean in the upper house of Congress.

Several of the Progressive candidates for the Legislature are men experienced in the State law-making body, among them being William Fellowes Morgan, Eliot E. Ford, Henry C. Hines and Philip Walsh, Jr. These men have served heretofore as members of the House of the Assembly, having been elected as "new idea" devotees. There is a demand for Colonel Austin Colgate to again make a fight for a legislative office, but it is hardly likely that he will do so because he has given his consent to run as the Republican candidate for Mayor of Orange. There is also some talk about trying to include Colonel Colgate to run as an anti-Cannon candidate for Congress in the Seventh district. It is said George H. Austin, of East Orange, will be the "insurgent" aspirant for the Republican Congressional berth in the Eighth district.

COULD NOT PREACH AND FIGHT—SKEETERS TOO.

Persistent, irreligious mosquitoes have forced a little band of worshippers near South Orange, to abandon their Sunday evening service.

All summer long the Rev. A. Boylan Fitzgerald, the devout pastor of the Hilton Methodist church, has punctuated the service and sermons by slapping at demoniac mosquitoes which attacked his face, the back of his neck his hands. The slaps reechoed from the pews, where the congregation were being pestered by hungry imps which, it seemed to them, were sent by Old Nick himself to distract their pious thoughts. The pastor realized finally that the mosquitoes, seeking prey, left their haunts as the shades of evening fell on just at the time that his congregation sought his church for spiritual teaching and consolation.

"Brethren," he announced after Sunday night's service, "until the first frost"—slap—"a brief vesper service at 4 p. m.—oh, gracious," slap—"will replace the evening service"—slap, slap.

"Amen," the congregation chorused thankfully.

Patience—Isn't this "summer reading" stuff silly?

SOMERSET COUNTY BUDGET FOR 1910 IS $175,000

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders at its August meeting, last week, decided on the county budget for the coming year, fixing the amount to be raised at $175,000, which has been certified to the county board of assessors and these amounts have been decided upon as necessary for bridges in the various townships and boroughs of the county:

Bedminster, $3,700; Bernards, $8,000; Branchburg, $5,000; Bridgewater, $5,000; Franklin, $2,500; Hillsborough, $3,000; Montgomery, $2,500; North Plainfield township, $2,000; Warren, $9,000; borough of Somerville, $500; borough of Bound Brook, $800; borough of North Plainfield, $2,000.

Collector Allen was authorized to borrow $30,000 in anticipation of taxes, and the finance committee reported the following expenses to date:

Courts, $11,684.20; county jail, $2,045.55; buildings and grounds, $2,942.47; lunacy, $6,348.45; coroners, $487.73; stationery and printing, $3,746.91; salaries, $9,981.58; incidentals, $1,775.54; soldiers' burials, $335; county superintendent and school examiners, $294; bridges, total, $16,459.62; per diem and salary (Freeholders), $3,668.84; interest, $9,328.49; armory, $2,601; roads, $17,825.05; courthouse, $1,795.50; Somerset Hospital, $500; totals, $89,439.91.

State Commissioner of Roads Gilkyson sent his written approval for the survey of the road between Neshanic and Centreville, which was ordered filed.

The board will meet at the courthouse in Somerville on Saturday, August 20, to receive bids on a number of bridges. These are mostly in Bernards township and were not awarded at a recent meeting owing to the inability of the Freeholders to interpret clearly the bid of H. W. Hoffman for the work, and it was voted to advertise again for bids and these will be presented at the meeting, August 20.

PLATT ADAMS LEADS Y. M. C. A. SLUGGERS

Platt Adams still continues to lead the Y. M. C. A. sluggers. He has wielded the willow so far this season to the tune of .346; but this has been for only seven games. Fritts continues his good batting and has credited himself with .276 for sixteen games. In the five games which he has played Frederickson has only managed to squeeze out one single, but his box work more than makes up for his batting.

The Y. M. C. A. team is scheduled to play at Raritan on Saturday. Manager Line tried to get the Newark Y. M. C. A. nine to play the local team on the Oval Saturday, but the Newarks couldn't fill the date.

AS TO FICHU EFFECTS.

Fichu effects that are tucked into high belts are one of the favorite bodice draperies. Quite often one sees three deep folds across the shoulders and either end in the wide back panel just above the waist line or, as in this case, under the princess and very slender waist line of the wearer and is finished at this point with a wide folded girdle of black satin. Such a girdle, however, outlining one of the most trying points of a bad figure, is only possible for a very small waist.

The white linen suits are admirable, and white muslin and lawn frocks, with the addition of a long coat of tussore or linen, if the breeze be cool, are useful. Then, of course, the navy blue serge beloved of every woman will not be forgotten.

French women, who seem to know instinctively what will look well, have adopted the black satin bathing dress with enthusiasm. Other gowns of a similar kind are built of alpaca, ornamented with foulard and braid and other materials.

A smart little tailormade of white worsted striped with black has a high cut skirt that goes just above the natural waist line.

MANY GALLANT DEFENDERS

Union Co. Contains Graves of More Continental Soldiers Than Any Other in State.

ALL WILL HAVE MONUMENTS.

Gen. Drake County Supervisor of Burial of War Veterans and Erection of Monuments Presents Interesting Facts.

Last February, General J. Madison Drake, county supervisor of the burial of indigent war veterans and the erection of monuments to mark their resting places, was informed by the War Department that it stood ready to furnish white marble stones for the graves of all soldiers of the Revolutionary War, as well as for those who served in the War of 1812-1815, and the war with Mexico. General Drake communicated this information to the Board of Freeholders, which promptly directed him to ascertain the army record and burial place of the dead soldiers, and have them marked with stones, appropriately inscribed.

For more than six months General Drake has been engaged in the duty assigned him by the freeholders. He has visited every graveyard in the county, examined every headstone, as well as the church records of burials, and already secured the record of nearly 500 Continental soldiers and more than 100 soldiers of the second war with Great Britain.

General Drake says the result of his labors, when completed, will show that Union county contains the graves of more Continental soldiers, including those most distinguished, than can be found in any other county. In the cemetery of the First Presbyterian church of Elizabeth, alone, the first spot in the State devoted to burial purposes, and where the first interment was made, General Drake has ascertained that 251 Continental soldiers were buried between 1775 and 1835. Only a number the names of twenty-four are "unknown," the church records amply registering the burial as that of "a soldier." But twenty-seven of these graves have been designated by iron markers erected by the Sons of the Revolution, and at least one of these marks the grave of a man who did not serve in the American Revolution.

Of those who served in the war of 1812-1815, whose ashes repose in the box work more than makes up has found the graves of twenty-seven, none being marked.

If the trustees of the First church do not object, white marble stones, furnished by the Government without cost, inscribed with the name, rank, regiment and date of death of the heroes of the long ago, will be erected before the close of the year.

In speaking yesterday of the First Church graveyard, General Drake said:

"The graveyard attached to the First Presbyterian church contains the names of more men who became distinguished for signal ability during the war for American liberty than can be found within any other inclosure in New Jersey. The most conspicuous shaft—a marble obelisk —within the grounds is that marking the resting place of the Rev. Jas. Caldwell, chaplain of the Third Regiment, Continental Army, ruthlessly slain by a soldier named Morgan as he stepped from a vessel at the foot of Elizabeth avenue, November 24, 1781. The monument was erected by citizens of Elizabeth in memory of the patriotic chaplain and his wife, who reposes beside him. The latter was murdered by a British soldier at her humble home at Connecticut Farms on the day of the battle there, June 7, 1780.

"In the rear of the church is a vault containing the remains of Gen. Elias Boudinot, president of Congress in 1782, and a determined patriot throughout the Revolutionary War.

"North of the church building, and but a few yards from the front is the grave of General Elias Dayton, who, born in this town in 1735, became a soldier in the British colonial army at the age of 14 years, when he was enrolled as a member of the "Jersey Blue" Regiment. This appellation was first given the corps because of the blue and buff colored uniforms worn by the command. Young Dayton, a captain in the service, in 1759 took an active part in the desperate French and Indian war on the northern frontier and was with General Wolfe when the latter captured Quebec. In 1775 Colonel Dayton organized the Third Regiment and led it in many battles until the retirement of General Maxwell, commander of the famous 'Jersey Brigade,' when he was promoted brigadier-general, succeeding that officer.

Close beside General Dayton, who died at the early age of 43 years, reposes the remains of General Matthias Ogden, 'soldier, patriot, friend,' who served in the brigade from start to finish, dying at the age of 36 years. Nearly is an unpretentious slab bearing the name of Enoch Moses Ogden, aged 19, who gave his life to his country at the battle of Connecticut Farms, being the first American to fall that day.

"Among the group of stones marking the resting places of illustrious men in these grounds, as a Gothic monolith bearing the name of Colonel Aaron Ogden, a bosom friend of Colonel Aaron Burr. He took part in all the battles in which the Jersey Brigade' engaged, and at Yorktown, serving as an aid to General Lafayette, distinguished himself by leading a desperate and successful charge on a redoubt on the British left, winning the personal approbation of Washington, who witnessed his gallantry. Subsequently he was Governor of New Jersey and United States Senator.

"Nearby is a stone marking the grave of Major William Crane, one of the best fighters in our army. So great was his hatred for the British, although he knew of the signing of a treaty of peace by Great Britain, he went to New York one night, accompanied by a number of friends, burned a British gunboat and captured another, which he brought to this town. He was afterward Mayor of Elizabeth.

"Among others buried there are Colonel Oliver Spencer, Major Thomas Morrell, Major Joseph *Bloomfield, Captain Jonathan Day*ton, Captain Jacob Crane, Captain Matthias Lyon, Captain Obadiah Meeker, Captain William Brittin, Lieutenant Shepard Collash (who established the New Jersey Journal in 1779), and many others of the bravest men who served the cause of American Independence."

STATE IS WATCHING INFANTILE PARALYSIS

The State Board of Health is closely watching for developments in the few isolated cases which are said to be infantile paralysis, an ailment which is puzzling to medical men.

"Infant paralysis, so-called," said Dr. Bruce S. Keater, secretary of the State Board of Health, yesterday "is not yet included in the infectious diseases, but the best physicians say: 'Take care of the ones so infected, and keep the child apart from others.'

"It is wise to sequester such a child, for to the best of our knowledge, to the present moment, there is likelihood of the disease being infectious.

"Down in Washington, D. C., where the National Medical Society met this summer, there was a report from a committee authorized to get the infectious elements of this disease, and their report was that this disease, seemingly, was carried along a street by the moisture on the street, and because of the filth, although it was noted that when the street was cleared by rains, that is, heavy rains, the outbreak of the epidemic receded. Apparently the disease is carried by some of these causes enumerated but we are not certain.

"While the physicians and sanitarians are not sure of this disease being infectious, I would recommend to the people of New Jersey that good citizenship requires a family with a child afflicted with this unfortunate disease to keep the child away from others."

GOLD AND SILVER ON GOWNS.

Gold and silver effects have not diminished in favor. These are about equally divided between the antique and the bright silver and gold. A strong feature of the laces and trimmings are the allovers and edges of colored net, combining embroidery in mercerized silk metallic effects with real gold and silver threads.

One of the most attractive of these laces shows a net ground of dark pastel coloring, with scrolloped edges of gold lace, and bold floral designs in highly mercerized threads or floss of metallic sheen.

Ecru and gold nets with figures in gold occupy a prominent place. Black is frequently used to outline these designs, and forms an excellent contrast. Touches of jet appear on some of these laces of metallic tendency, on allover figured nets and bandings. Jet is rapidly becoming a feature on trimming bands, belts, scarfs, and all manner of accessories.

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

A thick hide may be good for an elephant or a politician, but it never could help an honest man.

Strange how some men will put a dishonest dollar in a barrel of honest dollars quicker than they will put a rotten apple in a barrel of good apples.

Do it now—tomorrow some one else may have done it and collected the pay.

I like the truth simply because the truth always has been my unfailing friend.

We bear a good deal about the Almighty Dollar, but there isn't anything almighty about the dollar—it can't even buy you a new conscience, to say nothing of a seat in heaven.

WILL LONG HIDDEN TAKES PROPERTY FROM WIDOW

If a legal way of getting around the problem can be found, it is possible that the First Methodist church of Rahway may refuse to accept the bequest of the property of Elizabeth Ann Randolph, who died in 1893, but whose will has just come to light. It had been kept unprobated and hidden by her son, John O. Randolph, who had a life interest in the property under the terms of the will. Randolph died July 21. In searching through the box in which he kept his papers, his widow, her daughter and the husband of another daughter, now dead, found the will. The widow turned it over to a local law firm. By its terms she and her children are shown to have no interest in the property, which they supposed they had inherited from Randolph. It had always been thought that he owned the property in fee. It is now evident that he knew of the existence of the will and kept its existence secret.

The property consists of two small houses and a plot at Estabrook and Central avenues. The value is worth about $2,500 when Mrs. Randolph died, and is now worth about $4,000. Mrs. John O. Randolph is about sixty years old, and if the church takes the property she will be left penniless. The pastor of the church and members of the board of trustees declare that they are in favor of taking the property, or, at any rate, of taking it until after Mrs. Randolph's death.

The will, besides giving her real band would never permit her to touch the box in which the will and her papers were hidden. A thorough search has been made throughout the house, it being supposed that in his lifetime Randolph secreted papers and money. There is little ground, however, for the belief that he had any great amount.

The will establishes giving her real estate to the church on condition that it erect a monument and keep her grave in repair, provides that $500 in cash be paid to the local council of the American Mechanics and $100 to her niece, Mrs. Sarah Wandels.

NEGRO STEALS NEW CAR FROM ORANGE GARAGE

About as bold a theft of an automobile as can be imagined was carried out in Orange Thursday night, when a negro took a new automobile belonging to Thomas H. Blodgett, president of the Outlook Outing Publishing Company, of New York, from Stanley D. Atkinson's garage at Essex avenue and Railroad place, after having gone so far as to give orders to the proprietor of the garage and after having the tank filled. The negro was a stranger. He had hung around the garage and the neighborhood all day.

Mr. Blodgett's home is at 245 Highland avenue, Orange. He came East from Chicago about a year ago. He learned of a car that had had practically no use, and which was for sale in Chicago, and had it shipped to New York. Yesterday afternoon he drove the machine out to the Orange garage with a man sent by the manufacturer's agent and left it for the night.

Mr. Atkinson was not in the garage when Mr. Blodgett drove in but was there later when the new car was backed onto the washing stand. As Mr. Atkinson stood there the negro walked up to him and in a matter-of-fact tone told him that he need not wash the car yet as his boss would probably want to take an evening spin. A little later Mr. Atkinson went home.

After dark, or about 8:30 o'clock, the negro went to the car and then directed that the tanks be filled by an employe. Saying he was to meet his employer, the negro started into the machine. The car was not running well, and one of the men at the garage told the negro he had better turn back and have it put in better shape.

"Oh, I guess I can manage it all right," the negro replied, and with that he swept around the corner. That is the last seen of him in Orange.

John Miller, a chauffeur with whom the negro had talked during the day, came into the garage about 11:30 o'clock, and the conversation soon turned to the new car. When Miller asked to see the car he was told it had been taken out by the stranger who had been talking with him during the day. He immediately became suspicious and Mr. Atkinson was notified. At 12:30 o'clock, four hours after the theft, the Orange police were notified. They immediately got into communication with the police of the surrounding towns and New York and Philadelphia.

Word was received later from Hoboken that a car answering the description of the stolen car, and driven by a negro, was towed aboard a Lackawanna ferryboat and taken to New York. The officer who reported the incident did not know until he returned to headquarters that a machine was missing, and had made no attempt to follow it.

Every garage in New York city was notified today by telephone and Detective Drabell and Atkinson went to that city to search the garages. Other cities are also being watched.

Mr. Blodgett said today that Atkinson had no foreknowledge that the machine was to be kept in his place. But for the fact that he could not remove a key from the electric equipment, it would have been impossible for the thief to have gotten away with the car, Mr. Blodgett declared. He had tried to remove the key but it stuck.

The negro is described as being about twenty years old, five feet nine inches tall, of slim build, smooth shaven and unusually dark. He wore tan shoes, a black serge suit and a gray cap with goggles.

The car is a thirty-five-horsepower, Apperson "Jack Rabbit." It had a yellow running gear and a dark blue body. It was completely equipped, had a top, a glass windshield with a brass frame and a prestolite gas tank and brass searchlights. On the dashboard was a brass "Jack Rabbit" and in front of the radiator was a brass fender. The letters "J. W. K." were on the tonneau doors. It bore an Illinois tag, the numbers of which are not known. The machine had just cost Mr. Blodgett $2,760, and was not insured, as he had not had it in his possession long enough to attend to this or to get a license.

SALVATION ARMY PLANS OUTING FOR THE POOR.

The local corps of the Salvation Army is now making preparations for a free outing for the poor on Labor Day next. It will be somewhat similar to the very successful one given a year ago, when about two hundred persons were taken to the Watchung mountains and enjoyed a pleasant day. Everything will be provided free, and it is hoped that not one person in the city who has been unable to get to the country some time during the hot months will be overlooked. Tickets will be ready for distribution in a few days. The place where the outing is to be held will be announced as soon as the question of transportation is settled.

AN INDEPENDENT WEEKLY.

A. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

Plainfield, N. J., August 18, 1910.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Corse Payton will celebrate all next week, beginning August 15, at the Academy of Music New York, his twentieth year in the show business by returning to the stage himself and playing "Rip Van Winkle", the role made famous by the late Joseph Jefferson. The play is just twenty years old, and while its hero is supposed to sleep twenty years twice every day, Mr. Payton has been very wide-awake as actor and manager for that length of time. His character is one of the actor-manager's best and he has made a careful study of both young and old Rip.

Miss Grace Fox will be the Gretchen and Miss Ethel Mildon the Meenie. Little Corinne Malvern will play little Meenie. Claude Payton will be the Heinrich and little Florence Perrett, the little Heinrich. Joseph W. Girard will portray the strong character of Derrick von Beeckman and George Storrs Fisher will have the excellent comedy part of Cockles. Next week after "Rip Van Winkle" will be Mr. Payton's last week at the Academy, and his company will be seen in "The Sporting Duchess", after which they will return to Mr. Payton's two Brooklyn houses, the Lee Avenue and the Bijou.

This week's attraction at the Academy is an excellent one, Hall Caine's stirring love drama, "The Christian", in which Viola Allen starred with such success and was supported by Edward Morgen. Minna Phillips has made a triumph as Glory Quayle and Claude Payton is a hit as John Storm, the self-willed young clergyman from the Isle of Man, who goes to London to rescue his sweetheart from her life as a music hall singer, surrounded by rich but dissolute admirers.

ARCHIE STEENGRAFE, JR., IS A CANDIDATE FOR ASSEMBLY.

With a platform that provides, among other things, for a primary vote without the need of a declaration of party affiliations on the part of the voter, Archie Steengrafe, Jr., of South Plainfield, has declared himself a candidate for a place in the Republican Assembly. His declaration of principles is as follows:

"Actuated only by a desire for the public good and by the earnest solicitation of my friends, I have consented to offer my name as a candidate for the Assembly. Should I be elected I shall propose an amendment to the laws governing the primaries which will include the elimination of the extra box, so that all men may vote without a public declaration of their action, for I believe in the secrecy of the ballot. I shall also propose the extinction of those useless commissions which have no power to act only to draw their salaries for I believe that elected or appointed officials should carry their responsibilities, and see no reason for expensive commissions which are not empowered to act.

"I am opposed to the multiplicity of laws on the statute books. I would wish to see sixty-six per cent. of them wiped off and the balance so pruned that they can be understood by every man who has received a common school education.

"I also hold that the United States Senator should be the man of your own choice, and whoever he shall be I shall stand back of him in every endeavor to promote your best interests. I fully realize that the Republican party must in the future as in the past live up to and uphold modern methods and conform to advanced ideas of today."

MISS RAYBERT'S SINGING DELIGHTS SUMMER GUESTS.

Under the auspices of the Upal Banjo Club, of Philadelphia, a delightful concert was given Saturday evening at the Seaside Park Yacht Club, Seaside Park, near Toms River, at which time Miss Etta Raybert, soprano soloist of Trinity Reformed church, took part in the program. There was a large attendance of guests, and the fine program was enjoyed greatly. Miss Raybert sang "Kashmiri Song", by Finden; "The Years at the Spring", by Beach, and, "A Song of Thanksgivinz", by Allitsen, and generously responded to encores. Her singing was a feature of the program, and she was roundly received by the large number of guests.

Miss Raybert was introduced by Former Mayor Weaver, of Philadelphia, who is commodore of the Seaside Yacht Club. Mr. Weaver is spending the summer at Seaside Park, and frequently guests have an opportunity to enjoy the fine naptha launch. Among Plainfielders who spent Saturday and Sunday at Seaside Park were Mr. and Mrs. George Cornwall, who were guests of Mr. Cornwall's sister, Mrs. Crowell.

SEBRING IS ENDORSED

ROBERT KAY IS SECOND CHOICE.

Carl Fleischmann Endorsed for the Assembly Nomination—Plan to Abolish Board of Freeholders.

Charles P. Sebring, of North Plainfield, received the endorsement of a majority of the members of the Somerset County Republican Committee for the shrievalty nomination, at its meeting in Somerville, Saturday. He received nine of the fifteen votes cast, while Robert Kay, of Bernards, was given the balance of the votes. The committee then gave its endorsement to Mr. Sebring's candidacy. This action of the committee has a tendency to strengthen the claims of Mr. Sebring and assure him the nomination at the hands of the party next month.

During the past few weeks Mr. Sebring's candidacy has been rapidly gaining in popularity and his many friends agree that he is now entitled to recognition. At the same time, North Plainfield believes that it is entitled to the office, inasmuch as the other end of the county has been treated generously in the past.

The county committee also gave its endorsement to Carl Fleischmann, of Millstone, for the Assembly nomination to succeed W. W. Smalley, of Bound Brook, who is now serving his fourth term and does not seek a re-nomination. It was said on Saturday that if Mr. Fleischman will accept the nomination he can have it. He is a young man of considerable wealth and has been a good supporter of the party in the past. His candidacy is being looked upon with considerable favor and his friends hope that he will consent to stand for the nomination.

Further plans for the clambake were discussed and it was decided to hold the outing at Witzel's Point Grove on Long Island in September. The date will be announced later. Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of the borough, is chairman of the committee of arrangements.

Another important matter discussed Saturday was that of preparing petitions in one for the purpose of abolishing the Board of Freeholders and substituting commissioners. This matter will be taken up at once so that the question can be voted on at the coming election. It is understood that the Democrats of the county will take similar action. It is the belief that with county commissioners there will be considerable saving to the county over the present method of having freeholders.

CO. K GOES TO HIGH BRIDGE LABOR DAY

At a meeting of the members of Company K in the armory Monday, it was voted to accept the invitation of the citizens of High Bridge to participate in their carnival at that place on Labor Day. The vote was almost unanimous.

The invitation to participate in this carnival is an enviable honor for the local company, as it was picked by Colonel Collins, of the Second Regiment, New Jersey National Guard, as the foremost company in the regiment. The local boys will be the only representatives of the State militia at this carnival. They will parade and give an exhibition drill with the regulation exhibition drill firing by company. The carnival at High Bridge begins on Labor Day and continues for three days.

The camp outfits used by the members of the company at Gettysburg were returned to Quartermaster Sergeant George Apgar last night. An estimate as to the loss of the company by the recent fire was made. It is approximated at over two hundred dollars to the property of the company.

NEW AUTOMATIC GUN

THE SECRET SOUGHT BY TRUST.

Apparently without an explosive of any kind and from a device, the size of which would hardly permit storage of compressed air in quantities of any use, Frederic Bangerter, a Swiss inventor, gave a remarkable demonstration of mechanical law as applied to the use of the machine gun Friday afternoon. The exhibition took place in the factory of the Auto Machine Gun Company at 79 Broad street, Stapleton, Staten Island.

Discharging round bullets at the rate of more than 16,000 a minute and at a distance of about seventy feet, the little secret contrivance without any more noise than was made by the electric motors used to operate it, drove the steel pellets through three layers of pine board, each half an inch thick. Incidentally, numerous possibilities with reference to future warfare were shown.

Hidden under a piece of table oilcloth and mounted in a crude manner, the gun which the inventor claims will do the work of 30,000 men, was placed in a small room at one end of the factory. At the other end were the pine board targets, each layer being separated by about four inches of space.

All that could be seen of the deathdealing device were two hoppers, into which the bullets were dumped, and the plungers by which the steel pills were driven to the point of expulsion. Mr. Bangerter and officials of the gun company explained that in accordance with request of the ordnance department of the government the apparatus was being kept under cover. They added that a glimpse of the mechanism would be sufficient for even a layman to learn the secret of it.

While only the round bullets were used in the demonstration, the claim was made that conical bullets could be discharged with the same precision from the barrels of what will be the standard gun. Being only a model the little machine, it was said, was equipped with smoothly bored barrels, whereas those in the standard gun will be rifled.

The exhibition Friday, like that given some weeks ago for the benefit of United States army officers, according to the inventor, showed the gun doing much more than was expected of it. In constructing the model, Mr. Bangerter declared he figured on penetrating half-inch targets, but that the first and subsequent demonstrations disclosed his invention was capable of doing three times the work.

Aside from the economical viewpoint the claims as to the future of any government that obtains the exclusive right of the machine are such that representatives of the company asserted that the Powder Trust has already opened negotiations for the patent. Alleging that the trust has already offered a large sum for the secret, the gun company officials declared that the conditions were that the machine would have to do only half of what it already accomplishes.

Probably the most striking claim made for the secret is that it will put an end to future wars, even going so far as to discourage any further attempt at the perfection of the aerial war engines. With the possibility of such destructive powers to face it is figured out by the inventor that no country would venture into into conflict.

Mounted on an automobile that will run sixty miles an hour it was pointed out that no matter how fast the bullets are discharged, the gun will never heat or explode. Placed on a swivel it may be operated so that the barrels may be turned to any direction and shoot with a force that is calculated to kill at a distance of a mile.

Mr. Bangerter, the inventor, is a native of Switzerland, and claims that he was an employe knows the secret of his invention. Capitalists who furnished the money for the building of the apparatus, he said, were obliged to put their money into the company without learning anything more about the gun than was shown by the demonstration, although mechanical experts employed by them plied him with questions for ten hours.

Speaking of the expense of firing a million bullets, the inventor declared it would cost $20 with his machine, while the cost of firing the same number of bullets with powder and shell would be about $20,000. The muzzle velocity, he claimed, is greater than that of any other gun made and at the same time has greater penetrating force.

The velocity of the projectiles will be more than 3,000 feet a second, it was asserted. At the point of expulsion the bullet will have a velocity of 800 feet a second, and by the time it reaches the middle of the barrell it will have increased to 1,600 feet a second, while as it leaves the barrel the speed will be 3,200 feet, which, it is claimed, is 600 feet greater than the ordinary velocity of the explosive bullets.

MEISEL'S CANDIDACY MEETS WITH FAVOR

Although the Union County Republican Committee does not formally endorse any candidate, at a meeting of the committe in Elizabeth, Monday night, the candidacy of Freeholder Peter Meisel as successor to Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, seemed to meet with considerable favor. It now looks as though Mr. Meisel will be the choice of the party for the nomination and, according to his many friends in the county, if nominated he will be elected.

There was little business of importance transacted at the meeting. An incomplete report from the outing committee was received, showing that the affair was a success. All the returns have not yet been made. County Chairman Frank H. Smith presided at the meeting and all of the other Plainfield members were present. Some time was devoted to a discussion of the situation in the county and all seemed optimistic as to the result.

James White made an informal report on the Dollar Dinner to be held at Elizabeth on October 6, stating that plans for the affair are progressing favorably. The dinner this year promises to be the biggest one in the history of the party.

LEVY & CO. SIGN LONG LEASE FOR FACTORY

Charles H. Hand announced today that he had signed a ten years' lease with Nathan Levy & Co., manufacturers of women's underwear, for his building on Watchung avenue, which has been occupied by the concern for the past eleven years. The lease has an additional clause which calls for extensive improvements, which are now under way.

These improvements will make the factory almost double its present size and capacity. By the addition of an entirely new floor, with dimensions of 160 feet long by 35 feet wide the company will make room for fifty more sewing machines and positions for more than eighty girls.

The new lease goes into effect May 1st, 1911, and extends until May 1st, 1921. Mr. Hand said this morning, when interviewed by a Daily Press reporter, that the term of the lease was considerably in advance of the old figures. Thus the increase in the value of the property, especially of manufacturing sites, in this city within the past few years is clearly shown.

The repairs which are being made upon the property consist in a new second floor above the present floor of the factory; a brick wall between the factory and the living apartments; a new steel ceiling in the main building; a new steam heating plant, and two wall hydrants for better fire protection.

The building in which the factory is located, is well known to Plainfielders as the old skating rink. It was built in or about the year 1880 by John Evans, who sold it to Frank H. Barnaby, of New York city. Mr. Barnaby conducted a skating rink and amusement hall there for several years and then sold the building to Charles Hand. Mr. Hand continued to use the place as a skating rink for seven years and then he remodeled the place and leased it as a skirt factory. The building has been used in its capacity for the past fourteen years being occupied by several different firms.

At the present time there are over 180 Plainfield girls employed in the factory, whose business extends over the whole United States. There will be room for a large force of girls, but the officers of the company fear that they will be unable to get them as such help is scarce in this city. When the new alterations are completed, it is expected that the total output of he facory will be increased by nearly 40 per cent. The repairs will be finished before the first of next year.

GREAT ELECTRICAL SIGN AT K. T. CONCLAVE.

A feature of the thirty-first triennial conclave of the Knights Templar in Chicago was the use of the largest electrical spectacular sign in the world. The sign was 133 feet high, 66 feet wide, weighed 19 tons, with 20,000 feet of wire and 5,000 feet of steel cable in the construction. The lamps which were used were made with the Tungsten filament.

Henry Liefke and Judge John Uhlrich were the Plainfield representatives at the conclave. Mr. Liefke has returned to this city, but Judge Uhlrich still remains in Chicago.

PLANS FOR CONVENTION

Probable That Republican Congressional Gathering May Be Held in This City.

WILL ANNOUNCE DATE SOON.

Believed That Bringing Convention Here Will Strengthen the Candidacy of Judge Runyon—Fowler to Visit Here.

Additional interest in the approaching campaign was found today in the announcement that the Republican Congressional convention for the Fifth district will probably be held in this city soon after the primaries on September 13. County Chairman Frank H. Smith has communicated with the members of the committee, requesting them to fix the date for a convention, and it has been suggested that it be held here. This will be the first time in a great many years that such a gathering has been held in Plainfield and the possibilities of it has only served to arouse greater interest in the candidacy of Judge William N. Runyon, who is seeking the Congressional nomination in opposition to Charles N. Fowler.

Alexander Gilbert, of this city, is chairman of the Congressional committee, other members being John I. Howe, of Roselle; Harry A. Van Gilder, of Morris county and J. Walter Ingham, of Warren county. Plans to bring the convention here are looked upon by the friends and supporters of Judge Runyon as a good political move and doubtless would have a tendency to strengthen his claims for the nomination.

Judge Runyon is conducting an active campaign and leaving no stone unturned in presenting his claims to the voters throughout the Fifth district. He plans to visit Warren and Morris counties within the next week or two for the purpose of meeting the voters and the leaders. His friends are also devoting their time in the interest of his candidacy. Encouraging reports have been received from Hunterdon county where "Uncle Dan" Voorhees is doing all in his power for the Plainfield man, and today it was learned that practically all the Republicans of Berkeley Heights who are for Judge Runyon, are doing some good missionary work in Morris. Much good work is also being accomplished in Warren county.

Congressman Fowler and his close advisers have mapped out a plan of campaign, a secret meeting being held at Elizabeth, Monday, to discuss further details. It was learned that Mr. Fowler decided to spend this week in Union county, visiting every city, town and borough, and that every day would be devoted to Plainfield for the purpose of trying to strengthen his cause.

The Representative from the Fifth district is not likely to find many warm supporters in this city with such a candidate as Judge Runyon opposing him. It is the general opinion that the latter is the most popular man in the county that could have been selected to make the fight. This is shown by the constant assurance he is receiving every day from friends not only in the county, but in other parts of the district.

POSTMASTER BIRD OPENS SUB-STATION, NO. 3

Postoffice sub-station No. 3 was officially opened Tuesday morning. The new branch office is located in the confectionery and ice cream store owned by Elmer R. Mills at Clinton avenue and West Front street.

The office is designated to sell postage stamps, postal cards, domestic money orders and to register letters. In the new station handles everything that the home office does except foreign money orders and the distribution of mails. All mail is given out and distributed directly from the main office.

Mr. Mills opened the office with a goodly supply of stamps and other useful postal material and is ready to do a big business.

This branch office will be a great convenience to the residents of the West End. Formerly the people living near Clinton avenue were compelled to travel over two miles to purchase a one-cent stamp. Now stamps can be secured within a short distance and mailed in the office, from which regular collections are to be made.

Plainfield's postal system is now developing rapidly in size, two substations having been opened during this year. Beside, increasing the efficiency at the main office, Postmaster Elias Bird is being complimented upon having opened three sub-stations, one at Debbe and Stahl's store on Somerset street, one at J. C. Field, Jr.'s store on Park avenue, and the last one at E. R. Mills' store at Clinton avenue, for the convenience of the citizens of the city and borough.

MOOSE PARADE IN RAIN

Six Hundred Members Representing Six Cities Join in Celebration.

ANDREW McCARDELL AT HEAD.

Joseph Harrigan, F. J. Blatz, John Green and William Addis Among Officers of New Lodge.

The Moose is a hardy animal, as witness the parade of Monday night in the rain. More than six hundred men of the order braved the downpour and marched over the entire route announced in yesterday's Daily Press. The paraders were headed by the Citizens' Band of Somerville and with Joseph Harrigan at the head of the column presented a real martial aspect as they formed columns of fours and marched out toward Grant avenue, followed by several carriages and automobiles containing out-of-town visitors and officers. Andrew McCardell in his Mitchell car headed the procession of vehicles.

Much red fire was burned by the enthusiastic crowd, all of whom carried little canes decorated with a triangular flag bearing the insignia of the order. Hundreds of the little flags were distributed along the line of march. A whistling chorus executed by the Moose from other cities was a feature of the music.

The parade formed in front of Henry Windham's hotel on Front street, where another band discoursed music from a wagon illuminated with huge oil torches. This concert lasted from 6:45 until the marchers had returned on their way to Baesterbund Hall in the borough. At the hall, after the installation, Past Dictator Andrew McCardell, Joseph Harrigan and others made speeches, after which the members repaired to the banquet hall, where they enjoyd themselves until after midnight.

The mayors of several cities who had been expected to take part in the parade with their automobiles were detained by the weather, as were several other delegations. At the business session last night fifteen members were added to the local lodge from Amboy. This group is to form the nucleus of a new lodge to be established there in the near future. Nearly one hundred others were obligated last night, bringing the total up to about three hundred in Plainfield No. 310.

Among those initiated last night were Hugo Vanderlinden from Proctor's theatre, who took this opportunity of joining so as to be acceptable at lodges in the West where the Moose flourishes.

The first lodge of Moose was established at Camden about two years ago, and during that time the lodge in that city has bought and paid for its own home, having a building costing $125,000. At Trenton the Moose have their own home, which was dedicated about six weeks ago, and it is said to be one of the finest fraternal halls in the country. Plainfield lodge will shortly have its own home and to this end the members will work with all possible vigor.

The officers of the new lodge are: Past Dictator, Andrew McCardell; dictator, Joseph Harrigan; vice-dictator, Francis J. Blatz; prelate, John Green; sergeant-at-arms, William Addis; trustees, C. W. Fogarty, Chas. Kling and H. P. Greenwood. To the above officers and John Vardon, chairman of the celebration committee, is due the splendid success of the inauguration of the new order in this city.

During the parade last night some one threw a stone through the glass windshield of Arthur Giles' automobile. Another case of stone-throwing during the festivities was accumulated for in the police court this morning. Edward Hamilton, of North avenue, is accused of having stoned Charles Pugaluca, an Italian. This case will come up before Judge Runyon tomorrow morning.

PENNINGTON ALUMNI TO CELEBRATE AT OCEAN GROVE.

Alumni and friends of Pennington Seminary will gather in great numbers at Ocean Grove on Monday next, August 22, for the annual celebration of Pennington Seminary Day. Two public meetings will be held in the Young People's Temple at 10 a. m., and 7:30 p. m. At these there will be addresses by the Rev. Dr. J. Morgan Read, the president of the seminary; Bishop L. R. Wilson, of the M. E. church; the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Mead, of Hoboken; the Rev. Dr. John Handley, of Long Branch; A. La Bagh, Esq., of Yonkers, and Willis Fletcher Johnson, of the New Jersey State Civil Service Commission.

There will be elaborate programs of vocal and instrumental music, including numbers by the Aida Quartette. Following the evening meeting there will be a reception at the Arlington Hotel, Ocean Grove. All alumni and friends of the seminary are urged and the general public invited to attend.

THOS. J. CAULFIELD KILLED

Mystery in Death of Plainfielder Who was Found on Railroad Tracks.

ON HIS WAY TO EASTON, PA.

In July Last Caulfield Received Fractured Skull in Altercation at Local Hotel—Funeral Tuesday Morning.

The death of Thomas J. Caulfield, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Caulfield, of 303 Johnstone avenue, who was found dead on the tracks of the New Jersey Central near Bloomsbury, Sunday morning, is shrouded in mystery. No one seems to know how or when the young man met his death. It is supposed that he fell from the train on which he was going to Easton and that another train, thought to be a freight ran over him as he lay in a dazed condition on the railroad tracks. The body of the young man was found by a railroad employe, who immediately notified a coroner and the body was removed to the morgue in Easton. Here an investigation of the clothing on the body was made and a mason's union card, of which young Caulfield was a member, revealed who the dead man was.

Word was sent to James Caulfield, the father of the dead man, and he, accompanied by his son John, went to Easton immediately. They identified the body that of Thomas J. Caulfield. The remains were brought to this city Sunday night.

Thomas Caulfield was well known in this city. He was a mason by trade and was twenty-four years old. He had lived in this city for more than a score of years. He left Plainfield Saturday night to take a job at Easton, Pa.

Several friends saw Caulfield just before he left the city and noted nothing strange in his actions. He stopped in the Kensington Hotel to say good-bye to some friends there and then started for the 5.23 train for Easton. He came back to the hotel shortly after just missed his train. He waited around the hotel until the next train for Easton. His friends, who were in the hotel at the time, said he was in good spirits and perfectly sober at the time of his departure.

On July 4, 1909 Caulfield received a fractured skull in an altercation in the Hotel Iroquois from which he since has declined. It is believed by many who know him that this injury began to trouble him and that he became dazed and was thrown from the train. There were no marks on his body to show that he had been the victim of foul play.

Mr. Caulfield is survived by his father and mother, a sister and two brothers, as members of his immediate family.

FAKE MASONIC LODGE MEN ARE ARRESTED.

Charged with using the mails to defraud aspirants to membership in the Masonic order, Darius Wilson, of East Roxboro, Mass., is held in $1,000 bonds in Boston for trial August 22. He was arrested at Brockton on charges of using the mails in a scheme to defraud. Wilson has been arrested before in St. Louis and in Newark on similar offered to make persons genuine charges. It is alleged that Wilson Masons for a small imitation fee, which he would make be made them "Egyptian" Masons, a body of no affiliation with the society of Free and Accepted Masons.

Postoffice Inspector Clarahan says that in every case he investigated the "initiated" person believed he would become a "genuine" Mason by joining the "lodge".

Wilson became a Mason by joining the Yonnondio Lodge 163, F. and A. M., Rochester, N. Y., February, 1863. He became a Royal Arch Mason, and a member of the Scottish rite, and has been granted special rites in France, Spain and in Scotland.

In 1902 he was expelled for organizing clandestine lodges.

Darius Wilson and his son were arrested in Newark a year ago, while preparing to confer "Masonic degrees" at $7 per head. The elder Wilson was held over in the Second Precinct Court on a charge of false pretenses and indicted by the grand jury. He was released under $1,500 bail pending trial.

Chief Weimer, of the prosecutor's office in Newark, said Saturday that it was their intention to bring Wilson to trial at the September term, the reason for the delay being the press of business produced by the Snead-Anson and other cases.

Tea Room at Truell Hall.

A tea room has been opened at Truell Hall and it is a feature which is appreciated by the guests and the other residents in that section. The room is pleasantly situated, overlooking the tennis court; its decorations are of the Oriental character and the effect is wholly conducive to the serving and drinking of tea. Visitors are always welcome.

B. F. CORIELL FOR MAYOR

WILL OPPOSE G. W. V. MOY.

Congressman Fowler Gets Chilly Reception While Judge Runyon Is Given the "Glad Hand."

Aside from the fact that Congressman Charles N. Fowler joined the Union County Republicans on their annual outing to Rockaway Beach, Saturday, the most important happening of the day was the selection of a candidate for the Mayoralty nomination on the regular ticket. The man chosen to lead the party in this city is Former Sheriff B. Frank Coriell, and before the trip was concluded his petition was prepared and almost the required number of signatures were obtained.

When the matter was first mentioned to Mr. Coriell he declined the honor, but when he discovered that nearly everyone of the Plainfield delegation was for him, he finally consented amid the cheers of the large crowd. No time was lost in preparing the petition and getting signatures. This action means that Mr. Coriell will have for his opponent in the primary, George W. V. Moy, the choice of the Progressive Republicans and a lively campaign is promised. Mr. Coriell is thoroughly equipped for the position, having served the city in the Common Council several terms and is in close touch with city affairs. He is also a large property owner and his business interests being here, he would be able to devote considerable time to the office, if he should be elected.

As for the outing, it was a great success. Nearly six hundred of the faithful ones were aboard, a larger crowd than was expected, and among the notables were United States Senators John Kean and Frank O. Briggs, Congressman Charles N. Fowler, Judge William N. Runyon, who is seeking the Congressional nomination; State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, Hamilton F. Kean, John I. Blair Reilly, of Warren; J. H. Capstick, of Morris; Assemblyman Lloyd Thompson and Augustus Schwartz and many office-seekers, including all the aspirants for the city judgeship in this city, except V. W. Nash. County Chairman Frank H. Smith lead the county delegation. Among others present were Donald McLean, Senator Kean's secretary, and William Evans, who holds a similar position for Senator Briggs.

One of the greatest surprises of the day was the presence of Congressman Fowler, and his reception was a chilly one. He held fort at one end of the boat, while Judge Runyon, his opponent, was at the other end. It was plainly evident who was the most popular man of the two. Everyone had the "glad hand" out for the Plainfielder, while Mr. Fowler did not seem to be so much of an attraction.

Mr. Fowler did not appear to enter into the spirit of the occasion and as many recalled the harsh things the conservative added about them, recently, no efforts were made to make the trip a pleasant one for the Elizabeth man. Some one handed him a copy of William Jeffery's song, and the Congressman was noticed tearing the paper into pieces and throwing it overboard.

The leader discussed the question of a successor to Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, and Freeholder Peter Meisel, of Springfield, appeared to be the choice for the nomination. Dr. J. Edwin Rowe, of Summit, was also mentioned, but Mr. Meisel's claims seemed to impress the leaders more forcibly.

It was nearly 10.30 o'clock when the Steamer Isabelle left Elizabethport for the trip, and as the committee had planned to serve all refreshments on board, instead of giving a dinner at Rockaway Beach, it was nearly 3 o'clock when the boat reached the latter place. After landing, the committee escorted the invited guests, including Senators Kean, Briggs, Congressman Fowler, Judge Runyon, "Uncle Dan" Voorhees, Mr. Capstick and Mr. Reilly, and the Assemblymen, to a hotel, where dinner was served.

After spending a few hours at the Beach, the start on the return journey was made at 6:20, the party reaching Elizabethport about 9 o'clock. The crowd was so great that not only did the badges, bearing a fine picture of Senator Kean, give out, but there was a shortage of cigars. On the trip down to Rockaway, Councilman Herbert Buxton was at the wheel of the boat for a time, and he directed its course as successfully as he does the affairs of the city.

The question of a successor to City Judge William N. Runyon did not reach a conclusion, Saturday. There are several aspirants for the job, and it looks now as though a conference will be necessary in the near future to pick the strongest.

man, who is in Genoa, and in consequence could not go on the outing, sent a telegram to Andrew McCardell, chairman of the outing committee, wishing all a good time. This was read on the boat.

The Plainfielders who were on the outing included, in addition to those already mentioned, Winfred S. Angleman, Postmaster E. H. Bird, John Bowman, Tax Collector W. R. Townsend, James Stewart, Councilman Herbert Buxton and William A. Gloak, James Morrison, Francis J. Blatz, William G. DeMeza, Harry C. Runyon, J. Henry Crane, Robert Newton Crane, William Jeffery, and the Berkley Heights delegation, and a host of others.

An amusing incident occurred in connection with the outing. Councilman F. L. Montgomery, who, it was said, planned to go to Rockaway Beach, got on the wrong train and landed at Asbury Park, where he spent the day.

The committee in charge of the outing comprised Andrew McCardell, chairman; Herbert Buxton, Gloak, James Morrison, Francis J. Blatz, William G. DeMeza, Harry C. Runyon, J. Henry Crane, Robert Newton Crane, William Jeffery, and the Berkley Heights delegation, and a host of others.

GLORY IN TRIBULATION

Rev. Dr. C. E. Bronson, at Union Service, Says It is a Blessed Asset

GOD'S PURPOSE IN TRIALS.

"The Life Which Has Never Tasted of the Cup of Sorrow and Trial is Not the Best by Far," Says the Preacher.

The Union services were held Sunday night in the First Presbyterian church, with not as large an attendance as usual. The sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Bronson, pastor of the West Hope Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia, who occupied the pulpit of this church in the morning. Owing to the absence of the choir, there was no special music at the service.

Dr. Bronson took for his text last night the third verse of the fifth chapter of Romans: "And not only so but we glory in tribulations also; knowing that tribulation worketh patience." In the course of his remarks, Dr. Bronson spoke in part as follows:

"To learn to glory in tribulation and trial and sorrow is one of the greatest and most blessed assets, which one can possess. But few of us have this faculty in our possession. When we are in the midst of sorrow and trouble, we often become discouraged with ourselves and with almost all about us, fearing that per chance it is on account of our faults that these trials have been sent upon us. But then we should question ourselves whether or not God has any purpose in sending such tribulations upon His children, whom He says He loves and protects.

"But we find that the life which has never tasted of the cup of sorrow and trial is not the best life by far. Something is lacking in it. From this we learn that God strengthens our lives by just such trials. By means of these sorrows our weaknesses are uncovered and we find ourselves more dependent but independent of some outside power. Our lives are like a frontier farm, which needs the careful hand of the farmer to rid it of the rocks and weeds before it will bear fruit. And so we are tested by the standard of trial.

"As a young bird first learns the latent powers, which are in its wings, when it is forced to fly from danger, so we discover our own powers when we are brought face to face with opposition and trial. God wants manhood and character and He will have it at any price. The school of adversity made and it is well to be men and women of character, we must needs listen to the teachings of this school and take our lessons in trials and tribulations.

"It is not always for our own benefit that we are compelled to taste of the cup of sorrow—far from that. But by learning the bitterness of that taste, we are able to share its burden with those about us and sympathese with them.

"Then through the school of adversity and sorrow we are able to come into contact with Christ. Unless we have tasted of the cup of sorrow, we can never fully come in the power and understanding Christ and His love for us.

"Put back all mystery about the causes of the sending of tribulation and remember that God is a kind and loving Father. If your brook has dried up perhaps it is God's purpose to give you something larger and grander to accomplish. God can give you the victory over tribulation and can vanish all fear. Remember that a life of poverty, the life which was begun in a manger, the life full of opposition and trials —the life of Christ your Saviour— was the grandest life that has ever been lived. With such thoughts in mind and with God's help perhaps we can say then, as the apostle Paul said, "I glory in my tribulation."

CONSCIOUSNESS OF GOD

INSPIRATION FROM PSALM 139.

"Man Not What He Seems to be, But As He Is"—Must be Transfigured and Transformed.

An unusually large congregation gathered in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Sunday morning to listen to Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, of New York, who acted as supply in the absence of Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie. Dr. Eaton did not fail of appreciation, his eloquent, forceful discourse holding the attention of everyone from beginning to end.

The subject of the sermon was taken from the whole of the 139th Psalm and under the interpretation of Dr. Eaton the psalm itself became not only a poem, but a sermon full of the richest of thought. "The Consciousness of God," was his topic and it was unfolded to his hearers in so unmistakable a way that it was impossible for one to have heard without having been immeasurably thankful that one was privileged to have been present.

In the beginning Dr. Eaton declared that in order to get into close touch with God it was essential to remove the thing which has obtruded itself between us and the Divine. "Take the psalm as an inspiration," he said, "and it will lead you to think and to pray and to finally feel the repugnance for sin which was felt by David."

"Do not be too swift to believe men when they say that all books of genius are inspired. The Bible is unique in this distinction and alone between its covers carries the conviction that God in it is expressing Himself to us through His ministers. A normal human being is divine in his attributes because he is made in the image of Him who created all things, and it is this Divine thing which, coming into your life and mine brings to us that consciousness of the existence of God.

"Fifty years ago certain teachers brought Jesus Christ down from the sky and made Him human. That is the kind of Christ I want. I want Him nearby, right at hand, where I can feel his influence, although I cannot see nor hear Him I know he is all about; in the air and in our homes, in our hearts and in our every day lives. I feel I ought to be able to find Him here. Therefore the Unitarians did a great service when they eliminated certain things from the common belief of the theologians and brought to us a personal Christ. It has been a wonderful thing for humanity.

"God must be the influence for the right kind of life. Without the consciousness of His being we are as the sailor without a compass or the watch without a spring. I may have a fine plot of ground and I may cultivate it after the most approved methods, plant the best seed carefully superintend its development, but without the sky and its elements my garden will be a failure. Nothing good will be produced.

"It is of no use to tell men to be good. We must grasp them as we find them—transfigure and regenerate them by the divine love of the Master, Jesus of Nazareth. If you could see men as I have seen them, in the purlieus of the slums in a great city and on the avenues where are the dwellings of the rich, you would see men as they are, not as they appear to be. It is thus being able to get close to men that gives you the opportunity to tell of the limitless power of the God whom you profess to love and obey. It must be some one of divine power who will do this and that one is Jesus.

"This psalmist sang as no other could sing, 'O Lord Thou hast searched me and know me.' He sang from a heart full of the presence of this Maker and from whom every aspiration came as though thrilled with the very essence of God Himself."

"I am thoroughly convinced that Christianity in America stands in need of the awakening to a consciousness of God. I believe the American people are becoming more humane, but they will be more so when the men in public life are allowed to pursue their chosen duties without the interference of the malicious. It were best to tell man of the gulf which lies between what he is and what he might become for it will help them to see how pitiful is their present condition. Pilate was an interesting character. He was a good man and a good judge, but he broke into a world that he did not know. He knew what he should do, but he had not the moral courage to do it. Men are the same today they know they ought to do differently, but they haven't the moral courage to try. Don't frown down on your brother or sister who may have fallen into sin for you never can tell when it may be your turn and regrets are useless.

No matter how lowly your condition remember that money cannot purchase anything more than what God in His wisdom has intended for you. If you can see the beauty of all around you, can taste of the glories of God in what your senses can tell you; if every faculty is perfect what more can money get for you? Most things do not matter in life. There are very few things worth fighting for, but those few are worth living for. Fight for the skies, for eternity. Fight for God and let the other things go. Let us get a true perspective of men and see them as they are for just so will be the measure of our success with them. Let us bring to them the consciousness of God."

Miss Adam, of Yonkers, presided at the organ in place of Mr. Russell and filled the position with credit to herself and pleasure to the congregation. Mr. Pilcher, the tenor of the choir, sang beautifully, "Come Unto Me."

A CLEVER CLAIRVOYANT

WAS CLEVER PRESIDIGITATOR.

The Woman Consulted the Bogus Seer and Now Mourns the Loss of a Valuable Keepsake.

When is a diamond tied around your neck, safely ensconced in a chamois bag, not a diamond? It's easy when you have a clairvoyant in the bag carefully for you, especially after you have consulted the seer. This is what Mrs. John Stevens has just found out, after having consulted a so-styled prowler in the mysteries of the occult, and today she mourns the loss of a valuable solitaire which was the property of her daughter.

According to the story told in connection with the disappearance of the bauble, Mrs. Stevens had in mind a trip to the sea shore and in order to take no chances with fate decided to interview the dealer in futures as to the prospects of a pleasant vacation.

The clairvoyant, who had been visiting for the past week at a house next door and had ingratiated himself into the good graces of the neighbors, was glad to see Mrs. Stevens and at once took note of the ring on the left hand woman. He advised her that to expose such a valuable bit of jewelry to the vulgar crowd was to tempt Providence. Producing a chamois bag, he advised Mrs. Stevens to put the ring in it, and he immediately fastened the bag around her neck so that it could not possibly be stolen, and proceeded to tell her what might happen during the coming visit to Asbury Park. Instead of fastening the bag with the ring in it about Mrs. Stevens' neck, he deftly substituted one that was empty, and after Mrs. Stevens had departed on her journey the clairvoyant also disappeared, and has not since been seen.

Mrs. Stevens discovered her loss shortly after her arrival at the beach and instantly wired the police in this city, stating the circumstances. But the thief had flown. A good description of the man was wired to all the principal cities in the State, as well as New York city, and the authorities have hopes of apprehending the man.

The ring, besides having an intrinsic value of more than a hundred dollars, is also valued as a keepsake by Mrs. Stevens.

BOUND BROOK GAME ENDS IN A DISPUTE.

What might have been a very exciting game between the Bound Brook and McNulty Brothers baseball teams at Bound Brook, Saturday afternoon, ended in a dispute in the seventh inning with the score 6-6. The McNulty team withdrew from the field and refused to continue the game.

In the seventh round, Umpire Daily called Reeves and Donnelly both out at third whereupon Seaman called Daily a vile name, which the latter resented. The two came to blows and were quickly separated. The McNulty team then withdrew from the grounds.

RARITANS DEFEAT Y. M. C. A.

Through Errors the Local Team Loses Thrilling Contest by a Score of 4 to 1.

ONLY 6 HITS OFF FREDERICKSON

Peacock and Fritts Distinguish Themselves by Fine Work—Conty Gets Three Safeties and a Double.

In another one of those fast snappy games, the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team went down to defeat at the hands of the Junior baseball team of Raritan at that village by the river, Saturday afternoon. The score was 4-1, but the game was a thriller nevertheless for the Raritan boys made their runs on errors and, in a bunch, and the local players scored their tally in the second inning, thus making it an up hill fight for the home team.

Frederickson, in the box for the association team, pitched a classy article of ball but fate was against him. The Raritans could only muster six scattered hits from his delivery but errors helped to swell their score. The Plainfield team was minus the services of the Adams boys and this helped materially in the defeat. Fritts went on first base in place of Ben Adams and he held down the bag like a vet., crediting himself with twelve putouts.

Plainfield started the scoring in the second inning. Fritts led off with a single to right; then stole second and reached third on an error by Porter. Coyle fouled out to Schoeller and Frederickson poked. Then Carlton Smith, the old North Plainfield High School hero, sent a screeching single into deep center and Fritts brought home the bacon.

In the fourth round the Raritan boys got busy and scored thrice. Conty started the ball a rolling with a hard slam into left field for two bases. Purcell then sacrificed him to third and Hickey fanned the air. Conty came home when Smith banged out a clean single past shortstop. Kelly then got to first when Taylor threw ten feet over Fritts' head in an effort to catch him. In so doing Smith crossed the rubber. Then Carlton Smith went to return the strayed ball to the home plate and heaved it far above Hand's reach, thus allowing Kelley to make a home run.

The fourth run for the Juniors came in the eighth, when Schoeller singled, went to second on Ammerman's sacrifice, advanced to third on Conty's single, and scored on Hand's error.

The error column shows that the Plainfield boys were slightly off form but their line-up was badly patched up. The Raritan boys showed itself to be a clean bunch of sports and the work of Umpire John Galvin was unusual in its fairness. Conty, the second baseman for the Juniors, was the whole show. He touched up Frederickson's delivery for three safeties, one of which was a double twat. Peacock led up the bat for the association nine but did not have a chance to show his ability in the field.

This defeat was the first one which the Y. M. C. A. team has suffered in eight games. The association team has the Newark Y. M. C. A. for its opponents on the Oval next Saturday.

EX-COLLEGIANS DEFEAT PLAINFIELD TEAM, 9-3

The Plainfield Baseball team went down to defeat at the hands of the Ex-Collegians at Asbury Park Saturday afternoon and were smothered to the depth of 9-3. It was a case of heavy hitting that turned the tables for the Plainfield lads played a snappy game in the field.

Warry McLaughlin was pounded for thirteen safeties, which were bunched at opportune times. Creede held the local team safe throughout, although the three runs made by the Plainfield boys were all earned.

It looked at the start as though the local team would bring home a victory, for it opened up the first round with two tallies. Brit Martin shoved out a single and was advanced to second on Boyd's safe bunt. Emery wasn't there in the pinch and fanned, but Jack Martin banged out a clean safety to left, scoring Brit and Boyd.

In the sixth, Plainfield came across with another tally. Emery reached first on an error by Hayes and made second on a passed ball. Jack Martin poked but Nelson slammed a screecher to right, bringing Emery home.

DUNELLEN SHUTS OUT SCOTCH PLAINS, 4-0

Dunellen took a big brace Saturday afternoon and shut out Scotch Plains, their old time rivals, by the score of 4-0. It was an exciting game throughout for Dunellen had only scored one tally up to the eighth inning, when the borough boys got after Miller for three runs.

Montross pitched a great game allowing only two hits. Miller also worked well on the mound but was given poor support. Nonemaker made two brilliant running catches of flies and Seery caught his usual classy game behind the bat. "Red" Albertz was the whole show on third base, with Harry Gildes dividing the honors at shortstop.

SUNDAY'S MEETING AT THE BABY CAMP.

"Helpfulness" was the subject of Mrs. J. A. Powlinson's talk at the Kings' Daughters' Baby Camp Sunday afternoon, and the stories with which she illustrated her remarks held the close attention of the children as well as the older ones in the audience. Mrs. Powlinson possesses the happy faculty of knowing just how to talk to children. She is considered one of the best elementary teachers in the State, and to her splendid work more than any other influence is due the success of the large elementary department of the First Baptist Sunday-school, of which Mrs. Powlinson is superintendent.

Yesterday's service was in charge of George E. Hall, superintendent of the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school, whose remarks added materially to the interest of the meeting. A feature of the program was the singing of Miss Nora Scheneck, whose voice was at its best in the solos selected; she sang the Gospel Story with marked sweetness and sympathy, and unconsciously illustrated the speaker's remarks on "Helpfulness". Martin A. Korff played two violin solos—"Sweet Peace" and "Face to Face"—with exceptional expression. Miss Drake presided at the piano.

Mrs. C. A. Braider Recovering.

She was taken suddenly ill with acute indigestion while with her husband, she was visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Endicott at Coggins Point, Va., and she was brought home as quickly as possible. For several days her condition was such as to greatly alarm the family, but Saturday there was a change for the better and her recovery is now assured.

HE PLAYED CRITIC.

The Composer Tried to Be Funny and Got a Surprise.

Signor Leoncavallo, the composer, recounted an amusing experience that befell him in a theater where he occupied a stall one evening to hear the performances of his "Pagliacci."

At the finale a stranger sitting next him kept exclaiming enthusiastically: "What a masterpiece! What a perfect masterpiece!"

Leoncavallo, imagining himself utterly unknown in the audience, thought it would be fine fun to play the critic of his own work, so chimed in ironically:

"A masterpiece? I don't in the least agree with you, sir. I'm a musician myself, so know what I'm talking about. The fact is this opera is a worthless production and brimful of imitations and plagiarisms. For instance, that cavatina is filched bodily from Berlioz, the duet in the first act is all Gounod, while the finale is a sorry copy of one you will find in Verdi."

Next day Leoncavallo drove to the railway station and bought the leading local journal. On comfortably seating himself in the train he opened it and was aghast with astonishment at encountering the following lines:

"Signor Leoncavallo's opinion on 'Pagliacci.' Declaration of plagiarism. Confession of a composer bereft of all originality."

The great Italian master added, "Evidently my neighbor was a journalist who had dogged me, but to this day I have cold shivers every time I recall the incident."

STEALING A DOG.

Sir Edwin Landseer's Experience With a London Fancier.

Sir Edwin Landseer, the animal painter, one time was about to put the finishing touches to the portrait of a dog belonging to a nobleman and was expecting a visit from his model when the owner arrived in a state of great perturbation without the dog. The animal had been stolen. After talking over the loss with Sir Edwin the owner decided to leave the matter in the painter's hands, together with a ten pound note as a reward for the recovery of the dog.

Sir Edwin's acquaintance with the dog fanciers was large, and he summoned to his aid one Jem Smith, who he thought might put him on the right track. He showed the man the picture and the banknote and promised that if the dog was restored no questions should be asked. Six weeks later Smith arrived at the studio leading the missing dog by a piece of string. "Here is your £10," said the artist, "and I suppose I must ask no questions. But now that the affair is done with you may just as well tell me about it."

After a moment of hesitation the man confessed that he himself was the thief. "You, you thundering rascal!" exclaimed Sir Edwin. "Then why on earth have you kept us in suspense all this time?" "Well, you see, gov'ner," was the answer, "I stole the dorg, but the gen'leman I sold him to kep' 'im so jolly close that I hadn't a chance of nicking him again till yesterday, and that's the truth, s'elp me."

Birds as Oracles.

A most remarkable superstition of the Kenyahs of Borneo is the consultation of birds. If, for example, a Kenyah has to undertake a long journey he will not risk it without having first consulted the "dakki," a kind of hawk. If the hawk flies with its wings spread out to the right side it is a good sign, but if it goes to the left or flaps its wings when the journey is not begun in any circumstances. The next day the Kenyah tries once more until the hawk gives the sign which he wants. Thus the continuation of the journey depends on the flight of the birds. Some birds are of greater importance than others, and also to the singing of the birds attention is given. Other animals are also consulted, and the sea Dyaks call every animal a "bird" when they consult it.

Prodigality of Life in Ancient Egypt.

The reckless prodigality with which in ancient Egypt the upper classes squandered away the labor and lives of the people is perfectly startling. In this respect, as the monuments yet remaining abundantly prove, they stand alone and without a rival. We may form some idea of the almost incredible waste when we hear that 2,000 men were occupied for three years in carrying a single stone from Elephantine to Sais, that the canal of the Red sea alone cost the lives of 120,000 Egyptians and that to build one of the pyramids required the labor of 360,000 men for twenty years.

An Infamy.

"Yes," said the nut to the nail, "it gave me a terrible wrench to part from him, but I know it would be only a matter of a few days before he would bolt anyway."

Hazing Him.

"Mr. Chairman," said the new member of the literary club, "I move you, sir"—

"I rise to a point of order, Mr. Chairman," interrupted one of the other members.

"State your point of order."

"The gentleman says 'I move you.' It is not only out of order, but utterly absurd for a man of 114 pounds to talk of 'moving' a chairman who weighs 300."

"The point is well taken!" roared the presiding officer, bringing his gavel down with a resounding thud. "The gentleman will merely 'move' or take his seat."—Chicago Tribune.

Fidelity to Principles.

"Why did Brown let the man beat him up so brutally? Why didn't he yell enough?"

Points For Mothers

What becomes of precocious children when they grow up? Nobody knows. It is a good thing that average gets hold of them or we would be a land overflowing with geniuses. There would be so many of them that common people would not be missed from the directory, says an exchange.

As a matter of fact, the men and women who are doing things when they are fifty years old are not the ones who were pointed out on children's days. Very often precocity is a flower that blooms early and withers early. Even the big men and women who stand out in history were commonplace children, while their precocious companions sleep in obscure graves. The most precocious thing George Washington did was to lay the historic cherry tree, and this is more than duplicated each day by boys who never rise to dizzier pinnacles than school directors.

Too often the boy who stood at the head of the spelling class comes when he is forty years old to the boy who stood next to the end for a job. Congress has within its halls today men who didn't learn to read until twelve years of age. Life is not a dash and sprint, with the prize to the child who gets away from the starting line first, but is a day in day out Marathon, with the laurel to the one who keeps plugging along. More life meets are won by plugging than by sprinting.

So let the mother of the ordinary child up and clear her looks. Do not envy the precocious child of your neighbor. Rest secure in the knowledge that the precocious child across the street may be only a morning glory to dazzle for an hour, while your own child, with its glories yet unrevealed, may be a lily of the valley to gladden hearts for many days.

Overattention to Children.

Few mothers realize the risk of overcaution and overattention to their children after they are old enough to play and romp about. A child is happier with few and simple playthings than with a multitude of complicated toys. There is no such good fun or good training as making oneself useful in doing little things like work, and it is cruelty to deprive the child of this pleasure and stimulus. Let the brain and body be trained through hand, foot and eye. Give the boy a carpenter's bench; encourage the girls to do housework. Where possible let both boy and girl have a little garden patch, if only a few feet square, and let a share of a few plants. A woman in her home, a man in his garden—this seems to be a fundamental type from which we cannot entirely depart without risk to body and mind. Cheerfulness, sincerity, industry, self reliance and unselfishness may be acquired by practice and constant repetition as much as the art of correct speaking or of playing the piano and are far more necessary to health.

In the Nursery.

Better than chairs are low, broad seats built in all around the wall of the room. The seat should be eight or nine inches high and from one to two feet broad and may be put up by a carpenter at slight expense. The children may slide all along these and draw their toys up beside them, and there will be less danger of bumped noses and bruised elbows from tipping over of the chairs. Little pillows with durable covers may be strewn about for small, sleepy heads or to make the seat less hard. Such a seat is best made of hard wood if the floor is hard wood; if not it should be made very smooth and varnished, so that there may be no danger of splinters.

The Value of Laughter.

A famous doctor once said: "Encourage your child to be merry and to laugh aloud. A good, hearty laugh expands the chest and makes the blood bound merrily along. Commend me to a good laugh—not to a little, sniggling laugh, but to one that will sound right through the house. It will not only do your child good, but will be a benefit to all who hear and be an important means of driving the blues away from a dwelling. Merriment is very catching and spreads in a remarkable manner, few being able to resist the contagion. A hearty laugh is delightful harmony—indeed, it is the best of all music."

Here's Good Advice.

Never give medicine to a baby without a doctor's orders.

Do not use devices for keeping baby's food warm.

Keep the food on ice until feeding time, then warm it and give immediately.

If any food is left in the bottle throw it away.

When the Baby Sleeps.

Do not permit a baby to sleep with its head under the bedclothes. Trained nurses who are supposed to know better are often responsible for this habit. They keep the head of an infant so carefully wrapped for fear of draft that the child becomes accustomed to muffling.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 21, 1910.

Topic.—Glory under difficulties.—II Thess. 1, 1-12. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

Duty is one of the supreme words in the human language. Next to love it is the mainspring of man's performance of great and noble deeds. Duty perhaps in the secular walks of life is the supreme motive of correct action. It is a word that needs to have the shackles wrung upon it day by day in the age in which we live. Selfishness has too large a part in our lives today. Duty is cast aside, and in the industrial, financial, social and political world ambition has usurped its place. High places are sought not to perform duties that will benefit society or the state, but that personal ambitions may be reached. In religion love occupies the supreme place. "We love Him because He first loved us." Even the performance of duty is placed by Christ upon love. "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you. Obedience, the performance of duty, are made the test of friendship or of love. Moreover, Solomon after reviewing the "best gift" and "conclusion of the whole matter. Fear God and keep His commandments. This is the whole duty of man." Moreover, Christ declares in the New Testament, "Not every one that sayeth unto Me, Lord, Lord, shall enter the kingdom, but he that doeth the will of my Father in Heaven." Duty, therefore, is a great world, and it is well to repeat that it should have a large place in every human life. As the poet has said:

We may dally, we may range,
Be never wanting there.

The performance of duty is not always easy. Sometimes and usually it is hard to do. Difficulties ever seem to stare us in the face when an important duty is thrust upon us. The man who in time of war does his duty for his country finds it no easy task to do so. The facing of shot and shell is no summer vacation. It demands bravery and courage and strength. To perform our religious duties is no less hard at times. To some it is easier to face a cannon than to confess Christ before men or to lead in public prayer or to speak a word for Jesus, especially when one is ridiculing or fighting against Him. As Joshua succeeded Moses and was about to undertake the difficult duty of conquering the land of Canaan God emphasized to him that he should "be strong and very courageous." Christ's light has told him that He (the Lord) would be with him (Joshua) as He had been with Moses. When Paul left Timothy as pastor of the church at Ephesus he knew that in the performance of his duties he urged him to "endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ." Again he adds, "Endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ."

The soldier who in the day of danger shirks his duty well deserves to be called a coward. So he may be called who as a soldier of Christ fails when duty spells danger. Are difficulties to keep us from the performance of our duties? If so then we are not true disciples of Christ. The greater the difficulties the greater should be our trust in God and our determination to do what He wills us to do.

Must I be carried to the skies
On flowery beds of ease
While others fought to win the prize
And sail through bloody seas?

Sure, I must fight if I would reign.
Increase my courage, Lord.
I'll bear the toil, endure the pain.
Supported by Thy word.

First C. E. Society In Australasia.

A tablet commemorating the formation of the first Christian Endeavor society in Australia has been affixed to the exterior of the City Tabernacle Baptist church of Brisbane, Queensland. This is the church of which that earnest and devoted Christian Endeavorer, Rev. James Mursell, is pastor. Mr. Mursell has done splendid work for Christian Endeavor in five widely separated pastorates. The following is the inscription on this tablet. This church shares with the Williston church of Portland, Me., the honor of having thus recognized the beginning of Christian Endeavor in the Americas and the Australian commonwealths:

For Christ and the Church.

This Tablet
Commemorates the Founding of
The First Society of Christian Endeavor in Australasia
In Connection With the (Then Wharf Street) Baptist Church on February 6, 1889.

Erected
In Token of Gratitude to God
by Queensland Christian Endeavorers,
February 10, 1910.

Concerning this oldest society in Australia the pastor writes us that it is undergoing a thorough and drastic reconstitution. "Without dissolving the membership, all are asked to renew their pledge, and it is proposed to form one society with junior, intermediate, young people's and graduate departments. Graduation will depend not simply upon age, but even more upon circumstances. There will be no honorary members, but these will become graduates and make the church prayer meeting theirs."

I am glad to notice that this new society is leading the way in this somewhat new departure in Christian Endeavor of a graduate or senior society and hope it will be followed by many of our societies in all parts of the world.—Francis E. Clark, D. D.

DO ANIMALS SEE COLORS.

How can we answer the question, for example, whether an animal has color vision? I have already said, "by watching what he does," writes Professor John B. Stetson in Harper's Magazine. Let me illustrate, from some of my own experiments upon the color vision of monkeys, how the psychologist makes the animal tell whether it has color vision or not. Two colors (obtained by passing sunlight through a prism), red and green, or yellow and blue, are made to illuminate two small metal food-boxes, set flush with the floor of the apparatus, the whole being placed in an otherwise dark room. In the food-box (cloned by a hinged lid which the animal must pull open) illuminated by the red we place a single grape; in the box illuminated by the green we also place a grape, but arrange the conditions so that the animal can open only the box illuminated by the red light.

The grape is kept in the other box so that we may be sure that the animal is not being guided by smell. We first train our animal outside the dark room to get food by pulling open these little boxes. What happens when we take him into the dark room and confront him with the two boxes illuminated by the two different lights? Obviously he can choose either of the two boxes; he does not know which one to open, no association has as yet been established between red light and food and green light and no food. As a matter of fact, he is just as likely to go to one as to the other—I. e., make as many wrong choices as right. If we leave the red color on the same side always, the animal will learn to go to that side even though it is colorblind, by merely forming the habit of going always to the right or left—a so-called position habit. We must guard against this by having our apparatus so arranged that we can present the red now on the right, now on the left.

The animal must learn to follow the red light regardless of its position. If our tests are continued long enough, an association is established between red color and food. It required about twenty-five days for Jimmie, a rhesus monkey of mine, to form this color association. At the end of this time he would choose the red (color with food) about ninety times out of a hundred on the average. It began to look as though he might have color vision, but our test had not been carried far enough. So far we have said nothing about the difference in the brightness or intensity of the two colors. We know that colors as they are seen in the sunlight spectrum differ to our eyes quite a little in their brightness.

A color-blind person could learn to distinguish between red and green, in the above test by reason of the fact that they differ so in brightness. *red that we can easily and immedi*ately change the brightness of either the red or the green, and the monkey must be able to choose the red always if he has color vision, under these several conditions: Red very bright, green very dark; red very dark, green very bright; both red and green dark; both red and green bright. Many such changes were introduced into my tests in order to confuse the monkey if possible, but without much success. The monkey apparently possesses to a very high degree the ability to choose between colors.

A Test for Any Samson.

There is a theatrical manager in New York who, in his early days, piloted a small circus through the villages of the Middle West, relates Everybody's Magazine.

"At that time," he says, "I was featuring an Italian as 'Bianciall, the Strong Man from Rome.' One day, traveling from Kansas City to Omaha in a day coach, the strong man and myself were seated just ahead of a tall man with side-whiskers. Whether or not the man overheard our conversation, I am unable to say; but after a time, he leaned over and tapped my companion on the shoulder, saying: 'Excuse me, sir, but are you not Bianciall the Strong Man?'

"'I can.'

"Bianciall admitted the soft impeachment.

"'Is it true that you can lift two and a half tons in harness?'

"'Yes.'

"'You can hold two men at arms' length?'

"'I can.'

"'And put up five hundred pounds with one arm?'

"'Yes.'

"'Then,' concluded the man with the side-whiskers, 'would you kindly raise the car window for me?'"

On the Alert.

"That handsome doctor at the hotel seems to be an object of interest to the young ladies."

"He claims to be investigating the theory of germ transmission by kissing."

"Well?"

"They're hoping he'll call for volunteers."—Louisville Courier Journal.

BASEBALL DAYS OF YORE

BIG SCORES WERE COMMON.

Paul Collier Discovers an Old Photograph of Famous Team and a Record of Games.

While many of the residents of Plainfield are glorying in the victorious achievements of the Plainfield baseball team, during these days of sixteen-inning ties when the score is two to two, perhaps, they will be interested in learning a few facts about the champion baseball team, which represented this city in '67, '68, '69, '70, '71 and '72. These facts were brought to light a few days ago by Paul R. Collier, who conducts a photography business on Front street, while hunting over some old pictures. He found among them the picture of the old Central baseball team which is shown above. Shortly after this, he found the official score book of this team, which was in possession of his father, Asa Collier, the crack player and champion slugger of the nine.

The old score book speaks for itself and tells in black and white (though the pages are nearly yellow with age) the glorious achievements of the Central Baseball Club of Plainfield. It shows in its lists of records how the Plainfield team was the terror of all contemporary nines, not only in this county but also from all over this State and New York. Seldom was the local team compelled to bite the dust at the hands of its opponents and its record of victories is enough to make the Chicago Cubs turn white with fear and make Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics take another hold on the American league rag, which they have almost within their grasp. And the teams which the Plainfield boys bucked up against in those days were speedy ones too, their schedule always including the Atlantics, of Elizabeth, a club which at that time belonged to the National League.

But the game at that time was far different from the baseball which we know today. The ball, in use then, was made with more rubber than the present day sphereoid, and of course, this made it much livelier. The bat, at that time was considerably broader and longer than the official Ty Cobb stick of 1910, and this helped materially in fattening the batting averages of the fathers and grandfathers of the boys who now frisk around the local diamonds and fight with the umpire when they make poor decisions. This is the only feature of the game of baseball that has not been altered in the last forty years, for the position of umpire has always reminded one of criticism, and it is likely that it always will. The pitcher in those games of the past was a real pitcher, according to Asa Collier, for the ball was delivered to the batter with a pitch and not with a throw, as it is now. And then gloves were unknown and unnecessary articles on the baseball diamond, even the catcher being without protection of any kind. But pitchers were not as speedy in those days and the curve ball was an unheard of thing. All of these attributed to the baseball game of forty years ago served to increase the number of runs in each game, the Centrals being accused of scoring 85 tallies in one game while their opponents only crossed the home pan ten times. A. L. Titsworth, who is now the organist of the Trinity Reformed church in this city, and who was the official scorer of the Central team, certainly had his hands full keeping up with the runs. It is said that he always carried an extra pen*cil or two in his pocket* before attempting to keep score.

From all records in the score book, Asa Collier appeared to be the Christy Mathewson, Ty Cobb and Hans Wagner, of the old team, but Mr. Collier modestly denies such a title. When asked by a Daily Press reporter how it was then that he made so many runs each game, he said that he would admit that he could run like a deer and was pretty sure when it came to base stealing. In one game against the L. E. & F. Co. team, Mr. Collier lammed the horsehide for six home runs, and any number of three baggers and singles.

But not far behind Asa Collier came Jacob Van Deventer, who now resides on Woodlawn avenue and who was at that time a star pitcher and sure batsman. In nearly every game he could be counted on for a clean hit in a pinch and as a run getter, the score book proves that he was among the top notchers.

Augustus Van Deventer on third base was also one of the grand stand favorites. He now lives on Washington avenue, North Plainfield. Mr. Van Deventer clouted the leather covered sphere in great shape and always got his share of the home runs. Charles Daily and Edward Merritt, both of whom have since died, were steady and constant players. The former held down the initial sack, while the latter ate up everything that came near second base. David Leeson, although not a king of the swatfests, always managed to do his part in the hitting. He has since passed away. Henry Leland and his brother M. Leland played steady games in right garden and short respectively. Charles W. McCutchen, of Rockview avenue, and his brother St. John McCutchen, also of the borough, were enthusiastic members of the club.

Only one member of the team, however, followed baseball as a profession. This was Frank Smith, the crack backstop of the Central nine. Shortly after his career with the Plainfield team, he moved out to San Francisco, where he introduced the more skillful game of baseball, which he had learned in the east, and was a constant promoter of the national game on the Pacific coast.

The games in Plainfield were then played on East Fifth street, on the grounds where the Edward C. Mulford's house now stands. Later, the grounds where the Philadelphia Inq. is now occupied by the Scott's Press Works, and from there the team was forced to vacate to a lot nearer Netherwood, which at that time did not exist.

The old Central team tuned up against the swiftest teams of its day in this vicinity. Among its opponents were: Rutgers College, Columbia College, Pingry College, of Elizabeth, the Atlantics of Elizabeth, the Nationals, of Williamsburg, the Fly Killers, of Bound Brook, and Cranford and Somerville.

The scores of all games were, of course, in the high numbers; but the worst one on record is 93 to 3 against the Bergen Baseball Club, of Bergen, on September 1 ,1869. In this contest the scorer had to use double columns and then work over time.

A silver baseball was presented to the team by C. A. Leveridge, at one time a resident of this city, for winning the championship of this county. The ball is perfect in size and is handsomely engraved. The final struggle for it came in a game with Cranford when the Plainfield team easily showed its superiority over its rivals, and thus obtained the claim to the undisputed championship of this county.

Mr. Collier has placed the score book and silver ball on exhibition in his store and many of the local fans and those interested in the days of yore are viewing the historic record of Plainfield's champion team.

Sand Cake.

For sand cake beat to a cream a half pound each of butter and sugar, then add by degrees three eggs; next stir in very gently half pound of cornstarch and one ounce of rice flour. Have ready a well-buttered mold, sprinkle it with broken-up lady fingers, put in the mixture and bake for forty minutes in a moderate oven.

Drive Him to It.

Miss Elder—Take my advice, dear, and persuade him to sign the pledge before you marry him.

Miss Younger—But he doesn't drink, dear!

Miss Elder—Ah, but he may be tempted to do it afterwards.

STOCK CO. FOR PLAINFIELD

Proctor & Sanderson to Install Dramatic Company Here at Popular Prices.

SEASON OPENS ON LABOR DAY.

Old Policy of Presenting High-Class *Attractions Will Also Con*tinue—Many Plays Booked.

Lovers of the drama and all first-class theatrical productions will be interested to learn that Plainfield is to have a dramatic company of merit, and that the Plainfield theatre is to be open continuously during the coming season. Messrs. Proctor and Sanderson have secured the services of H. A. Brunelle as local manager for the Plainfield theatre and will inaugurate the season with a dramatic stock company commencing Labor Day, September 5, producing only the best plays.

Mr. Brunelle, who managed the stock company at Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue theatre, Proctor's 58th Street theatre, *New York; the Nor*walk Opera House, Norwalk, Conn., and others, will assume entire charge of the Plainfield theatre. He will open the local season on September 5, with a New York company of superior excellence, producing a long list of popular plays including those of Belasco, Cohan & Harris, Klaw & Erlanger and other well-known producing managers. Popular prices will prevail, fifteen, twenty-five and thirty-five cents will be the highest price for the best orchestra chairs. Another feature will be a matinee every day for the convenience of those in the surrounding towns.

The old policy of the theatre, that of playing the traveling companies, will not be abandoned. The selections will be more carefully made and all of the New York successes will be produced as rapidly as possible. The following are a few of those already booked: "The Arcadians," "Is Matrimony a Failure?" "Arsene Lupin," "The Three Twins," "The Smart Set," Richard Carle in a new comedy; Raymond Hitchcock, in "The Man Who Owns Broadway"; Robert Hilliard, in "A Fool There Was"; Margaret Anglin, in "The Awakening of Helena Ritchie"; Al. G. Fields' minstrels and the attractions of Charles Frohman, Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger and Henry B. Harris at usual prices prevailing for such attractions, thus combining a popular priced entertainment available for all and the higher-class attractions for those who desire to patronize them.

This effort of Proctor & Sanderson to give Plainfield theatregoers the best in the drama as well as comedy, it is believed will meet with generous support. Mr. Sanderson announces that more detailed particulars will be given within a short time relative to the new plans. In presenting a stock company a popular plan of subscription will be arranged whereby patrons may obtain the same seats for all plays and engage them weeks ahead, if desired.

FIVE THOUSAND PEOPLE ENJOY ANNUAL EXCURSION.

The annual excursion of colored churches between Newark, Somerville and New Brunswick, to Netherwood Park, Friday, was a great success, it being reported that 4,092 colored people enjoyed the outing. It required five trolley cars to carry the colored people from the Mt. Zion A. M. E. and Shiloh Baptist churches to Bound Brook, where they took a train on the Lehigh Valley railroad for Bellewood Park. Rev. T. J. Diggs, of the Mt. Zion church, had charge of those going on the picnic in the territory between Elizabeth, Somerville and New Brunswick, and his work was very satisfactory.

Despite the large number of people on the outing, there was not an accident of any moment and in fact nothing to mar the pleasures of the day. Six sections in all were required to carry the excursionists over the Lehigh Valley Railroad. Originally four sections were ordered, and later two more were found necessary to accommodate the crowds. It is estimated that nine hundred people from this city went on the outing. Mr. Diggs has been suggested for the management of next year's excursion, and will probably be chosen.

Sketching at Long Beach.

Society Notes of Long Beach, L. I., has the following item: One of the novelties of the week has been the re-establishment of sketching. In years gone by the sand dunes along this famous beach used to be chosen for many a painting in water colors or oil. With the construction of the three-mile boardwalk close to the ocean many of the sand dunes were removed, but there is still a fine picturesque group of them to the west of the Hotel Nassau, near the life saving station. The Misses Curtis, of this city, are especially enthusiastic over this group, and have made several fine sketches in water color.

LOCAL ELKS ARE DEFEATED

But for All That They Made the Visitors Play Some Ball to Win.

FIVE HUNDRED SEE CONTEST.

Snappy and Clean Game With Burlington Leading a Swatfest—Locals Uncovered Some Stars —Score 8 to 5.

They came, they played, and, alas, they won, but they, which stands for the Elks' baseball team from Burlington, didn't have a walkover by any means. Somebody intimated before the game started that the visitors had it all stowed away in their bat bags before they left home, but they didn't. They had to fight all the way and barring a little hard luck, due to lack of practice they would have gone home beaten.

All this preamble is necessary because taken all around the lodgemen gave as entertaining an exhibition of the national pastime as one would wish to see, and as for clean, straight ball both teams deserve to have a special niche in whatever hall of fame is established in the future for records in wholesomeness. For the most part snappy, crisp, machine-like action characterized both teams and when Plainfield slipped a cog it didn't call forth anathemas from the half thousand spectators. On the contrary, it worked encouragement.

As to the game? Well, the first ball Warry McLaughlin put over was squarely met by Perkins' bat and went sizzling through short and Mr. Perkins continued the circuit on sacrifices by Morgan and Rossell. A fumble by Harry De Meza, who guarded the third station, helping the runner a peg—In Plainfield's half after McCullough and McNaughton had been disposed of Captain Marcus Hoyt landed on one of Brother Morgan's straight ones for a clean single to left. Warry McLaughlin was passed and with two stations occupied it was up to Harry De Meza to bring 'em in. He didn't. He plumped a slow straight one into Morgan's outstretched hands and the inning ended, 1 to 0 for the visitors.

In the second the Burlington troop of actors got a dose of their own medicine, the difference being that only man to reach first base. In the locals' half of th's inning a double play executed by Mitchell and Morgan robbed them of a chance to score.

The third session witnessed the adding of two tallies to Burlington's score. Thomason, the "old man" walloped a three-bagger to right and got around on a sacrifice and Rossell's long single to center, Rossell scoring on Ryder's bingle and a assist in the eighth was unfortunate.

In this inning for the home players as Blimm and McCullough fanned and McNaughton's third strike which was missed by Perkins was heaved to first ahead of him.

Again in the fourth a tally was chalked up for Burlington and in this inning Plainfield broke the charm that held them away from the rubber. Capt. Hoyt flied out to Satterthwaite in left. Warry straightened out one of Morgan's benders which netted two bases and when Smith hypnotized Morgan into offering a straight one, he promptly brought Warry home, and then Bedlam broke loose and everybody got up to root for more. While the visitors made another in the fifth the home talent did not lose their grit. They landed good and hard for two more talleys. Van Arsdale got to first on an error by Rossell. Blimm advanced him to second and took first himself on an error by Donnelley. In a hit and run play Blimm died at second while McCullough just beat Donnelly's throw to first. Here McNaughton saw his opportunity and selecting a nice large and swift offering from Mr. Morgan he deftly laced it to center, bringing in Van Arsdale. McCullough got around with the second tally on Hoyt's single.

The home team scored twice in the seventh, one run being the result of an error which gave Blimm his base, and a corking two-bagger by McNaughton, the other through some heady playing by Capt. Hoyt. With McNaughton resting at third Marcus ran off first, which he did, and reached on a neat single, drawing the throw to second from Morgan. Nicol coaching at third got onto Hoyt's game and as soon as the attempt to catch Hoyt between the bases was made Nicol pushed McNaughon who skipped for the plate and scored. It was this play that brought out a roar of approval which must have been heard in Burlington. This ended the scoring for Plainfield. Burlington added one in the seventh and two in the eighth, and although beaten the local men were not disgraced. For the few hours of practice they have had they furnished a very remarkably good article of ball. Any errors they committed must be attributed to lack of preparation. They'll do better next time, add anyway the sport was hugely enjoyed by everybody.

The plucky game put up by McNaughton, behind the bat, Van Arsdale's work at short, McLaughlin's fielding and Capt. Hoyt's all around playing were the features. Nicol was badly handicapped by the sun in right garden which accounts for two muffed flies. For Burlington the work of the battery and first baseman Lawrence was particularly good. George Johnson made an admirable umpire, none of his decisions being questioned.

Warry McLaughlin was robbed of at least a three-bagger in the fifth when Mitchell engulfed his fly in deep centre.

Woolston had only one chance at the bat, but he wafted a scorching liner through Donnelly.

Doc Cadmus didn't get into the game until the sixth, but in that and the ninth he scored two pretty assists and a put out, the last being a screaming line from Mitchell's bat. Pretty good stuff.

Capt. Hoyt covered a lot of ground around second. He was on his toes all the time.

Fourteen put outs on first is no mean record. Blimm had hard luck when he didn't make it seventeen, besides, the score would have been closer. The drop of Van Arsdale's

Thomason, the visitor's guardian of the right pasture, may be an old 'un, but he was as nimble as the youngest man on the Burlington team and he had his eye on the ball, too.

Well, after all, it was a glorious afternoon and judging by the conduct of the fans, among whom were many of the fair sex, everybody enjoyed the sport. Some more like it would be welcome.

The players of both teams accepted the courtesy of the Courier-News and enjoyed the shower baths before and after the game.

PACKING FLOWERS.

To pack cut flowers it is a simple matter if one or two important points are attended to. Whatever size the box may be in which they are to be packed it must be quite filled without crushing. If the box is only half filled the flowers are constantly moved about, so that they have very chance of being rubbed against each other, with the result that the petals are often scattered about the box, which arrives at its destination with its contents in a condition for from fresh.

Packed quite firmly flowers cannot expand, as they often do if placed loosely in a box. Line the box with soft green leaves, such as spinach or lettuce. Moss should not be used for packing flowers, as it frequently soils them, and if sent a long distance is apt to become heated.

Cotton absorbs the moisture of wet blooms and adheres to their stems, being very difficult to remove.

It is a very good plan to send flowers in wide, shallow boxes rather than in those of a shape narrow and dep. Place the heavier flowers at the bottom and use plenty of leaves between each layer, leaving the top of the box for the lighter class of blooms and delicate ferns.

The boxes usd by confectioners make good receptacles for flowers, but those that have been used for soap or other strong smelling groceries must be avoided, as they rob the flowers of their perfume

MARTINE WILLING TO RUN

"Farmer Orator" Will Seek Nomination to U.S. Senate to Succeed John Kean.

PETITIONS ARE IN CIRCULATION.

Off-Defeated Candidate Yields to the Wishes of His Friends and Admits he Would Like to be Elected.

James E. Martine, who three years ago received the Democratic vote in the Legislature as a candidate to succeed John F. Dryden in the United States Senate, has agreed to allow his name to go before the Democratic voters as a candidate for the United States Senate, to succeed John Kean, at the direct primaries on September 11th next.

Petitions requesting the Secretary of State to print Mr. Martine's name on the official primary ballots as a Senatorial candidate, in accordance with the law which former Governors Stokes and Murphy will avail themselves of as Republicans, will be circulated in several counties of the State this week, with the assurance that many more names than the one thousand required by law will be secured in favor of making the "farmer orator" a popular Democratic choice to sit in the upper branch of Congress.

Mr. Martine's friends declare that he is entitled to receive the most serious and favorable consideration from his party in connection with the question of choosing a successor to Senator Kean. He was the choice of his party for Senator when there was no chance of his being successful, they say, and taking into consideration this fact, they argue that he is now a logical selection for the place. At any rate his friends are determined to have his name submitted under the direct primary law. Besides friendship for Mr. Martine, they are animated by a desire to see a Democratic candidate for the United States Senate submit himself to a direct vote of the members of his party.

When asked about the matter today, Mr. Martine said:

"I have been a candidate for so many political offices in past years, that I am now reluctant to enter a contest for another one. However, if my friends secure the necessary number of signatures to insure the printing of my name on the official primary ballot, I will yield to their wishes and stand as a Democratic candidate for the Senate, subject to a popular vote of the members of my party.

"Three years ago I was glad to receive the votes of the Democratic minority in the Legislature for the high honor of Senator, and I may be pardoned when I say that I would be even more pleased to be the Senatorial candidate of the Democratic legislative majority."

H. D. HIBBARD WINS MEDAL PLAY HANDICAP

An 18-hole medal play handicap for Classes A and B, was the chief event at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday. Although many did not return their scores, there was a good field out, the day being ideal for the game. The course and greens are in especially good conditions by reason of the recent rains, and low scores were the rule of the day. Henry D. Hibbard posted the lowest net score for the day, a 72, while E. P. Goodwin finished second with a 74. The leading scores follow:

Henry D. Hibbard, 81, 9-27; E. P. Goodwin, 89, 15-74; H. T. Eaton, 91, 15-76; P. C. Langdon, 87, 10-77.

MISS LOIZEAUX RETURNS BEST SCORE AT P.C.C.

Miss Lydie Loizeaux, the only woman golfer who enters the men's competitions at the Park Golf Club, returned the best net score in Saturday's competition for the President's and golf club trophies. She made a 77 with a handicap of 23, which is much better than is often done by the men. Besides taking the first three points for the President's cup, she also won one point for the scratch trophy. The best scores:

Miss Lydie Loizeaux, 100, 23-77; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 97, 16-81; W. V. Ryard, 102, 21-81; A. N. Merrill, 111, 30-81.

Glimpse of a Millionaire "Cabin".

Saturday's supplement to the New York Evening Mail devoted a double page to pictures of "Millionaire Cabins" in the Adirondacks. One of these will interest older Plainfielders, for the owner is Simon J. Drake, of New York, who is the son of Rev. Simeon J. Drake, pastor of the First Baptist church for twenty-three years, preceding Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes.

"EDDIE" M'NEE WINS HIS THIRD CONTEST

Edward McNee, starting from scratch, won the regular Sunday morning five-mile race of the Plainfield Cycling Club on the Mountain avenue course Sunday. Scarcely a thirty-six width behind McNee came Jack Todd and following closely on his heels was George Simon. William Drake, with a five-minute handicap, finished first but was disqualified for taking pace from a motorcycle and cutting in at the turn.

The first three men to finish from scratch and their times were caught at 14 min.; 14 min., 1-5 seconds; 14 min., 3-5 seconds, respectively. The race was a hard one from end to the finish. First one of the three led and then another. In the last hundred yards, the three leaders started on a lively sprint for the tape. McNee finished a hair's breadth in the lead. Drake's time was 14 min., 8 sec., and would have won if he had not been disqualified.

Yesterday's results put McNee far in the lead for the championship as he has won three races and the time prize in addition yesterday.

Next Sunday's race has been postponed until the following week in order to allow several of the club members to go to Baltimore, to enter in a twelve-mile handicap at that place. The summaries of yesterday's race are as follow: First, Edward McNee, scratch, 14 min.; second Jack Todd, 14 min., 1-5 seconds; third, George Simon; fourth, Harry Brokaw; fifth, Thomas Kelley; sixth, Russel Andrews.

Saw-the Passion Play.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Something to Think About.

Judge William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, candidate for the Republican congressional nomination in the Fifth district, gave Congressman Fowler something to think about in his address a few nights ago to the Down-Town Republican Club, of Elizabeth.

Congressman Fowler has been insisting that Judge Runyon indorsed the open letter which he gave to the Republicans a few weeks ago, in which he assailed the character and the quality of the public service of United States Senator Kean.

Judge Runyon says there is no truth in Congressman Fowler's assertion. He admits that the letter was read by him before it was published, and that he told the congressman it would cause a great deal of trouble if published. He was asked no suggestion for the changing of the verbiage of the Fowler letter. This he refused to do.

At the conclusion of his address to the members of the Down-Town Republican Club he urged them to refrain from indulging in mud-slinging during the campaign. He asked them to work for him and to vote for him. He plead with them to not say an unkind word that would leave after it a cut or a scar.

The character of Judge Runyon's campaign, as indicated by these words, will be higher than that of the one already inaugurated by Congressman Fowler, which was begun with a vicious attack upon Senator Kean, and was continued with verbal assaults upon "Uncle Dan" Voor*hees and other prominent leaders of* the Republican party in the Fifth congressional district. — Trenton State Gazette.

Mr. Swackhamer's Fight.

Former Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, of Somerset county, who for many years has responded to frequent calls to talk on the evils attached to the use of intoxicants, is an intense advocate of the cause of local option as espoused by the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League. Besides being a local optionist, Mr. Swackhamer is a stalwart Democrat, and he intends to use his influence and oratory to focus the attention of the Democratic State convention upon the established fact that many of the New Jersey Democracy to the cause of local option as a stepping stone to fruitifying the Anti-Saloon League's slogan, "The solution of the saloon problem is no saloon." Mr. Swackhamer has drafted the following proposed plank to be inserted in the Democratic State platform for the approaching campaign:

"Recognizing the constitutional doctrine that all political power is inherent in the people, and firmly believing in the principle of municipal home rule, we demand the subjection of the liquor traffic to regulating or denying liquor licenses in the several municipalities of the State to a direct vote of the people."

Mr. Swackhamer will seek election as a delegate to the State convention. If successful in this move he will submit the local option declaration to the platform committee of he convention, but if the committee declines to include it in the majority report, as will probably be the outcome, he will make a fight for his proposition from the floor of the convention. It is possible, however, that the "Tall Sycamore", a sobriquet given him during his legislative career, may land outside the breastworks, for now that he has outlined what he purposes doing in the State convention there is scheming to prevent his election as a delegate.—Elizabeth Journal.

Dentistry in Kansas.

Did you ever have a tooth filled? No? Well, it is the greatest sport on earth—for the dentist. First he handcuffs you and ties you in a chair, then he jams your mouth open, turns on a searchlight and begins poking around inside with a crowbar. After an hour or so of jimjamming around he wheels up a big derrick with a well drill attachment and proceeds to dig for oil in the tooth. He then starts in with the crowbar. He drills right down through your jaw, on through your lungs, your heart, your liver and ev*erything else that happens to be in* the way, and never stops until the bit strikes fire on the iron in the chair seat, and then only because he's afraid it'll take a hole in his office furniture. Then he pulls the drill out and exchanges the bit for one of those emery wheels that blacksmiths use for grinding thick ploughshares. He grinds away at your very vitals while the emery wheel emits a grind that is like a cross between a cyclone and a tornado. So we figured out that as long as we had to feed and bed a crowd every summer, anyway, we might as well come out even on it as to go in the hole, and we advertised summer board. Now we have to feed them for about half the number of people we used to entertain, and our summers are much easier on us. Of course, our city relatives don't love us as much as they used to, but if they only knew, they ought to love us more, for we stand in less danger of going bankrupt and falling back on them for support. What's your candid opinion about the prospects of rain, Colonel?"

THE VERMEULE FAMILY

Among the Earliest Colonial Pioneers to Settle in This Vicinity.

PURE HOLLAND EXTRACTION.

Local Historian Presents Many Interesting Facts About the First Settlers in Plainfield and Vicinity.

CHAPTER ONE.

Among the earliest Colonial pioneers who permanently settled in this immediate vicinity was the Vermeule family. They were of pure Holland extraction, whose original ancestor, Adrian Ver Meulen, came to Harlem, N. Y., the latter part of the XVII century. He was born about 1675 at Vlissenger in Zeeland. His came well recommended as a Christian young man, bringing a church letter to Rev. Henricus Selyns, minister of the Dutch Reformed church at Harlem. 1682-1701. On the fourth of November, 1699, this progenitor of the Vermeules in New Jersey was appointed Voorlieser (a clerk and reader in the church).

He was an excellent peuman and a correct scholar. It is a noticeable fact that his great grandson, Rev. Cornelius C. Vermeule born 1785, became minister of this same church in 1816. This position he honored for twenty years, when impaired health in 1836 caused him to resign the charge. He lived till 1859, and his sepulchre is with us in the North Plainfield Presbyterian cemetery.

The paternal ancestor, Adrian Vermeule, moved to New Jersey January 1, 1708, with wife and child, both of whom died shortly afterwards. His second marriage the same year found him settled in Bergen, N. J., where he interested himself in the erection of a new school house there, laying the cornerstone of the building. He was a useful and influential citizen of the county, as well as a prominent member of the Bergen church. His duties as school master here forced upon him the office of court-messenger for twenty-eight years added greatly to the unusual influence he possessed in the community where he settled. But his lifework ended in 1735-6, and two sons survived him to transmit the surname to posterity. These were Frederick, born 1706, and Cornelius, born 1716. Both of them rest in a memorial graveyard on the farm of the late Jeremiah Vandeventer, North Plainfield. This family burial plot, about a hundred feet square, has been enclosed with a substantial brick wall four feet high. The sacred spot is part of the original plantation bought by the Vermeules above named in the first half of the XVIII century. The inscription on either side of the entrance gate of the private graveyard is the following:

"Frederick Vermeule, born in the town of Bergen, Bergen County, N. J., May 20, 1709—died in Plainfield, July 13, 1796."

"Cornelius Vermeule, born April 2, 1716, in the town of Bergen, Bergen County, N. J.—died in Plainfield March 15, 1784."

"IN MEMORIAM"

"This Cemetery is part of the Vermeule Estate located here in 1736. It contains the remains of many members of that family."

"This Enclosure was erected in June, 1877, by Edmund C. Ver Meulen and John D. Vermeule, descendants of the fifth generation."

Of the posterity of these two sons of Adrian and Christina Vermeule this article will enumerate only one branch of the descendants of the younger, Cornelius, through his son Eder.

Cornelius Vermeule was born, as the memorial tablet at the burial plot records, April 2, 1716. He married (1740) Mary Marsellis, whose birth is stated to be in the year 1720, and her death May 1, 1766. Their seven children were Adrian, born 1741; Eder, died 1777; Gerty, born 1744, Sept. 4, died 1764; Christina, born 1754, Nov. 4, died 1779; Dinah, born Sept. 25, 1759, died 1825, and three sons, well known during the Revolutionary period, viz., Eder, born January 4, 1748; Frederick, born February 8, 1751; Cornelius, born June 30, 1757.

These last three were prominent citizens of this section of the country for a period of more than half a century, extending from the early days of the Revolution to the closing days of the first quarter of the XIX century. They were all industrious farmers, patriotic citizens, and identified with the Dutch Reformed churches at Raritan and New Brunswick, and friendly to the interests of the Presbyterian churches in Bound Brook and Plainfield. In secular affairs they were equally helpful as prominent freeholders in local government and educational matters. Their farm lay between Plainfield avenue and Clinton avenue, extending from about Fourth street west*erly across Green Brook to the moun*tains. These plantations, together with those adjoining, bought about the same time by Richard Cadmus, Isaac Drake and others, were sold by Judge Neville in settling the estate of Arent Somman's heirs. This wealthy Hollander and his son at one time owned nearly one-eighth of the whole of East Jersey. Just before his death the son, Peter Somman, sold 619 acres in 1732 to John Vail. This was the eastern portion of the 2,500-acre patent granted the Som*mans in 1685. In the western end* of this extensive tract lay the farms deeded subsequently to Vermeule, Cadmus, Drake, Covert Lenox and others.

It may not be known generally that this Dutch landlord for over fifty years held back the sale and division of this particular acreage occupied now by the city of Plainfield and borough of North Plainfield. No doubt because of its beautiful situation it was thought an investment which would be realized at a later date. Such was the fact, but the Dutchman did not live to enjoy advanced prices.

Eder Vermeule, the oldest of the three sons, left his plough for a while and enlisted in the war of '76, and became Lieutenant in the Essex County Militia. He married Elizabeth Myers, born 1752, died 1831. His death occurred April 5, 1828. Their only son was Cornelius, who married Sarah Manning, daughter of Trustum and *Betsey Walker Man*ning. These Manning parents belonged to old reliable families of Middlesex county. Their other children were married with FitzRan*dolphs, Runyon and Pyatts. The only* son, John Manning, married Hannah Vandervort, and had Trustum (married Mary Tingley); John, Edward, Paul, Catharine, and Lewis married Ann Longstreet and had James L. (married Amelia Runyon).

By the union of Cornelius Vermeule and Sarah Manning there was a family raised consisting of four boys and one girl—all well known to the early residents of Plainfield.

Manning Vermeule, the oldest child, was born in 1804 and died March 19, 1892. He was a prominent hatter of the town, and married Rebecca A. Drake (daughter of Daniel and Mary), and had the following five children: Daniel D., who married Sarah Webster (daughter of Zachariah and Agnes), and had Frank W. (married Margaret Skully); and Margaret (married Capt. Samuel B. Pearson; Whitfield (died unmarried); Sarah married Frederick E. Keep, had Charles, married Grace Bradley; Charles M. married Margaret Drake; Emma married John H. French, son of Phineas M. and Mary, and had Mary E., Lulu R. married Darwin E. Dudley; and Edward A. married Erastus Negus, had James Engle and Isabel.

Jethro M. Vermeule, the second son, was born Jan. 8, 1811; died 1872. He married Mary Elizabeth Thompson and had eight children: Elizabeth A. (married Daniel H. Thickstun, son of David and Mary, whose son William D., married Libby V. Taylor, and had four boys: David B., William D., Jr., Robert G. and Gerald); Mary Louise (married Charles Lancaster, had Frederick L., married Olive L. Barber and had six children: Charles F., Maud E., Dorothy L., Frederick L., Jr., Olive L. and Mabel G.); Jethro Judson (married Ella K. Johnson); Addie M. (married Henry S. Phillips); Isabella A.; Sarah F.; Manning C. and William O.

John Vermeule, born Feb. 14, 1816 married 1842, May 12, Agnes Young Sindler born March 16, 1823, and had six children: Elizabeth S. (married Cyrus W. Overman, whose children are Henry Warren, Edna Richardson and Joseph John); George S.; Emma J. and Ada Lee, twins, born 1852 March 15. The former died young; the latter mar*ried, 1874, Nov. 10,* Anson F. Gates, of Carthage, Ind. Their children are Herbert, Nellie B., Edwin L. and John V. James P.; Mary Agnes married Charles M. Sharpless had Harold and Catharine M.

Samuel S. Vermeule was born July 30, 1819; married 1842, March 3, Frances O. Ackerman, and in 1886 his second wife was Sarah J. Smith. By first marriage were born Mary A., William A., Anna Frances (married Hillwood W. Graham).

Betsey Vermeule was the only daughter of her parents, Cornelius and Mary Vermeule. She died unmarried.

The name has been spelled various ways, according to the notions of town clerks, or clerks of churches. Ver Meulen, Ver Miulen, Vermuel, Vermule and lastly, Vermeule, which is the generally accepted spelling.

In this article especial reference has been made to Eder only, son of Cornelius, reserving for the next narration the descendants of his brothers, Frederick and Cornelius.

MISS CARRIE R. STOUT THE BRIDE OF CLARENCE H. YOUNG

Miss Carrie R. Stout, of Somerville, and Clarence H. Young, of this city, were married Saturday night at 226 East Ninth street, by Rev. Royal A. Stout, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, who was assisted by Rev. George M. Donovan, pastor of the Reformed church at Rocky Hill. The couple was accompanied by a small party of friends, who witnessed the ceremony. Immediately afterward the couple left on a wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside in this city.

THREE HOUSES ENTERED

Burglars Force Their Way Into Residences in North Plainfield.

STEAL WHEEL FROM CELLAR.

Homes of Allen Coddington, George B. Cobb and C. A. Nichols Visited—Intruders Leave No Clues.

Three attempts at robbing houses, one of which was successful, were made by burglars on Fairview avenue shortly after midnight Friday night in North Plainfield. One "Peerless" bicycle was taken from the home of Allen Coddington, at 82 Fairview avenue. The other houses which were broken into are occupied by the families of George B. Cobb, Jr., and Charles A. Nichols.

Entrance was made in Mr. Cobb's house through an open kitchen window, which was guarded only by a wire screen. The thief or thieves prowled around in the kitchen but took nothing.

The houses of Mr. Coddington and Mr. Nichols were entered through open cellar windows. Nothing was taken from Mr. Nichols' cellar, and only a bicycle from the cellar of Mr. Coddington's house.

The fact that only one bicycle was taken from this cellar leads the police to believe that there was only one burglar. Another good wheel stood in the cellar beside the stolen one; this other wheel certainly could not have been overlooked, the police believe. The stolen bicycle was taken out of the house through the cellar door which was found to be unlocked. Further than these facts, the borough police could find no other traces of the robber or robbers.

It was a peculiar thing that none of the families were awakened by the intruders. The visit of the thieves was not discovered until this morning, when the members of the families came down stairs. The borough police force was notified immediately and Acting Chief Marshal Kellar hastened to the scene of the robbery, but he could find no trace of the intruders.

NETHERWOOD CAMPERS HEAR GOOD SPEAKERS

*The usual Sunday afternoon ser*vices at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp was largely attended yesterday. George Chapman, the chairman of the finance committee of the association presided. The singing by the newly organized choir, composed of Camp children, added much to the interesting impressiveness of the service. They were accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Frank, one of the Camp mothers.

In his opening remarks Mr. Chapman threw some light on the finances of the association. He said that a greater work was being done this year than ever before, and naturally the expenses were heavier. He also pointed out that while it is true the association has benefitted under the will of the late Mr. Hewitt, the prin*cipal of the bequest could not be* used in the service work, and only the interest available, nearly three-quarters of this income had to be used to work necessary improvement on the building and grounds. "It must not be supposed," said Mr. Chapman "that Miss Curry has unlimited capital at her disposal. She needs funds badly to meet the running expenses and must depend upon the general public for them."

Frederick Suton was the next speaker. Mr. Suton has a direct way of saying things which leaves a deep impression. He impressed upon his audience the necessity of helping one another.

Arthur N. Pearson, of Westfield, made a rousing address. Mr. Pearson was one of Miss Curry's first sup*porters at Westfield and has remained* true to her a great many years. Mr. Pearson appealed to those present to arouse themselves and take some active interest in the work. To get their friends interested and help along a work deserving of every one's prayers and co-operation.

David Rogers Resigns.

David Rogers, who has been treasurer of the Plainfield theatre since the house was opened by William J. Counihan, and later under the management of Proctor & Sanderson, has resigned. He has not yet decided upon his plans for the future. Under the new management of Harry Brunelle, several changes have been made in the position held by Mr. Rogers will be filled by Superintendent Hoffmeister.

Clerk-Carrier Examination.

A clerk-carrier civil service examination will be held at the local postoffice in November and all applications must be filed with William B. Sharp, at the office, prior to the hour of closing business on October 1. Further particulars can be obtained from Mr. Sharp.

DAUGHTERS OF LIBERTY

Recommendation That Women's Fraternal Order Change Name.

BECAUSE MEN ARE MEMBERS.

The Thirty-Third Annual Convention of the National Council at Atlantic City This Week.

The thirty-third annual meeting of the national council, Daughters of Liberty, is being held at Atlantic City, for the first time since 1888. Delegates are present from all the New England and Middle Atlantic States, as well as from Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. The council numbers 126 officers and delevates, but a number of past State officers of New Jersey are present as visitors. Old Glory Council, of Plainfield, is represented at the session.

Officers will be elected at today's session and the convention will adjourn tonight. The report of the national councilor, consisting of a review of his official acts, showing among other things that during the official year councils had been instituted in territory under the immediate jurisdiction of the national body, as follows: Georgetown, Ky.; Brookhaven, Miss.; Pruden and Cardiff, Tenn.; and Bromley and Catlin, Ky.

Among the recommendations submitted are that members suspended for non-payment of dues may at any time apply for a dismissal card, the fee to be twenty-five cents; that members be permitted to resign from the order, provided hey were clear on the books of their council; that a member who owes four weeks' dues shall be non-beneficial and when three months in arrears shall be suspended. Heretofore, a member could be thirteen weeks in arrears and not suspended under seventeen weeks.

Another important recommendation made by the national councilor is that the name of the order be changed from "Daughters of Liberty" to "Sons and Daughters of Liberty." In support of his recommendation the executive says: "The fact that men belong to the order seems to be sufficient cause for changing the name and calling the order what it really is."

The report of National Secretary Edkins was an important document, indicating the progress made by the order during the year. It showed fifteen councils and 721 subordinate branches, with a total membership of 76,837. Of these, 61,947 were women and 14,890 were men. The net increase for the year ending June 30 last was 2,543. The detail of the membership report is as follows: Members, June 30, 1909, 59,593 women and 13,563 men; total, 72,095. Initiated during year, 6,448 women and 2,025 men; total, 8,473. Admitted by cards, 234 women and 62 men; total, 296. Reinstated, 287 women and 116 men; total, 403. Errors in reports for former years, 135 women.

The losses were: Suspended, 4,271 women and 1,477 men; total, 5,748. Expelled, 20 women and 8 men; total, 28. Took withdrawal cards, 269 women and 76 men; total, 605. Errors, 176 men.

On June 30, 1909, all the councils were worth a total of $516,570. June 30 last they were worth $554,556.87, representing a net gain of $37,-986.87.

The funeral benefit department of the order was organized in 1894. Up to June 30 last, this branch has paid 4,327 death claims, each amounting to $200 or less, the total payments being $1,024,280. During the year ending June 30 last, 497 claims were paid, amounting in all to $97,180. Of the entire membership of the order 65,986 belong to this department. This branch has a reserve fund of $25,071.16, a sinking fund of $550, and a cash balance of $17,-296.64. It is proposed to take $10,-000 of this cash balance and place it in the reserve fund.

At the session of 1909 a proposition was advanced to increase the funeral benefits from $200 to $250. As the matter was an important one it was decided to refer it to the councils holding membership in the department. A vote was taken at the meeting in December last, with the result: 289 councils voted: 162 were against the increase and 126 in favor of it.

Will Entertain the Vets.

The Women's Relief Corps will entertain the members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., at the rooms, Central avenue and West Second street, Friday night. A watermelon will be cut and a general invitation is extended to the public.

JUDGESHIP CANDIDATE NAILS CAMPAIGN CANARD

Branded them as absolutely false and circulated for the purpose of injuring him as a candidate for the nomination, Francis J. Blatz today made it positive that he is in the fight to the finish and considers his chances excellent as the man to be named by the Republican voters for the city judgeship. Mr. Blatz had no word of censure for the candidate who he believes is responsible for the stories to the effect that he would shortly withdraw from the race but wants his supporters to understand that is not a quitter particularly as he believes that he will be the choice of the party at the primaries to be held on Sept. 12.

"On Monday next, the last day for filing petitions, you will find my petition at the city clerk's office," said Mr. Blatz today. "I am proud of the signatures on it and I wish you would state emphatically that I never have had, have not now, nor will I have any intention of withdrawing. I think I know the source of these reports, circulated for the purpose of hurting my chances and building up the chances of one of my opponents. One of my rival candidates, I believe, is responsible for them. I am not asking favors from any man, or any set of men; I am standing on my record and if the people consider that I am the proper man for the place I will be nominated.

GETS HEART BALM FOR A BREACH OF PROMISE

For having blighted the affections of Miss Naska Kossosko, a Polish young woman of reputed royal lineage, William Reinman, of North Plainfield, will have to pay a judgment of $400 within the next two weeks or he will have to stand committed until the amount is paid.

It was alleged by the counsel for the plaintiff that on June 20 last Reinman promised to marry the young woman, and on the following July 3 told her to be prepared for the nuptial ceremony on the morrow. Miss Kossosko was ready with all her wedding finery, but the groom did not put in an appearance, with the natural result a weeping and disappointed bride.

Judge Whittemore, sitting in the First Judical court at Somerville, yesterday awarded damages in the ordinate branches, with a total membership of 76,837. Of these, 61,947 were women and 14,890 were men. The net increase for the year ending June 30 last was 2,543. REV. MR. MAGUIRE ENDING A LONG LECTURE TRIP

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, who has been on an extended lecture tour through the West since June 29, is now concluding his trip and is expected home next week. Today he is at Red Oak, Iowa; tomorrow at King City, Missouri; Friday at Clinton, Ill.; Saturday at Shenandoah, Iowa, and his best lecture in the present series will be at Missouri Valley, Iowa, on Tuesday, August 30, after which he will return to Plainfield. He plans to be in his pulpit on the first Sunday in September.

His lecture tour included thirty-six states, taking Mr. Maguire over a large part of the up his pastoral duties. During the coming fall and winter, he plans an active gospel campaign at his churches.

Thirteenth Unlucky for Him.

William F. Richards, of this city, is carrying his left arm in a sling, the result of an accident while playing a game of baseball at Readington, Hunterdon county a few days ago. He was filling the position of catcher, when a foul tip struck his arm, breaking one of the bones. Mr. Richards was on his vacation and he attributes the accident to the fact that he started on his outing on August 12, and he says that he will never select the 13th of the month again.

PRIMARY LAW IS PLAIN

Confusion in Translating of Statute Relating to Filing of Petitions Unnecessary.

ACT IS NOT AN AMENDMENT.

A Supplementary Procedure Which Applies Only to Municipal Candidates in This State.

So much confusion has arisen over the construction of the act passed by the Legislature attempting to change the time for filing petitions for the nomination of municipal officers at the primary election, that the following semi-official explanation of the law is given out at the State House:

"Under the primary law as it existed previous to this year, such petitions were to be filed at least ten days before the day of the primary. (See section 259 of the election law pamphlet issued by the Secretary of State). The last Legislature passed an act which is known as a supplement to the primary law. If this had been a simple amendment to the primary law, changing the words "ten days" to "fifteen days," no difficulty would have arisen, but the act through That all petitions providing for the nomination of candidates for public office in a simple borough, ward or township, and all petitions endorsing the person or persons therein named for the position of delegate or delegates to the ensuing State or Congressional convention (as the case may be) shall be filed with the municipal clerk not less than fifteen days prior to said primary election."

"This act, as has been said, is not an amendment of the primary law, but only a supplement thereto, and therefore only repeals the provisions of the primary law in so far as it is inconsistent therewith.

"It will be noticed that, for instance, the supplement only applies to public officers in a single borough, city, although the primary law as to the question of municipal candidates who are nominated at large in any municipality, and also all municipal officers in any other kind of municipality except a single borough, ward or township. Therefore it would appear, for instance, that petitions of candidates for Mayor who run at large in a municipality, can still be filed under the old act, not less than ten days before the primary. It would also appear that in municipalities other than a 'single borough, ward or township,' petitions nominating officers may also be filed not later than ten days, because, as stated above, the act of 1910 leaves these municipalities out of consideration.

"For instance, in such a municipality as a town, concerning which the act of 1910 is entirely silent, the old law still governs."

DE BRIGARD A BENEDICK

Married in Yonkers, N. Y., Last August.—Announcement Made Today.

REV. J. J. FULLAM OFFICIATED.

Groom a Son of Consul General of the United States of Colombia—Has Diplomatic Aspirations.

A romance which had its culmination in Yonkers a year ago has just come to light in this city and the bride and groom even now seem to be reluctant to have the particulars of their wedding made public. Miss May Titsworth Hallett, of New Market, is the young woman involved in the romantic episode, Louis de Brigard, of this city, the man.

According to a statement given out by Louis de Brigard this morning, the wedding took place in Yonkers, N. Y., on August 19, 1909, and was performed by Rev. John J. Fullam, pastor of St. Mary's church, at the rectory. Two witnesses, Roger Flagg and his sister, Elsie Flagg, were present and signed the documents which are proudly exhibited by the groom.

Why the secrecy and why he desired to keep the marriage secret, Mr. de Brigard declared that there was no especial reason excepting that it seemed best to not announce it at the time.

Mr. de Brigard, who conducts a photographic supply business on Park avenue, was recently appointed consular clerk for the United States of Columbia, at Liverpool, England, but this nomination has not yet been confirmed. His father, Arthur de Brigard, has occupied the post of consul general for that country in New York for several years and is highly regarded in diplomatic circles.

The young couple will go to housekeeping in this city shortly.

OAK TREE CARNIVAL OPENED LAST NIGHT

Oak Tree is now enjoying a real amateur carnival, which opened auspiciously last night, and will continue tonight on the grounds adjoining Marconnier chapel. It is being held for the benefit of the chapel and bids fair to be a great success. Among the numerous attractions there is a moving picture show, operated by Harry Palmer, of New York city. During the evening his daughter, Miss Florence Palmer sang several solos, receiving much applause.

Other attractions include a lemonade and grape juice well; a shooting gallery, where the marksmen tried to hit the bullseye; throwing the baseball and "get a good cigar"; a grab stand; hot sausage stand; candy and cake tables and a typical country store.

More than four hundred people enjoyed the affair last night, a majority being from the immediate vicinity, but a large contingent of city folks, including automobile parties. The electrical effects were much admired and made the carnival an attractive place. Roland H. Leveridge, chairman of the executive committee, was in charge of the electrical illumination.

A real live pig, an electric iron and fan motor were extra attractions, and it was stipulated that if the pig should be awarded to a woman she was to carry it home. The following were in charge of the booths and tables:

Country store, Mrs. Roland Leveridge, Mrs. Bryant Randolph, Mrs. Fred Mellick and Mrs. E. L. Winters; lemonade well, Miss Mary Leveridge, Miss Frances Newell, Miss Alice Winters and Mrs. Melvin Campbell; candy table, Mrs. Edward Voorhees, Mrs. Walter Randolph and Mrs. Charles H. Leveridge; hot sandwich stand, William and Bryant Randolph; grab stand, Miss Nellie G. Ross and Mrs. Nettie Stover; cake table, Mrs. William Randolph and Mrs. Eugene Van Court; shooting gallery, Arthur Randolph; ice cream, Edwin Voorhees and Fred Mellick.

Republicans Come to Debele's Hall!

All Republican voters in the borough of North Plainfield are urged to meet in Debele's hall tomorrow night to select candidates for the coming primaries. The meeting begins at eight o'clock.

FOWLER HAS AMBITIONS

He Would Be United States Senator as Well as Congressman.

HIS PETITION HAS BEEN FILED.

How the Elizabeth Man Will Seek Two Offices in Good Faith is Puzzling Some of His Friends.

Friends of Charles N. Fowler, of Elizabeth, were surprised and disappointed yesterday to learn that he had allowed himself to be made a candidate for the United States Senatorship, thus making him a candidate for both the Upper and the Lower House of Washington. How he can run for two high offices at the same time in good faith is what puzzles his friends, and it is predicted that as a result of his peculiar actions he will lose as many supporters as he did when he issued his notorious mud-slinging letter, thus smirching the political reputations of some of the Republican leaders for whom he had nothing but kind words until they announced that they could not see their way clear to court the party's defeat by espousing his candidacy for a ninth term at Washington.

In the minds of some there is a question whether he can be a candidate for both offices if he is an honorable man and intends to keep faith with his constituents.

His friends realize that Congressman Fowler knows the primary law and the principles upon which it is based. The primary law provides for the printing of the names of the candidates for the various offices on the tickets at the public expense. For this reason only those candidates are entitled to this favor from the tax payers who are acting in good faith. Otherwise the primary ticket could be loaded up with the names of candidates who had not the least support and who might enter the race with no idea of making the contest, or accepting the office if elected. This would entail an unnecessary expense upon the public. Only those names, therefore, are allowed upon the primary tickets which are there in good faith.

As an evidence of good faith, the primary law requires: First, a sufficient amount of support to warrant the candidate in entering the contest, and that it is evidenced by the petitions; second, the acceptance by the candidate of the effort made in his behalf by his friends, for whatever the office may be. This acceptance involves his guarantee to serve if nominated and elected. Now, he cannot, in good faith, sign two acceptances and promise to fill two offices.

Congressman Fowler has filed his acceptance in connection with his Senatorial candidacy, and the men who are candidates for delegate for him for the Congressional nomination cannot, therefore, in good faith, sign their acceptances for the nomination of a man who has agreed to stand as a candidate for United States Senator and accept if elected. The Constitution prohibits him from holding two offices, and as Congressman Fowler has agreed in good faith to accept the Senatorship and as a man of honor will abide by his decision in this respect, and as the settlement of the Senatorial question may not be made before next February, Congressman Fowler, of course, takes himself out of the Congressional race.

BUCEPHALUS TOO SPEEDY FOR ORDINARY BOYS.

Lots of excitement was stirred up this morning just before 11 o'clock when a grocery wagon, driven by a couple of boys, neither one of whom was old enough to be clothed, dashed across Park avenue at breakneck speed narrowly missing passing automobiles, baby carriages and other vehicles.

Apparently the boys had lost control of the animal they were driving but they did not seem to care, as they both had two big grins on their faces, though it was a joke. Scurrying maids and pedestrians would have testified differently had it been necessary to bring the case before the local police court. It was said that the rig belonged to M. Bernstein, who conducts a grocery store at the corner of New street and West Third.

MARTINE AMONG FIVE FILING THEIR PETITIONS

Besides former Governor Franklin Murphy, who filed his petition before noon, Representative Charles N. Fowler, of Elizabeth, backed by the Republican Progressives, and former Assemblyman Frank McDermott, of Newark, acting as an independent Democrat, filed with the Secretary of State at Trenton yesterday afternoon petitions nominating them as candidates for United States Senator to be voted on in the direct primaries September 13. These petitions, together with the one submitted last Saturday by former Governor J. C. Stokes, make four Senatorial aspirants who have formally taken advantage of the direct primary law.

The fifth candidate who came in under the operation of the direct primary act was James E. Martine, of Plainfield, whose petition was filed this afternoon with 1028 signatures.

Representative Fowler's petition was headed by former Assemblyman William P. Martin, Progressive candidate for the Republican Gubernatorial nomination. It contains 1,261 names, the largest percentage of the signers being voters in Essex county. There were a few names recorded from Elizabeth, Mr. Fowler's home town. Besides Mr. Martin, the most prominent "new idea" men to sign the Fowler petition were former Mayor Mark Fagan, of Jersey City, and Henry Marelli, of Passaic.

WAYWARD YOUTH SOLD HIS BORROWED BICYCLE

Edward Seader, who suddenly left the borough Monday afternoon and who is suspected by the police of having stolen a gold watch and four dollars from George Schiarrett, of West Second street, on that day, has become involved in another clever piece of "easy money getting." Young Seader borrowed a bicycle sometime ago from Jeremiah O'Connor, of Somerset street, and it is alleged by the police then sold the wheel.

The O'Connor boy reported to the borough police yesterday afternoon that Seader had sold the bicycle, which he had loaned him, to Charles Allen, of Chatham street. Marshal Keller took the wheel from the Allen boy and is holding it in the police court awaiting developments.

Allen showed a receipt for two dollars which Seader had given him in the purchase of the bicycle. It now looks as though Charles Allen would be minus two dollars and Seader would be in the same amount.

Despite the repeated efforts of his father, Peter Seader, who is a highly respected citizen of the borough, Edward Seader has proved to be an incorrigible youth. His father has done everything in his power to reform the lad, but all his efforts have proved futile.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER DIES AT GOSHEN, N. Y.

Albert Rutan, aged seventy years, who died at his home in Goshen, N. Y., a few days ago, was one of the best known of the early residents of this city. He was a son of Theodore Rutan, who was employed by the late John A. Brush, and afterward for J. P. Homan. Mr. Rutan was an assistant chief of the local fire department in the days of the volunteer company.

Mr. Rutan was past grand of the lodge of Odd Fellows at Goshen, and at the request of that lodge, Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., of this city, will take charge of the remains upon the arrival in this city tomorrow morning at 11.30 o'clock. The burial will be in North Plainfield cemetery. Mr. Rutan is survived by two sisters who reside in this city.

WADE PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Alleged Highwayman is Held by Justice T. H. Snape for Grand Jury.

HAD PREVIOUSLY CONFESSED.

Taken to Somerville Jail Today—Jeroloman, His Accomplice, Not Yet Caught by the Police.

Frank Wade, of Philadelphia, who was arrested on the charge of attempted highway robbery, Saturday night, was held to await the grand jury by Justice of the Peace Thomas H. Snape, in the borough court yesterday afternoon. When the prisoner was arraigned with the crime, he pleaded "not guilty," and so was held without bail. The Somerset County grand jury sits during October.

Mr. and Mrs. John Whitwroth, who were held up by William Jeroloman and Wade on Greenbrook road appeared in Justice Snape's court yesterday afternoon. As yet Jeroloman has not been found.

Wade seems to be diffident concerning his part in the crime and the police believe that he was merely the tool of Jeroloman, who has planned to rob him of whatever he might obtain. The prisoner is a hard looking character but speaks and acts with a certain degree of refinement. He was taken to the Somerset county jail in Somerville this morning under the custody of Marshal Charles Keller. Before departing, Wade shook hands all around with the court officials and walked briskly toward the train in the new pair of shoes, which was given him by Councilman William L. Smalley, Jr.

Despite the fact that Wade had made a complete confession of his guilt to the police, he pleaded not guilty before Justice Snape. It is supposed by the authorities that his object in this plea was that William Jeroloman, his accomplice in the crime, would be apprehended in the meantime and thus share part of the guilt upon him. Shortly after the hearing when placed in his cell, Wade started to amuse himself by singing many of the popular airs. The highwayman possesses considerable musical talent.

The wedding will take place at the home of the bride, 1340 Putnam avenue, Tuesday evening, September 6, at eight o'clock. Miss Kelly was graduated from the City High School in the class of 1908, and is the first member of that class to get married. She is popular among a large circle of friends in this city. Mr. Stewart holds a responsible position with a large New York firm.

Interesting Service at Army Tent.

Stirring gospel talks and excellent music combined to make the meeting at the Salvation Army tent, last night, an interesting one. Martin A. Korff was in charge of the music, and a feature was the singing of three solos by Mrs. L. R. Howard, which was appreciated by the audience. Mr. Korff also played a violin solo, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Howard. Mr. Korff made the address, taking for his subject, "This poor man cried and the Lord heard him, and saved him out of all his troubles."

Bitten By Vicious Dog.

While riding on his bicycle on Somerset street last night, Francis Valley, who lives near Watchung, was bitten on the leg by a vicious little dog, as he approached Fritts place. The canine has become a nuisance in the neighborhood, and the borough police are seeking the owner of the dog. The bite was not a severe one, but was enough to cause Mr. Valley considerable pain.

Mr. Fowler to Speak.

Charles N. Fowler, of Elizabeth, will address a mass meeting to be held at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, at 8 o'clock, which he has engaged for the occasion. He will appeal to the local Republicans to support him in his candidacy for a ninth term in Congress.

WILL OF SAMUEL DREIER

Offered for Probate in Elizabeth Yesterday Before Surrogate Parrot.

FAITHFUL DOMESTIC'S REWARD.

Henry and Garret Dreier Named as Executors—Children of Judge Newcorn to Have One-Fifth of Estate.

The will of the late Samuel Dreier, who died at Bradley Beach on August 6, was filed for probate before Surrogate George Parrot yesterday in Elizabeth. No figures as to the value of the real or personal estate were given, but it is believed to be large. Among the beneficiaries of Mr. Dreier is Anna Subschinski, a servant for many years in the employ of the testator. She receives the bedroom furniture and a life interest in the premises at 525-527 West Third street. At her death this property will revert to the estate.

The testament gives to Garret D. Dreier and Harry N. Dreier, sons of the testator, the use of the income from the estate for fifteen years, after which time the entire holdings of both personal and real property are to be divided into five equal parts, of which Henry Dreier, Garret Dreier, Mrs. Bertha Saenger, David Dreier and the three sons of one daughter of the deceased, are to receive each one-fifth of the total. The other fifth is to be divided equally between Mr. Dreier's two grandchildren, Etta and Isadore Newcorn, children of Judge William Newcorn.

Garret and Henry Dreier are named in the will as executors of the estate of their father.

The bedroom furniture which is bequeathed to the servant, Anna Subschinski is that which has been used by the elder Dreier for many years and is valuable. Garret Dreier, the second son named in the will, is a resident of New Brunswick. Mrs. Martha Saenger is the wife of Charles Saenger, of West Front street. Judge Newcorn is presiding judge in the District court in this city.

WANT VAN ARSDALE FOR MAYOR A YEAR HENCE

Although there will be no Mayoralty contest in North Plainfield this year, there is a strong sentiment growing in favor of Councilman Morris C. Van Arsdale for that position, a year hence. Mr. Van Arsdale has been in close touch with borough affairs for several years and has acquainted himself with details of the government there which would make him a popular candidate. His many friends are anxious that he should be the choice of the Republicans for the honor and in consequence have started an early boom for Mr. Van Arsdale.

During his term of service in the borough council, Mr. Van Arsdale has been aggressive and wide-awake to all the best interests of that municipality and it is the opinion among his friends that he would make a good executive of the borough. It is understood that Mr. Van Arsdale will accept the honor, provided the party wants him to take the position.

Mr. Martine has signified his acceptance.

"Good morning!" said Mrs. Stinjay, "Pardon my calling so early, but I saw your advertisement for a cook."

HERE AND THERE.

"I was puzzled the other night by two lights which kept approaching me on the sidewalk," said a wayfarer. "I finally made out that they were on a baby carriage. It struck me as a pretty good idea, for the lights didn't seem to bother the baby at all and they certainly kept people from running into the carriage in the dark. The lanterns were made like small carriage lamps and were fastened in their sockets."

"The heathen Chinese is not one-half so full of tricks as a woman who is dissatisfied with a ready-made suit," said a tailor. "One of the resourceful type brought in a suit that required but few alterations to make it fit. I told her so and named a price.

"'Oh, but I don't want it to fit,' she said. 'I want you to do something that will make it bunch out more on the shoulders, narrower across the chest and shorter waisted. I've had so much trouble trying to get it to fit that I hate the very sight of it. As it looks now the store won't take it back. They have fooled with it until they have got it nearly right that they declare there is nothing the matter with it, but if it could be made to look so bad that even the man who made it would have to acknowledge it was a failure they would refund my money. Will you undertake the job?'

"I would not, but another tailor, apparently would, because pretty soon she appeared in another new suit."

One of the most effective, as well as one of the quaintest ways to land a wary purchaser, is that adopted by a representative of a well known typewriter firm a few days ago. This is the way he tells it:

"Mr. Beeswax had been proof against the most untiring assaults of some of the best men in the business, his specialty being that he never allowed the salesman to tell his entire story but literally talked him down. I made up my mind I would land him and gave the matter considerable thought.

"Finally I walked in on him with a pocketful of shelled almonds, and as I said, 'Good day, Mr. Beeswax,' in a bland and youthful way, I took one up and began to munch it. I started in with arguments for our machine. He was eating the third nut when he began to try to talk, but his throat was about as dry as if he had been eating soda crackers. He had to give it up and I knew my say out. Before I was half through I had convinced him of the merits of my machine and taken his order."

"When I saw my stenographer banishing the ink spots from her fingers with unlighted match ends I concluded that I didn't know all the possibilities of matches," said a business man. "As I was coming home tonight I saw them put to an even more curious use at the flower stand on the corner. A bunch of peculiar white roses attracted my attention, the petals being pure white, while the hearts were deep red.

"'I maka dose,' explained the owner proudly, and seizing a red rose he lighted a sulphur match beneath the stem, whereupon the crimson faded to white. 'I maka white ones for you any time,' said the dealer, as he lighted another match."

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

The Alhambra, the first of the Percy G. Williams theatres in Greater New York to make its debut for the season of 1910-11, throws open its doors Monday after a complete renovation with a gala program headed by "The Carnival of Roses," a spectacular pantomime in five scenes with a company of twenty headed by Miss La Clair. This elaborate offering with its wealthy scenery and electrical effects, its gorgeous costumes and pretty stage pictures is easily one of the pretentious of the pantomic acts, which have enjoyed such a great vaudeville. Morton and Moore, late stars of "The Merry Whirl," whose act in eccentric singing and dancing has created a veritable furor, comprise another big feature. E. Frederick Hawley and company in the stirring dramatic playlet "The Bandit," loom up conspicuously among the headline attractions. Avery and Hart, the clever singing comedians; Charles and Fannie Van, in the hilarious sketch, "A Case of Emergency," the Four Melody Monarchs, a new musical act which has scored one of the hits of the early season; Clark and Bergman, in a sprightly singing and dancing divertisement; Max Yorke's dogs; and the Woods and Woods Trio in a lively acrobatic specialty with the latest motion pictures by the vitagraph comprise the balance of the opening bill. The first Sunday concerts of the season will be given next Sunday.

LOCAL ELKS VICTORIOUS

Beat Camden by Score of 9 to 5 in Game Replete with Brilliance.

HOME RUN BY McLAUGHLIN.

Local Team Play Ball Like Big Leaguers and Are Mighty with the Stick—Uniforms a Factor.

If Warry McLaughlin had not let down in his pitching after the eighth inning of the Elks' game in Camden yesterday the Camdenites would never have crossed the rubber with a tally. It was simply a walkover for the Plainfield nine and some of the credit for the victory may be ascribed to the natty uniforms of the locals and the rest to the splendid team work of the locals. The score was 9 to 5 and the Camden team did not make the circuit until the eighth.

Plainfield had men on bases in every inning, but the sharp fielding and good pitching of Westcott and Thompson prevented any scoring until the sixth inning and then they came in bunches. Three hits and a couple of errors put the Plainfielders four runs to the good in this inning and in the seventh another batting streak, in which a home run by McLaughlin with three men on bases accounted for four of the five runs scored and it was all done without anyone being out.

It seemed that after this long lead that the fans felt some remorse and decided that it would be un-fraternal to scoop everything in sight, so Warry was given the tip to ease up and Camden took advantage of the slow easy ones and scored in both the eighth and ninth innings. But maybe there wasn't some style to Plainfield's play! MacNaughton at first accepted thirteen chances with but one excusable error and Captain Hoyt at second put over three of the prettiest assists seen on the Camden diamond in many a day.

McLaughlin's home run hit was one of the longest ever. He put the ball over the fence with about ten feet to spare and all the other fellows on bases had to do was trot leisurely home. The features of the game were the general all-round good playing of the locals where Smith and Moynihan shone as brilliant stars in the outfield and Hoyt, McLaughlin and Cadmus in the infield. Pop Campbell and Loughead led in fielding. The six hits credited to the Camdenites were made by six different batters. MacNaughton and Torpey led in the stick work for Plainfield, each pf them securing three hits. The summary and figures below a good description of the game.

MISS WALBRIDGE BRIDE OF EUGENE H. PECK

Miss Anna Ryckman Walbridge, daughter of Mrs. K. C. Walbridge, of West Eighth street, and Eugene Hartley Peck, of Brooklyn, were married yesterday at the residence of the bride's brother, Charles C. Walbridge, 309 East 15th street, Brooklyn. Rev. Lewis F. Hoard, of Brooklyn, performed the ceremony in the presence of a limited company of relatives and friends.

The bride, although not a resident of this city very long, is well-known here, having been prominent in society affairs as well as interested in charitable objects here. She is a sister of Mrs. Howard McWilliams, of Hillside avenue. The groom is also prominent in Brooklyn, where he has resided for some time. The couple will live in Brooklyn.

SLAIN SIX TIMES FOR A SKINLESS CHICKEN

"The whole trouble started when Mrs. Annie Finkelstein of 28 Ludlow street left her home on last Friday to purchase one-fourth of one chicken for the Shabbis meal," says the New York Evening Sun. "Mrs. Finkelstein has appeared in the newspapers before. Her husband several months ago went into the cellar of a house next door and tried to dig a tunnel under Ludlow street to a jewelry store on the corner of Grand and Ludlow streets. He got caught in the tunnel one night and was dead when the Bureau of Highways dug him out.

"But, at all events, Mrs. Finkelstein started out to buy part of a chicken, and as she had always secured good weight at the shop of Mrs. Rachel Reider at 28 Ludlow street, she hied her there. After attempting more than a quarter of a chicken was told before Magistrate Kernochan in Essex Market Police Court today."

"I went into Mrs. Reider's store" said Mrs. Finkelstein, "and she showed a couple of quarters to me. They were skinny, Judge, and that woman wanted that I should pay her 25 cents for skinny chickens. I said to her I ain't no greenhorn, and I find a couple of quarters for mineself. So I went over to the barrel, and picked them out. Then some one gave me a knock in the back of the head with a chicken.

"I wouldn't have cared, Judge, only that chicken didn't have his skin on. I fell dead to the floor, and then this woman began to kill me with her hands and feet. A lot of women in there killed me."

"How many times were you killed?" asked Magistrate Kernochan.

"Fully a half dozen or six times," said she.

"You've got a many lives as a cat," said the Magistrate. "What are you to say, Mrs. Reider, to this charge of homicide?"

"Believe me, Judge, may I never taste another gefilter if that woman ain't lying," protested the chicken merchant. "Ill get a fine business if it's for nothing that I hit my customers, or I ain't killed her not at all, I ain't done it. She killed me and my son.

"She came into my store and asked for two quarters of a chicken. I chopped one up and gave them to her; two fine quarters Judge, that you might get at the best hotels on Grand street. I sew them in the wings. Then she said she wanted one-half of a spring chicken, too. She went over to my son without paying me. Then she said she'd go across the street to buy it, and went out of the store without paying for the quarters. I hope I ain't born if she paid.

"So, then when she came out of the other store I looked in her bag and found six quarters. So then she killed me with the chicken, and her son came and killed me with his hands and feet. I didn't hit her once."

"Mrs. Reider," said Magistrate Kernochan, "I fine you $1 for killing Mrs. Finkelstein, and I fine Mrs. Finkelstein $1 for killing Mrs. Reider."

Both women paid.

SLICED LEMON FORKS.

Sliced lemon is served with so many dishes that a fork has been created for cutting it. These forks are small and have two or three prongs.

For serving fruits there are all sorts of pretty little silver novelties. There is an orange peeler that has two blades to go round and round the orange, cutting it in a continuous string, and for strawberries a silver huller, a tiny pair of pinchers to remove the green from the fruit.

To remove the eyes from pineapples are silver or gold clips that perform their work effectively and quickly, while grape scissors are pretty for pitting peaches there is a silver knife, and a fork with which to spear the cherry that lurks in the bottom of the cocktail glass in rather new.

ORGANIZE FIRE COMPANY

WILLIAM TITUS ELECTED CHIEF.

Chemical Engine Purchased and Sixteen Members Enrolled—Will Cut Insurance Rates.

At a meeting of the citizens of Watchung and vicinity last night at Maul's Hotel, it was decided by them to organize a fire department for the protection of property in that locality. Officers of the company were elected and a chemical engine was purchased. The residents of that vicinity are enthusiastic over the proposition and lost no time in completing the organization.

The meeting was called to order by George Mobus, the secretary of the Township Committee and then William Titus was elected as temporary chairman. Edward Fannin was appointed as secretary. Chief Charles Meyers, of the Scotch Plains fire department, made a speech to the citizens in which he explained the organization of the department in Scotch Plains and other things pertaining to the company. Several timely suggestions were made by Mr. Meyers.

The new organization is to be known as the Watchung Chemical Fire Department. It was decided to make the initiation fee for membership fifty cents and the dues twenty-five cents a month. William Titus was elected to the office of chief of the department with Louis Snowden and William Walker, foreman and assistant foreman, respectively. Geo. Mobus was chosen as the treasurer of the company. Chief Charles Meyer, of the Scotch Plains company was made an honorary member of the department.

After carefully testing the chemical engine, which was owned by the Scotch Plains department, the Watchung department purchased the machine and will install it in the fire house, the location of which has not as yet been decided upon. This matter will be discussed at the next meeting of the company, which is scheduled to be held at Texier's Mills, Monday night.

The department has been a long-wished-for thing by the residents of Watchung, as there is absolutely no protection from fire in that locality and consequently the rates of insurance are high. By the organization of the fire department, it is expected that the insurance rates will be considerably decreased.

AUTO FOUND BY ROADSIDE A WRECK

When E. S. F. Randolph, formerly of this city but now of Westfield, drove his auto into his garage Thursday morning he found a poorly clothed man sitting on a barrel of gasoline. The man told Mr. Randolph a hard-luck story and asked for a job. Mr. Randolph set him to work washing his Mitchell roadster.

Then the former Plainfielder was called out of town, but paid the man who said his name was Taylor, for the work to be done. When Mr. Randolph returned to his home this morning, he found the garage door open and his car absent. Upon investigation he discovered a note, which informed him that his car was out on the Rahway road. Here the car was found by Mr. Randolph, with one side in a ditch, the axles bent, and the whole machine badly damaged. The car was towed to the F. L. C. Martin automobile garage in this city, where repairs will be made.

Mr. Randolph is now wondering whether it was Taylor, who took the car or whether it was the intention of the would-be chauffeur to steal the machine or to just have a little joy-ride. The question is a perplexing one to solve but the damage has been done and Mr. Randolph has decided to be more careful when engaging men to clean his cars.

"Dr. Sixthly, I've come to ask you for the hand of your daughter. You must have seen how things were going!"

"Yes, yes. I am not surprised. At the same time I cannot look upon the prospect with unmixed delight."

"I am very sorry, doctor. What is your objection?"

"I can have no real objection when when my daughter's happiness is at stake. At the same time I realize that the church will be a heavy financial loser when its hansomest and most successful passer of the plate becomes a married man. Nevertheless, she's yours, Clarence."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

RADICAL CHANGES IN FOOTBALL RULES

After an extended period lasting nearly six months, the intercollegiate Football Rules Committee yesterday announced in Spaulding's Official Football Guide the rules which will govern the conduct of the game during the Fall season. Many of the changes are revolutionary in character and calculated to minimize greatly the danger of fatal accidents existing under the old rules.

The time of play is divided into four periods of fifteen minutes' duration instead of the traditional two halves of thirty-five minutes each. The usual intermission of fifteen minutes is maintained between the second and third period, but an intermission of three minutes only is allowed between the first and second and third and fourth periods. During this short intermission no player will be allowed to leave the field, nor will anyone be permitted to come on the field save only the individual who looks after the physical condition of the players.

At the beginning of the second and fourth periods the teams change goals, but the down, the relative spot of the down, the possession of the ball and the distance to be gained remain the same as at the conclusion of the preceding period of play.

Another radical change is the rule governing the flying tackle. This has been entirely eliminated by a new ruling, which provides that a player must have one foot at least on the ground when tackling an opponent. The new legislation governing the forward pass, which a number of the experts were inclined to abolish altogether, will materially alter the play and aspect of the game.

This year's rules provide that a player is only qualified to receive a forward pass who is at least one yard back of his own line of scrimmage or occupies the position on the end of said line. No man may make a forward pass or kick from closer than is five yards back of the line of scrimmage.

The territory forward of the line of scrimmage, and consequently in the enemy's camp, is adjudged neutral ground and is not to be occupied pending the completion of a forward pass or kick. A forward pass 20 yards in advance of the spot is not legal if the ball crosses a line where it was put in play before touching the ground or a player.

In case of a kick the players on the defense within the 20-yard zone must not interfere with the ends or other players in any way until these opponents have advanced 20 yards beyond the line of scrimmage.

Interlocked interference—that is, players on the side having the ball taking hold of each other, or using their hands or arms to grasp their opponents' bodies in any form is forbidden, and it is also forbidden for any man on the side having possession of the ball to rush or pull in any way the man running with the ball.

Another innovation is to be noted in regards to substitution of players during a game. A rule has been passed which provides that a player who has been removed for any cause except disqualification or suspension may be returned to the game once at the beginning of any subsequent period.

The longitudinal lines formerly marking the field are done away with as the quarter back may now cross the line of scrimmage at any point.

The new rules have already been adopted by all the large colleges, nearly all of them being represented on the Rules Committee, which consists of L. M. Dennis, Colgate; Percy Hall, Dartmouth; James A. Babbitt, Haverford; John C. Bell, University of Pennsylvania; Crawford Blagden, Harvard; Walter Camp, Yale; Paul J. Dashiell, Annapolis; W. L. Dudley, Vanderbilt; Parke H. Davis, Princeton; Lieut. H. H. Hackett, West Point; Dr. W. A. Lambeth, University of Virginia; C. W. Savage, Oberlin; A. A. Stagg, University of Chicago and H. L. Williams, University of Minnesota.

MISS ROSE BLOCK TO WED HARRY COWEN

Miss Rose Block, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Block, of Orchard place, and a sister to Mrs. Morris Abrams, of Grove street, will be married at the Jewish Synagogue on New street, Sunday afternoon, September 18, at 5 o'clock, to Harry Cowen, of New York city. Dr. Eisenman, New York, will perform the ceremony, and a reception will follow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abrams.

BRANDON-CRAIG WEDDING

REV. E. O. BROWN OFFICIATES.

Reception Follows the Ceremony—Guests From Out of Town—Couple Will Live in Elizabeth.

Miss Emma Craig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Craig, of this city, and Bertram Hamilton Brandon, formerly of this city, but now of Elizabeth, were married at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, 1824 West Front street, in the presence of about one hundred relatives and friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Ernest Brown, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Dunellen.

The bride was attended by Miss Lillian Chichester, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Howard H. Craig, the brother of the bride, was the best man. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Following the ceremony, a reception was tendered the newly-married couple and the festivities kept up until well into the evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Brandon left for an extended wedding trip.

The house was tastefully decorated with flowers of the season, the parlor being filled with a solid mass of hydrangias. During the reception a wedding supper was served to the bridal party and the guests, by De Molli, the caterer. Among those attending the ceremony were friends and relatives from New York, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Chicago, southern part of New Jersey, Dunellen and this city.

An interesting feature of the wedding was that the bride was married in the same house that her mother was married in many years ago. The bride wore a white cream satin gown, with a point lace veil, and carried a shower bouquet. Miss Chichester's gown was white silk over pink. Her bouquet was of pink orchids.

The bride is well known in this city, being a graduate of the Plainfield High School and connected with many social activities. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ella Brandon and the late Mathew H. Brandon, who formerly lived on Dunellen avenue. Mr. Brandon now lives in Elizabeth, being engaged in the dry goods business in New York city. After an extended honeymoon, the destination of which is unknown, Mr. and Mrs. Brandon will make their home in Elizabeth.

WILL APPOINT FACTORY INSPECTORS ON SEPT. 6

Although their terms of office expire on September 2, next Governor Fort decided today before starting on his vacation, not to name successors of seven of the present State factory inspectors until he returns from the automobile trip through New England, which terminates on September 6.

The Governor has about twenty-five applications for appointment to the places to become vacant, eight of which are from women. The applications from the women are for the position which has been made vacant

Senator Leavitt, of Mercer county, is trying to induce Governor Fort to appoint James Tallon, of Trenton, in place of Joseph C. Milburn, of the same city, who has been a State inspector for several years. Tallon is backed up by the independent forces and is a potter. It is stated about the capital that Councilman William Gloak, of this city, is one of the candidates who wishes to be Andrew McCardell's successor.

REPUBLICANS FAVOR VON MINDEN FOR ASSEMBLY

Wilson S. Frederick, of Dunellen, and R. F. P. vonMinden, of New Market, were among the Republicans of Middlesex county, who enjoyed the annual clambake at Maurer, yesterday. All factions of the party were present and one of the noticeable features was that harmony prevailed. There was no speechmaking, but in a quiet way several office-seekers were endorsed.

Mr. vonMinden, who has already served one term in the Assembly, would like to go back to Trenton, and the party was with him yesterday in his ambition. Vivian M. Lewis was also the choice for the Gubernatorial nomination. The strength of Theodore Strong, as leader of the party in the county, was recognized and the old saddle in the reins seemed to be apparent to everyone.

EXHIBITS ROTARY ENGINE

Inventor Tygard Has Perfected His Reversible Turbine Steam Motor.

RUNS WITHOUT ANY VIBRATION.

The Little Engine, Which Weighs 200 Pounds, Is Capable of Developing Forty Horse Power.

A reversible rotary steam engine, which has paved the way for a new era in steam power, is being shown this week at the plant of the Spicer Universal Joint Manufacturing Company, by the inventor of the machine, James W. Tygard, of 929 South avenue. The engine, which is truly a little giant, is the result of sixteen years of experimenting by Mr. Tygard in his shop on South avenue. At present these engines are being manufactured in a factory at Pittsburg, Pa.

This little engine resembles a small turbine in appearance, but unlike the turbine, whose power depends upon the expansion of steam in straight lines, Mr. Tygard's invention receives its impulses from a continuous supply of compressed steam. The machine is one of the smallest power plants that is known. It weighs only two hundred and ninety pounds, as opposed to almost twice that weight in a turbine of the same power. Turning up five thousand revolutions a minute, Mr. Tygard's marvelous engine is capable of developing forty horse power. Its slowest speed is one revolution per minute. Unlike the steam turbine, this machine can be reversed and run at exactly the same speed and power as it produces while running in the opposite direction. This engine can be run at one-half the fuel consumption of the ordinary slide valve engine of the same horse power. Mr. Tygard says that one of these machines recently ran for ninety days at twelve hundred revolutions per minute without a stop. During this time the engine was hitched up to an electric generator of twenty-two horse-power.

The working principle of this little engine is this: The steam is admitted through the crank shaft, which runs on Hessbirht bearings. There are three ports in this shaft, each of which open into a separate chamber. In each chamber is a rotary cylinder head, against which the steam expands, thus driving the shaft on its revolution. Each of these cylinder heads revolves with the shaft into the next chamber through a steel pocket, which works in unison with the crank shaft. As each cylinder head passes through the chamber, the exhaust port is opened and the waste steam passes out, as the next cylinder head comes into the chamber. The feature of this engine is that when running in the opposite direction the exhaust port acts as the intake and vice-versa.

No valves are used whatsoever except a sliding intake port. There are no cams at all in the machine. The crank case of the engine is made of cast iron while the shaft and rotary heads are of Bessemer steel.

It is expected that the engine will solve the problem of economical power transmission to a considerable degree.

The engine has run suspended on a rope from the ceiling without the slightest vibration. It is expected that the Plainfield inventor will be easily known in engineering circles within a few years.

STATE FAIR WILL OPEN GATES ON OCTOBER 3.

The opening date for the New Jersey State Fair, to be held at Olympic Park, Newark, has been announced as October 3, when the inaugural events on a week's program will be given. Besides the exhibition of cattle, farm products, fine arts and the various manufactures that will attract attention, there will be horse racing and various athletic events.

It is expected that the trotting and running events held in connection with the fair will be particularly interesting, while in addition to this there will be bicycle and motorcycle races. A program of special concern to automobilists and persons interested in aviation will also be provided.

Each of the six days of the fair will be set aside for special occasions and among these no little interest will probably attach to Military Day and Governor's Day. On the latter occasion it is expected that State, county and city officials and politicians from all over New Jersey will be in attendance.

Military Day will be of special interest to members of the National Guard, who will compete for honors in drills open to the military of the State.

E. N. DOWNS NOW FULL-FLEDGED MANAGER

"Variety," the well-known theatrical publication, in this week's issue contains an interesting item about Emery N. Downs, who was formerly employed at Proctor's theatre, this city, and later at Perth Amboy. Mr. Downs has evidently made many friends since going to Atlantic City, as the following will show:

"Emery Newell Downs, who is managing the Criterion, at Atlantic City, has become quite popular since here. He arrived about two months ago to take charge of the Criterion for Marcus Loew and Walter Rosenberg. Since he has blossomed from a 'pop vaude' manager into a real sure enough Henry E. Savage manager he thinks (and with some right) that folks should take notice. Before this tow-headed young man reached our city it seems that he was quite a successful manager of some Proctor houses, having the Union Square and Perth Amboy on his hands. He has also written some pretty god press stories both here and elsewhere, but, of course, modestly kept dark the author. As he is a regular manager now, he has Adam Sowergrug skinned a mile. He expects Col. Savage to supply the orchestra, ticket sellers and stage hands. Of course, he got these ideas when he was a 'pop' manager—that much he admits. But at that he's a pretty good little fellow and deserves to get along."

HE'S HERE.

The sun may shine,
Or it may rain.
What do we care?
He's home again.
Hurrah! Hurrah!
Start up the band.
His feet is on
His native land.

The bands they play,
The cannons roar
A welcome as
He steps ashore.
The people shout,
Rough riders yell,
And you can bet
That all is well.

He's home again
From foreign clime,
Where he has had
A corking time
In Africa.
And likewise Rome,
But still there is
No place like home.

And that is what
He said today,
Before he left
For Oyster Bay.
And he is glad
That he is here.
So are the folks.
That's why they cheer.

Hurrah! Hurrah!
And cheer and shout,
And turn the old
Town inside out,
While all hands sing
This glad refrain,
"Three cheers for Ted,
He's home again."

THE LATE CHIEF JUSTICE.

Chief Justice Fuller was to the Supreme Court what the bubbles are to champagne. When Cleveland appointed, and a reluctant Senate finally confirmed him, twenty-two years ago, he brought into the court an element of liveliness, vigor and vivacity that was very stimulating and helpful to that learned body. While he will hardly be rated as a very great judge, he was throughout his whole term of service a very useful, able and acceptable one, excellent especially in the duties that belonged to his office of chief justice. Mr. Cleveland's judgment in appointing him was a good deal questioned at the time the appointment was made, but it did not take long to justify it, and in the end the country got a noble term of service from the Democratic President's appointee.

It is recorded that Judge Fuller was an intimate friend of Stephen A. Douglas. It must have been a friendship quickly formed, and it indicates an early development of conspicuous talent in Judge Fuller, for he went to Chicago from Maine in 1856, being then 23 years old, and could not have had more than five years' acquaintance then with Douglas. His thirty-two years of active practice in Chicago and twenty-two years of unbroken work in the office of chief justice show a remarkable continuance of active mental labor, the possession of excellent powers, and the wise husbanding of them through a long life.—Harper's Weekly.

VICTORY SURE, SAYS 'JIM'

"Farmer Orator" Tells Democrats on Outing That They are Certain to Win.

LIVELY BOOM FOR W. E. TUTTLE

Political Bee Buzzes and Many Candidates are Discussed on Trip to Witzel's Point Grove.

James E. Martine, of this city, who has once more entered the political arena, this time seeking a seat in the United States Senate to succeed John Kean, together with one thousand other Democrats, were aboard the Steamer Sirius yesterday, and enjoyed the annual outing of Union County Democrats at Witzel's Point Grove, on Long Island. The outing was attended by almost every influential Democrat in the county, including County Chairman William E. Tuttle and General Dennis F. Collins.

One notable feature, aside from the stereotx added to Mr. Martine's boom, was that William E. Tuttle, was prominently named for the Congressional nomination, and he was the unanimous choice of the party on the outing. Everybody had a good word for Mr. Martine and gave him assurance that he would be successful in his candidacy.

"I firmly believe," said Mr. Martine, "that the next House of Representatives will be Democratic, that the next Governor of New Jersey will be a Democrat, that the New Jersey Assembly next year will have a Democratic majority and that we will gain one or two seats in the Senate.

"Many things have happened during the past year which have enhanced our chances. People all over the State are disgusted with Republican methods. One of the chief factors which will aid the Democrats is the increase in commutation rates. The feeling in this vicinity is not too bitter, but in other sections of the State there are thousands of commuters who will vote against the Republican candidates because of the failure of the last Legislature to enact a public utilities law which would give the State the power to fix rates. Yes, sir, our chances were never brighter."

"Farmer Jim" was the leader in the cheers for Mr. Tuttle, followed by the others in quick succession. Then came another toast for Frank Pfaff, of Elizabeth, for the Assembly. He was given cheers.

From Union county there were scores of Democrats who predicted a Democratic success. They believed, they said, that the recent Legislature so dampened the fervor of the Republicans that there will be many G. O. P. votes in the Democratic ballot box.

The likelihood of those on board seemed to favor Woodrow Wilson for Governor. They pointed out that he is a man of sterling character and would net many votes.

Everything went smoothly. There was not a hitch to mar the program. Leaving the dock at 10.30 a. m., the boat sailed around Staten Island and then up the East River to the grove where dinner was served.

Among those on the outing were: James E. Martine, County Chairman William A. Tuttle, President of Elizabeth Council Alfred A. Stein, Councilmen Patrick J. McGurn, Jeremiah McNamara, John P. Fuhrmann, Michael V. Regan, John F. Byrnes, Peter Mowrk, Thomas Durett, Chas. H. Moore, Owen Farrelly, George Schlotterer, Edward Nugent and William Marsh; President of the Board of Fire Commissioners Frederick Kurtz, Fire Commissioner John J. Collins, Secretary to the Fire Commissioners William J. Cox, Chief of the Fire Department August Gerstung, School Commissioners James E. Desmond, James E. Butler, Chas. Matthews, Secretary to the Board of Education Andrew P. Hughes, Tax Assessor Michael Kelly, Comptroller John S. Sauer, City Clerk John F. Kenah, Street Commissioner Thomas H. Thompson, City Surveyor William H. Luster, Jr., Assistant City Surveyor John Kreig, Judge Owen P. Mahon, Captain John J. O'Leary, City Treasurer John J. McGrath, of Elizabeth; City Tax Commissioner M. M. Scudder, Assessor J. M. C. Morah, Major Wheatley, J. Russell Marsh, William Duffy, Bernard Roake, John Goldra, E. Eckel and Charles Burtis, of Westfield; L. J. Ellis, president of the Plainfield Democratic Club, Frank Shattle, Walter L. Hetfield, P. J. Reville, J. V. F. Diltz, of Plainfield.

'TWAS A NEAR-ELOPEMENT

KNOT TIED BY FORMER PASTOR.

Bride Went on Vacation, Ostensibly to Philadelphia, but Met Groom at Asbury Park—Both Well Known.

There was a little surprise manifested yesterday when word was received in this city that George E. Firstbrook and Miss Mabel Cole had been married at Asbury Park on last Saturday. Most of his intimate friends were aware of the attachment between the couple, but were not expecting that the event was so near. As a matter of fact the wedding took on all the elements of an elopement adding the spice of romance necessary for a story.

According to the dispatch received here, Miss Cole, who was a stenographer in the office of Harry C. Runyon, started on a vacation on Saturday and gave it out that she would go on a visit to relatives in Philadelphia. Instead she met Mr. Firstbrook at Asbury Park and after the formality of securing a license, they were married at Atlantic Highlands, by Miss Cole's former pastor, Rev. Frank Fletcher, of the Central Avenue Baptist church, the pastor's wife and Miss Blanche Cassaboom being the witnesses.

Mr. Firstbrook is a son of Mrs. Mary E. Firstbrook, of Grant avenue, and is best known as a newspaper man and baseball fan. Up to within two months ago he was in charge of the sporing page of the Daily Press, *and is now engaged in a simi*lar capacity with the Asbury Park Morning Press. He has been married before and has a son about 10 years old. His bride is a daughter of Captain and Mrs. Benjamin Cole, of Dunellen. Captain Cole is one of the best known pilots in the service of the Central Railway ferry, being now in command of the Cranford. Mrs. Firstbrook is a singer of some ability, being the soloist at the Dunellen Presbyterian church.

Words of congratulations were wired to the newly married pair today by a number of their friends in this city including the staff of the Daily Press.

KONESKY WILL TURN OVER NEW LEAF NOW

John Konesky, a twenty year old boy, was caught skating in the rear of the store on West Front street last night by Patrolman Daniel McDonald and was arrested. When arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning Konesky could give no excuse for his rather suspicious actions excepting that he was not living at home with his parents.

Konesky said that his father did not want him at home and in fact had sent word to him by a brother saying that he need not return to the parental roof. This action he declared was taken because of his frequent absences. Judge Runyon thought the fault was entirely the boy's and advised him to seek reconciliation with his father and to turn over a new leaf.

He was sent to his home accompanied by Detective Sergeant John Flynn, who will try to patch up the trouble between father and son and make it possible for the young man to become a useful citizen. There is no doubt in the judge's mind that Konesky has been led astray by evil companions.

MISS MARY RYAN WEDS BIG CRANFORD MAN.

Miss Mary Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ryan, of East Third street, was married last night in St. Mary's church to James T. Dackery, of Cranford. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Hogan.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Anna A. Ryan, of this city. The best man was John T. Connell, of Easton, Pa.

Miss Ryan is well known in this city and is popular among a large circle of friends. Mr. Dackery, who is in the employ of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, has the distinction of being the biggest man in Cranford. He weighs over three hundred pounds. The groom is a member of the Foresters and several other fraternal organizations, being extremly popular among the citizens of Cranford.

And Points That Hurt.

"Say," sneered the bulldog, "you don't know much about scientific fighting, do you?"

"Perhaps not," replied the porcupine, "however, if you want to try a little bout with me I think I can give you a few points."—The Catholic Standard and Times.

AUTOISTS WANT REFORM

Will Vote for Candidates Who Will Work for Change in Frelinghuysen Law.

FOUR HUNDRED SIGN APPROVAL

Retaliatory Measures Adopted by Other States Countered by Present New Jersey Statute—Want Road Signs, Too.

New Jersey automobilists met in force in Newark last night to protest against the present unsatisfactory automobile laws and incidentally to draft a set of resolutions upon which endorsement is given to candidates for office in the coming elections who shall declare to use their influence for the changing of the Frelinghuysen statute which acts, according to the automobilists, contrary to the interests of the State of New Jersey in relation to license privilliges in other States, and which have been the cause of retaliatory measures in those other commonwealths.

The resolutions, which will be found below, were endorsed by the four hundred members of the New Jersey Automobile Association who were present in the Hall of the Motor Club last night and vigorous work will be commenced at once for the changes desired. Letters from former Governor Franklin Murphy and others were read, in which the changes proposed in the present law are approved. Many of the members of the local association were present and added their voices to the general demonstration of approval to the changes desired.

The following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, The existing automobile statute known as the Frelinghuysen law, with its amendments, has caused our neighboring States to pass retaliatory measures, and

Whereas, The business interests of the State are being effected, tourists of other States being barred from entering our borders until they have filed with the Secretary of State powers of attorney and secured licenses for which compensation is exacted, and

Whereas, Because of this proviso our own citizens are required to take out licenses and pay the full resident license fees at great cost and inconvenience before they can enter the borders of som of our nighboring States, and

Whereas, Approximately $400,000 of the reported $500,000 to be expended by this State in the repair of improved roads during the year is received from the license fees from automobilists; therefore be it

Resolved, That the automobilists in this vicinity, in massmeeting assembled, in order to protect the good name of our State, use their influnence in the coming election to elect those men to office, regardless of party, who shall pledge themselves to the unqualified support and active interest in passing the following amendments to the present law:

That non-resident automobilists desiring to tour in New Jersey be permitted to do so for a limited period of time without expense to them and without requiring them to take out special licenses or sign powers of attorney before entering the borders of the State, provided they have duly complied with the laws of the States in which they reside;

That the law which was recently passed requiring all vehicles to carry lights at night shall be re-enacted and made so that it can be properly enforced, a minimum penalty fixed, and the fines collected for breaches thereof turned over to the State treasurer, to be spent only on the repair of improved highways.

That the horsepower of cars for license purposes shall be rated A. L. A. M., and not upon the manufacturer's rating.

That in consideration of the large sums received from license fees by the State, automobilists be exempted from further taxation, and that the fees so collected shall be paid in lieu of any and all taxes.

That two thousand dollars ($2,000) per year for a period of at least three years be set aside from the funds paid by the automobilists for licenses, etc., such amount to be used in erecting proper guiding signs upon the highways where required.

AUGUSTUS F. TODD FINALLY ACCEPTS THE APPOINTMENT.

Augustus F. Todd, of Dunellen, who declined the appointment as member of the Council at that place to succeed Lewis T. Churchill, resigned, afterward changed his mind and at the earnest solicitation of Mayor Sandford, decided to accept the honor. He has been sworn into office and will fill the unexpired term of Mr. Churchill.

George Huff, who tendered his resignation as a member of the council, was persuaded to withhold the same for the present, and action on it has been postponed. It was stated today that Mr. Huff has determined to resign from the Council, however, as he plans to be away from the borough a greater part of the time during the coming year.

STATE WILL FIGHT INFANT PARALYSIS

On being told that there were many cases of infant paralysis *throughout the State where the par*ents of the children did not consider the disease contagious, Dr. Bruce S. Keator, secretary of the State Board of Health, has decided to take up the matter in a more detailed way. Dr. Keater says:

"The board has requested Dr. A. Clark Hunt, chief of the division of medical and sanitary inspection of the board, to keep under close observation any cases throughout the State which may be reported by physicians. Numerous epidemics of the disease have occurred in Europe, Australia and America. In Norway and Sweden epidemics have occurred since 1875. Careful study has been made of the epidemics in Boston and New York, which occurred in 1907, and valuable information has been obtained which will aid in the prevention of the disease.

"Within the past two months several cases have been reported to the State Board of Health. These cases occurred in various portions of the State, and as no large number were recorded in any single sanitary district it cannot be said that the disease is epidem'c.

"The disease is being studied in many research laboratories in this and other countries and every effort is being made to discover the methods by which the disease is transmitted from one individual to another. It has been definitely determined by observation and experiments that infantile paralysis is an infectious disease, and especial attention has been directed to the danger from discharges from the nose and throat of those having the disease.

"With these points apparently settled it is the view of Dr. Simon Flexner, of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, that rigid quarantine will do much toward the control of the disease. Suggestions for preventing the spread of the disease include watchfulness as to diet and exercise; the avoidance of association with other children sick or exposed to the disease, and strict isolation of the patient is advised.

"We are still far from a definite knowledge of infantile paralysis, but by the observance of the rules above referred to, and with the added information which observation and scientific research will surely give, we may reasonably hope that within a short time epidemics of the disease will be at least limited.

"The State Board of Health will require the reporting of individual cases throughout the State, and the physicians of the State will aid in the study of the disease and in the adoption of preventive measures."

HERE AND THERE.

There are two young women living in North Plainfield who have discovered that it pays to do things for themselves, even though there is no absolute need of it. The faculty of being able to invent ways and means to attain an end is not given to everybody in this world, and these young women must be endowed with that peculiar ability.

Miss Helen George, of 87 Duer street, and Miss Margery Hart, of Fairview avenue, are the two industrious young women referred to, and they enjoyed themselves with the money earned by themselves and incidentally several of the neighbors and friends of the young people are enjoying some mighty good candy which otherwise they might not have had.

Of course, it was not necessary for either to earn the money to spend on their outing, but they thought it would be such fun to just make enough to defray their expenses. And they went at it. Of all the delicious morsels that any of the boroughites ever allowed to melt in their mouths, those produced by the Misses George and Hart were the most enticing, and after the first batch had been sold, orders for more poured in upon the amateur confectioners until their supply of money gradually assumed the right proportions for a good time.

And there you are! Industry always has its reward, and these two young people have learned the easy way to affluence as well as comfort, to say nothing of the pleasure they have afforded the consumers of their wares.

LARGE, FLAT HATS.

The expected turn of the wheel of fashion has brought into the millinery field a different shape of hat. From the upturned brim there is a departure for summer wear in the form of large, flat hats, with slightly drooping brims and low crowns.

Some of the brims are slightly narrower at the front, while a decided element of comfort is evident in the deep bandeaux, that resembles a skullcap at the back of the hat, vanishing at the front into a thin rim of buckram. These are so fitted that no hatpins are necessary.

Some of these new models are of the straw, leghorn or of frames covered satin and veiled with chiffon.

There passed through Newark Tuesday, en route to her home in Trenton, a New Jersey woman who has succeeded in accomplishing successfully one of the most remarkable feats in the history of the automobile age—a trip around the world in an automobile. Mrs. Harriet Clark Fisher, proprietor and active manager of the Eagle and Anvil Works, of Trenton, is the woman, and her companions on the trip were H. Fisher Brooks, her nephew, who acted as her secretary and chauffeur; Miss Maria Boggia, Mrs. Fisher's maid, and A. E. Batchelder, chef and chauffeur. There was also Hook Honk, a Boston bull pup.

A squadron of gaily decorated machines, tooting their horns in salute of the fair motorist, greeted Mrs. Fisher in her Locomobile at Tarrytown, N. Y., and escorted her to New York City. She then came across to Jersey City, and made her way to Newark over the Harrison Turnpike, accompanied by A. E. Greene, of the Greene Motor Car Company of Newark.

Mrs. Fisher stopped at the Greene garage for a few minutes to take on gasoline, and then proceeded on her way to Trenton. She is a month ahead of her schedule. Mrs. Fisher traveled more than 20,000 miles of road that led through jungles and deserts, over mountains and down steep grades, through narrow passages, across shaky bridges and along mysterious roads, covering parts of both the Eastern and Western continents that have never been traversed by an automobile before. She started a year and a month ago, and has been traveling pretty steadily ever since, there being few days she has not been on the road. She believes that she has blazed the way for other automobilists, and declares that there is no more satisfactory way of seeing the world.

The cost has been about the same as if the trip was made by train, and at the same time she has toured many places of interest that a traveler by train would never hear of. She has met with all classes of people, from the beggars of India to the Emperor of Japan, and has been feted everywhere like a royal visitor.

Much of the time that Mrs. Fisher was abroad has been lived in the open, a tent and cooking equipment being carried on the car from the beginning to the end of the trip. This was due partly to her love of out-of-doors and partly due to her abhorrence of poor hotel accommodations which are encountered so many places. In all of her varied experiences Mrs. Fisher has escaped personal dangers, although she was at all times armed and ready for defensive action. In speaking of her journey, Mrs. Fisher said:

"As you know, we went direct to London and then to France, where we got our touring directions. After visiting the countries of Europe, spending a good deal of time in France and Italy, and exploring the latter country more or less thoroughly, we sailed for Bombay. In speaking of Europe, I want to say that I did not meet with the trouble that some tourists have met with, and I never found a more courteous lot of people even in Switzerland, which seems to be the terror of most motorists.

"It is true we tried to obey their laws after learning what they were, as far as the roads were concerned, and the peasantry, instead of stoning us, as has been alleged by others, treated us very kindly, and I am glad to know that the splendid country of Switzerland is to be opened up by the Swiss Government, with the approval of the various cantons comprising the country. Many roads are now shut to automobile, but when they are opened Switzerland will make an ideal visiting place for automobiles.

"At Bombay a gentleman wanted to wager that we could not go twenty miles outside the city, but we toured 3,000 miles in India, much of is being over the great road known as the national highway. The people of India especially the Hindus, impressed me very much. From India we went to Ceylon and thence to Japan. The roads in this place are narrow and not too numerods, so touring is not very practical there."

Here Mrs. Fisher made an interesting observation and she said:

"I have been asked why I started from the east and came west. I had a good reason for this,and it was that the sun was on our backs all the way and not in our faces.

"We spent our Christmas holidays in Egypt, and did considerable touring, making Cairo our headquarters."

Although Mrs. Fisher did not say so, Mr. Brooks admitted that the trip would cost approximately $20,000, but if Mrs. Fisher was consulted she would probably say that the tour was worth all it cost.

VEGETABLES COME HIGH, WHEN AUTO EATS 'EM

The meeting between a modern automobile and an ancient farm wagon precipitated a bunch of newly harvested vegetables into the road near Roselle at a little after midnight last night, and incidentally disclosed one of the wildest joy-rides that has come to the notice of farmer Hoblitzel in many a day.

In the auto were four men and two women, the latter being relatives of the men, but their intimate relationship seemed not to prevent a wholesale slaughter of innocent vegetables, besides almost turning some of the finery of the women occupants of the car into rags.

According to Mr. Hoblitzel he was driving his team toward this city, bringing his vegetables to market, and as he was turning into the main road at Fanwood, just before he reached the bridge the auto tried to climb into the farm wagon. And here is where trouble began.

Farmer Hoblitzel objected to the invasion of the automobile and used some strenuous language in expressing his sentiments. The farmer's impudence (that's what the occupants of the automobile called it) irked Howard K. Murphy, the reputed owner of the automobile, to the extent that he offered fight to Mr. Hoblitzel. The result was a general mixup in which Constable Smith made his presence felt by threatening to arrest the whole bunch.

After putting in a claim for his destroyed vegetables and receiving compensation for them, Mr. Hoblitzel is alleged to have threatened to sue the New Yorkers for other damage. The occupants of the car gave their names to Constable Smith as Howard K. Murphy, owner; Geo. Gillespie, Frank K. Williams, Misses Emma Frazee and Gertrude Murphy, all of whom claimed Newark as their residence.

Murphy paid Mr. Hoblitzel $20 and they called it quits.

SOMERVILLE DEFEATS BOUND BROOK IN FAST GAME

The Somerville baseball team took the fifth game of the series from Bound Brook Saturday afternoon on the latter's grounds by the score of 4-2. Both Ortlieb and Clinton were effective, the Somerville pitcher being steadier and keeping his opponents' hits further apart than Ortlieb did.

The feature of the game was a long home run swat by Shaw in the fifth inning but as luck would have it, there was no one on base, or the result might have been different. Torpey, the Somerville catcher, was the whole show for his team, backing up Clinton in great style and clouting out four clean hits.

McDonald's work on first base was of the classy order. He accepted fourteen chances without an error. Bollinger had a busy day in the field for Bound Brook, eating up four flies that were directed into the right garden.

BIDS FOR STREET WORK

Woodbridge Man Lowest Bidder for Macadamizing Thoroughfares.

THE ACTION IS POSTPONED.

Emerson Avenue Residents Want Sewer Installed at Their Own Expense—Request is Granted.

A special meeting of the Common Council was held last night to receive bids for doing the work, furnishing materials, etc., for macadamizing a dozen city streets. There were four bidders, one of which was the J. T. Shanley Company, of Newark. The other bidders were T. F. Dunigan, of Woodbridge; Mobus & Burke, of this city, and John McNab, of Bound Brook. T. F. Dunigan was the lowest bidder and will probably get the contract.

The streets included among those to be improved are Thornton avenue, West Fourth street, Johnston avenue Jackson avenue Essex street, Putnam avenue, Netherwood avenue, Stebbins Place, South Second street, Central avenue, Prescott place and Randolph road.

Bids were received on several kinds of patent material, including Bermuden road asphalt, which was put in the lowest bid; Pioneer road asphalt, Liquid asphalt, Indian Refining Company; Headley road binder, Standard and Tarvia.

The Newark firm's bid was the highest, Mobus & Burke were second, John McNab third and T. F. Dunigan the lowest. The council had some difficulty in getting a quorum, and it was finally necessary to send an automobile after Councilman W. W. Wilson to make up the required six. The postponement of the meeting would have meant a delay of more than a month in deciding on the road improvements.

A petition was received from residents of Emerson avenue, northwest of George street, asking for permission to install a sewer in that avenue at their own expense under the supervision of the street commission, and upon motion of Councilman Gloak the request was granted. It will involve the city in no expense.

Murphy paid Mr. Hoblitzel $20 and they called it quits.

KICKS WHIFFLETREE; STARTED A RUNAWAY

"Pete," the big horse attached to one of S. Scheuer & Company's delivery wagons, kicked the whiffletree of the wagon with his hind legs while on East Second street Monday afternoon and became frightened, as it were, at his own shadow. August Comoco, of North avenue, who was delivering a package in a house, climbed in the wagon just as Pete started on his mad chase.

The horse broke all speed records in his dash down the street, and also broke the whiffletree. When the horse turned into Richmond street he took the wagon, flying past trees, for a little joy-ride on the lawns of John Lewis' residence, and then went down the gutter with a crash. But this did not stop the frightened steed, and he made a break for Front street. He turned this corner in Barron Oldfield style and kept on his mad gallop, just missing collisions with several carriages and automobiles until he reached the driveway next to the residence of A. F. Farland, which leads to the Scheuer stable. He did not slacken his speed in the least while making the turn and so crashed into the swing which stood on Mr. Farland's lawn. The horse then ran to the stable and stopped, neighed, and started to eat some hay, which was lying on the floor.

The driver of the wagon was fortunate enough not to be thrown out, but he says that he does not see how he ever managed to hold fast. The swing on the Farland place was completely wrecked.

WESTFIELD.

Mrs. Frank McClintock, of Carlton road, sailed for England with her daughter, Florence. Miss McClintock expects to take a course in music at one of the English conservatiries.

Soundings are being taken in various parts of the town by parties who do not disclose the nature of their work. The machinery used is that commonly used in looking for subterranean water.

William Doud, who was injured in an automobile accident in Plainfield last week when the machine ran into an open trench, was brought home from the hospital, Monday.

Westfield bowlers are commencing to get ready for the fall and winter tournaments. A meeting will be held Wednesday evening at the Casino to reorganize the team.

North avenue, near Central avenue was blocked by the old fire department house last night. The building will be clear of the street today.

MATCHES AT SEA GIRT

TO CONTEST FOR TROPHIES.

Crack Shots of Many States to Compete in the Contests to Take Place Next Month.

Military men are now anticipating with a great deal of interest the annual shooting contests that are to begin at Sea Girt on the State ranges on the morning of September 1 and continue until the evening of the 10th. The indications are that it will be one of the largest shoots that has ever been played out on the New Jersey ranges, for the entries are coming in at a lively rate, and there promises to be present about all the crack shots from the District of Columbia, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts.

The trophies and cups, as well as the cash stakes, that are to be competed for this year are of sufficient attraction to draw many of the top-notchers in the shooting game in the regular army and navy, as well as the members of the national guard of all the States along the Atlantic seaboard.

General Bird W. Spencer, who is the executive officer of the fine ranges at Sea Girt, has practically finished all the arrangements for the ten days' shooting, and all that is needed to make the affair a conspicuous success is to have a fair proportion of the days sufficiently free from rain and high winds to give the marksmen a fair show when before the targets at the different distance marks. Nothing interferes so greatly with satisfactory work as high gales, and when these come over the ranges from the Atlantic high scores are well nigh impossible upon the part of the marksmen.

The trophies offered that will be carried out this year is that for the Nevada trophy. This contest has been arranged for by the Association of American International Riflemen, in whose custody the valuable trophy is at this time. The contest is open to the members of the State militia of the States and Territories of the union, as well as the District of Columbia, and, also, to the men and officers of the army, navy and marine corps. The trophy is made of gold and silver, and was donated by the citizens of Nevada some years ago. The winner is not allowed to take the trophy from the clubhouse until he gives a bond of $500 for its safe return. There is always the greatest interest in the disposition of this trophy.

Another match which this year promises to call forth strenuous competition is that between the regimental teams of the different States, for the handsome Briggs trophy, donated by the junior Senator from this State. The regular army, navy and marine corps are also allowed to contest for this valuable prize.

Last season it was won by the team representing the First regiment of the national guard of the District of Columbia, and the gossip at Sea Girt is that the Washingtonians will make a great struggle to win the Briggs trophy this year, also.

Possibly the premier events of the entire shoot is that for the Dryden trophy, and which is also open for all the branches of the regular service of the United States, as well as the States in the national guard. This is shot for at the 200, 600 and 1,000-yard ranges, and is always attractive to a large gallery of spectators. The committee on schedule has listed this great contest for the next to the final day of the shoot, it occurring on Friday, the 9th.

The New Jersey team has been practicing very consistently to bring back the Dryden cup to this State, it having been lifted in 1907 by the United States cavalry from New Jersey, who captured it in 1906. In 1908 it was captured by the United States marine corps, while last year it was carried west by the team which represented the State of Ohio.

Other attractive matches which will be shot off during the ten days of the great contest will be the Columbia Trophy match, the Keystone Long Range match, the Swiss Trophy match, the Spencer match, the Governor's Cup match, the McAlpin match, the Pennsylvania match and the Thurston match.

Reservations are already being made in the Sea Girt hotels—the Beach house, the Tremont hotel and the Parker house—and the outlook is that there will be a large following of friends of the men and officers participating during the entire contest, for it has been noticeable in past years that the women of the regimental and regular branches of the national service are always keenly interested in the fortunes of the men who are on the ranges.

Miss Jennie Sutton, of Main street, South Bound Brook, is spending a week with relatives near Farmersville.

RUNYON GETS OVATION

Popular Republican Candidate for Congressional Nomination at Dover.

DELIVERS THE CHIEF ADDRESS.

Judge W. N. Runyon a Guest of Honor at a Home Week Celebration Held in Morris County.

Beyond the fondest expectations of his personal and political friends who had made the trip to Dover with him, Judge William N. Runyon, who is making a brilliant campaign for the Republican congressional nomination, received an ovation at the Old Home Week celebration in that town, Monday, that added interest to the battle. Accepting the invitation of the Dover Home Week committee, the popular judge was early on the ground and from then on until he was forced to keep other engagements, he was lionized by the people of Dover and surrounding country who had gathered for the occasion.

The chief advent in the morning was a civic parade and Mr. Runyon acted as one of the judges, the others being Mayor Mulligan, of Dover; Mayor Orain, of Wharton; Mayor Mitcheler, of Rockaway, and Mayor opp, of Boonton. At the dinner given early in the afternoon to the invited guests and he Dover officials, the judge spoke briefly. It was the judge's privilege to deliver the historical address at the exercises held at the grounds at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Then, as at the dinner, he naturally made no reference to politics, confining himself to an interesting narrative of Dover's history and its importance as a community. There were fully 4,000 people in the audience and the applause when the Plainfielder was introduced was both sincere and prolonged. When he had finished, the handshaking began and it was some time before he could get away to continue his campaign in Morris.

Several thousand people last night awaited the electrical display when a half mile of the main thoroughfare was suddenly transformed into daylight by thousands of lights stretched on arches and points across the street. A minute after the brilliancy was added to by the thousands of glaring lights arranged artistically on the business holises. Each seemed to have rivalled with the other for the best effec.

The most elaborate display was shown by the Dover Electric Light Company, whose large plant was decked from foundation to the top of its 150 foot stack, which was a mass of electric splendor and on the top of which was a searchlight with its rays directed upon an immense flag suspended over the building.

SMASHED BIKE WHEEL; SETTLED FOR DAMAGES

While riding his wheel across West Front street at 5 o'clock Monday evening near the corner of Somerset, Stephen Van Horne, of Summit street, North Plainfield, was thrown from his bicycle by the front wheels of an automobile driven by G. M. Loring, of New York. The rear wheel of Mr. Van Horne's bicycle was smashed and the rider was somewhat shaken up.

In the automobile with Loring, who is a chauffeur for H. P. Alberts, of 611 West 155th street, New York, were Mrs. Alberts, Miss Alberts and W. W. Schoemaker, the latter living at 56 West 125d street, Manhattan. Loring acknowledged that his machine was not actually under control at the time of the accident, as his attention had been drawn to the bicycle by some exclamation of one of his passengers. He settled with Mr. Van Horne for the damages to the bicycle, and after giving the necessary information of himself to Patrolman Charles Flynn, was allowed to proceed on his way to New York. The car bore two license numbers 41877, N. J., and 43181, N. Y.

It was reported today that Mr. Van Horne was suffering more than was expected immediately after the accident yesterday. It is believed that his head struck first by the impact with the roadway when he was thrown from his wheel. Mr. Van Horne passed a very unquiet night, suffering much pain from the bruises occasioned by his fall. He was attended by Dr. John H Carman.

The second annual plowing contest between students of the Baron De Hirsch Agricultural School, near Woodbury, will occur today, and much interest is centred in the event. The contestants will be members of the sophomore class of 1910 and the freshman class of 1911, demonstrating the practical value of their training in this branch of agriculture. In the evening at the school addresses will be made by Willitt M. Hays, of Washington, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, and Dr. Thomas Edwin Eldridge, of Philadelphia.

PROHIBITION LAW FAILS?

Hugh F. Fox's Report Shows Beer Sales Have Increased 25 Per Cent.

SALE OF SPIRITS LARGER.

National Anti-Saloon League Asserts, However, that 41,000,000 People Live in Prohibition Territory.

Despite the prohibition laws of many of the Southern States and the continued anti-liquor agitation the consumption of alcoholic beverages during the last ten years has increased 25 per cent. faster than the total population of the United States, according to reports received Saturday by local brewers. The reports come from the United Brewers' Association.

The statement, which is signed by Hugh F. Fox, of this city, secretary of the association, reads as follows:

"Both the beer sales and the census returns are exceeding the estimates. The preliminary estimate of the total population of the continental United States was 90,000,000, an increase of 18.4 per cent. From present indications it now seems possible that the total may prove to be 92,000,000, which would show show an increase of 22.6 per cent. in the population since the 1900 census was taken.

"The beer sales for the current fiscal year, which ended June 30, were 59,485,117 barrels of thirty-one gallons each, as compared with 38,320,846 in 1900. The beer consumption has therefore increased 51.2 per cent. since 1900, while the population has only increased 22.6 per cent.

"The production of distilled spirits has also increased in a similar manner. The distillers paid the revenue on 134,172,017 gallons of spirits during the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1910, as compared with 93,391,827 gallons in 1900, being an increase of 44.9 per cent.

"The large increase in the per capita consumption, both of beer and spirits is especially remarkable when it is recalled that the ten years under observation include the long period of industrial depression between 1907 and 1909, during which time the sales of beer and spirits fell off considerably, although the decrease was less than in most other industries. The beer sales for the past fiscal year, which ended June 30, 1910, show an increase of 3,181,620 barrels over the previous year, being 5.65 per cent. This is the largest volume of business recorded in any one year in the history of the brewing trade in the United States.

"The general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League asserted in his recent annual report that 41,000,000 of the people in the United States are now living in prohibition territory. With the exception of Maine and Kansas, which have a population of two and a half millions, practically all the alleged prohibition territory has been gained during the last ten years. In this period the consumption of alcoholic beverages has increased about 2 per cent. faster than the total population.

"In the light of these facts it is pertinent to ask who, what and where does prohibition prohibit, and by what practical results can prohibition be justified.

"It is significant to note that in 1909 there were 189,089 retail liquor dealers who paid the special tax of $25 to the Federal government. In 1910 their number was 202,687, an increase of 13,598, or 7.2 per cent. Is this in spite or because of prohibition?"

The Metropolitan Magazine makes its September issue a fiction number, which, as the magazine appears in mid-August, is a sensible departure. Government reports leads the fiction list with "The Wise Miss Carrington," a daringly original story of Newport life. An unusually good adventure story called "The Money-Maker" is contributed by a new writer, Henry Edward Rood's "Johnny Staples and the Suffragist" is a laughable take-off on the same order is "Marriage as a Fine Art," in which Eugene Wood is at his best. Beverly, the nation's summer capital, is one of the society colonies seasonably described in "A Society Pilgrimage."

The Red Book Magazine, which may always be relied upon to appear each month with as admirable a collection of short fiction as it is possible to secure, seems to outdo even its own record in the September issue, just at hand. The leading story, "Jacques Bernard," by Nevil G. Henshaw, is one of the most powerful narratives of what a human being can withstand and still live, that we recall ever having read. A story that wives might well read aloud to their husbands is Pearl Wilkin's "A Tonic for Tired Women."

REPORT ANOTHER THEFT

EDWARD SEADER IS SUSPECTED.

Lad Disappeared Soon After Robbery and Has Not Come Back—Police Search For Him.

While at work on his own property on Chatham street yesterday afternoon, George Schlarrett, of West Second street, was the victim of a clever robbery. The theft was not discovered for some time after it had been committed and the perpetrator had plenty of time to get away.

Mr. Schlarrett, who owns a considerable amount of property in North Plainfield, including Peter Seader's livery stable, had gone to the latter place to do some repairing. Before starting to work he removed his coat and hung it on a hook in the barn. At 11:30 o'clock he stopped work and started for home. When he put no his coat he found that his fine gold watch and four dollars in cash were missing. He immediately reported the matter to the borough police, and Marshal Keller hurried to the scene.

The marshal learned that Edward Seader, the son of Peter Seader, had suddenly disappeared at 3 o'clock and had not put in an appearance since that time. A careful search for him was made in this city and in the borough but no clue as to his whereabouts could be ascertained. He did not return at night and the police say they are practically certain that he is the thief since there was no other person on the property at the time except Mr. Schlarrett.

Edward Seader who is eighteen years old, has been a mischievous lad all his life according to the police. He had just been released from the Rahway Reformatory, where he had spent a long term. He has been in the hands of the police of both the borough and city many times during the past few years. These facts strengthen the suspicion held against him.

This makes the fourth robbery that has been committed in the borough during the past two weeks. At only two of them, however, were the thieves successful in obtaining anything of value.

SCHNEIDER DIDN'T FOOL LAWYER STUTSMAN

An alleged attempt to evade the order of the court was discovered Monday afternoon, involving Isaac Schneider, of 109 Madison avenue. The discovery was made by Martin B. Stutsman, counsel for M. Becker & Son, and prompt action prevented the evasion.

On August 11 a judgment for $34.38 was given in the district court in favor of the Becker concern and on August 18, execution was issued against Schneider.

Yesterday afternoon, it is alleged Schneider attempted to remove his goods from the store occupied by him on Madison avenue to a new address on Somerset street, in the borough. Some time during the afternoon it was discovered that the debtor had locked his front door and was on the point of removing his goods from the rear door of his store in an endeavor to skip without paying the judgment. Mr. Stutsman said this morning that Schneider had offered late yesterday to settle the case for $21 in cash, but as this was not satisfactory to his client he refused to accept the tender of the money.

In order to prevent Schneider getting away with the scheme which was alleged to be to escape to another county, Mr. Stutsman took with him two deputies with which he secured he doors of the building in which Schneider does business and besides established John Manley, the court constable, in charge of the visible effects of Schneider.

In the meantime unless Schneider comes forward with the necessary money to discharge his debt the official notice, which means the sale of the stock of the store to satisfy the creditors, will put in effect.

W. V. BYARD RETURNS LOW SCORE OT PARK GOLF CLUB.

Although the weather was ideal for the game, there was a small field of golfers out at the Park Golf Club, on Saturday, largely due to the fact that many of the club members are out of the city enjoying their vacations. There was the weekly competition for the President's and Golf Club trophies, and three excellent scores were returned, dividing the points for the day, as follows:

W. V. Byard, 100, 21-79; U. G. Tingley, 105, 25-80; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 98, 16-82.

William Durham, of this place, is spending several days at Sea Girt.

DEMOCRATS ARE ACTIVE

ARE AFTER THE MAYORALTY.

A. E. Force and Theodore Shirley Mentioned, but Former Says He Would Not Run This Year.

A discussion of probable candidates, the advisability of placing a straight ticket in the field this fall, and other pertinent matters furnished lively topics for consideration at the meeting of the Plainfield Democratic club, in the club rooms at Park and North avenues, Monday night. LeRoy J. Ellis, president of the club, was in the chair and incidentally took part in the discussion. There were about thirty present.

Among those prominently mentioned for the mayoralty nomination were A. E. Force and Theodore J. Shirley, either one, it was claimed, would make a strong candidate. No definite action was taken, however, regarding the matter. It was learned today that Mr. Force would decline to accept the endorsement of the Democrats for the position if offered him. He said that his business would prevent him from entering the contest at this time.

The question of selecting candidates for ward councilmen was not settled, although it is probable that Robert C. Woodhouse, of East Seventh street, the Second ward, will be the party's nominee for Common Council. No decision was reached regarding the other wards, although several names were mentioned.

Some one suggested that it might be wise to change the name of the club to one that would more fully meet the approbation of the independents, as well as the Democrats, in forming an independent ticket in the field. One prominent member of the club said today that he thought the wisest plan would be to run an independent ticket, for in this way it would attract Republican votes, as well as those of the Democrats.

The Democratic club did not devote much thought to county or State affairs last night, but felt confident that the party faced an exceptional opportunity for success at the polls this fall and all were enthusiastic over the outlook.

Theodore J. Shirley, when questioned today regarding his candidacy for the mayoralty on the Democratic ticket, said: "I was waited upon yesterday by a committee from the club, but emphatically declined to allow my name to be used. I am too busy to accept such a nomination and will not enter any political contest. I do believe, however, if the party should place an independent ticekt in the field this fall, with A. E. Force for mayor, it would be successful."

NEWARK IS SECOND IN STEEL BUILDINGS

The United States government report on building operations in 1909 shows that Newark, New Jersey, was second to New York city in the construction of "miscellaneous fire-resisting buildings," which class includes steel skeleton structures.

Newark's activity in the steel skeleton style of construction is due partly to the proximity of the supply of fireproofing materials. As in New York city, most of the large steel buildings have their frames protected by the hollow terra cotta blocks of New Jersey clay, with floors and partitions of the same substance. The clay deposits and the kilns being nearby, at Perth Amboy, the cost of transportation is very low.

It is shown in the Government report that great progress is being made in fireproofing construction throughout the country. Of the total amount expended for new buildings in 128 large cities, in 1909, 73.24 per cent. went into the kind classified as "fire-resisting." The lesson learned from the conflagrations at Baltimore and San Francisco, has led to the prevalence of the steel-and hollow-tile type, in the smaller as well as the larger cities.

A young man who gave his name as Philip Golden was locked up Monday in the Camden county jail, charged with defrauding the widows of Civil War veterans of money in amounts varying from $2 to $20. The arrest was made by Deputy United States Marshal Schmidt. Deputy United States Marshal Schmidt at Cape May Court House, following information laid before the United States district attorney by George F. Sideman, inspector of the pension bureau.

THE SCORE WAS TWO TO ONE.

Brilliant Contest of Pitchers is Seen —Many Fine Plays—The Game in Detail.

In as pretty a pitcher's battle as one could wish to see, the Plainfield team defeated the Dunellen nine in the second game of the double header at the oval Saturday afternoon by the score of 2-1. It was certainly a contest between box artists and two famous ones at that for Warry McLaughlin, the old stand-by of the Plainfield team was opposed to Smiling Jimmie Montross, the one time notorious twirler of the Hope chapel nine. Both teams were out for blood and also to settle the dispute which had arisen, concerning the respective merits of the two clubs.

Nor was it the fault of either pitcher that the game was won or lost, for both teams made an earned run, while the extra tally of the Plainfield representatives was more or less (probably less) the result of luck. Both of the box artists were in fine fettle, McLaughlin allowing three and Montross four hits respectively. Warry was accorded perfect support and the one error, charged to the local bunch, was made by the clever southpaw himself. And the game was incidentally filled with some hair-raising plays on both sides.

Plainfield made its first tally in the third inning. Schott started the ball a rolling by clouting out the first hit of the game which by the way was a two-sacker. Fritts, of Y. M. C. A. fame, then sent a slow one toward Gildes, who made a stab toward catching the Plainfield left fielder as he ran down the base line. Schott dodged and then a see-saw match occurred, in which the local boy was hit on the head by the leather spheroid and thus gained his base. Fritts gently reached second during this argument. But Schott must have had some attraction for the ball for it hit him again and made the first run for Plainfield. While he was dancing around third base, Brit Martin sent a long sacrifice fly out in left field, and when Schott started for the plate, the return throw was interrupted by his own personage so that Seery was unable to tag him out. One run.

The Dunellen boys tied matters up in the seventh inning, when Giles reached first on a lucky mix up. Miller then did the sacrifice act, sending Giles to second. Ramsberger singled and Giles reached the third station. Then Smiling Jimmie took the willow and sent a beautiful single on a trip to right field, scoring Giles. Jimmie thought he thought napping at second and Dunellen's chances for further damage ended here.

The winning run came in by the following route: With two gone Jack Martin reached first on a fielder's choice; "Big Sig" Nelson then stepped up to the bat and sent one of Jimmie's low shoots out over Nonemaker's head for a clean double. Jack was not at all slow in traveling and scored on the swat.

While the Plainfield boys played a snappy game, those Dunellenites must be given credit for some classy fielding work. Ramsberger was the whole show on third base, accepting nine difficult chances without an error. Jimmie Montross was no slouch when it came to fielding his position either, and some of the stops, which he made, certainly had the big league brand on them.

Old Brit Martin made the crowd of spectators sit up and take notice in the second inning when he gracefully ran back of second base and pulled down with his bare hand what looked like a clean single from Ramsberger's bat. His brother also distinguished himself by a similar catch back of short, only this time it was Nonemaker that hit the ball. The work of Barnes on first was of the classy order, the tall first sacker taking thirteen chances without a mishap.

And so the good points of every player might be enlarged upon, but Mr., Mrs. or Miss Reader, you can get some idea of the work done by the individual members of the teams from the following:

SALVATION ARMY AT BABY CAMP MEETING

Many friends from Plainfield and vicinity took advantage of the ideal weather yesterday afternoon to visit the King's Daughter's Camp and enjoy this beautiful spot upon the summit of Watchung Mountain, and to attend the service which had been arranged by George E. Hall, superintendent of the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school. Mr. Hall had charge of the meeting and introduced to the mothers and children at the camp their friends of last summer, Capt. Hewitt and his associates in the local corps of the Salvation Army.

Capt. Hewitt held the close attention of the children as he told them the story of Sampson and how he was given the necessary strength to slay the lion; he then applied the lesson to the children's lives by reminding them of the various lions that need to be slain in peoples lives in these days—such as cigarette smoking, disobedience, bad companions, bad language lying, dishonesty, selfishness and worldliness. He illustrated his remarks by means of a toy lion, which rendered the story all the more realistic to the children, and helped to hold their undivided attention.

Capt. Hewitt was assisted in the meeting by short, earnest testimonies from Mrs. J. W. Price and daughters, of Burlington, and Mrs. Apgar, of the local corps. The Misses Sadie and Julia Price sang as duets: "That Bright City," "I Believe the Bible," "Fulness of Blessing," and "I'm as Poor as the Poorest."

Mr. Hall gave a short talk to the children, and the meeting closed with the singing of "America." The service was largely attended by Plainfield friends who manifested much interest in the work of the camp.

The closing meeting of the summer is to be held next Sunday afternoon, and will be in charge of Superintendent George E. Hall, assisted members of the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school. A musical program is being arranged, including several selections by their own orchestra and a chorus choir. This will be a meeting of special interest, and a cordial invitation is extended to the public to visit the camp and enjoy the closing service of the summer.

VISITORS EXTINGUISH BLAZE ON E. SECOND ST.

When box 53 was rung in Sunday afternoon shortly before 2 o'clock, the local firefighters did not anticipate having the easy time they encountered when they arrived at the scene of the blaze, but it was out and to Bayonne goes the honors of having extinguished it.

A special trolley car on which were a party of Bayonne firemen and several of their friends, including members of the Democratic committee, of Bayonne, was passing 719 East Second street, near Berckman, when one of the members of the party, who was enjoying the breeze and the passing scenery, noticed smoke issuing from the front windows of Michael Pendalino's home, at 719, and with a shout to his comrades, stopped the car and jumped to the street and into Pendalino's house, closely followed by his compatriots.

The Bayonne contingent got to work quickly and soon had the fire under control; meanwhile somebody had run to the corner and pulled the hook in box 53, and companies from Netherwood and headquarters were promptly on the job. They found nothing to do for their comrades from the shore city had quenched the flames with a few well directed pails of water and the damage was less than fifty dollars. It is believed that the fire started from a smoldering cigar butt.

Those who so materially aided the local department were William Clark, Hook and Ladder Company No. 1; ex-Chief Mahoney, Thomas McGrath, Robert Milden, William Smalley, Joseph Gribbano and Judge Ward, a member of the Democratic committee of Bayonne.

The new gas company has laid its mains through Maurice River Township, Cumberland County, and will begin to furnish gas in the near future.

SELECT OFFICIAL PAPERS.

Freeholders Board Requested to Furnish a New Map of Elizabeth—Primaries on September 13.

In addition to completing the appointments of Republican and Democratic district election officers, the Union County Board of Registry and Election at the court house, Elizabeth, Sunday disposed of some minor business. This included a request to the Union County Board of Freeholders that a map showing the ward and district divisions as well as the polling places in Elizabeth be furnished the board. Moreover, the official papers of the county for the publication of primary, general election and other political notices were designated.

By law, the board is empowered to name six official papers, and these were selected: The Daily Press, Plainfield; The Daily Journal, Elizabeth; The Cranford Chronicle, Cranford; The Evening Times, Elizabeth; The Rahway News-Hera'd, Rahway, and the Summit Record Summit.

WATCHUNG FIRE DEPT. INCREASES MEMBERSHIP

Several new members were added to the Watchung fire department at the regular meeting Monday night at Texier's Mills. These additions bring the total membership up to about forty. The meeting was devoted entirely to business affairs, including the formulation of the new by-laws and the making of a permanent organization.

The regular meeting night of the new fire company will be the first Monday in every month. It would seem from the interest displayed in the new company that the entire population of Watchung was thoroughly in accord with the movement to secure some protection against fire. Arrangements are being made to secure a site for a fire house, and it is expected this will be secured before the next meeting night. Just as soon as the building site is secured the house will be erected and apparatus installed thus giving the dwellers at the mountains an innovation that will be one of their greatest advances toward local improvement made in years.

URGES YOUNG MEN TO STAND FOR THE RIGHT

"Will you young men step aside, hiding your Christian characters and permit the powers of evil to dominate your lives or will you assert your manhood square your shoulders and dare to face the enemy of righteousness?"

This question, flung out with dramatic intensity by Rev. Dr. Andrew S. Zimmerman at the end of his sermon at the union service in the First Presbyterian church, Sunday, was a fitting climax to an intensely earnest plea to Christians to stand firmly on the foundation of their God-given principles and work for the salvation of their country.

Dr. Zimmerman gave a vivid picture of the desertion of Christ's followers during the tragedy of the Cross, and likened the people of the present day to those who in the very last moments of the Saviour's life stood aloof, bewildered and incapable. "What a difference," he said, "between a triumphant entry into Jerusalem, when His path was strewn with palms and flowers, and three days later, when He hung upon the Cross. Is there anything more pathetic to the human mind than that picture? It was the expression of indecision, utter carelessness and fear, the very emotions we must fight to control today in the church of the living God.

"What is the church of the living God? It is composed of believers and those who serve Him in the world. You and I can do much to make the church a living monument and bulwark for righteousness and just so long as Satan prolongs his assaults upon us just so long must we fight, only just a little bit harder.

"The lesson is a simple one. Dare to do right. No matter where nor how you are assailed, your confidence in God ought to be and is the sustaining power in all the hours of peril and temptation, and again I ask you: Are we going to stand for righteousness in government and in private life, even for the inference of the individual? This is much more the duty of the man in these days of political turmoil and uncertainty than ever before. Find out the right thing to do, then do it with concentrated energy and you will have the satisfaction that could never come to the rabble gathered at Golgotha when the dying thief entered paradise with Jesus."

One of the largest union congregations of the season heard Dr. Zimmerman. Announcement was made that no further services would be held in the church until the second Sunday in September. At this service will be celebrated the Lord's Supper, preparatory service for which will be held on the preceding Friday evening, Sept. 9.

WADE CONFESSES HIS PART IN HOLD-UP ON HIGHWAY

After a long application of the third degree, Frank Wade, of Philadelphia, who is being held in the borough jail under suspicion of being implicated in the hold up of Mr. and Mrs. John Whitworth, on Saturday night, last, made a complete confession of his part in the affair to acting chief marshal, Charles Kellar, Monday afternoon.

Wade says that he met Jerolomon on West Front street early Saturday evening and that the two planned at that time to hold up someone on Greenbriok road that night. The first victims to present themselves who looked prosperous enough to appear to have money were Mr. and Mrs. Whitworth. Their attempt to extort money was attended by the screams of the affrighted woman.

Wade declares that he knows nothing of the whereabouts of his pal and can in no way aid the borough police in their search for the escaped man.

The prisoner will be given a hearing this afternoon at 3 o'clock before Justice of the Peace Thomas H. Snape.

CHAPPED HANDS.

During the early spring months many women find it difficult to prevent hands and lips from chapping. And yet there is an excellent remedy at hand in cold cream.

It whitens the skin more than any other preparation. It has taken the place of the old-time glycerin.

Rub the cream well into the skin and gloves—loose ones—slipped on. The palms of the gloves should be slit in several places and the finger-tips clipped off to admit the air and prevent cramp of the muscles.

Vaseline should never be allowed to touch the hands. It turns the skin yellow and leaves a stain on the nails that is hard to clear away.

Cold water should be used sparingly. Its action roughens the skin unpleasantly. Tepid water, with a few drops of ammonia and a good lather of castile or borax soap, is advisable. If the hands are inclined to redness, the trouble lies in the way of circulation, and slight gymnastics will relieve it.

MISS JULIA R. STELLE DIES AT BROTHER'S HOME

Miss Julia R. Stelle, daughter of the late Manning Stelle, died Monday night after a long local illness at the home of her brother, Randolph M. Stelle, 963 Union street.

Miss Stelle was born in Plainfield in 1839 and always lived here. In childhood she united with the church of her father, First Baptist, where she has ever since maintained her membership, the family to which she belonged has been well known in this community as prosperous, generous and hospitable. The Stelle farm embraced about a hundred acres, extending from Plainfield avenue to Cedar Brook and from West Ninth street easterly to beyond Randolph road. Their home was a delight to visit, and the old homestead is still standing, where past generations enjoyed many a happy hour.

Miss Stelle had survived all her immediate family—her mother died during infancy, her father some twenty years since; her brother Randolph M. Stelle in 1905, and her only sister, Mrs. Almira F. Randolph, about two years afterwards. Three boys, Randolph, Percy and Howard, sons of her brother, with their mother, Mrs. Clara A. Stelle, receive the tender sympathy of a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

Planning for Industrial Fair.

Plans for the industrial fair to be held at Hope chapel, October 26, 27 and 28, are rapidly progressing under the direction of the ways and means committee of which Donald McInnes is the general chairman. There will be fourteen booths and as many sub committees. A number of novelties are promised, new to Plainfield. The committee is meeting frequently, and just as soon as the sub-committees are completed all of the details will be arranged.

MAY LOSE HAND AS RESULT OF ACCIDENT IN LAUNDRY.

Mrs. Blanche Marshal', of Somerset street, employed at the Ideal Steam Laundry, may lose her hand as the result of an accident at the laundry a few days ago, while she was operating a steam mangle there. Her hand was caught in the machine and was crushed to such an extent that it is doubtful whether the physicians can save the hand. About six weeks ago Mrs. Cody, of Bound Brook, also employed at the same laundry, had a similar accident.

While Mrs. Cody's hand was partially saved the physicians were obliged to adopt the skin-grafting process to do so, and even at that Mrs. Cody will have a poor substitute for a hand. It will be some time before either Mrs. Cody or Mrs. Marshall will have the use of their hands, provided the physicians are able to save them.

HERE AND THERE.

The New York Sun on Sunday published an interesting article concerning the famous trotter, "Goldsmith Maid," and Manning Vermeule, one of the early residents of this city, showing how the latter played an interesting part in a horse trade with John B. Decker, of Deckertown, in this connection the writer recalls how Mr. Vermeule used to travel through Orange and Sussex counties in the early '50s, peddling odds and ends and always on the lookout for a chance to swap horses, one or more of which he invariably had in tow of his wagon.

According to the story, Mr. Vermeule drove over to John B. Decker's home near Deckertown, one day, with a colt, trying to make a deal. He told Mr. Decker that the colt was by Abdallah mare, out of which was born the horse known as Goldsmith Maid. It was bought by a man named Goldsmith, who gave the animal his name. After winning a fortune with her he sold her for $20,000. Then Hank Smith bough her for $40,000. After winning $350,000 and holding the record for twelve years she died, aged twenty-one years.

A boy with a toy trumpet upset the tranquility of Schoneberg, a suburb of Berlin the other day and at the same time created a potential act of lese majeste which is occupying the serious attention of the police.

When the German Emperor or members of his family go about in automobiles they do not depend upon the honk-honk of the common motor horn to clear a passage for them through the streets. Instead a trumpeter is seated alongside the driver, and the sound of his bugle blast is familiar enough to bring traffic to an immediate halt to allow the royal car to pass, while the populace crowd the sidewalks to get a glimpse of the royal personage.

The boy in question was playing on a toy trumpet on a second floor balcony. The royal bugle blast had become familiar to him, and without considering the consequences he sounded it upon his trumpet with such fidelity that the street below was instantly in a state of commotion. The sidewalks were lined with loyal subjects acxious to salute the imperial automobile. A Lieutenant in full uniform who was crossing the street clicked his heels and sprang stiffly to attention in the middle of the road.

Three minutes passed but no car appeared. The boy then brought about his own undoing by repeating the blast, thus revealing the source of the signal.

After a moment of horrified astonishment at the boy's presumption, the officer laid hand upon the corner for a policeman. Returning with one, he indicated the house and in sharp tones of command ordered the policeman to do his duty. The policeman saluted, hastened up stairs and confiscated the trumpet. The boy's parents are now anxiously awaiting the legal consequences.

A new means of detecting forgery is promised by Dr. Lindsay Johnson, a London ophthalmic surgeon and author of many scientific works, who has just elaborated a new theory with regard to individuality in writing.

He maintains that in certain diseases a person's pulse beats are individual, and that no one suffering from any such diseases can control even for a brief space of time the frequency or peculiar irregularities of his heart's action, as shown by a chart recording his pulsation. Such a chart is obtained for medical purposes by means of a sphygmograph, an instrument fitted to the patient's wrist and supplied with a needle which automatically records on a prepared sheet of paper the peculiar force and frequency of the pulsation.

Dr. Lindsay Johnson holds the opinion that the pen in the hand of a writer serves in a modified degree the same end as the sphygmograph, and that in a person's handwriting one can see by projecting the letters, greatly magnified one a screen the scarcely perceptible turns and quivers made in the lines by the spontaneous action of that person's peculiar pulsation.

To prove this the doctor carried out an experiment at Charing Cross Hospital. At his request a number of patients suffering from heart and kidney diseases wrote the Lord's Prayer in their ordinary handwriting. The different manuscripts were then taken and examined microscopically. By throwing them, highly magnified, on a screen, the jerks or involuntary motions due to the patient's peculiar pulsations were distinctly visible.

The handwriting of persons in normal health, says Dr. Lindsay Johnson, does not always show their pulse beats. What one can say, however, is that when a document, purporting to be written by a certain person contains traces of pulse beats of the normal handwriting of that person does not show them, then clearly the document is a forgery.

C. W. RUNYON CANDIDATE FOR THE CITY CLERKSHIP

Charles W. Runyon, formerly local manager of the telephone company for many years, and now deputy county clerk, has announced himself as a candidate to succeed City Clerk James T. MacMurray upon the expiration of the latter's term. Mr. Runyon has been an active Republican for years and a worker for the party in this city. Since leaving the telephone company, he has been employed in the office of County Clerk James C. Calvert as a deputy.

Mr. Runyon is a regular and believes that he will have the support of the organization in seeking the city clerkship. Mr. MacMurray has held the office since 1894, having succeeded Frank W. Runyon, who was clerk in 1892-93. Mr. Runyon, if elected, would plan to devote his entire time to the office of city clerk. He has been in close touch with city affairs, and his friends claim that he is in every way fitted for the office.

NEW TOUCH IN JEWELRY.

Jewelry, at any rate, is our loose acceptance of the term, for no stones are visible in this pretty fancy. I have spoken of the gold lace pins crocheted with lace. Now far-seeing manufacturers have brought out wooden ornaments in all manner of sorts and shapes—collar pins, hat pins, belt buckles—all to be covered with this crocheted lace. One may have a whole set of them for an afternoon's work, and they make the prettiest of gifts for brides and "next Christmasers."

If crocheting is not in your line, fine lace can be darned around these wooden foundations, or dotted or figured net may be used instead. Whatever material is used, they are as quaint and pretty as the lace-covered gold pins, which is saying a great deal.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Ocean City's thirty-first annual camp-meeting opened Friday night with a rally in the auditorium, Rev. James E. Lake presiding.

The afternoon express from Atlantic City to New York over the Reading Railway killed an unidentified man one mile south of Lakewood Friday.

Second crop strawberries of good flavor and in fair quantity have been gathered in Hammonton during the past week, and Councilman James V. Baker is experimenting with a berry that promises to be a regular all-summer yielder.

A general strike of carpenters and other building trades mechanics threatens to tie up building operations in Atlantic City in the early fall. Members of the Master Builders' Association unanimously voted to refuse demands of the carpenters for a raise from $3.50 to $4 per day.

Although he is blind in one eye and can hardly see out of the other, the result of an accident several years ago, Isaiah Collins, a farmer of Morse and Mickle streets, Camden, succeeded in wounding a thief early Friday morning with a gun for invading his cornfields and carrying away truck.

Struck in the head by a piece of iron falling from an engine of the Reading Railroad, Antone Englimi, thirty-five years old, a Hammilton track foreman, sustained a fracture of the skull Friday and was taken to Cooper Hospital in Camden in an unconscious condition. Physicians have little hope for his recovery.

After filling the gasoline tank on his launch Thursday night, prior to taking a cruise Friday, Willard Francoast, son of former Councilman William Pancoast, of Woodbury, thoughtlessly went into the cabin with a lighted lantern. He knew he had spilled considerable oil, but he forgot about it. A fire started at once, and the young man was terribly burned on the face and hands, but will recover.

As he was about to be taken to State prison from the Camden County jail Friday, Joseph Sebley, a negro, convicted of second degree murder in causing the death of Peter Sykes, of Philadelphia, by stabbing, declared that he had not been given a square deal and ought to feel lucky to think that they didn't put you out of business in the electric chair," said the court. He said he thought he would get a new trial.

While running across Hamilton avenue, Trenton, Friday night, to turn a signal light, John W. Thompson, a conductor in the employ of the Trenton Street Railway Company, was struck by an automobile and injured. He was dragged about fifteen feet. His collar-bone was dislocated and he may be internally injured. The car that ran down the conductor was occupied by Dr. Mackenzie and Dr. Layton, and the physicians took the patient to his home and attended to his injuries.

When counsel for the First Church of Christ, Scientist, asked that the assessment of $9,200 on the church property at 309 Cooper street, Camden, be taken off on the ground that the building is used solely for religious purposes and was exempt from taxation on that account, President Wells, of the Camden City Board of Assessment, Friday said the building was assessed because it was a question in the minds of the members of the board whether it was a church as provided by the exemption law.

Persons who mingle in crowds and associate with pickpockets are liable to arrest in New Jersey, even if it cannot be proved they were guilty of theft; under a decision of Supreme Court Justice Garrison, sustaining the conviction of Samuel Melnicove, nineteen years old, of Philadelphia, Melnicove was arrested while in the company of two other men with jail records in the crowds which watched the aviation events from the Boardwalk in Atlantic City in July. Detectives testified the young man had "acted suspiciously," and Melnicove was sent to the county jail for six months.

HITCHCOCK'S MISTAKE.

Representative Gilbert M. Hitchcock, who lives at the Connecticut apartment house when he is in Washington, received a letter one morning and read it with great surprise. It was a bill for 128 parasols. Mrs. Hitchcock also read it with surprise, not to say shock. On looking more closely Mr. Hitchcock made a discovery which led him to look at his wife with an air of triumph and say:

"This is easily explained, my dear. I have not been buying parasols by the hundred. I did not buy these. This bill is made out to Frank M. Hitchcock, the postmaster-general, who is a single man."

Then the Congressman sent the bill to the cabinet officer with this note:

"This was opened by mistake. The inclosure was read with amusement.

"GILBERT M. HITCHCOCK."

But the reason the postmaster-general had bought the bale of parasols was that he wanted to use them as favors at a cotillion at which he was host.—Popular Magazine.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 28, 1910.

The two parables of Christ before us are most appropriate to the subject of the advancement of the gospel in Asia in these days. In these parables the kingdom of heaven is likened to the smallest of seeds, the mustard seed, which gradually grew until it became a great and useful tree. In the second parable the kingdom is likened unto a lump of leaven, which, put into three measures of meal (a little more than a pint), leavened the entire lump. This has been the history of the gospel in Asia from the earliest times. It began in the day of small things and has spread abroad throughout the entire great continent.

The earliest ages of Christianity were spent in Asia. Christ was born there, and from Antioch, in Syria, His kingdom spread to the gentiles beyond Asia. Christ himself was never outside the continent of Asia. He was born in Bethlehem of Judea, lived the most of His life of thirty-three years in Palestine, a part of Asia, and only once, according to the record, was He beyond the borders of Palestine. This was on the occasion of His visit to Tyre and Sidon, small strips of land bordering on the Great, or Mediterranean, sea.

The apostles' work was also in the same land. John was at Ephesus. Philip carried the gospel to Arabia and is also supposed to have gone as far east as India.

In the modern great efforts to evangelize the world Asia has been the scene of great efforts. From earliest times many Christians remained, some attached to the Greek church and those lands for centuries, but these are now constantly attacked and slaughtered by the Mohammedans, especially the Kurds, a very low and fanatical class of Turks. Where once pure and undefiled Christian religion prevailed at the present time there is much opposition by the Turks, who feel a bitter hatred against Christianity, although the principles of the Turks are based upon and largely received from the Old Testament teachings.

To attempt even a brief review of one year's work in Asia is impossible. The only thing that can possibly be done is to report "progress." In China, Japan, India and even in Korea, with its political troubles, and especially in Persia and Turkey, great progress is being made. Direct Christian work is successfully being prosecuted. The principles of Christian nations are being introduced. Persia has a constitutional government as well as Turkey, where victory has been won by the Young Turks. China has introduced the English language into the public schools, and the young Chinese under the name of "Nationalists" are demanding a constitutional government. Russia, right on Asia in many senses, has its duma, which is constantly gaining in power. Christian colleges are advancing. Revivals are leading to thousands of conversions. Medical missionary are performing a great work over there. Native workers are increasing in large numbers, which is of tremendous importance. Literature is being scattered everywhere and deeply studied. The day is now, the darkness disappears. Soon the land in which the Christ Child was born and the angels heralded His coming will once more be flooded with the "light of the day." Let us give, labor and pray that these results may soon be accomplished.

Isa. xxxv; iii, 1-7; Nah. i, 15; Acts xvi, 9-14, 22-24; xvii, 10-12, 22-32; xix, 1-7; xx, 17-35; Rom. x, 14, 15; I Cor. ii, 1-5.

In a Famous Church.

A fine new Christian Endeavor society, with a charter membership of forty, has been established in one of the world's most notable churches, the First Congregational church of Columbus, O., whose pastor is the famous clergyman, author and publicist, Rev. Washington Gladden, D. D., LL. D. Dr. Gladden has always been friendly to Christian Endeavor, has spoken at national, state and city Christian Endeavor conventions and has thrown his church open for Christian Endeavor rallies, but heretofore the church has had no Christian Endeavor society.

A Pledge Song.

[Tune: "Abide With Me."]

Trusting in Thee, O Christ, for strength divine,
Humbly I make these promises of mine:
While in Thy will I daily strive to do,
Thy willing servant make me, faithful, true.

Each day to Thee I'll dedicate with prayer
All to Thy word will seek my treasure fair,
While in Thy church's sacred courts I'll pray
By aid and presence an untiring love.

Wisdom divine, oh grant me that I may Yield to Thy sweet transforming day by day;
That Christ may rise in me, come toil or strife,
And strengthen me to live a Christian life.

Active in love's dear service I will be,
Ready to do my part for Thine and Thee,
Nor silent stand where Thine own children meet,
But with them lay my offering at Thy feet.

Then to the crowning place of peace and joy,
The joyous, blessed consecration hour,
Gladly I'll come or send a love thought power,
And there my covenant with Thee renew.

Lord, keep and bless our dear Endeavor band
And give us visions of a cleansed land,
All youthful zeal, all faith and hope unite,
That we may stand for God and truth and right.

—Rev. R. P. Anderson in Christian Endeavor World.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Voting on Senator.

The difference between Franklin Murphy and the Sunday Call in regard to the popular vote upon the election of United States Senators is that he favors retaining the present method of selecting Senators by a legislative vote, but approves the law which enables voters to express a preference, although it is not binding; while the Sunday Call favors electing Senators by the direct vote, but opposes the expression of a preference without responsibility on the part of the voter. Naturally, our view seems more reasonable to us than any of the other schemes proposed by hasty reformers and approved by some political leaders.

In a general way, we believe this government should maintain the representative idea, but should labor constantly to make it more truly representative, so that eventually there may be actual government by the people, as democratic as possible, with provision for simplicity and convenience. A representative government may be as completely democratic as the first Saxon ever desired. When the American Government was instituted there was natural fear of mob rule, and many conservative barriers were erected. It has been practicable, as the nation has stood the tests of time, to give the people a greater voice in the management of their affairs. It seems to us that one step which could now be taken to bring the people nearer the government would be to permit the people of the States to elect their Senators at the polls, instead of leaving the choice to the Legislatures. A constitutional amendment is necessary, and the present Senate has long refused it.

Now, to elect United States Senators by the popular vote is a very different thing from voting at the primaries in recommendation to the Legislature of some one man. There would then be no responsibility. Members of the Legislature could not be found to elect the successful candidate, and might easily use the results to evade their duty. The people, having no real voice in the matter, would not feel bound to exercise that care which they have shown in choosing officers, and the genuineness of the expression would be subject to grave question. In actual practice, the result in New Jersey would be little more than a travesty. The odds would favor the men from the more populous counties, but each minority expression would be so large as to require consideration, and the Legislature is constantly reached no decision, or be compelled to ignore the vote. It would be quite likely that the choice would lie between James Smith, Jr., and David Baird, unless those two astute politicians have entirely forgotten their cunning.

In short, the primary election preference plan is impracticable and likely to prove unfair. Elect Senators, but let it be an election, not a straw vote.—Newark Sunday Call.

State Senator Frelinghuysen issued a statement of his views the other day. This fire insurance agent, over in New York, has a fair business perception of everyone. The problem of the Governorship of the State of New Jersey presents itself to him in somewhat this way: "If nearly everybody who owns or uses an automobile is apparently opposed to me by my folly and obstinacy as a State Senator, it is obvious that I can not be elected Governor by catering to this class. Therefore, I will appeal to all who do not own automobiles and never use them, and as they are in the majority I must stand or win." The Somerset Senator has political sense, but with limitations. He appeals only to prejudice. He is nothing except an automobile crank. If New Jersey had no other public interest, he might be right in selecting opposition to automobiling as an issue, albeit he is an automobilist himself. It is a poor platform at best, and it is too narrow for standing-room. He would totter over the side, under the happiest balancing. A Governor of New Jersey is not selected for his ability to run and dance on so limited a space. Senator Frelinghuysen is without interest as a Gubernatorial possibility, yet it is a pity his name does not stand for something worth while.—Newark Sunday Call.

CHEATED UNDERTAKER.

Pronounced dead by hospital physicians when they could detect no signs of breathing or heart beats, even with the aid of instruments, David Campbell, forty-six years old, of Millville, gave the doctors the shock of their lives on Atlantic City on Sunday. He stirred restlessly, opened his eyes and then drifted back into a coma just as an undertaker's wagon backed up to the door. The physicians made haste to use heroic measures and finally succeeded in bringing back normal respiration. They are now hopeful of his ultimate recovery.

Campbell was found unconscious on the Albany avenue bridge Sunday morning by Sergeant Charles Holmes. He was bleeding from a gash in his scalp caused by a fall to the bridge planks.

THE FESTIVE CRAB.

The majority of housekeepers view the crab with suspicious eye. If they do not fear ptomaine poisoning they dread the frowns of the maid who must do the picking, or else think crab food an unwarranted luxury.

Most of these fear arise from lack of knowledge. As far inland as several hundred miles a dozen deviled crabs cost less than a juicy beefsteak and make a tasty and pleasant variety of meals, near the coast they are proportionately cheaper.

If you know your dealer, more important, know enough about crabs not to be fooled, the danger from crab eating is practically eliminated.

Picking is not the task it is considered, and in many places delicious flakes of white, sweet crab meat come ready packed in cans. This is sent fresh each day, and is absolutely safe if your dealer is to be relied upon and the weather is not inordinately hot—when no fish food should be eaten.

Picked crab meat can be bought even far inland at 50 cents a quart, with a dozen shells thrown in. It should be kept on ice until ready for use, and must be carefully picked over for small bones, often several times.

Shells should be scalded, scrubbed with a clean brush, and if dirty, boiled in hot soda water. Wipe dry before filling.

In buying fresh crabs they should be heavy in proportion to their size, and while uncooked their movements should be rapid if they are in good condition. When cooked their odor is sweet and fresh, they are fresh. In hot weather, however, it is better to eat them the first day. This also holds good for lobsters.

To cook hard shell crabs, boil until the shells are red, pull off the claws, open the shells and remove the meat carefully, rejecting the stomach, which lies near the eyes; the intestine, which is coiled in the middle of the body, and the soft fins, which lie under the legs. Save the green fat and curd which lies next the shell.

To prepare softshell crabs wash them in cold water and lay them on back on a chopping board. Use a sharp knife and cut a half circle out of the body, running knife blade just behind the eyes and sand bag. Lift apron or flap, which lies near the back of under shell, and cut off the hard, fin-like portions attached to it. Press the back shell away from the body on each side and remove spongy, lungus matter. Dry on clean towel and cook quickly.

Buy only those softshell crabs that are fat and much alive. They should be handled carefully to avoid breaking claws.

Softshelled crabs are boiled or fried after being prepared. To boil, dip in melted butter seasoned with salt and pepper, cook in a buttered broiler over hot coals for ten minutes, turning twice to broil evenly on both sides. Serve with drawn butter and lemon or with sauce tartare.

To fry softshell crabs roll in egg and seasoned bread crumbs and fry in deep lard. Serve with sauce tartare and cucumbers.

YOUR ROMS.

Nothing is more common than fresh air. Nature provided it in abundance for all who will take. There is no one thing so potent to prevent disease, so effective in maintaining a healthy action of the whole body. Consumption, pneumonia, bronchitis and catarrh are bad-air diseases. Bad air, too, is a cause of colds.

Sewage flowing into pure water polutes it. So the air we exhale from our lungs polutes the air in the room. The impure air from the lungs of any number of people in a room mixes with the pure air and makes it dangerous and unfit for breathing. There must be a supply of fresh air constantly coming in to take the place of the foul air, which in all cases should be permitted to escape near the top of the room.

It is the law of nature that air is always in motion, and because this is true we have only to lower our windows a little from the top and to raise them a little from the bottom and the process of ventilation will go on without thought or care.

It is impossible to estimate the amount of misery and suffering caused by impure air. If you would escape, see to it that you get at all times a plentiful supply of fresh air.

JEWELED LACES.

The very newest thing in jewelry is the reproduction of old and priceless laces in tiny pearls and diamonds mounted upon gunmetal, platinum or diamond net. The exact pattern of the lace is copied, and the whole is formed into a jabot or a lace fall for the collar. Sometimes there is a bow above, composed of some colored stones—emeralds or amethysts or rubies—set in solid.

This new and wonderful work has revolutionized the art of the jeweler, since the workmanship has become quite as valuable as the stones themselves. These laces of jewels are, of course, ruinously expensive, but they are such marvels of beauty that a woman might well dispense with all other ornament for the sake of possessing one of them.

OYSTERS ON TREES; FISH EAT OUT OF ONE'S HAND.

Oysters grow on trees in Porto Rica and fish that have never yet had the honor of mention on expensive restaurant menus swim unsuspectingly in the waters of the island, fish of hitherto unknown varieties will eat out of the angler's hand in Porto Rico; fish of every kind and description are waiting to be caught there.

All the foregoing is described in a report to the bureau of insular affairs from San Juan. The angler might try this from the report to the bureau on his rod and reel:

"At one port the following food fishes are taken by hand, hook and line or trolling; Candil, red goat, Spanish mackerel, 2 to 10 pounds; kingfish, 10 to 40 pounds; runner; cabra mora; Nassau grouper; red hind; toro; red grouper, 5 to 100 pounds; pargo prieto, 5 to 30 pounds; dog snapper, 5 to 20 pounds; schoolmaster; red snapper; muttonfish; lane snapper; margate; yellow tail; pluma, 2 to 8 pounds; chopa amarilla, 1 pound; red goat, 5 to 8 pounds; blue parrot, 3 to 8 pounds; trunkfish, 1 to 4 pounds; robalo, 5 to 25 pounds, and baluja, one-quarter to three-quarter pound."

As for oysters, Captain John H. Kerr, of Baltimore, who is in Porto Rico looking over the fishing field, is authority for the declaration that they grow on trees, and the report of the bureau of insular affairs says:

"Oysters of good flavor are quite plentiful on the south side of the island; they are usually attached to the mangrove roots, the lower branches of the mangroves coming at the water's edge."

In spite of all these conditions the report shows that Porto Rico imported more than $654,000 worth of dried fish last year and exported none.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY HINTS.

Because it maters little how light her hair becomes a blonde may wash her hair more frequently than a brunette.

When shampooing never rub the soap directly on the hair, as it gums and is almost impossible to rub or rinse off. Always have the soap in some liquid form.

To stop bleeding of the fingers, hand, arm or foot, raise the part as high as possible. The best plan in the case of, say the hand, is to put it under the cold water tap for a minute or half a minute, and then raise it above the head.

When a person feels jumpiness, weariness and listlessness, accompanied by headache, there is indicated a general run-down state of the nerves and the system. Plenty of plain nourishing food should be eaten, there should be daily outdoor exercise and a good internal nerve tonic should be taken.

Ther are various causes for redness of the nose, not to suggest the use of alcoholic beverages as being one of them. If cause exists the remedy suggests itself. But another cause is defective circulation. In such cases outdoor exercise is necessary and much good will result from a cold bath every morning, followed by a brisk rubdown. A good tonic should be taken.

QUEEN AND SUFFRAGETTES.

Just now, when the question of woman suffrage is uppermost, it is interesting to recall the attitude of the late Queen Victoria toward the subject forty years ago. Her majesty although herself a conspicuous illustration of the capacity of women to engage in public affairs, was emphatically not in favor of what is used to be generally termed in those days "Women's Rights." It was in 1870 that the appearance of a certain aristocratic young matron, who had then made her first platform political appearance, drew forth the following remarkable protest from the first lady in the land:

"The queen is most anxious to enlist everyone who can speak or write to join in checking this mad, wicked folly of 'woman's rights,'" with all its attendant horrors, on which her poor feeble sex is bent, forgetting every sense of womanly feeling and propriety. The queen ought to get a good whipping. It is a subject that makes the queen so furious that she cannot contain herself." Truly we have travelled far since those far-off days.

NEED OF BEAUTY SLEEP.

We have all had the necessity for beauty sleep impressed upon us from childhood up, but it is a need we neglect systematically as soon as we escape from the guidance of our parents. It seems a waste of time, but it is far from being so.

Nerves, eyes, complexion, the entire system, fight for their rightful amount of sleep; not only sleep, but rest.

The person who feels fagged out and over-wrought looks it, and to look that way is not to look beautiful. It affects not only the skin, eyes, carriage, etc., but leaves its indelible mark upon the expression, in the form of either discontent, depression or irritation.

To be beautiful is to feel beautiful, well, content and happy.

THE MOST TALKED OF SOVEREIGN IN THE WORLD.

Yet, amid all the clash and competition of these prodigious developments, the kaiser has not only kept but clinched, his hold upon the interest and imagination of the world. He is today, as he was twenty years ago, the most talked-of man in the universe, says Sydney Brooks, in Mc Clure's. People differ about him, but no one is indifferent to him. No event, however dramatic and unexpected, no personality, however many-sided and compelling, has been able for more than a moment to rival the supreme and inexhaustible fascination of his character and actions. When other excitements have passed away, the abiding excitement of the derision; he has amazed it, amused it, repelled it, scandalized it, but he has never failed to interest it. A strong son of the strongest, most tenacious, most intelligent and successful ruling house that the world has ever produced, the sovereign of a State that after centuries of disunion now dominate the continent by the laboriously disciplined might, virility and mental alertness of its people, and a monarch in whose highest word and most casual deed there is apparent a tingling individuality—William II. is easily the outstanding figure of time.

A NOVEL CALLING.

When pretty Sadie Jennings found on her father's death that she and her mother would have only a pittance, she put on her considering cap to see what she would do. At any cost she determined to stay with her mother, who had no other child to care for her, and was much too fragile to face the world alone; but this Sadie could not do unless she supplemented their small income. She could draw, and paint a little; she knew as most girls of French and German, and played just enough to give pleasure to herself and her intimate friends. None of these "accomplishements" would bring in money, however, since the market was already overstocked with women more talented than herself.

"There's your needlework, Sadie," ventured a friend, who had often watched exquisite wreaths of roses and forget-me-nots grow under Sadie's clever fingers.

"The very thing!" cried Sadie clapping her hands; but she was not thinking of embroidery for she knew that such work was ill-paid and difficult to dispose at a profit. "I'll be a 'family mender,'" she declared, after some minutes further thought. "There are numbers of busy people who would be thankful to have their mending taken off their hands, and I can start! You wait and see!"

Before long Sadie's optimistic views of the money to be made in this new calling were amply justified. Her "notion" was welcomed with joy by many professional women and weary mothers who objected to holes in their own stockings, or to having to bend over them, and still had no time to mend them.

Sadie undertook to keep all woolen garments at "so much a head," stipulating that they were to come to her each week when they were returned from the laundry, so that she might be on the watch for thin places.

Working at home, in her sunny sitting-room, with her mother to keep her company and match her wools, Sadie made more money than many a harassed typist or stenographer, and had the pleasure of knowing that she was, as her friends expressed it, "filling a long-felt want." It would be well if other girls were to give her plan a trial; for no one who knows how difficult it is to find a reliable "mender" will doubt its ultimate success.

LAKE HOPATCONG TO MORRISTOWN, BY TROLLEY.

In a few days, possibly by the end of this week, the trolley service from Lake Hopatcong to Mt. Tabor will be extended to Morris Plains, and it will then be possible to travel from Morristown all the way to the lake by trolley. There still remains the long stretch through Summit to Morristown to complete the connection to Newark and New York, and while the road may soon move up from Summit to Chatham's upper boundary it may be a long time before the final links in the chain are forged.

In the meantime the Morristown to Hopatcong service is bound to become popular, during the milder six months of the year at least, and summer sojourners who in that region are now taking advantage of it to more thoroughly enjoy and appreciate the whole beautiful region which the line already in operation throws open.

Financing Her Vacation.

"Yes. it's a lovely day, Mr. Quibble."

He bitterly; "Squibble, Miss Brown, Squibble. That's a fine inheritance, isn't it! Nobody ever gets it right. How would you feel with a freak name like that?"

She, coyly: "Oh, Mr. Squibble, this is so sudden."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

EACH $700 MADE MILLIONS FOR THE MILLER BROTHERS.

Fifty years ago a Connecticut farmer called his four sons together at Middletown, gave them his blessing and $700 apiece, and told them to go out into the world and make their living. Sunday the four brothers gathered at Bridgeport to hold a reunion and help celebrate the golden wedding of the eldest. They are old men now, and in the hands of each the parental $700 has increased and multiplied enormously.

The brothers are Darius Miller, of New York, Charles Miller, of Waterbury, Nathan G. Miller, of Fairbury, and Frank Miller of Bridgeport, the latter being the host of Sunday's gathering.

Darius Miller is 81 years of age. With his $700 he founded a big dry goods store in New Britain, which has prospered, and he is interested in many big financial projects.

Nathan G. Miller, of New York, increased his patrimony vastly. He was the president of the New York Steamboat Company owned the Nickel Plate Railroad, was President of the Eagle Lock Company, and heavily interested in the Edison Electric Light Company.

The Waterbury member of the quartet likewise prospered, founding the Miller & Peck Company in Waterbury and the Randolph & Clowes Company, and is rated as one of the wealthiest men of Waterbury. In January last he turned over the Randolph & Clowes firm to the clerks in the store. He is 71 years of age.

Frank Miller, of Bridgeport, youngest of the quartet, is President of the City National Bank, of Bridgeport, President of a large lumber concern in Bridgeport, and owns vast tracts of timber in the South. He is rated as one of the wealthiest men in the eastern part of Connecticut.

Sunday's gathering marked the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Darius Miller, and was appropriately celebrated. A group picture of the Millers was taken. The Millers are descendants of Thomas Miller, who came to Middletown, Conn., in 1650 and opened a mill there. The town offered him a bonus of $700 for doing so, but never paid it. If the descendants can collect this debt now with the accumulated interest, they would have enormous wealth.

FLOUNCINGS ON LINGERIE.

Embroidered flouncings are used on many of the season's lingerie gowns, an all-over embroidery for waist, bandings, and galoons for trimmings showing the same designs. Most of the embroideries used are of Swiss manufacture, the hand loom work, which is hardly to be told from genuine hand work, being particularly effective.

Bands and embroidered bands which are a feature of the smart heavy linen gowns are very handsome, the heavy padding making the bold designs employed stand out most effectively.

Embroidered batistes in white and ecru are also ruffings with colored embroidered edges as well. Matched sets in ecru find much favor with modish dressers.

EMBROIDERY IDEAS.

Applique of small velvet flowers on a neck scarf, heart and flowers—the latter in a border, narrow at the sides, wide at the ends—were both of deep terra cotta.

Shirtwaist linen with green silk-worked eyelets in two rows and a wide band of green and white rose embroidery in satin stitch between. Repeated in small pattern for the cuffs.

Dotted net yokes and cuffs with alternate pink and cream embroidery in small squares between the dots, giving a pink, cream and white checkerboard effect.

Silk net long gloves in queer greens and blues, embroidered at the elbow and down the back in a vine design of the same shade. Also silk gloves with a line of drawn work about halfway down the arm and a back of solid white embroidery in Chinese pattern.

White allover embroidery strips stitched in lavender to match a lavender and white striped linen waist, in which it was used as insertion. Only the central part of the pattern was so covered.

Strips of heavy wallachian embroidery in bright natural colors (a wild rose design), used as waist trimming and covered with thin folds of the sheerest chiffon to soften the color affect.

Cured.

STATES HIS PLATFORM

Jas. E. Martine, Who Would Succeed Senator John Kean Declares Himself.

FOR PROGRESSIVE PRINCIPLES.

"Farmer Orator" Says His Stand Will Vitalize a Great Democratic Principle Whether He is Elected or Not.

Declaring aggressively for Progressive principles, James E. Martine, who is a Democratic candidate for United States Senator to succeed John Kean, and will submit his candidacy to a vote of the Democrats of New Jersey through the direct primary election on September 13, next, today issued a statement telling the voters where he stands on questions to be dealt with by Congress.

Acting under the direct primary law, Mr. Martine has petitions requesting the Secretary of State to print his name as a Senatorial candidate on the official ballots, circulating among Democrats in Union, Mercer Hudson, Burlington, Atlantic, Passaic, Warren, Sussex, Bergen and Hunterdon counties.

"I was never more in earnest in my political career in my life than I am as a candidate for United States Senator," said Mr. Martine today. "Until my friends induced me to submit my name as a candidate to succeed John Kean to a direct vote of the Democrats of the State, I had looked upon the New Jersey Democrats were going into the campaign open to charges of insincerity and inconsistency in having for years demanded such a law we now have in New Jersey and then making no attempt to avail themselves of it. Aside from the question of whether or not I am elected to the United States Senate as a result of my position, I know that my stand will vitalize a great Democratic principle—the popular election of United States Senators."

Mr. Martine's statement is as follows:

"Having announced myself as a candidate for the dignified position of United States Senator for New Jersey, and desiring to avail myself of the recently enacted laws permitting voters to express their preference as candidates for that important position, I feel that it is but just and fair to the people of this State that they should know what I stand for:

"First. I insist upon an honest and economical administration of government in every department.

"I favor a tariff for revenue only, and oppose the scheme of present Republican Protection as un-American, unfair and unjust, in that it does not favor all alike; its burdens are paid by the consumer and breadstuffs advance the wealth of a special few. In its workings the present tariff has built up great combinations, and trusts that are conniving against the cardinal principle of free government, though depriving the citizens of our land of equal opportunity. The cost of living has increased through its operation from 50 to 60 per cent, while wages have increased but from 15 to 18 per cent. Its enforcement is robbery for the masses; hence I oppose it.

"I hold that the blessings of government should be open to the down of Heaven fall on all equally and alike.

"I am deeply impressed with the wisdom and necessity of a conservation of the nation's great resources —forests, coal-lands and waterways.

"In the interests of the people, I insist that government should not sell its few water sites, but that same should be leased for stated periods.

"I favor the most liberal development of our country's waterways, as a means of cheap transportation for the people.

"All events of recent years have demonstrated the wisdom and necessity of the regulation and control of the great railroad interests of our country.

"I shall demand a physical valuation of railroad property.

"Through Republican legislation our merchant marine has faded from the seas. If elected I shall be my aim to favor such legislation as shall again establish our flag as the merchant mistress of the deep.

"I earnestly favor all efforts to speedily complete the Panama Canal, the completion of which will multiply our trade and commerce.

"Over-stimulation has crowded our great cities, until the quest of living is hard and bitter. Back to the farm is not only popular, but in my judgment wise, and hence I shall favor a most liberal consideration of the farmer and his industry.

"I stand for the direct election of United States Senators by the people.

"A permanent Director of Posts is, to my mind, a step in the right direction. An enlargement of postal facilities, a 'parcel post,' and post saving bank will advance the welfare of the people and advance the cause of civilization.

"In conclusion I pledge myself if elected, to diligently attend to the duties of the responsible office of United States Senator without a thought of self interest."

MERCHANTS BREAK EVEN

East and West Front Street Shopkeepers Each Win a Game on Crescent Oval.

LOTS OF FUN FOR SPECTATORS.

East Enders Take First Contest by Score of 24 to 10 and Lose Second by Score of 5 to 3—One Accident.

The East and West Front street merchants played a double header ball game, yesterday, in their semi-annual contest and the result was an even break. The East Enders showed and proved beyond doubt that they could come back and so Lohrman's cubs romped away with the first contest; two hesitate to call it a game) by the score of 24-10. But the rival nine was not to lose its envious reputation with a single blow and so with a little of Manager Weinberger's "do and die" spirit in it and strengthened by the fragrant aroma from one of his many cigars, the team from the West End of the "Way White Way" made its percentage for the day's work .500 by winning the second match with the the gravy at 5-3.

Both teams presented entirely new line-ups except for the first two pitchers in the first game. The change was for the better as can be merrily gleaned from the mutual improvement on the score board. Despite the inclemency of the weather, a large crowd of enthusiastic merchants, clerks and storekeepers, was on the scene to cheer simply 1,36, they were there with lots of fun and humorous remarks—indeed the game was almost as good as a vaudeville show, not because of poor playing, but on account of such comedy sketch artists as "Bill" Coriell, Geo. Clark, "Quaker" Vail and many comedians of baseball lingo that are too numerous to mention.

At the beginning of the first game it looked as though the story of the last merchant's game would be repeated, for Lohrman was backed all over the lot for a grand total of nine runs in two innings while the East End players only managed to scrape on tally from the delivery of Mr. Wilson. But in the third inning the fun commenced for the boys from East Front street. Eight runs were piled up on the afore mentioned Mr. Wilson and five more tallies were added in the next round. The runs kept on the increase for the East End daisies and a total of twenty four was made before the umpire called time for a breathing spell between games. Lohrman retired from the box. "Bill" Coriell took his place. And enough said, for "Bill" was in form and the opposing nine only scored one more run in the remaining seven innings.

In the second game matters were a little more subdued and baseball like. Coriell again twirled for the East Front street team with Linke in the second inning relieving Mr. Linke scared the batters with his motion and handed it to them 5-3. The first run was not scored until the second inning, when the Morning Glory team put one tally across the pan. And the second game was close all the way through thus breaking all previous records in this "Bread and Butter League."

There was one accident in the third inning, which marred the quiet proceedings of the first game: Cullen, who was playing third base on the West End team, collided with a runner at third base, severely injuring his nose. He was taken to the hospital, where the injured member was properly attended to and Cullen returned to the field as a spectator.

To pick out any individual stars in the games would be hard work to say the least. Every player displayed with a little of the grand stand spirit and of course that is the reason for the difficulty in selecting any shining lights.

As usual, the scorer went to sleep before the game began and hence there is only the score by innings to tell the terrible tales. The teams lined up as follows:

East Front street—Meaney, ss.; McAfee, 1b.; Houston, rf.; Snell, 2b.; Dodge, 3b.; Coriell, lf., and p.; Fuchs, c.; Lohrman, p., and lf.; Ayers, cf.

This is the score by inning for the two games:

First game:

East Front	1	0	8	5	2	5	2	0	1—24
West Front	3	6	0	0	0	0	0	1	0—10

Second game:

West Front	1	0	0	2	0	2	x		5
East Front	0	1	0	0	0	0	2		—3

The umpire was George Merrill and he lived to tell the tale.

An Anxious Situation

"It must be very annoying to be paid a dollar a word for your work," said one writing man.

"I should think it would be jolly," replied the other.

THE ALPHA AND OMEGA

Rev. Mr. Stout Explains the Meaning of Christ's Reference to Himself.

AN INSTRUCTIVE DISCOURSE.

Three Times the Saviour Speaks of Himself Using the Same Figure of Speech.

Those who attended the morning service at the Trinity Reformed church Sunday listened to a strong sermon by the Rev. Royal A. Stout, the pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Stout said in part:

"The alphabet is only 3,500 years old and before the advent of this wonderful invention the ancient people used to express themselves in ideagrams. The alphabet then came with its flexibility and continuity. And it is to these instances that Christ refers in the book of the Revelation of St. John, when He calls Himself the alpha and the omega, for Christ was the continuity of the whole of life.

"The first instance, where Christ refers to Himself in this way is found in the first chapter of Revelations, the eighth verse. Here Christ makes the revelation to the church that He is the alpha and the omega. That He is the alpha is shown by His confession to Peter and the omega stands for the destiny of the church. Christ is the complete expression of Christianity and the foundation of the church. If Christ is the main pillar of the church, why should anything else be brought into the church except Christ and Him crucified? Sociology, ethics, morals, and such great teachings, which are taking a foothold, are all right in themselves, and let them be preached, if in their doctrines, we can see the teachings of Christ. Like the leaning tower of Pisa, which has reached its limit of development because it is off of its true foundation, so will the Christian church stand when its principles wander from the true teachings of Christ, who is the foundation of the Church. Christ is the foundation and aim of the church.

"The second instance, in which Christ speaks of Himself as the Alpha and Omega, occurs in Revelation 21-6, where Christ reveals Himself as the fullest expression of the new life to the Christian. Christ is the beginning of the new life, for all moral attributes are futile unless founded on Him. And then Christ is the aim of every Christian life.

"The third instance is found in Revelation 22-13, in which Christ calls Himself the alpha and the omega of the eternal life. He lived without sin and is therefore the beginning of eternal life and we can have no such life hereafter unless we believe in Him. And then Christ first Front street team with Linke in the second inning relieving Mr. Linke scared the batters with his motion and handed it to them 5-3. The first run was not scored until the second inning, when the Morning Glory team put one tally across the pan. And the second game was close all the way through thus breaking all previous records in this "Bread and Butter League."

D. H. ROWLAND WINS COMPETITION AT P.C.C.

There was a large field of golfers out at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, but few posted their scores. The event for the day was a 18 hole match play competition against par, which is 7, the players taking for their handicap three-quarters the difference between their regular handicap and par. The competition which was for both Classes A and B, was won by D. H. Rowland, who is six down at the finish.

The social features at the clubhouse were enjoyed by a large number of members and friends, and Superintendent Hilton served a great many lunches throughout the day and dinner in the evening. The delightful weather was greatly enjoyed on the hilltop, and the clubhouse was thronged with people.

A COMBINATION SALAD.

Cucumbers are served in various ways, made into boats, stuffed and in cream soups, but one of the most nutritious ways of serving them is in a salad with crisp lettuce, young onions and radishes.

In one family this salad is often the chief dish at luncheon. It is made in a large salad bowl, in which the crisp lettuce leaves are tossed with slices of ice-cold cucumber, mixed with a generous amount of dressing made of olive oil, lemon juice, pepper and salt, and a dash of sugar.

Use about a quarter as much lemon juice as olive oil. Thin slices of bread and butter, cocoa, and a plain cake, served with salad, make an excellent lunch for midday or afternoon refreshment.

LONELY ROAD HOLD-UP

Frank Wade in Custody and Police Search for William Jeroloman.

THE ROBBERS GOT NOTHING.

Borough Police Summoned by One Who Heard an Intended Victim's Screams—An Exciting Experience.

William Jeroloman, of Prescott place, is being hunted down by the police in the swamp near New Market, and Frank Wade, of Philadelphia, is held in the borough jail, for an attempted highway robbery on Greenbrook road Saturday night. Both men were caught by the borough police, but Jeroloman escaped from their clutches by his speedy running. The would-be robber was hunted for all Saturday night and yesterday by the borough police force, but no traces could be found of him.

At about 8:30, Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. William Winrow, of New York, who are boarding at the Jennings farm, Greenbrook road and Rock avenue, were returning home along Greenbrook road when they were suddenly accosted by two men, who stepped out from the bushes. One of the men was tall and thin, while the other was short and of a slim build. The tall man flourished a revolver and demanded all their money. Mrs. Winrow started to scream and her husband kept her from doing so by clever bit of talk, saying in the meanwhile that neither of them had anything of value in their possession.

Mrs. Winrow's screams were heard by the men on A. J. Brunson's farm, and the North Plainfield police department was immediately notified. Meanwhile the farm hands set out in search of the highwaymen, who had beat a retreat. Marshals Keller and Culver, of the borough force, arrived on the scene in record time and joined the hunt. By some clever detective work, Marshal Keller found

PLAYGROUND A SUCCESS

Closing Exercises at Bryant School Win Approbation of Commissioners.

CHILDREN EXHIBIT HANDIWORK

Visitors Applaud Folk Dances and Highly Commend Work Accomplished by Miss Harriet Moe.

The closing exercises at the Bryant School Playgrounds yesterday were attended by several interested persons, notably President of the Playgrounds Commission George P. Mellick and Mrs. Mellick, Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Harry Marshall, Wm. S. Tyler, a member of the Board of Education, and Mrs. Elory G. Bowers. One of the noteworthy features of the afternoon was the commonly remarked character of the improvement in the children who have been entertained and instructed by Miss Harriet E. Moe, of New York, during the summer since July 5.

Mr. Mellick in commenting on the general result of the institution of the playgrounds in this city said: "Not today nor tomorrow will the parents of the children realize the splendid results that have been achieved in the past three months. But the time is coming when they will all believe in and help the playground scheme. It has proved itself to have been of inestimable value to not alone the children who have enjoyed the privileges of the open-air play as to their health, but the far greater and more vital result to their characters which in after life will be found by them to have been the real incentive to do right."

Many of the mothers who were on hand to see their little ones were glad to repeat the saying that "This is one of the best things ever invented for the children!" One of the women declared that the language of her boys had been so changed that her children were entirely made over in deportment. They were all in that jolly mood which indicates that these mothers were glad that the "new idea" for the children was one of the greatest of blessings ever proposed and carried out anywhere. The greater share of the credit falls to Miss Moe and her monitors for the splendid discipline which has been maintained.

One of the attractions at the grounds yesterday afternoon was the exhibition of work done by the nimble fingers of the children during the season. The work consists of examples of beadework, paper cutting, knitting, sewing, reed and raffia baskets and last, but not least, some good examples of clay moulding in which a dozen boys and girls had achieved splendid results.

During the afternoon the organized games, folk dances and other amusements indulged in by the children were a source of amusement and pleasure to those who were fortunate enough to have seen them. In the folk dances the children accompanied their winding feet with their tuneful voices, and in the costumes arranged for them made pictures which will be a lasting argument in favor of more playgrounds and perhaps the cultivation of latent talents in the little folks.

There are several things which are needed for the grounds, including paraphernalia for the out-door gymnasium and a tent for shelter during the wet spells and hot sunshiny days.

This afternoon the children are enjoying a final party where refreshments are being served to the youngsters as well as the parents who have cared to attend. There were more today than yesterday, and judging from some of the statements made to a reporter of The Daily Press, the entire playground commission would have had difficulty in escaping the thanks of the women who wanted to tell them so many complimentary things.

And the best part of it was that the praise was all deserved, particularly to Miss Moe, and all those who have assisted her in the work.

EUROPEAN TOURISTS HOME

Party of Twenty-nine Make Eighty-seven Day Trip Without Accident.

THEY SEE THE PASSION PLAY.

Climbing the Jungfrau Being Made a Pastime by Swiss Engineers

Italy's Hills are Explored.

Returning after his 82d tourist trip in which his party of twenty-nine people covered a distance of 11,500 miles, A. V. D. Honeyman said this morning that not a single day during the trip did the thermometer get above 70 degrees Fahrenheit, nor was more than a half-day spent indoors because of rain.

The trip occupied eighty-seven days. The party left New York on June 7 and returned on Monday last aboard the steamer Prince Frederick Wilhelm, and during the entire trip nothing of moment occured to mar the pleasure of the entire party.

A new experience was given Mr. Honeyman's party and one which later will become common—up the famous Jungfrau on a railroad built especially for tourists seemed a few years ago an impossibility, but the Swiss engineers have surmounted almost impossible obstacles and have extended the iron rails in a circuitous path up to within 200 feet of the summit of one of the most difficult climbing propositions ever encountered by travelers and explorers.

Mr. Honeyman said this morning that the greatest problem to be solved after the summit of Jungfrau is reached will be how to keep the perpetually falling snow from the entrance to the top. An average depth of ten to twelve feet of the beautiful is said to be found there, and it will require some ingenuity to overcome the trouble caused by the continuous snowfall.

Among the places visited by the party, Oberammergau and the Passion Play were distinctly novel to the voyagers. Naturally, Ravenna was visited, and it is believed that this is the first time that a party of Americans has penetrated thus far into the Italian hills.

BOROUGH REPUBLICANS TO ORGANIZE SEPTEMBER 6.

There was only a small attendance at the meeting of the Republican voters of North Plainfield in Debele's auditorium, last night, and consequently nothing definite was done in the line of organization. Mayor Newton and Assessman Stout fifteen of the "old faithfuls" were on hand and the political situation for this year was discussed at length. After an hour and a half of political talk, it was decided to postpone the meeting for organization to Tuesday night, September 6 in Debele's auditorium.

Considerable interest was taken by those present in the proposed outing of the Republicans of Somerset county to Witnel's Point on the 14th of next month. A large delegation is expected to attend from the borough.

OLD NASSAU'S GRADS TO 'ROO' FOR WILSON

As a result of the recent announcement by Woodrow Wilson that he would accept the Democratic nomination for Governor of New Jersey if it appeared that such was the wish of "a decided majority of the thoughtful Democrats of the State," a movement has been started to unite the 1,400 members of the Princeton Alumni Association in New Jersey in support of Mr. Wilson. With this end in view, a circular has been sent to each member of the association asking his aid in furthering the candidacy of Princeton's president.

The circular says that if the tide continues to run as at present the nomination of Mr. Wilson seems certain, but that there is always danger of an eleventh hour change, and that it behooves the friends of Mr. Wilson to get together and work hard in his behalf. It goes on to say:

"This is clearly an unusual opportunity for the friends of good government in New Jersey. In the judgment of qualified observers his nomination is equivalent to an election by a very large majority. Regardless of all partisan and personal considerations, New Jersey would be tremendously the gainer through the entrance of Woodrow Wilson into the official and political life of the State."

STREET IMPROVEMENTS

Noticeable Decrease to Objections Against Top Dressing Here.

PLAINFIELD HAS THE BEST.

Observations of Mayor Fisk Show That Investment in Good Roads Pays—Darrow Avenue Example.

That the efforts to make Plainfield's streets and roads the best that human ingenuity can devise is being successful, is a matter which nobody can deny. The conditions confronting the City Fathers at the beginning of the "better road" era have so far been improved that there is scarcely any necessity for comparison. As an example of what has been done within a couple of years, Darrow avenue can be referred to with pride.

It has been noticeable that the objections first raised against the different compositions for building a lasting roadbed had been used by the city have entirely disappeared, and now people are all praising the foresight of those who are responsible for the great improvement.

During Mayor Fisk's trip home from the Adirondacks, his Honor stopped off at Albany and took extensive rides through the roads outside New York's capital city. He discovered that the asphalt had been used in great quantities there and that it was accorded the premier position among the best of road building binders. The Tarvia preparation also made a good impression on the Mayor so far as direct value is concerned, but there remains a distinct belief that in the final array of good roads preparations some asphalt combination will survive the test and become universally used.

The added cost of maintaining a road bed topped with an asphalt binder seems to be at first glance an extravagance not to be countenanced, but on deeper reflection the known results of such a composition must have its inevitable results in convincing the sceptical that economy in the line of road building eventually results in economy. And this theory has been proved to a large extent in Albany.

DOG BITTEN BY SNAKE BUT WHISKEY SAVED HIM

While Borough Councilman William L. Smalley, Jr., was walking through the mountains yesterday afternoon with his valuable hunting dog, the canine suddenly emitted a howl, and started to limp. Mr. Smalley looked down and saw a big copper-head snake scooting off in the bushes. The dog's leg began to swell and the councilman knew that the reptile had bitten his dog.

Mr. Smalley lost no time in summoning a veterinary surgeon, who recommended that the best cure for the dog was a stiff dose of whiskey. The liquor was then forced down the victim's mouth, much against his wishes. The canine soon became tipsy and Mr. Smalley had to tie him up to prevent him from whipping all the dogs in the neighborhood. This morning the dog was sober and the swelling on his leg has receded in size.

When the wound was opened by the surgeon yesterday afternoon the fangs of the reptile were plainly visible.

CRACK CYCLERS AT RACES

Entries Being Received from Best Riders of the Country for Labor Day Event.

ALL WHEELMEN INTERESTED.

A Special Match Race Between E. S. Bird and Jack Todd on the Program—A Ten-Mile Handicap Tomorrow Morning.

The proposed Labor Day bicycle races of the Plainfield Cycling Club are stirring up considerable interest among the wheelmen of this city as well as those of the State generally. Entries for the different events are pouring into the hands of Jack Horner at a great rate and it is expected that before next Saturday all of the contestants will have been enrolled.

The younger element of cyclers in this city has been aroused on account of the event, which is to be held for boys under sixteen years of age. Four of the young wheelmen have organized themselves into a club, to be known as the Rambler Bicycle Club of Plainfield. It is expected that a large number of boys in this city will be enrolled in the new organization as races, trips and general good times have been planned for by the founders of the club. The charter members of the new group of wheelmen are: Harold Blackford, Irving Bush, William Simon and William Hand. Applications for membership should be handed to anyone of these boys.

A feature of the program on Labor Day will be a special match race between E. S. Bird, of this city, and Jack Todd, of Hoboken. A controversy has arisen between these two riders as a result of a little "bad blood" in the regular Sunday morning race of the local cycling club and they have agreed to settle the dispute by the result of the best two out of three heats on a one-mile course.

F. S. Sheppard, a member of the local club, will make his debut as a racer in the City and County Championship one mile events. Sheppard has always been a cycling enthusiast but has never before appeared in a race.

Some of the classiest speed artists among the eastern wheelmen will be entered in the free for all events. The prizes for these races are handsome ones and are sure to make the contestants go their limit in order to get the valuable booty. Among the noted ones, who are sure to compete in the program are: Carl Erickson, amateur champion and winner of the time prize in the diamond handicap, and also the first man across the finish in the twenty-five mile handicap at Rahway; Jerome Steinert, a champion one miler from Orange, who is considered to be the Italian champion; John Becht, the winner of the ten-mile handicap in Scotch Plains, July 4; Jessie R. Pike, from the Central Racing Club of America, who won the Decoration Day twenty-five mile race. There are also many entrants from the Empire City Wheelmen, the Washington Bicycle Club and the Crescent Bicycle Club, Carroll Cyclers, and Racycle Club, of Baltimore.

The regular Sunday morning race of the local cycling organization will be held tomorrow morning on the Mountain avenue course. The distance of the handicap event has been changed from five miles to ten. The number of the season's races will be over a ten-mile course.

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENT WAS DELAYED ONE YEAR.

Belated announcement is made by Mrs. John Anderson, of South Plainfield, of the marriage of her daughter, Katherine, to Albert W. Pearson, of 1018 East Front street. The ceremony took place in Newark a year ago on August 11. The parents of both the bride and groom were aware of the marriage directly after it was performed, but the couple kept the affair secret from their friends and are now having it announced for the first time.

Mrs. Pearson said yesterday that she and her husband went to Newark the night of August 11 last year and were married by a minister there. Upon their return to this city, they informed their parents of what they had done and took up their residence in South Plainfield. The couple have just been spending the first anniversary of their marriage in Asbury Park and will now live in the Netherwood section, where Mr. Pearson has recently purchased a house.

The Practical Instinct.

"Why do so many children dislike mentals arithmetic?" said one school teacher.

"I suppose," replied the other, "it's because a boy resents figuring on how many imaginary apples a mythical John has instead of getting out after real ones of his own."—Washington Star.

A Chapter in Stelle History

By O. B. LEONARD

Readers of the Daily Press and others may be interested in a brief outline of the branch of the Stelle family to which the late Julia R. Stelle belonged. The projenitor of the original line in this country was Poncet Stelle, a refugee Hugenot from France about 1675-80. He had seven sons and one daughter, Benjamin, Gabriel, Ambrose, Isaac, John, Eugene, James and Madelaine. Only of the first and eldest born will this sketch make mention.

Benjamin Stelle (son of Poncet, sometimes known as Pontius) was born 1683 in New York. About the time he became of age Middlesex county, N. J., had attraction for him. A few years later he settled down in Piscataway township near the Raritan river and married in 1708-9, Mercy Drake, his first wife by whom all his children were born. In 1752 he married Lydia Shotwell, who survived him at his death in 1759, the year his last will was proved.

He became associated, 1726, with the first Baptist church, at which time or two years thereafter he assisted the aged pastor, Rev. John Drake. This patriarch preacher had passed the three score years and ten and was growing infirm, though he survived till 1741, the date of his decease. In 1732 Deacon Mr. Stelle was called to preach among them and was approved and set apart by solemn ordination. This data was given by himself in 1746 when he prepared the sketch for the Philadelphia Baptist Association minutes.

The children of Rev. Benjamin Stelle and wife, Mercy, were six: three daughters and three sons, Susannah, Betsey and Rachel, Deacon Benjamin, Capta'n John and Rev. Isaac Stelle. This oldest daughter born 1710, married 1730 Josiah Hull and had ten children. The youngest girl born 1720 married 1744 Ephraim Fitz Randolph (of Joseph and Rebecca) and had six children. Through the three sons of Pastor Benjamin descended all the Stelles in this part of New Jersey.

Deacon Benjamin Stelle was born 1713, married first Hannah Dunn and at second marriage Ruth Sharp. By first wife were born two sons and four daughters; by the last wife, one son, who married Miss Mary Jacobus the wife of Andrew Manning. Mercy married Ephraim Pyatt, Elizabeth was the wife of Joseph Stelle, her cousin, Rachel married two brothers, Ephraim and Samuel Fitz Randolph (of Joseph and Esther). They all had large families.

The descendants of the two sons of Deacon Benjamin Stelle are the following: Asher Stelle, born, February 6, 1746, married 1772, Mary Drake and had Anne married Samuel Carlyle, Rachel married Lewis Bergen, Elizabeth David Runyon, Hannah married Justus Runyon, Daniel married Elizabeth Dunham, parents of Julia, Sarah and Jeremiah Stelle, Drake married Elsey Runyon, had Rev. Bergen, Rev. Lewis F., Julia, Rachel D. Furman married Rachel Blackford, whose son Rev. Bergen Stelle, who married Florence C. Searle, and is now settled in West Virginia; Susan married Isaac M. Runyon, parents of Howard J. Runyon.

Isaac Stelle (son of Deacon Benjamin), was born 1764 died 1809. He married 1788, Margaret Manning (of John and Zeruiah F. R.) and had the following five sons: John, born 1790 married Rachel F. Randolph, parents of Margaret, married Insley Bolce, Jane married Ephraim J. Runyon, Maria married Augustus Stelle. Benjamin, born 1792 married Elizabeth Fitz Randolph, parents of Margaret married John Drake, Daniel married Mary Cory, Mary married A. Dunham Titsworth, Alexander married Fanny Surdam, and Sarah married Walter Dodge. Randolph M., born 1795 married Zeruiah Manning, parents of Eliza, married Elston Marsh. Samuel married Mary Shotwell. By second marriage to Jane Pendleton, one son was born Randolph. Stelle married Clara A. Mathie, parents of Randolph, Percy and Howard.

In another chapter will be recorded the descendants of Capt. John Stelle and Rev. Isaac Stelle the other two sons of Rev. Benjamin Stelle.

Later he removed from New York to this city, residing on Park avenue. About fifteen years ago his oldest daughter died and this almost prostrated him. Soon afterward he retired from active business, finding that he interest to his partner. He never engaged in active business again.

During his residence here Mr. Arens acquired considerable property, including the Benton and William S. Darling tracts, and later the George Beaton property, which adjoins his tract on Rahway road, where he erected a fine dwelling for his own occupancy. Mr. Arens' home occupies a prominent site on the hillside off of Rahway road and has always been greatly admired by residents and visitors to the city. The spacious grounds, too, have always been made attractive with drives, shrubbery and flowers.

Mr. Arens married a Miss Joyce, a native of the South, who was a niece of the late Don Alonzo Cushman, of G. Hagedorn, and one son, Siegfried Arens, of New York. Mrs. Arens, together with one daughter, Mrs. A. Arens, both of this city, survive.

MRS. MARTHA G. SOPER, AGED 72 YRS., IS DEAD

Mrs. Martha G. Soper, of 616 East Second street, died at 11.35 last night after a brief illness. She had resided here for the last decade. Funeral services will be held at the house on Monday morning at 10.30 and the interment will be made at Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Soper was the widow of Thos. W. Soper, who died in 1891. The couple were married at Newburgh, N. Y., in 1852, Mrs. Soper's maiden name being Martha G. Moore. She was a daughter of the late Robert Moore, of Newburgh. Surviving her are three sons: Frederick L. Soper, of this city, with whom she resided; Charles E. Soper, of Worcester, Mass., and Tunis T. Soper, of Providence, R. I.; a brother, Hugh Moore, of Newburgh, N. Y., and a sister, Mrs. George E. Chapman, of Bloomfield, N. J., also survive. Mrs. Soper was a member of the Baptist church at Providence.

ONE VIEW OF THE COLONEL.

Colonel Roosevelt's relation to public affairs in this country is a matter of interest to us all. We can't place him with the sages; he is not a sage, but he is a vigorous, active man. He does not give out advice, warning, admonition. He gives out authoritative statements concerning this human, mundane affair in which we are all involved. He is quite positive in all he says. That is the reason why people of a certain type of thinking accept what he says.

It is also the reason why people of another way of thinking incline to reject even the most obviously sensible things he says. Democracy in America is not a mere phase. It is a fact. To colonel owes whatever power he has through a tacit acceptance of him as a competent American who has devoted himself to affairs of government. To the fact that we accepted him in that capacity and elected him to administer our affairs he owes whatever acceptance he has abroad. On the whole, he has done very well. But he is not a genius; he does not represent any great and fundamental truth; he does not stand for any transcendent cause. We will simply go ahead with our political and other activities as if he were not there if he gets on the wrong side, with his help if he gets on the right side. When we want him we will call for him; when we don't we won't.—Collier's.

WON IN TENTH SESSION

Camden Makes Game Up-Hill Fight and Takes the Ball Home.

McLAUGHLIN FANS SIXTEEN.

Lead of Four Runs in Opening Inning Fades Away at Finish—Local Elks Crippled.

With all his sixteen strikeouts Warry McLaughlin couldn't win his game Thursday. But it was not Warry's fault. He pitched a game that would have been a winner nine times in ten, but at critical points his support wabbled. Six errors tell the story of the sorry fielding and a win must be credited to Camden.

It was pretty tough, too, when everything is taken into account. McNaughton at first was suffering from "charley horse." Woolston was lame and McLaughlin was in poor running shape due to a slight attack of rheumatism. And there you are!

The game went ten innings. With a lead of four runs in the first inning it looked to be a safe bet. But after the third session it was practically one, two, three for the local boys. Another game is coming though and perhaps by next Thursday all hands will be in better physical condition and a different and more enjoyable story may be told.

"Judge" Westcott held the locals well in hand after the first period and he was ably supported throughout the entire game. Woolston replaced Moynihan after the first inning owing to the latter's illness and in the ninth De Mezo took Woolston's place in right garden.

After Craig had been thrown out, McIntosh to Jefferson, in the first, McNaughton singled, Hoyt made a duplicate of McNaughton's hit, and Torpey came along with a two bagger which with Smith's single scored the four runs which looked like a big lead.

Camden came up to the scratch with determination and vigor in the second session and kept up a consistent pounding of the ball until the tenth when they put two runs over the pan and won the game. A detailed account of the game would require at least four columns of solid type and even then there would be a lot left to say. Let it suffice that the locals put up a good game under the circumstances and they will render a better account of themselves later on.

MERCHANTS' BALL GAME

LINKE HAS TWO BAD INNINGS.

Corriell Invincable and Holds Opponents Safe—Game Played for Benefit of Democratic Outing.

With Louis Corriel in the box and the support of a regular league team, the East Front street merchants defeated the West Front streeters in a hard fought nine-inning battle at Wayside Park Thursday afternoon. The score of the contest was 14-6, but there was a whole lot of spirit through the entire nine innings for the locals. The summer series of merchants' games depended on this one battle. Both teams were out for blood, and despite the roughness of the diamond there was some classy baseball played by the two teams.

The East Enders practically won the game in the sixth and seventh innings when Otto Linke went up in the air and the boys in the sunny side of Front street scored all of their runs. Coriell was steady throughout the entire game, and although the West Enders touched him up several times he kept their hits scattered and his team out of danger.

Fuchs did some great receiving work for the East End merchants and he coached the erratic Corriell in great style. George Linke worked behind the batter for the other team. He caught his brother with the ease of a leaguer but that didn't make up for those two bad innings.

After Linke took his trip skyward, Morris Wilson, who has been pitching steady ball for the West End merchants during the season, went into the box and held the opposing team for the remainder of the game, without a hit. Lohrman didn't try his hand at mound work this time, but stayed out in left field like the candy kid that he is. The Luthman boys held down the positions of first and third base with ability and speed, while Wilson on the initial sack for the West Enders, was right up to scratch and scratching hard. Dodge went into left field for the East Front street butchers, bakers, etc., while Lohrman retired to the soft drink counter. Meaney on short stop was there to the disposition on everything that came his way.

Everything that is said about the East Front street players can be said in regard to the West End boys, except that they didn't win the game. But one team had to have that honor and as long as the defeated nine had already had it twice this month and the visitors had only indulged in the same joy once before it is no more than fair and satisfying that the East Front street team should be the honored ones this time.

This is the way that the two teams lined up in batching order. East Front street: Snell, 2b; E. Luthman, 1b.; N. JAMES L. ANTHONY DEAD; AGED SIXTY-SEVEN YEARS

James L. Anthony, aged sixty-seven years, a former well known resident of this city, died on Thursday at his home in Montclair, following a long illness. Mr. Anthony was among the early residents, having resided here about 40 years. He occupied the Reinhardt property on Belvidere avenue, and later removed to the Poillon property at Kensington and Putnam avenues, which he purchased. Mr. Anthony at one time owned one of the finest kennels of dogs in the part of the country.

For many years Mr. Anthony was engaged in business in New York dealing in railroad bonds and other corporate securities. He amassed a large fortune. His first wife died several years ago and he married again. He was the father of James L. Anthony, Jr., who was well known in Plainfield and New York society. Mr. Anthony was a communicant of St. Stephen's church and liberal contributor to the work there.

The Expensive Promoter.

"That man's time is worth $60 a minute," said the mathematician.

"More than that," replied the reckless investor. "He once gave me five minutes of his time when I was looking for advice and it cost me several thousand dollars."—Washington Star.

The remains were brought to the late home at noon today and the announcement of the funeral will be made later.

LITERARY

Few people know that one American woman, Mrs. Margaret W. Young, is President of the United States pro tem. many times a year. She holds a unique position in the government employ which requires her s affix the signature of the President to important papers (land patents) that frequently represent great money value. She is authorized by Congress to do this and has done it now for three years. She signed "Theodore Roosevelt" to over 50,000 land patents, placing under that name her own, thus "per Margaret W. Young." She has signed even a larger number with the name "Wm. H. Taft." Her handwriting is distinctly feminine.—The Christian Herald.

The Red Book Magazine, which may always be relied upon to appear each month with a veritable bale of short fiction as it is possible to secure, seems to outdo even its own record in the September issue, just at hand. The leading story, "Jacques Bernard," by Nevil G. Henshaw, is one of the most powerful narratives of what a human heart can withstand and still live, that we recall ever having read. A story that wives might well read aloud to their husbands is Pearl Wilkins' "A Tonic for Tired Women" Arnold Bennett, author of the widely-read novel, "The Old Wives' Tale," contributes to the same issue "Why th Clock Stopped."

The September Everybody's magazine is noteworthy beyond even its own standard of excellence, in that it contains the initial installment of a new series of articles by Lincoln Steffens. Indeed, in many ways the series may be characterized as the most important that Mr. Steffens himself has ever undertaken, and for the author of "The Shame of the Cities" and "The Struggle for Self-Government," this is saying a good deal. The series carries the novel title "The Exposition of the Foreign Political Power of Organized Business." It is a study of Wall Street along the broadest lines, and promises to be of national significance. "Lassoing Wild Animals in Africa," by Guy H. Scull, is the first detailed account, lavishly illustrated, of the buffalo hunting expedition after lions and rhinoceroses. "Bringing in the Fleece," by G. W. Ogden, is the story of sheep on the commercial side of that extensive western industry.

A happy childhood is an imperative preparation for a happy maturity. The disposition, the acst of mind, the whole life tendencies are fixed in childhood, says Orison Swett Marden, in "Success Magazine." An early habit of cheerfulness—the unfailing habit—has a powerful influence over the mature man and his career. A happy childhood is the best possible protection against illhealth, unhappiness and failure; the best possible protection against the developement of handicapping peculiarities, idiosyncrasies and even insanity. A large percentage of the people in the insane asylum did not have a happy childhood.

From "Hippo Hunting on Lake Nyassa" to "Sport in British Columbia" the September Wide World Magazine covers a tremendous amount of territory in its articles and stories. Charles F. Saunders relates his two weeks' experience among the Navajo Indians; Douglas Carruthers continues his "Adventures in Unknown Arabia," while a second article on "The Ruined Cities of Yucatan" increases one's interest in that mysterious part of the wrold. Henry Hale tells the romantic story of how an American boy became a King. "A Hungerian Village Wedding" contains much to charm the lover of romance and is, moreover, very attractively illustrated.

Many years ago, before the Klondike craze, an unknown young man went to Scribner's Magazine an article which was immediately accepted and published, giving an account of his experiences on a journey through the White Pass to the Youkon. The article was accepted because of its striking quality of adventurous narrative; its author is the now celebrated General Frederick Funston, Scribner's will begin in September a series of papers by General Funston, giving those experiences of his career which were associated with General Gomez, whose chief of artillery he became. The narrative is a unique record of adventure, written with humor and power of graphic delineation.

The difficulteis of teaching astronomy even in its most elementary form, are, perhaps, only known to those who have attempted it. A London assistant schoolmistress stated some time ago that she was now fully convinced "of the inutility of attempting to instel into the minds of nine-year-old girls a knowledge of the more recondite branches of astronomy." She says that, according to instructions, she explained to her class the use and purpose of the zodiac. Some days afterwards as, resumed the astronomy lesson, and in order to test the recollection of the pupils, she asked, "What is the zodiac?" "There aren't none now, ma'am," replied the little girl; "it's bust up." "What's burst up??", asked the teacher, in great surprise. "The sody 'urk," answered the girl "where they made the soda-water, and father's been thrown out of work." Investigation showed that a soda-water manufactory in the neighborhood where the girl lived had been closed through the bursting of a steam pipe, and the pupil had seen in this catastrophe the collapse of the zodiac.—From "The Sailor's Bible" in the September Strand.

"My earliest impressions of the city of my adoption, New York, when I came there as a young bride some years after the war," says Mrs. Burton Harrison in the Woman's Home Companion for September, "was that in many respects it possessed attractions likely to be lost in the rush of improvements which were to make of it the present great metropolis. That has proved to be so, and I make haste to add that I am far from precludine in them certain physical aspects of the town, the paving of its streets, the long rows of dreary brownstone houses, the telegraph poles, omnibuses and horse-cars now happily swept away.

Lippincott's for September is a character'stic and delightful number, maintaining all the excellencies of old-time reputation. The complete novel of "The Mischief of Time," a beguiling story of English social life by Dorothea Deakin, author of "Gesrgie," "Color of Roses," etc. The leading character is a plucky young girl who prides herself on the fact that whatever she has set her heart on a thing, she has always gotten it. She finally embarks on a bigger undertaking than she has ever before attempetd, with a result that it is not quite what she anticipated; yet she said that she was entirely successful. The reader must decide that for himself. The story sparks with the witty dialogue and the amusing situations which have made this writer so popular in former fiction.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED ON MRS. MARY GILES

The case of Bicknell against Giles came up Saturday before City Judge Runyon in the police court and resulted in a suspended sentence for Mrs. Giles. Mrs. John Bicknell, the complainant alleged that Mrs. Giles had used profane and abusive language to her on the afternoon of Sunday, August 7, at which time Mrs. Giles' son was fighting with some neighbors, according to the story, and instead of using the language ascribed to her Mrs. Giles declared that she was only trying to induce her son to come with her home.

Mrs. Bicknell declared while that some unprintable language was used by the defendant and that the only reason for its application was a culmination of an old feud.

Among the witnesses called by F. J. Blatz, counsel for Mrs. Bicknell, were Mrs. L. Miller, of Lake street, the mother of the complainant and several other neighbors. The defendant was amply supplied with witnesses who were called to the stand by S. S. Swackhamer, counsel for Mrs. Giles. After hearing the entire story Judge Runyon advised the litigants to keep away from each other in the future and while finding Mrs. Giles guilty of the offence as charged in the complaint, suspended sentence.

Stayed in Town.

"And how did you spend your month's vacation?"

"Well, I spent the first two weeks trying to look as if I were just going away and the last two weeks trying to look as if I had just gotten back."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

PLAIN MAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Woodrow Wilson Well Fitted For the Governorship.

HE IS A TYPICAL JERSEYMAN.

Grandfather Was a Country Editor and His Father a Country Clergyman—He Demands Equal Opportunity In Education and In Life—His Human Sympathies and Aspirations.

What sort of man is Woodrow Wilson anyhow?

Is he a paragon of austere virtues who never made a mistake and who never will, or is he a mere man who simply averages up well?

We all know that Washington on occasion used a quiet "cuss" word and that Lincoln at a war council pulled off his boot and scratched his heel.

Both Washington and Lincoln had so much love and regard for their fellow men that they adopted largely the habits and demeanor of their fellow men. Their natures forbade their doing anything else. They loved to live the lives of the common people because they loved the common people, and, while in intellect and ideals they were far superior to the average man, yet they were humble, so humble that they affected no outward show of superiority, because each felt that he himself was but one of the people.

Some of those who have tried to tell about Woodrow Wilson now that he is before the people of New Jersey as a probable governor make a picture of him that doesn't give any fair notion of the plain man; with habits of life and sympathies in common with others, uncommon only in his breadth of vision and height of ideal. Such a picture fails to include the human side of the man, and this failure is responsible for many of the false notions that have led some to condemn him when they ought in fact to be his most earnest supporters.

Woodrow Wilson is, first of all, a homeloving Jerseyman. He has been a Jerseyman for twenty years. He has been connected with New Jersey's most famous institution for twenty years. He married a woman whose forefathers had been New Jersey people in Vernon and Bloomfield counties time the first settlement.

Was our [illegible] his life and character and [illegible] being to New Jersey as [illegible] does Princeton university, especially to Trenton or Newark or Camden or Jersey City bosses or as the building [illegible] or profitable fields of mountains or mahogany marshes belong to New Jersey. He is a part of that intensely complex, intensely varied and accordingly progressive community which makes this one of the Union's most unique commonwealths.

Abraham Lincoln is Wilson's ideal American. In one of his books he speaks of Lincoln as "the supreme American of our history" and elsewhere that "Lincoln never ceased to be a common man; that was the source of his strength."

And all along through Wilson's busy life, in all his books, in his work at Princeton, in his daily associations with his neighbors, great and small, in his lectures and in his daily conversation he has shown himself to be in sympathy with the common people. And, like Lincoln and Washington and other great but humble men, he proves it by living a life of simplicity, by living and loving just such a life as the millions of his fellow men are compelled to live.

The common welfare—that is his chief concern, and from his first speeches and writings to his last that theme, that desire, runs like a golden thread through all his utterances.

Here is one of the admirable traits that make him lovable to most men—he sympathizes naturally with the under dog. It is a trait that proves him to be a man with a heart. And the heart goes with him into all his undertakings, is disclosed in all his books and is a large part of his life.

He hates the political massifis that flow fat on special privileges while the masses of the little fellows, the common fellows, are going hungry because deprived of their natural rights.

Woodrow Wilson is a firm and consistent believer in the rights of labor. His sympathies are with the working men, and this statement is made in the face of the recent resolutions in which the state body of organized labor of New Jersey condemned him as unfriendly.

Woodrow Wilson believes that the men who labor in shops and factories have a right to band themselves together to resist the aggressions of organized capital, and it is safe to say that in every contest between capital and labor he instinctively and impulsively takes the side of the under dog.

It is a strange thing that organized labor of New Jersey should condemn such a man. It is a strange thing that organized labor should pass resolutions against such a man without making a single direct effort to ascertain his views on labor questions.

It is a strange thing that organized labor should base such action on one or two mere disconnected scraps from his lectures when his whole life and character constitute a perfect pledge that his innate sympathies are with the men and women who toil, with the men and women who struggle against hardships and courageously strive toward success and progress in spite of burdens and in spite of adversities and discouragements.

Read this incident, absolutely truthful in every detail:

A stonemason who had been working on one of the university buildings at Princeton appeared early one morning at the door of the Wilson residence and asked to see "Mr. Wilson." He was at once shown into Wilson's private room and was greeted as cordially as he had been an honest millionaire come to make a great gift to the university.

The stonemason had a story to tell, and he found no difficulty in telling it to Wilson. It was about a student who had been boarding at the house where he was staying and whom he had been observing for some time. The student was a western boy who was striving to make his way through college. He had to work to support himself while keeping up his studies, and he underwent many hardships and deprived himself of many of the bare necessaries of life in order to support himself in school. Then he studied under a heavy handicap, and when the examinations came he failed.

The stonemason who had witnessed his struggles and his failure was so touched that as he told his story to Wilson the tears rolled down his cheeks.

"Tell him to come up and see me; I want to talk to him," said Wilson.

The sequel came to light months afterward. Wilson laid the student's case before the faculty in such a way that the boy got another chance. The president of the university helped him in his preparations for another try at the examinations, and the youth, his courage and hope renewed, plunged into his studies with determination and a few weeks later passed the examinations with credit.

Similar stories could be told by scores of poor young men who have gone to Princeton. They constitute but a meager illustration of the man's sympathy and kindly regard for the men who struggle against adversity.

Woodrow Wilson is of Scotch-Irish descent.

His grandfather was a country newspaper editor in early Ohio days, who made a success of it. His father made his newspaper so influential that President Jackson offered him a good political job. But Grandfather Wilson was independent as well as influential. He liked his independence better than a soft political snap, and he turned down President Jackson's offer.

Woodrow Wilson's father was a country clergyman in western Pennsylvania and later in Virginia. The recognition of his abilities took him from the parsonage to a chair in a theological seminary.

Woodrow Wilson himself was born in Virginia fifty-three years ago. His boyhood was much like the boyhood of other men. He played his pranks and cut his pesky capers just like other boys. He fought his share of fights, received his share of bloody noses and was spanked and spoiled and scolded and loved just like other boys.

In due time Wilson's father sent him to Princeton. It was written of him years ago that in his student days "he knew every kind of man and every kind of man knew him and liked him." It was also written of him that "he early showed an intolerance of mere bookish knowledge and wanted to understand the workings of man in a mass and individually."

He has these same traits today, just the same as thirty years ago.

Young Wilson became manager of the Princeton football team and editor of the Princetonian.

Well, he was graduated from Princeton, took two or three degrees from other institutions, earned a bit of reputation as a college orator, became an enthusiast on the science of politics, fell in love with a girl and married her, then settled down and wrote a book on "Congressional Government," all before he had reached the age of thirty.

Then he wrote other books, held two or three professorships, one of three years in Bryn Mawr; went to Princeton twenty years ago, gaining steadily in appreciation until eight years ago, when he became president of the university. He has helped to make Princeton one of the most famous institutions in the world, and he still moves on.

MR. FOWLER SPEAKS HERE

BITTERLY ATTACKS LEADERS.

Makes Great Claims for Himself as to His Record in Congress—Tracy in Charge of Meeting.

In his customary eloquent fashion, Charles N. Fowler, candidate for the Republican Congressional nomination in this district, denounced the regular Republican leaders in the nation, State, county and city for somewhat over an hour Thursday at the Plainfield theatre. An audience that did not fill half the house listened attentively to him. Howard C. Tracy, formerly chairman of the New Idea central committee, acted as master of ceremonies while Richard M. Boardman, another New Idea man, occupied the stage as chairman of the meeting.

The representative men of the city were conspicuous by their absence. There was no mayor or other official there to introduce him. Neither was there that representative body of men, lawyers, clergymen and business and professional men generally sitting on the stage as vice presidents of the meeting as there had been in times past when he spoke here.

Republicans and Democrats, some of them from North Plainfield, others avowed supporters of Mr. Fowler's opponent, Judge Runyon, made up the audience which now and then gave cheers.

After Mr. Boardman had taken fifteen minutes to introduce the speaker, Mr. Fowler took the floor. He brought all the powers at his command, and he is one of the ablest stump speakers in this State, to stir up some enthusiasm but the crowd appeared to be more curious than demonstrative. He had a grievance against County Chairman Frank H. Smith and he aired it. Mr. Smith's recent declaration that Mr. Fowler is a "self-centered man" seemed to hurt him; for after referring to it, he launched into the county chairman. Incidently he wanted to know how many of those in the audience Smith carried in his pocket. Equally bitter was his denunciation of the Morris county leader, State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, a former personal and political friend who had rallied to the support of Judge Runyon.

Mr. Fowler also hammered the speaker of the House, Joseph Cannon, and United States Senator Aldrich and let the audience into the secret that long ago he made a vow that he would pursue those two men until he had driven them both out of office. He explained why he wanted revenge on them. The candidate claimed the credit of being one of the first three men in Congress to come out for the gold standard and of being years ahead of his party in principles it now espouses. That he had not been following his party during the sixteen years that he has been at Washington but that the Republican party had been following him was one of his rather amusing declarations. He was glad to see that within the last few weeks, according to him, President Taft had endorsed a tariff revision scheme that he had been advocating for years.

"Twelve hundred years ago, in the time of Honest King John, the world in travail gave birth to liberty. It was a significant thing, as history has proved, but how many of you enjoy that liberty today? You may think that you are best serving your country by holding aloof from some party, thus falling into the error which brings not only chagrin to yourself but defeat to plans for future success. And that is one reason why parties are necessary. For thirteen years I have been working with the Republican party for a downward revision of the tariff and while there have been some changes made are you satisfied that they meet with the approval of your countrymen or yourselves?

"My experience with the legislators, who are supposed to represent you and who ought to carry out your purposes in both the House and the Senate, is that with few exceptions the Republican party is dominated by Cannon and Aldrich. These two men hold the people in the hollow of their hands and control the entire operations of the two houses. The House of Representatives today is the greatest scheme for diabolically stealing in the history of the world. Cannon has made a charnel house of character out of this great body of men.

"My great desire is to live long enough and to have strength enough to drive both Cannon and Aldrich out of public life. Aldrich, who knows nothing of principle, but who is a first-class merchant, as merchants of a certain kind go, is the enemy of the country. I prefer to represent and will stand for the commercial interests of the country against the monetary interests—the trusts.

"When any good man is nominated or proposed for an office, unless Mr. Cannon approves of him, the order goes forth from th's political assassin saying 'defeat him'—and he is defeated. How long do you propose to stand for such tyranny?"

Mr. Fowler paid his respects to County Registrar Frank H. Smith by saying that the weight of his (Mr. Smith's) comment on the Fowler letter may be measured by the source of his inspiration. This source was left to the conjecture of the speaker's hearers. He referred caustically to Daniel Voorhees as swimming in a cesspool of filth. He referred to existing conditions in Washington, introduced a story of feudalism, as practiced in Europe and finally fell back for eloquence and general approval upon Lincoln's Gettysburg speech.

But Mr. Fowler was not content with the few dips into history. He appeared to grow bolder as his story went on and finally announced that Theodore Roosevelt is the greatest insurgent of them all.

Of course. Mr. Fowler was sincere when he declared that President Taft was just beginning to follow the Fowler principle. He said so himself, and when the speech was concluded the applause was not deafening.

DEMOCRATS ON OUTING

Big Crowd Enjoys Sports and Speechmaking at Wayside Park.

"JIM" MARTINE WAS THERE.

Calvin E. Brodhead Among the Others Who Made Speeches—Affair Was a Huge Success.

The West EndDemocratic Club had a great day at Wayside Park, Dunellen, Thursday when a big crowd gathered to join in the fun and to listen to the speeches. The entertainment began in the early part of the afternoon when a baseball game took place between the East and West Front street merchants of this city and the jolly time continued until 2 o'clock this morning. A dancing floor was built in a shady nook in a grove of trees and the young people had a fine time there. The music was furnished by an orchestra from Bound Brook. Japanese lanterns and American flags were tastefully hung about the grove, in which tables and chairs were placed and ice cream and soft drinks served.

During the evening the music was stopped at intervals for some Democratic spellbinders to speak. Among the orators were: H. W. Lord, of New York city; Calvin E. Broadhead, of this city, a candidate for the Assembly; W. H. Beardsley, Jas. E. Martine, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, and W. E. Tuttle, of Westfield, a candidate for Congress.

All the speakers dwelt upon what they considered the exceptional opportunities for the party's success in the impending campaign. They pointed out that when at the polls perfect organization and harmony in the rahks were the essentials. The Republican party was denounced for breach of trust and in the opinion of all the speakers it was time for the people "to turn the rascals out."

Mr. Broadhead, a most worthy candidate for the Assembly, received a great ovation, as did James E. Martine, a perennial candidate for office. Mr. Martine paid a tribute to the Star Spangled Banner, the American Eagle, the Declaration of Independence, and the Constitution. Before he left he predicted victory for the Democratic party.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of: Harry Fuchs, James Prendall, Frank Shattell, P. J. Reville and James McCarthy.

ONLY TWO BIG PARTIES CAN HAVE CHALLENGERS

Charles N. Fowler will have no challengers at the primaries, as it has been decided only members of district boards of election have the right to challenge voters. The members of the election board were chosen by the Republican organization and no recognition was given the Fowler forces. This also cuts off the Progressives, where they have candidates, and the representatives of the minor parties.

The act approved April 15, 1909, provides that the members of the District Board of Elections, divided into two sections according to party connections, shall conduct the primary elections of such party and shall have sole charge of the ballot-boxes of said party. It also shall have the sole right to challenge voters offering to vote the ticket of such party as in the act provided.

It further provides that all members of said district board of registration and elections shall conduct the primary elections in any other political party, the two leading political parties holding the primary elections under this act.

NELSON RAMSEY'S STORY

TELLS OF HIS IMPRESSIONS.

Enlisted on the St. Louis and Spent His Time Abroad Viewing Many Historic and Picturesque Spots.

Nelson Ramsey editor of the Plainfield high school "Oracle" and high school correspondent for The Daily Press, who has just returned from a free trip to England, gives his impressions of it in an interesting way in the following story:

In the early life of every American boy, with few exceptions, comes the longing to go to sea and experience the pleasures of visiting foreign ports and mingling with strange people. In time some of the boys outgrow this, but a great many always retain this desire until opportunity offers itself, and although the chance may be very limited, they have the pleasure of seeing a little of the outside world. After having my application in for nearly six months with but a meager line, I was at last sent for, and, after spending the best part of a day in the company's dock office signing on and going through various forms of red-tape, I was at last enrolled as an Engineer Cadet on the S. S. "St. Louis," bound for Southampton, with intermediate stops at Plymouth and Cherbourg.

We left New York on Saturday morning, and one minute before sailing I was given my duties which I had to carry out, seasick or not, throughout the whole voyage. The six cadets were stationed at different ranges, to keep the temperature in the cold storage below fourteen degrees. I worked six hours on and six hours off; in other words, twelve hours a day. My hours were two to eight. The cadets who were stationed in the engine room proper had shorter hours, their time being four hours on and eight off. I often considered myself lucky to be stationed in such a cool place when the cadets in the engine room had to stand 125 degrees of heat.

Upon being relieved of his watch, each cadet immediately went above, and after washing up had his dinner or supper or whatever meal the time of day called for. The six of us ate in the engineer's mess room and were served with second cabin food; which was as wholesome and good as the average first-class restaurant in this country provides. After dinner we usually retired to our room, which was situated in the stern of the vessel on the third cabin deck. There were tiers of bunks in this room providing places for six cadets to sleep. As soon as we reached our room, we turned into the bunks and slept until the next watch.

To relate the daily routine of the cadets would be very tiring to the reader, as it was for the cadets to carry it out. With an occasional stolen hour on the top deck and the pleasure of hearing the ship's concert, the day drag quite as heavily as it might have, but every cadet was glad when land came in sight.

After spending an hour in Plymouth and Cherbourg harbors to let off a few passengers and the mails, we made for Southampton, and docked there at noon on Sunday. A party of three of us spent the afternoon touring Southampton on top of a tram car and saw many interesting sights. At six o'clock in the evening we took a train for London and after a hard ride in the measly English train arrived in the large city about ten. We spent the next morning in going through Westminster Abbey. On entering it the immense proportions of the place and the solemn statues and tombs of the crown-heads of England struck us with an intense feeling of insignificance. After wandering through the Abbey and Edward the Confessor's Chapel, we wound up at the Poet's Corner, to me the most enjoyable part of the place. Here we saw the tombs of such men as Garrick, Irving, Samuel Johnson and Ben Johnson. We were filled with pride to see the bust of Longfellow occupy a prominent corner there.

In the afternoon we took a boat up the Thames and went through the Tower of London. Here we saw all the armor and crown-jewels. It would take a book to relate the different impressions and pleasures we received in view of us spent the afternoon at the National Art Gallery, Buckingham Palace, Hyde Park and Drury Lane theatre. Many times we stopped to rest by the lions at Trafalgar Square and muse about the wonderful happenings that had taken place in the surrounding city. The English people as a whole made a small impression on us, except for their odd clothes and quaint talk. Our hearts would leap with joy when we saw an American coming down the street, and for a minute we could feast our eyes on clothes that were decently cut and large enough for a human being.

The last two days we had in England we spent in going to Windsor and the surrounding country. There we went all through the famous castle where Queen Victoria spent the better part of her life. We had the good fortune of being there on a day when all the royal apartments were open, and I spent the most enjoyable day of my stay in England in seeing the magnificent furnishings and tapestries and paintings in these apartments. On being shown the room where Victoria received Napoleon, we could almost picture the gracious queen sitting in the gem-set chair with the French ruler before her. Windsor itself is a quaint little town, and the walks and gardens surrounding the castle are magnificent.

Near Windsor is the little station of Slough, from which we took a motor bus to the church at Stoke Pogis, made immortal by Thomas Gray's "Elegy in a County Churchyard." The church is very quaint and dates back to the early fifteenth century. An old grave-digger showed us the yard, for a penny, pointed out the yew-tree under which Gray sat when he wrote. The graves around the church are very old and many inscriptions are too worn to be read.

Tired out, but happy, we reached the ship the night before it left, and once on the ocean our thoughts turned towards home. The passage back was pretty rough, and although I escaped seasickness, I witnessed much suffering around me. It seemed a funny thing that some of the crew who have been on the boat a long time were sick. The last two days before we reached home, the time began to drag heavily, and there were never happier boys in the world than we when the Statue of Liberty loomed up in view.

Thus ends my trip to England in three weeks, also my once-strong desire to see the world before I could afford to pay my own passage across. The next time I go I will have a first-class ticket in my pocket and want to be surrounded by friends. Even then I will bear in mind how the poor men are working below to make the passage possible.

years and is well known throughout Somerset county, having lived within its limits since he was six years old.

BIG BLAZE AT OAK TREE

Barn, Saw Mill and Outbuildings of John V. Ten Eyck Destroyed by Fire.

TOTAL LOSS ABOUT $25,000.

Fire is Believed to be the Work of an Incendiary—Several Cows All That was Rescued From Conflagration.

The large barn, a saw mill, and all the outbuildings, together with contents, located about one mile below Oak Tree on the road to Woodbridge, and owned by John V. TenEyck, were destroyed by fire between 3 and 4 o'clock last Friday, aggregating a loss of between $20,000 and $25,000. The fire is believed to be of incendiary origin, and owing to the fact that there is no adequate water supply in the vicinity, it was impossible to save anything but a few cows which were kept in an extreme end of the barn, far from where the blaze started. It is not known whether the buildings and contents were covered by insurance.

The [illegible] was first discovered by Mr. TenEyck's son, Tice TenEyck, who lives a short distance from his father, and he gave the alarm and fought hopelessly to save the contents of the building. The blaze illuminated the sky and could be seen for many miles around.

The loss outside that to the buildings included four valuable horses, a large automobile, all the wagons, a two-horse load of produce all ready for market, together with machinery, farming implements, forty tons of hay and a great quantity of straw, harness and numerous other things usually found about a farm. As stated, the cows, which were kept in one end of the barn, were the only things rescued. The saw mill, a large one, and one of the best in all the latest improvements, was a total loss.

As soon as the TenEyck family was aroused, the neighbors were summoned in the hope that something might be saved, but all worked to no purpose. It was discovered that the mill was located at one end of the barn, which is one of the largest in this part of the State, and had spread rapidly to the hay loft before the family was aware of the catastrophe. Mr. TenEyck feels sure that the fire was the work of an incendiary, although he has not the slightest idea. When the barn was closed last night everything was left all right. Mr. TenEyck is frequently hiring and discharging men, and it is the opinion of some that perhaps one of the discharged men had something to do with the conflagration.

Klaw & Erlanger will produce "Miss Dudelsack" in November. It is the operatic success of Berlin and Vienna. The book is by Fritz Grunbaum and Heine Reichert, with music by Rudolph Nelson.

Klaw & Erlanger will star Nat Goodwin in a comedy by George Broadhurst called "The Captain." Its scenes are laid in Manila. Mr. Goodwin's role is that of a financial soldier of fortune.

Klaw & Erlanger will inaugurate the fall season at the New Amsterdam theatre in New York with "Madame Sherry," with Lina Abarbanell and Ralph Herz heading the cast. This musical farce ran all spring and summer in Chicago.

Thomas W. Ryley is holding rehearsals of "The Storm," by Langdon McCormick. He has engaged Robert T. Haines and Conway Tearle to play the leading roles. The play opens in Washington in September.

Fuller Mellish, who is now appearing as the amusing professor in "The Brass Bottle," has the distinction of being the only living American player that has appeared with each of the great triumvirate of actors—Booth, Irving and Mansfield. Although he has played with each from five to ten years, he says it is impossible for him to decide even now, which he would consider the greatest, as accomplished was each in his particular style of acting.

A. E. Matthews, the English comedian, whose acting last week in "Love Among the Lions" caused him to be hailed as a second Charles Hawtrey, has come to an agreement with Charles Frohman whereby he will act in this country for five years. This announcement was a great surprise to his English friends, as they had looked upon this engagement—his first—in Winchell Smith's new comedy as an opportunity to visit this country.

At Wallack's theatre, after two months well-earned rest, H. B. Warner in "Alias Jimmy Valentine," once more applies his sensitive fingers to the task of expounding the bank safe that defines so conspicuously in the last act of Paul Armstrong's successful drama. "Alias Jimmy Valentine" was first produced at Wallack's early last January, and was still playing to crowded houses when its managers, Lieber & Co., were in the temporary stop to its run in June. Mr. Armstrong's play had no difficulty in resuming its old-time popularity at once after the commencement of its second New York year, and Mr. Warner and his company are housed at Wallack's for some months to come. The original company remains practically unchanged. In order that the players might once more strike their gait, the company had a week's engagement at Atlantic City prior to the Wallack's re-opening.

SOMERVILLE.

At a meeting of the Somerville Firemen's Relief Association the following delegates were elected to the annual meeting of the State Association, which will be held at Atlantic City on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 20 and 21: Walter H. Gernert, George V. Vanderveer and John A. Maxwell, the latter two being members of the State organization.

A Chapter in Stelle History

By O. B. LEONARD

CHAPTER II.

Of the three sons of Rev. Benjamin Stelle, the outline genealogy of his oldest, Deacon Benjamin, born 1713, was recently given. The following sketch will record the descendants of his second son, Captain John Stelle, born Feb. 7, 1716, died at New Brunswick, N. J., Jan. 30, 1755. The N. Y. Gazette, Feb. 10, '55, thus makes public reference to him: "John Stelle, Esq., was a man of bright genius and superior knowledge in civil and religious affairs. He filled several stations in life which he discharged to general satisfaction."

He was town clerk for ten years, 1740-50, and a public testimonial is extant that he was one of the first good penman and correct speller." During this period he was justice of the peace, and very frequently a land surveyor for many pioneers. His title of "Captain" was derived from his management of a sailing vessel.

By marriage license dated June 16, 1739, it is learned that Rachel Thompson, born 1723, became his wife. They were parents of the five following-named children: Charity, Experience, Phebe, Thomas and Lewis Stelle, the last dying when eighteen years of age.

(1) Charity Stelle's birth is given in 1742 and her marriage to John Langstaff about 1760. Their children were Lewis, Rachel, Mary, Sarah, James, Ogden, John, Stelle and Henry.

(2) Experience Stelle was born 1744 and married, 1758, Justin Dunn (son of Benjamin). They had a large family of twelve children, viz.: Isaac, Silas, Alexander, Mary, Lewis, Mary, James, Rachel, Ambrose, Simeon, Olive and Hugh.

(3) Phebe Stelle, the youngest child of Captain John, had her birth in 1752, and in 1773 she married John Fitz Randolph (son of Joseph and Esther). She died April 21, 1818, and her husband died May 6, 1826. They had the following eight children: Rachel, Joseph, James, Thompson, John, Stelle, Lewis S., and Jacob Fitz Randolph.

(4) Thomas Stelle of the oldest son of Captain John, was born in Middlesex county, N. J., in 1746, and in 1765-6 married Sally Langstaff. He was a prominent and efficient officer in secular and religious affairs; captain in Middlesex Militia. His military record was composed of duty in the town and county from 1771-1813, the year of his death. For his loyalty to the cause of Independence, the British plundered him of property to the amount of several thousand pounds. He was made Commissioner for the apprehension of traitors, he was captured by the enemy, though soon afterward released on exchange for red-coat prisoners. He had four daughters and two sons, as follows: (1) Charity, married David Harris; had Lewis and Stella; (2) Sally, married Peter Dayton; had Thompson and Sarah; (3) Rachel, married Dr. Samuel Swan; (4) Experience, married Mr. Van Winkle; had one granddaughter married John Inman, the artist; Lewis D. Stelle, the oldest child of Capt. Thompson Stelle, was born 1764, married Margaret Taylor, had Gertrude, Ann Amelia and James.

The last and most distinguished son of Captain Thompson Stelle was James Stelle, born 1768-70. His childhood was passed in the county of his birth (Middlesex), and at a time of great peril and unrest. The British army was quartered in New Brunswick, and scouting parties were constantly devastating the farming region, in 1776 and '77. His observation of military maneuverings from boyhood developed a spirit that dominated his life. Upon reaching manhood he decided in favor of a soldier's occupation. October 1, 1798, he was commissioned by President John Adams captain in the United States Artillery and Infantry. 2d Regiment. Capt. James Stelle being unsettled in his location and not reporting for duty, went Southwest shortly to the Franco-Spanish Territory of Louisiana. On the second of April, 1802, he was appointed by President Jefferson to take rank under date of first commission. After 1803 that extensive region was purchased by our government and became part of the United States. Here in the Mississipi Valley, far away from the place of his birth and among people of a different speech and nationality, he married in 1805 Mrs. Margaret C. Watts (born 1775, Mar. 23), widow of Don Manuel Gayuso de Samas, Brigadier-General and Governor of the Spanish Colony at Natchez until 1797 and afterwards Governor of Louisiana. The bride of the young artillery officer was the daughter of Stephen Watts, whose father and grandfather had been Baptist ministers in Pennsylvania, but at this date were living along the Mississippi River. During the year of his marriage Captain Stelle resigned his commission in the U. S. service to travel. For a time he was in Cuba, but always lived thereafter in Southern latitudes. His whereabouts were unknown to his former relatives and even his mother, widow of Thompson Stelle, Esq., made no mention of him in her last will, dated and probated in 1837 and filed in the New York Surrogate's office. (Wills '76, p. 476.) She styles herself "Sarah Stelle, of New York, formerly of New Jersey." She was probably living with her Langstaff family relatives, dying at an advanced age of over 80 years.

The children of Captain James Stelle and wife, Margaret C. Gayoso, nee Watts, were six in number: James, Frances A., Caroline, Lewis, Edward and Sarah. The three sons died in young manhood and unmarried so that the Stelle name passed out of history in the captain's family. Their respective births and deaths were as follows: James, born 1807, January 4, died 1833, February 18—Lewis, born, 1813, January 9, died 1830 in July. Edward, born 1815, March 9, died 1850, September 27. The daughters all married and had families.

(1) Frances Ashton Stelle, of Captain James, was born June 22, 1809, married Nov. 25, 1824; Joshua Baker, graduate of West Point, Military Academy and subsequently Governor of the State of Louisiana. Their children were: (1) Anthony Wayne Baker, born 1826, married Emma Fusilier had Joshua and Christine; (2) Margaret Cyrilla Baker, born 1828, married 1847, J. F. Van Bergen, had Anthony B., Frances A., John P., Katharine W., Caroline S., Maria L., William S. Thompson S.; (3) Caroline L. Baker, born 1830, married William A. Bisland, had Calvin, Margaret, Jane, Baker.

Caroline Stelle, of Capt. James, was born March 13, 1813, married John Brownson March 13, 1828. Their ten children were: (1) Elizabeth Brownson, born 1829, married 1850, David Ker, had Caroline S., Mary B., Elizabeth, Katherine, Frances A., Margaret, William, Sarah, David and John B.; (2) James Brownson, born 1830, married 1864, Harriet Eliza Williams had Howell, Coleman, Caroline S., Mary B., Robert W., James S., Jr., Abbie L. (3) John Brownson, born 1832, married Sarah Brownson, had Anthony, John, Mary, Margaret, Edward, Alfred, Lewis, Laclere, James. (4) Frances A. Brownson, born, 1833, married 1852, John R. Bisland had Mary, Edward S., Caroline S., John R., Jr., Ashton, William A., Leonora, Frances A.; (5) Caroline Brownson, born 1838, married 1860, Dr. J. A. Gillmore, had Caroline, Margaret Frances A., Mary B., Lewis A., Gertrude A. (6) Margaret C. Brownson, born 1838, married 1858, Thos. S. Bisland had Mary Louise, Thos. P., Elizabeth K., Estelle, Margaret, Presly Lenox. (7) Mary Brownson, born, 1842, married 1871, R. W. Haw had Sarah L., Celestine W., John James. (10) Lewis A. Brownson, born 1850.

Sarah Stelle, youngest daughter Captain James and Margaret C. Watts Gayuso, was born October 20, 1817, married April 25, 1838, Abner Pride, their family children were: (1) Edward Pride, born 1829. (2) Caroline Pride, born 1841, married William Bisland, had Ralph A. Louise, Leonora, Sarah, William. (3) Frances E. (4) Anthony. (5) James S., (6) Lewis A., (7) Harriet.

TRAVELING SUITS.

Holiday outfits are under consideration by those yet to go away. Coats and skirts of serge, waterproof wraps, the smart but practical jersey knitted coat naturally suggest themselves as being more suitable for holiday outfits adapted to some places than summer muslins, lawns and zephyrs.

The short skirts now worn are excellently suited to traveling requirements, and the belted style of coat which still prevails is a convenient and tasteful fashion. The little close-fitting toques and bonnets of straw, draped with veils of rainproof tulle, are comfortable for traveling, as they permit the wearer to rest her head against the back of the seat.

Cotton crepes and crepons are delightful materials for the traveling skirt, as they are dainty and pretty, and the absence of starch contributes to the comfort of the wearer. The turndown collars now so generally worn are also ideal traveling wear. The uncompromising high collars of stiff linen shows every speck of dust and every smut, but the dainty little strip of tucked and embroidered linen looks quite fresh at the end of a long journey.

Shantung can be made to resist the rain, and is a perfect holiday wrap, but a smartly made serge or cloth coat in navy blue or gray is a desirable acquisition.

Packing is fortunately no longer the ordeal it was in the days before resourceful inventors began to rescue with patent tray trunks and hat trunks. Many women, by the way, will make the unpleasant discovery that this season's hats decline to go into hat boxes of a couple of years ago. Hat trunks large enough to take the big hats of the period, however, can be bought.

DR. BARIGHT TO LEAVE PLAINFIELD, OCT 1.

Dr. Herbert Edwin Baright, specialist in nervous diseases at 726 Watchung avenue, who during the past few years has resided in this city and has been engaged in practice both here and New York, has accepted a most advantageous offer to become physician in charge of the Strong Sanitarium at Saratoga Springs, New York. He will assume his position on October 1, next.

Dr. Baright has many friends in social and medical circles in this city and will be missed.

The minority party took advantage of an interpretation of the election law, given by Attorney General Wilson, permitting them to file some petitions on Sept. 3.

THEATRE SEASON PLANS

ment of Earl Brugess in repertoir plays. Recently, she played with great success at the Alhambra, Milwaukee, and in Minneapolis. She is a grand-niece of Robert E. Lee, and is naturally proud of the fact. She has won her way to the top through hard, consistent work. A feature of her work is found in the gowns she wears, some of them costing $1,000 easily.

Miss Eleanor Woodruff, who has the reputation of being the youngest second woman, comes from Towanda, Pa. She has been a prominent member of the Orpheum Stock Company, of Philadiphia, and has played with Robert Hilliard, Thomas Jefferson, William Faversham, and has supported Cousse. She has played all kinds of parts, and has appeard in "The Two Orphans," "As You Like It," "The Rose of the Rancho," "The Middleman," "The Palace of the King," "Rosedale," "Clothes," "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," and other productions. She has also played character song parts and has much ability as a singer and dancer. Her last work was in taking the leading part in "Just Out of College," presentd at the Broad Street theatre, Philadelphia. She is always accompanied by her mother, as chaperone.

Miss Laurie Davidson, who is the character woman of the company, is a relative of Walter N. Lawrence, who produced the play, "The Three of Us." She has appeared with James K. Hackett and Virginia Harned, and under the maangement of Henry Savage. She played the opposite part to Harry Berrestord in "My Friend from Below," and has appeared in many of the musical successes, including "The Sultan of Zulu." Miss Davidson's home is in New York and she comes of a family noted for its achievements in the theatrical profession.

Frank Woodruff, who will take an important part in the forthcoming productions, can almost be called a Plainfield woman. She has been living in this city this summer, where she has made a host of friends. Her first appearance here will be in "St. Elmo."

Harold Mead, who will be the leading man, is an Englishman by birth, but has a farm on Staten Island. For five years he was under the management of Dan Malasco, appearing in "The Music Master," and "The Grand Army Man." He also appeared with Miss Langtry in light comedy leads, and later with Marie Tempest.

Frederick J. Speare, whose home is in Philadelphia, another member of the company, has also appeared with Sothern and Marlow, and was a member of the Orpheum Stock Company, of Philadelphia and the Coniss & Rivards Stock Company, of Wilmington, Del.

James J. Frawley, a cousin of the famous "Dan" Frawley, of The Spendthrift Company, has been assigned to comedy parts. He has appeared in many of the Cohan & Harris productions and also in vaudeville.

John A. Robb, who hails from Providence, R. I., has been assigned the character parts. He was formerly with the Stock Company, of Providence, and more recently appeared with Elsie Janis in her latest successes. He has a fine, well-trained voice.

John Dougherty, who plays the heavy parts, hails from Bolliver, N. Y., and one of his claims to distinction is that he is a brother to "Pat" Dougherty, the well-known baseball player. He has appeared in "Faust," "The Parish Priest," "Credit Lorraine." During the past season he has played in the west with considerable success with the Dougherty Brothers' Stock Company.

The box-office for the sale of seats for the forthcoming productions will be on sale tomorrow morning. Under the management of Proctor & Sanderson, the following will comprise the staff at The Plainfield theatre: Harry Brunnell, manager; John Tucker, superintendent; Geo. Pitt, treasurer; Warren F. Hill, stage director; William Vrookm, stage carpenter. Albert Operti the well-known scenic artist is now engaged in painting the scenery for the local productions. Women ushers will be introduced at the theatre and from Monday everything will be in readiness for the initial performance.

HERE AND THERE.

Parisians in their zeal to do away with the hobble skirt are trying to make themselves believe that they were not responsible for its existence. They are calmly blaming America for it. In fact a wave of virtuous indignation has spread over the entire city against "this ridiculous and exotic style," since the skirt recently claimed two more victims, who broke their legs trying to get out of taxicabs when their gowns were too tight to allow of their making their necessary step.

It is not putting the case too strongly to say that Paris is horrified that women can wear such skirts. Says the manager of the Maison Laferriere: "The hobble skirt cannot continue to exist. It is not worn among really smart women, only by those who wish to appear conspicuous in the street. It came to us from across the Atlantic."

The director of the Maison Rouff also declared in an interview that "American women tried to accustom Paris to this fantastic style of skirt which they tried, but they have not succeedd except very temporarily. Now it is considered distinctly provincial and common."

That word provincial from an authority practically settles the matter. It is the word the Parisian dreads most of all and if the hobble skirt is designated in this way its doom is sealed.

Rev. John Y. Brock, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, who accompanied by his brother, Rev. Albertus Brock, of Newark, has been enjoying his vacation at the home of his mother in Grand Rapids, Mich., has the pleasure of being there this week, when "Old Home Week" is being celebrated on an elaborate scale. Monday was reunion day, yesterday was old settlers' day, today, civic day, tomorrow will be fraternal and Grand Rapids day, and Friday, historical, allegorical and phantasmagorical day. In advertising the big affair, the committee in charge adopted novel methods. It scattered broadcast among former residents and friends of the city, mimeographed "back to the city" cards with a bar of music and bearing the words: "Don't forget to come back home—August 22-27, Grand Rapids, Mich.," and buttons, bearing the words: "Beat it to Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 22-27, 1910." Literature setting forth the many attractions of Grand Rapids also accompanied the souvenirs. William H. Olmsted, of 331 Watchung avenue, was among those who received a program of the affair together with the souvenirs.

The royal commission appointed by the Italian government to inquire into the causes and practicable edies for juvenile crime in Italy has recommended the adoption of legislation similar to that recently passed in Great Britain for the suppression of smoking among children.

It is proposed to forbid boys and girls under 16 to smoke or carry smoking materials, while persons supplying young people with tobacco would be liable to a fine of $100. Parents and guardians permitting infraction of these charges would also be liable to prosecution.

The commission further urges that teachers, employers, the police and government inspectors should be empowered to confiscate smoking materials found on children under age in schools, workshops or public places. The success of the new legislation in England is apparent, smoking in public by children having been effectually suppressed.

Another attempt at practical socialism has come to grief, this time in Poland.

Two or three years ago, owing to pressure from the socialists, workingmen began to run factories and mills on their own account. Better pay, shorter hours and a fair share of profits were to result from the new schemes.

One by one these enterprises failed. Not only did they suffer from insufficient capital but quite as much from quarrels among the men, who would not submit to orders from those of their own class. The latest example is that of a small glass manufactory in Czentochowa.

About eighty men were employed, but after a while it was found impossible to give customers the credit they demanded. A general meeting was called, but only a few rubles were added to the capital. What money could be raised was soon swallowed up, and the most recent creditor has now put the factory up for sale by auction.

These failures have done much to discredit the socialists among the working classes, as the agitators promised them the profits from all the larger factories and mills as soon as co-operation became general.

A. S. HERR'S AUTO SKIDDED AND STRUCK POLE.

While coming up West Front street Sunday afternoon in his little "Maxwell" runabout, A. S. Herr had a narrow escape from serious injury when his machine skidded on the slippery pavement and crashed into a telegraph pole. As it fortunately happened, the automobile was going at a very slow speed and the only damage done was a broken rear wheel.

PRIMARIES CHALLENGERS

County Board of Elections Decide Upon Interpretation of the Law.

DISREGARD STATE ATTORNEY.

There Will Be No Agents For the Congressional Delegates at the Primaries in Union County.

In view of the conflicting opinions given by the Attorney General's office and County Attorney Mann, of Essex, as to the interpretation of the election laws regarding the right to challengers, the Union County Board of Elections, at a meeting at the court house, in Elizabeth, Tuesday discussed the matter at some length. The members finally came to the conclusion that for the primary election, the respective county chairmen are entitled to name two challengers for each district, that candidates to be voted for throughout the county are likewise entitled to two challengers, and the delegates to conventions, when names appear on the tickets, are only entitled to challenge in their own right as candidates.

According to the interpretation of the law by Chairman McAdams, and Commissioners Cowing, Stewart, Morrow and Zior, his colleagues, the opinion that each man whose name is on the ticket is entitled to either one or two challengers is erroneous for such was not the intention of the framers of the primary law passed in 1907, which law governs in which right was given by a provision of the general election law enacted in 1898.

The provision of the law, paragraph 280, section 25, upon which the county board relies for this interpretation follows:

"The chairman of the county committee of each political party in each county of the State may appoint two agents for each election district in his county; such agents shall be the authorized agents and challengers of their respective parties at the primary elections held under this act, and shall be at liberty to challenge the right of any person to vote thereat; the appointment of agents may be made in writing under the hand of the respective county chairman, and shall specify the names and residences of the agents, and the election districts for which they are severally appointed; such appointment papers shall be filed with the respective boards of election in the districts named therein as evidence of the authority of such agents to be present in the polling places said agents may be present inside the railed enclosure while the votes cast at the primaries in Great Britain for the suppression of smoking among children.

It is proposed to forbid boys and girls under 16 to smoke or carry smoking materials, while persons supplying young people with tobacco would be liable to a fine of $100. Parents and guardians permitting infraction of these charges would also be liable to prosecution.

The commission further urges that teachers, employers, the police and government inspectors should be empowered to confiscate smoking materials found on children under age in schools, workshops or public places. The success of the new legislation in England is apparent, smoking in public by children having been effectually suppressed.

GOT $29 FROM MANN'S CASH REGISTER.

While he and his family were soundly sleeping at an early hour Tuesday, thieves broke into the grocery store of Bernard Mann, at No. 120 West Fourth street, removing a pane of glass and forcing the rear door without awakening Mr. Mann's family who live above the store.

The cash register was removed from behind the counter to the yard in the rear of the store and broken open. Twentynine dollars in silver and some pennies were taken, and the money box left in sections. The police are making an investigation.

OLD FASHIONED GOSPEL

Sermon by Rev. Dr. G. W. Nicholson on Sunday Evening.

"WHAT'S THE USE". THEME.

Declaration of Connecticut Divine on Sunday Throws Light on Common Interpretation of Uncommon Subject.

A vigorous and inspiriting old-time sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. G. W. Nicholson of Bridgeport, Conn., at the union service in the First Baptist church Sunday night. He gave one of his remarkably clear and concise interpretations of the Gospel of John and declared that "What's the Use" is an oft repeated expression and is due to show to the world that your personal case is hopeless. But he said that God never intended to convey to the human mind that anyone should believe that temporary discouragement was anything to build on. "I cannot conceive," he said, "of any mystery as to the recognition of our friends hereafter, when the comforting words of the Gospel according to John are thoroughly understood."

Dr. Nicholson said it was just human when a proposition of any kind is made to a business man for him to ask "How much is there in it for me?" But there are so many things that money cannot buy. Wealth, honor and popularity may be yours, but all these cannot ameliorate the pang of grief for lost ones. Jesus' mission in this world was to give what no money could buy, a life everlasting.

"Was it not strange that these fishermen would listen to the advice of a person they had failed to recognize? Jesus was not a fisherman, yet the disciples on the boat did not hesitate to follow the advice of the Carpenter. And look at the result—more fish than their nets could hold were taken. And that means the same to us. If we will but take His word we shall come into possession of a priceless treasure, the gift of eternal life."

Dr. Nicholson declared that "every place where sin was found ought to be a pulpit occupied by an honest teacher. Every man can become a messenger of the Gospel if he will only accept his opportunities. Any place was good enough for the Saviour, so why is this work in His word was to save souls, educate and enlighten mankind and everyone of us ought to be doing the same every day."

"There is a social element in every human soul which should be developed. I don't mean cards and other amusements, but the social character which craves companionship and love. With this element properly fostered and strengthened our churches would have to be enlarged to hold the crowds. It has been made too easy for gaining membership in the church today, but let me say that there is nothing to be gained by compromising—the old way was best and the old fashioned religion the kind that sticks."

Owing to the rain the congregation was not large, but those present were thanked by Dr. Nicholson for attending.

Clifford A. Braider presided at the organ and George W. Smith, the regular tenor of the Baptist church, acted as prescentor.

USE OF PLEATINGS.

Pleatings in two or three rows will be used to edge the skirts this fall. The old-fashioned knife pleating, varying from one-half inch to two inches, is the kind referred to, and the fullness of the other days will not be evident. In other words, these pleated ruffles will be adjusted flat without any other gathering, and allowed to hang in straight lines, preserving a slender silhouette.

Pleatings of colored net are used to edge little modified revers and collars. They are excellent to outline cuffs and tiny yokes. Black and white pleatings or maline or net are combined, the lower frills slightly wider than the top.

Pleatings are just the finish of transparent color that summer dresses need. When satin or velvet are too heavy, and the material of a frock undesirable, a pleating of mousseline de sole, net, tulle or crisp maline is just the touch that any home dressmaker can give. It will frequently raise a garment in the decorative scale making it reminiscent of the French gown in the addition of the little lines of color for which imported gowns are noted.

So look at the seemingly finished frock. Try a pleated frill of net. You cannot realize what a change it will make.

In millinery, too, the pleated nets and laces are used as facings for lingerie hats. They give a softening that adds to the youthfulness of the wearer's appearance. This season laurels and pleatings are almost inseparable. This is why your modistic attention is called to them today.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 4, 1910.

Topic.—Christ our Saviour.—John iii, 5-21. (Consecration meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman R. Hoyle, D. D.

The word "salvation" is one of the most precious words in the human language. Our word salvation comes from the Latin salvare, which means to save, to keep, to preserve, and other similar expressions.

The field for the possibilities of salvation is a broad one. In many ways and under many forms human life, the human soul, material prosperity and even nations may be saved. No matter in what form the salvation may take place, it is always appreciated by men. Let a fireman climb a ladder and save a mother and child and he becomes a hero. Let a ship be saved at sea by the deed of a heroic captain, by the action of the wireless telegrapher who stands at his post at the risk of his life, and the world hails them as saviors and crowns them as heroes.

The world's recognized supreme Saviour is the Lord Jesus Christ—Christ, our Saviour! This lies in the fact that Christ came to save and does save the souls of men. Moreover, the value of Christ as our Saviour is immensely increased by the fact that in no other way than through Him is salvation possible. No angel, however high his estate in heaven; no man, no matter how powerful or how great or how exalted a position he may occupy in life, has any power to save the soul. "No man," said Christ Himself, "can come to the Father but by Me," and of Him the Apostle Peter said, "Neither is there salvation in any other, for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved." Jesus, our Saviour, is our only Saviour, and we should lead us to appreciate His salvation, for, since He alone could save us, if He had not done so we would have no opportunity of being saved. Increased gratitude is due our Saviour because only by His death could He save us, and that He might save us He died on the cross in our stead. Taking our sins upon Him, He ascended the cross and paid the penalty of them by dying in our stead. He also lived a perfect, sinless life, which, by faith in Him, is imputed to us, and we also are counted righteous by God. Made righteous by His righteousness and our sins atoned for by His death we are saved, provided we have accepted the conditions of faith in Christ, for it is by faith in Him that we have everlasting life. Christ is our Saviour because only by His death could He save us, and that He might save us He died on the cross in our stead. Taking our sins upon Him, He ascended the cross and paid the penalty of them by dying in our stead. He also lived a perfect, sinless life, which, by faith in Him, is imputed to us, and we also are counted righteous by God. Made righteous by His righteousness and our sins atoned for by His death we are saved, provided we have accepted the conditions of faith in Christ, for it is by faith in Him that we have everlasting life. For God sent not His Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world, through Him, might be saved." The love of God was the inspiration of man's salvation, and as His love is worldwide so is the salvation that He offers to the world. It is not universal in the sense that all will be saved, but rather that it is to be offered to all and possesses the power to save all. But all do not want to be saved, and those are considered as they believeth in Him is not condemned, but he that believeth not on Him is condemned already." Christ came to bring light into the world. He is "the Light of the World." But some prefer darkness to light because their deeds are evil. Such have no hope while in that condition of being saved.

Christ, our Saviour, offers a free salvation. It is "without money and without price." In this world we pay for all we get, but in the eternal life of the soul, is free. How inexcusable, therefore, if we do not accept it and are eternally condemned! The responsibility rests upon us.

Christian Endeavor's Power in China.

In the spring of 1909, says the Central China Christian, some delegates from the society in Chuchow went with flying banners to the Nanking Christian Endeavor convention. Here they learned that only four societies were known to their province, and they determined that they would wipe out that blot. They started at home. They opened a branch in the hospital and called it the Young Men's Christian Endeavor. Meetings were held nightly for patients and neighbors. Soon the soothsayers got the fever and started a branch in the school. They opened with tea, sweetmeats, etc. When they began one boy was a Christian. Now ten are followers of the Master. Every one carries a pocket Testament and reads it every day. Then the church in Chuchow held a convention, and an afternoon was given to Christian Endeavor. When the audience flocked to the church ushers met them and welcomed with a Christian Endeavor badge in two colors. Then speakers told about the movement, how it started, what it is for and how it is organized in out stations. A call for the names of those who would join the society of love were started in their home station brought a response from forty-three visiting delegates. This showed visiting pastors what they might do with Christian Endeavor. To clinch the impression, to each one present was given a bag of nuts and fruit. On the inside of the bag was sewed a strip on which was printed: "You have eaten the fruit of Christian Endeavor. Now go forth and bear fruit yourself." And that is exactly what they will do.

Gross earnings of the twenty-five leading railways for last January amounted in round figures to $37,300,000. There has been no month since last February in which the earnings of these roads fell so low as $40,000,000 and the figure for July is $42,000,000. As the highest month's earnings of these roads in the buoyant year 1909 was a little less than $48,000,000, there is room for argument in these figures that general trade conditions cannot yet be considered very bad. There is a constant tendency to spend more for transportation.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for September.

In the September number of Scribner's Magazine Theodore Roosevelt tells of the rarest and, from his standpoint, of the best, the most interesting of his hunting experiences in Africa. The so-called "White" rhino, which has the square nose of the hippopotamus and a hump on its shoulders like the sacred cow, is found in the Belgian Lado along the Nile, where Mr. Roosevelt was permitted to hunt by the Belgian Government. This strange rhino used to be found in South Africa, but it has practically disappeared, and Mr. Roosevelt's account of it in its remaining stronghold, the Lado, is a record of great value. With courage and persistence Kermit was able to make a series of photographs of the living rhino such as has never been equalled. The article contains some wonderful descriptions of the journey down the Nile.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT FOR THE LOCAL CHAMPIONSHIP

A championship tennis tournament will be held on the Truell Hall courts, Saturday Sunday and Labor Day. The tournament will consist of men's singles and doubles and ladies' singles. The interest in tennis has been keen among the residents of the Netherwood section this summer, and a tournament for the championship of the vicinity has been the result of the summer's enthusiasm. The finals will be run off on Labor Day, together with all the matches which are not finished on the preceding days.

In the first round of the men's singles the following matches have been scheduled to be played: Gott vs. McCormick; Metcalf vs. Dwight; Dunn vs. Blanchard; Uhler vs. J. VanDeventer; Kelley vs. Street; Meeker vs. Pittinger; Letcher vs. Marrow; Hunter vs. L. VanDeventer; B. Letcher vs. Hall.

In the ladies' singles the matches will be between Miss Crulkshank vs. Miss Bigney; Miss Letcher vs. Miss Smith; Miss Hall vs. Miss Metcalf.

The men's doubles will be paired off as follows: E. A. Letcher and B. Letcher vs. Uhler and L. VanDeventer; Hunter and Partner vs. J. VanDeventer and Daniel; Dwight and Kelly vs. Gott and McCormick; Hall and Larned vs. Street and Metcalf.

18 CANDIDATES PASSED UNDERTAKERS' TEST

The State Board of Undertakers and Embalmers met yesterday in the office of John P. Martin, the secretary of the board, in Elizabeth, to examine the papers of twenty-six candidates who recently took the examination to become undertakers at the Court House in Camden. Out of the twenty-six the following eighteen successfully passed: A. Allison Kruse, Vineland; Jacob Vonk, Passaic; Eugene J. Mullin, Perth Amboy; Oscar R. Benn, Salem; George W. Kephart, Philadelphia; Lee S. Hagemann, Philadelphia; Sylvio Perrazo, Woodbury; Clarence Carson, Collingswood; Thomas J. Carroll, Coshohocken, Pa.; J. C. VanMater, Easton, Pa.; W. G. Taylor, Wildwood Crest; W. W. Carpenter, Pearl River, N. Y.; George B. Horner, Stockton; Charles Shurtleff, Philadelphia, and Walter H. Ashton, of Reigelsville, Pa.

The State Board is comprised of five members appointed by the Governor, and as the term of office of Raymond S. Taylor, of Camden, expired the 14th and that death of William J. Allen, of Jersey City, on August 14, the following three members of the board were present: W. Nelson Knapp, of East Orange, president; John F. Martin, of Elizabeth, secretary, and Bernhard F. Schroeder, of Camden.

Governor Fort has not appointed the other two members yet, but it is probable that he will, within the next few days. Those spoken of as being most favorable are John V. Hubbard, of New Brunswick, and George H. Poulson, of Trenton.

The annual meeting of the board will be held at the Coleman House in Asbury Park, on September 6, which will be just prior to the State convention of the New Jersey State Funeral Directors, which will convene at the same place on September 7 to 9.

VOTING MACHINES TO SCRAP HEAP.

Another violent push was given voting machines by voters of East Orange yesterday when citizens of the Third district, Third ward, and the Fourth district Fifth ward, consigned to oblivion the devices. In the Fifth ward district only five voters wanted to keep the machines from the scrap heap, while forty citizens voted for the other way.

The other district gave 37 votes against the machine and 11 in its favor. Little interest was taken in the question of sending the machines away as it was generally agreed they were not desirable.

The Fifth ward machine had seen in its brief history some vigorous protests from voters and in the early days of the machine aged men declined to monkey with the contrivance, and had vowed never to vote again until it was removed. These men will have their first chance in years at the coming election to cast ballots.

WESTFIELD.

In order to enable every property owner in Westfield to know their valuations, the Council proposes to have the tax duplicate printed and circulated among the taxpayers. The financial statement of the town is issued in pamphlet form every year, but the publication is not for sale, it is a new idea, and is in a measure the result of the agitation of last year over alleged unequal assessments.

The wedding of Miss Ethel Fish, of Garwood, and John Nolan, of Springfield, took place last Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fish, Fourth avenue, Garwood.

HOW UNCLE SAMUEL TAKES JAIL CENSUS

Many persons have, no doubt, wondered just how Uncle Sam takes the census of the jails and penal institutions in the country. The method is very simple and yet the work is carefully done. It takes the entire year to collect the necessary data. The census in the county jail here has not yet been completed and if the same system is being followed out generally, the taking of this part of the census will not be finished until January 1.

At the beginning of the year the warden of the local institution got his instructions. Blank cards were sent to him. He was told that at the end of each month cards were to be made out, one for each prisoner committed during the month. The cards are complete in every detail. A record of each man, woman or juvenile offender committed during the month is placed on the card and it is sent to the Census Bureau.

The name of the prisoner, nationality of parents, place of birth of the prisoner, his or her religion, whether he or she can read or write, and the occupation is all carefully noted. The date of the arrival at the institution, the term to be served and the amount of the fine imposed if one was imposed, is all a part of this record.

The exact hour of the discharge of a prisoner must also be given by the warden if a prisoner is discharged during the month. Each month the cards are sent to Washington. Within a few days the names of prisoners committed to or discharged from the county jail during the month of August will be sent to the Census Bureau.

New Rubber Industry Here.

The Standard Tire Vulcanizing Company, of Madison avenue, has started a new phase of industry in this city in the rubber business. The company is making pure sheet rubber in its plant on Madison avenue from solid blocks of crude gum. A piece of rubber, only one-sixteenth of an inch in thickness, and of almost any practical size, is being made from crude gum, which comes from Africa in chunks several inches thick. The process is a secret one, but the industry is a new and novel one in this city. The sheet rubber is utilized in the patching of rubber coats, football bladders, and such delicate material. An idea of the economy of this substance can be obtained from the retail price of sheet rubber about six inches square, which sells for $2.50. And rubber is still going up in value.

FADS AND FASHIONS.

For street wear there is a growing fashion for the severe frocks of striped linen.

Furze wood, maple and bamboo seem to be the favorite woods for parasol handles this season.

Hand-painted scarfs, ribbons and dress stuffs as well as parasols, are decidedly smart.

White kid gloves are stitched in colors to match the frock. Lavenders and pinks are especially favored.

A new kind of embroidered stocking shows eyelets in vine design, and solid embroidery is also much in evidence.

Capachons for the evening are of Mouseline de soie sheered and trimmed with rosettes of old gold or silver tissue.

A Persian belt adds a smart touch to the frock of black or old and dark blue serge, and natural colored linen or pongee.

Even foulard parasols are veiled with plain colored chiffon with effects that are just as good as those secured in gowns.

Puffs are very fashionable in one form or another. In kid, suede and patent leather. The stiff pump bow is seen, and the string bow also.

Very smart, indeed, are the all-linen hats in most picturesque shapes. They are usually trimmed with loops or bows of soft ribbon.

Silver is used more and more as a setting for precious and semi-precious stones, whether in rings, pendants, pins, bracelets or buckles.

The pulley belt is among the new belts. It is made of elastic, finished at each end with a covered ring and fastened with a ribbon bow.

Chantecler gloves have come to match the Chantecler handkerchief. A tiny rooster or a golden pheasant is embroidered at the elbow.

Trimmings of baby Irish, valenciennes, cluny and white oriental lace are all lavishly used on the midsummer frocks of linguerie, mousseline de soie, and fine linens.

Chiffon cloth waists in colors, as well as white, are as smart as any separate blouses seen this summer. Pompadour silk is frequently used for lining these filmy fabrics.

The new parasols from Paris are nearly all fringed. Handles all show the effect of the new overworked Chantecler craze. Nearly every one displays a cock or a golden pheasant.

"I saw 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' played recently."

"So?"

"I think I'll read the book."

"You may be disappointed. The book mentions only one little Eva and one Lawyer Marks."—Louisville Courier Journal.

WOMAN'S IDEAL HOME

Showing How the Comet Was a Blessing After All.

By A. B. SEARLE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Fellows," said Ned Griggs as they were packing up to leave the university at the close of their college course, "I have a proposition to make. My cousin Loretta Butler"—

"The pretty one you were gallivanting around with on class day?" interrupted Fred Mason.

"The same. She's gone out with a lot of girls and old maids to establish a new woman's institution of some sort. They call it the Woman's Ideal home. The object is to establish a propaganda for the amelioration of the condition of women"—

"Woman's rights, votes for women, equal pay for women with men and all that?" asked Clarence Hughes.

"Exactly. They won't have a man on the premises. Now, I propose that we investigate the Woman's Ideal home. What do you say?"

"That invited we stay, forbidden we go."

"Don't you fool yourself about getting in easily," said Griggs. "We'll have to effect an entrance by strategy."

After a conference the young men decided to write a letter to the president of the Woman's Ideal home ostensibly from one of several women desiring to establish a similar institution requesting permission for a committee to inspect the home and look into the constitution and bylaws. As soon as the young men were established in a camp which they had prepared for their summer outing the letter was written, and in due time a reply was received inviting the committee to the Woman's Ideal home.

There were but three out of a dozen young men of sufficiently delicate and youthful appearance to warrant their attempting to personate women. These were Ned Griggs, Fred Mason and Clarence Hughes.

"Ladies," said the president of the home in receiving them, "I welcome you to our institution in the hope that you may duplicate it, and others may duplicate yours till our land is full of such homes for women."

"Mrs. President," replied Mr. Griggs, "it will be our object to duplicate the work you are doing."

The president designated three elderly maiden ladies to show the visitors the institution. Mason and Hughes were so disgusted at the selection of the guides that they came near giving away the party by their stifled grunts and grimaces. However, the three old maids and the three visitors sallied forth on the tour. At the end of ten minutes there were three old maids and two visitors. One of the visitors had lagged behind and couldn't be found. At the end of twenty minutes there were still three guides, but another visitor was missing. The inspectors seemed to be melting away like John Brown's little Indians in the nursery rhyme. Just half an hour after the start the three elderly guides stood alone together wondering what they were there for.

The first visitor to drop off was Ned Griggs. How Miss Butler had recognized him. Shocked at his presence in the home and fearing the consequences for him if detected, she had beckoned him to drop behind with a view to getting him out as soon as possible. The second dropper out, Mason, had taken a desperate fancy to a black eyed girl the party had passed on their tour and concluded to get what information he desired about the home from her rather than the regularly appointed guides. Hughes, finding himself deserted, told his conductors that he feared something had happened to his two associate committee women and he had better go and look for them. Coming upon a blue eyed, flaxen haired girl, he begged her to assist him in his search.

The president was looking over the proofs of an article detailing the objects of the home when the three guides entered. The president looked up and, seeing the ladies alone, was astonished.

"Where are the ladies you had in charge?" she asked.

"Don't know," said one of the guides.

"Don't know! What do you mean?"

"One after the other they disappeared."

"Good gracious!"

Stepping to a bell button, she pushed five times, which meant that every woman in the institution should report in person immediately at the president's office. In a twinkling old, middle aged and young ladies came pouring into the room. When there seemed to be no more to come the president ordered:

"Call the roll."

The roll was called. The A's were all present, but when the B's were reached Miss Butler (Loretta) was absent. Among the F's Miss Fairchild (Dora) failed to respond. A third ominous silence occurred when Miss Waterman (Helen) was called upon to answer.

"Ladies," said the president sternly, "there was something unusual in the appearance of the three visitors that made me hesitate to show them our institution. It is evident from their nonappearance upon the sounding of the alarm that they are somewhere in the building, and the nonappearance of Misses Butler, Fairchild and Waterman, three of the prettiest girls in our home, means that these visitors are—yes, ladies, we may be sure that they are men!"

"Heavens!" exclaimed a hundred voices, and 200 hands were clasped over another hundred bosoms.

"You ladies were appointed to show these—these intruders the premises. Go at once and make a search for them. Bring them and the three missing girls here. All others remain where you are."

Meanwhile there was a concentration of the enemy's forces. The three visitors and the three missing young ladies were in a room together, and the girls knew that the visitors were men who had walked into a lion's or rather a lioness's den. Miss Butler was terror stricken on behalf of her cousin, and the other two girls sympathized with her and them. The girls were startled at the sound of the signal order for all to appear in the president's office. Miss Butler, seeing that open battle was on, took command. Two points of retreat were to be considered, the cellar and the cupola. She chose the latter.

"You girls," she said to Misses Fairchild and Waterman, "go and report. Leave these men to me."

"It would not be honorable," said Miss Fairchild, "to let you shoulder the matter. I shall go with you."

"Me, too," said Miss Waterman, her excitement getting the better of her grammar.

The six of them ran up to the cupola and closed the trapdoor behind them. Then they all sat down on the door, screened from any one below by the encircling railing and seat.

Halley are often won or lost in consequence of some trifling incident, and it was so in this case. One of the searchers whose part it was to visit the cupola attempted to open the trapdoor. Since she could not move it, she naturally thought it was locked. She was about to go for the key when it occurred to her that if it were locked no one could hide there, so she reported "nothing found."

When the search committee returned to the president and reported that not only the three visitors, but the three prettiest girls in the home, had vanished a hundred voices mingled, each voice suggesting some means whereby the nonappearance might be accounted for. In this way much time was consumed, and a couple of hours had elapsed before any further action was taken.

"Night or Blucher," as Wellington said at Waterloo," moaned Griggs.

"What do you mean by that?" asked Hughes.

"I mean that if we don't get a show to leave the place pretty soon under cover of darkness it's all up with us."

Fortunately while he spoke the shadows were deepening. As soon as it was dark he told the others that he was going to slide down a steep descent of the roof to a lightning rod and thence to the ground. If he was not put out of the fight, then the next man was to leave by the same route. The ground told him the rod had been in place for thirty years or more and surely would not hold. But Griggs determined to try it. Hughes watched him as he descended till he was lost in the darkness. Presently there was the report of a shake on the rod, a signal agreed upon to indicate that he was on terra firma.

Hughes followed Griggs, and Mason followed Hughes. The girls were alone.

Now, it needs to be stated that all this occurred at the time when Halley's comet was flaunting its tail at the earth in the western sky. No sooner had the last man descended than Miss Butler, looking up at the heavens for inspiration in forming a plan to get out of the dilemma, saw the comet.

"Girls, I have it," she exclaimed.

"How? What? Which?" cried the other two at once.

"Open the trap and call down for them to come up and see the comet."

"The very thing!" exclaimed the other two.

Miss Fairchild pulled up the trap, and all called out:

"Hello, hello! Mary, Blanche, Sadie, everybody! Come up and see the comet."

The ladies, who were scattered about below, all ran to the foot of the cupola stairs.

"Call Mrs. President!" cried Miss Wrinkles, vice president and custodian.

The president was called. Meanwhile the calls from above were continued.

"Oh, do everybody come up and see the comet! It's beautiful. The tails are as long as a broom handle."

"Young ladies," cried the stern voice of the president, "come down and give an account of yourselves!"

The girls descended, each wearing a well feigned look of innocent surprise.

"How long have you been up there?" asked the president.

"We went up this afternoon," said Miss Butler, "with our work. It was so cool up there. Then when it began to get dark we concluded we'd stay till the comet grew visible."

"Indeed! Where were you when the signal bell rang?"

"What signal bell?"

"To report at my office."

"Was there a signal bell to report at your office?"

"There was. Now I wish you to tell me what has become of the three visitors who came here this afternoon."

"What three visitors?"

The president, seeing that she was baffled, gave in, and when the girls turned upon her for her unjust suspicions she apologized and gave orders that the disagreeable episode should not be again mentioned.

That night the visitors told the story of their adventures beside the campfire.

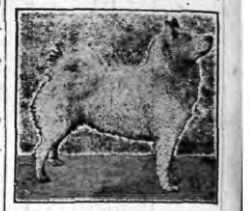
THE FASHIONABLE DOG.

Samoyede Canine Pets Are "It" This Summer.



THE LATEST FAVORITE OF FASHION.

The Samoyede dog is the latest comer in canine pets for fashionable favor. This dog is a sort of four footed Admirable Crichton. He can do anything you ask of him—that is, anything within canine powers—and he can do it very well. He comes from the northeast of Russia, and, although new as a smart pet, he is the oldest domesticated dog in the world.

He is an ideal dog for children—intelligent, quick to learn tricks, good tempered and gentle, intensely affectionate, faithful and invariably well behaved. In short, he is a perfect four footed gentleman.

The Samoyede does splendidly harnessed singly or in pairs to a child's geeart. He takes to harness naturally, is untiring and strong and, to use a horsy expression, "quite without vice."

Apart from these excellent traits of character, the Samoyede dog's appearance is distinctly "fetching." In the puppy stage he is a fascinating little creature with soft, fluffy white coat, for all the world like a Teddy bear. As he grows older he passes through the usual leggy state and at about a year old develops into a most aristocratic looking animal, very handsome and attractive, with long white fur standing straight out from the body, each hair having the icelike glisten peculiar to the breed.

Standing nearly as tall as a collie, ears pricked, eyes expressive, tail a spreading plume not rolling tightly like a chow—the striking appearance and elegant carriage of the Samoyede attract attention wherever he goes.

A Vacation Pest.

The most delightfully planned outing in the woods may be ruined by that vacation pest—the mosquito.

Some persons poison so dreadfully life is a torment, and there is always danger of malaria from the bites.

If you are especially poisoned by mosquitoes, arrange to go where they are not. Don't go in for camping or frequent resorts that are subject to them.

If you will go, take with you preventives in the form of mosquito nets, lump camphor and citronella.

In extreme cases there are head nets that can be bought for a dollar. They are made of fine black bobbinet that will stand rain and washing. There is a circular cloth piece above the net over hat and a yoke shaped piece at bottom fitted to the shoulders and tied under the arm.

For night use it is possible to buy frames and mosquito bars to fit folding camp cots.

The Beetle Watch.

Oddities in jewelry are constantly to be found, and the latest fad is the beetle watch that is worn on the end of a neck chain or a long piece of half inch black moire ribbon.

A slight pressure on the end of the wings and the wings open and show the face of the watch.

An Outing Precaution.

Never go into the woods or out of the way places without being supplied with remedies in case of an emergency. Always take a hot water bottle and a medicine kit, stocked with such simple home remedies as you are accustomed to use.

In addition, there should be whisky, bandages, absorbent cotton, adhesive plasters, quinine, mustard and belladonna plasters and some colic tablets. An ointment to allay stings or itching

WRECKED HIS GARDEN

Romeo's Tomato Plants Pulled Up and His Apartments Flooded.

ALLEGED VICTIM OF SPITE.

Mrs. Catharine Becker Fined $10 For Alleged Malicious Acts—Repetition Means Jail Sentence.

"No, sir, I am not a relation of that man! How could I be? I am a Jew and he's an Italian."

Gertrude Kleinman, a witness in the case brought against Mrs. Catharine Becker in the city court, this morning, showed her disinterestedness in the case by propounding the question above to Counsellor J. Henry Crane, when he, representing Tony Romeo, the Italian complainant, tried to discover whether there was any collusion between witnesses.

The complaint made against Mrs. Becker by Romeo, who, by the way, appeared without Juliet, was that Mrs. Becker had torn up and destroyed tomato and other plants in the back yard of the residence at 236 East Fourth street on the morning of Saturday, August 12, besides drenching his apartments with water and destroying mail matter delivered on that day. Romeo is Mrs. Becker's tenant.

Miss Kleinman declared that she had seen the woman at work in the garden pulling up the tomato vines and had also seen her throw the contents of a pail over the floor of Romeo's apartments three times. Miss Kleinman's story was of that positive nature which convinces, and after hearing Mrs. Becker in her own behalf Judge Runyon fined her $10. The judge added the information for the benefit of Mrs. Becker that another similar offense would entail a jail sentence without fine.

Mrs. Becker said on the stand that she had pulled up some of the Italian's vegetables and that she did it to get square for something that had happened before. She declared that Romeo had been in the habit of selling beer at the house where they both live and that in so doing he had brought the opprobrium of the neighbors on her house. Romeo said that the only beer he ever had in the house was that bought for his own consumption, and that it was his opinion that Mrs. Becker was either crazy or drunk when she made such reckless assertions against him. The court evidently agreed with the hero of Shakespeare's comedy and imposed the sentence above noted. Mrs. Becker was represented by Francis J. Blatz.

NEW CANCELLING DEVICE FOR LOCAL POSTOFFICE

Postmaster Elias H. Bird was notified today by the postal authorities at Washington that his request for a new cancelling machine had been granted and that it would be shipped to him by express from New York at once. The new machine, which is called the "Pijer", and is said to be the latest device in the world, is capable of stamping from 35,000 to 55,000 pieces of mail an hour.

The machine is so constructed that the man who operates it is only required to fill the "hoppen", start it going, and it requires no further attention. Only one impression is placed upon a letter and that in the upper right-hand corner, where the stamp is supposed to be affixed. No matter how long the letter, it will only receive one impression. Another notable improvement is that every piece of mail going through the machine is counted up to 10,000,000, when the register has to be reset.

The machine is the invention of Hey & Dolphin, and is handled by the International Postal Supply Co., of 150 Nassau street, New York, from which place the machine for this office will come. Postmaster Bird is congratulating himself on securing this machine, for this will be one of the few offices of its size to have one. Newark has two and Jersey City and Trenton each have one.

After a lingering illness, Mrs. John A. Serrell, of Myrtle avenue, died at her home this morning at 4 o'clock. Mrs. Serrell had been an invalid since last February but it was expected that she was on the road to recovery until two weeks ago when a turn for the worse occurred.

Mrs. Serrell had been a resident of the borough for over five years and had made a host of friends in both North Plainfield and this city. She was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and of the Daughters of the Cross, City Union of King's Daughters. JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

INDEBTED TO MARTINE.

James E. Martine, familiarly known throughout New Jersey as "The Farmer Orator" is a credit to the Democracy. With him the mere matter of winning has never been particularly important. He fights for principle and fights hard, and he is perfectly willing to be personally sacrificed, if the principle for which he gives battle is thereby advanced. He has thrown all his heart and energy just now into the United States Senatorial contest in order that the New Jersey Democracy shall not be put in the ridiculous position of having no candidate at the primaries.

The Democracy has for years been adopting platforms favoring the direct primary and the Democrats in the Legislature have been loudly shouting for just such a law. In view of these things it would indeed be sad to have the party go to the primaries without a candidate.

And, inasmuch as he was given the complimentary vote of the Legislature, Senator Briggs was chosen, and came within an ace of being named for Governor three years ago, perhaps Martine will surprise some of the political wiseacres at the primaries. He has the courage of his convictions, as is evidenced by his platform.

Governor Stokes in closing his appeal for Republican support the other day declared that every Jerseyman "has a right to expect his United States Senator to be a part of the public and civic life and to be able to speak for New Jersey in legislative halls and upon public occasion in any part of the land that her rights may be upheld and her merits proclaimed equally with those of her sister commonwealths." Is there any New Jersey Democrat that would excel Martine in these requirements?

The candidacy of Martine may produce others. It is to be hoped that it will. It may be that some of the others will out-distance him in the primary contest. But come what may, the party is indebted to "The Farmer Orator" for saving its face at this critical juncture.—Trenton Times.

"It's all very well," said Grouch, "to talk about forgiving your enemies, but it's not easy to do."

"You're right," replied Dubley, "we shouldn't be required to forgive our enemies except when they freely admit that they don't deserve our forgiveness."—The Catholic Standard and Times.

BOTTLE OR BALLOT RULE

Question Propounded by Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer.

WHICH IS THE BIGGER TYRANT?

Hailed as Next Governor of the State By Grangers—Some Terse Arguments in His Speech.

That mighty and ever consistent champion of local option, S. S. Swackhamer addressed a large assembly of Democrats at Flemington last night, on his favorite topic. Frequent outbursts of applauding approval marked Mr. Swackhamer's utterances, especially at the end of his speech, when he declared that a sad experience teaches the people to dare to do their duty regardless of consequences. The speech in part follows:

A big question mark like a ham hock stands up in the path of the Democratic party on its way to Trenton on the 15th of September.

The question is this:

Is the bottle better than the ballot?

This question has been put to the Republican party and that party has answered the question in the affirmative, in solemn, deliberate, legislative terms. That party is therefore committed to a denial of the right of the elective franchise on the license question.

Thirty-six months ago, while the Republican Legislature was repudiating this right to vote, the English Parliament was passing, by an overwhelming majority, the following resolution:

"Resolved, That this House notes with satisfaction the successful working of the local option laws in the colonies, and approves the principle on which these laws are based, namely: that the people ought to possess the power through a vote of the local electors to protect themselves against the admitted evils of the liquor traffic."

Which then is the bigger tyrant, the King of England or the Republican boss?

Which could sing with sweeter accents and better grace, "My Country 'Tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty?" Which is the "land of the free and the home of the brave," land whose symbol is the Union Jack, or the land whose symbol is the Stars and Stripes?

It is the conviction of Democrats that, with mallet and chisel, Vox Populi; Vox Dei, should be chipped from the face of our capitol and let into the front of the British House of Parliament.

It's a pretty bold, insolent and defiant political combination that refuses to let the taxpayers vote on a question so vital and important to their interests and that puts the will and vote of the few above the will and wishes of the many.

In Montclair some time ago, it was threatened that an additional license would be granted there, and that two licenses would be renewed, in spite of the claim that the places were conducted in open violation of the law.

A petition was secured, signed by 1,250 citizens protesting against the granting of any additional license.

A day for a hearing before the Council was set, and a hall rented. The people presented their petition and arguments. The liquor dealers presented a petition signed by 100 citizens.

The Council took the matter under advisement and the next morning the people found that the new license had been granted and the other two had been renewed.

That is what the Republican machine calls government of the people, by the people and for the people, and that is what it calls protection to the home-maker and justice to the taxpayer, made to bow down by the crushing weight of his taxes, piled up by the same political monster.

It is the conviction of Democrats that the people and not the Council should grant or deny a liquor license, and that the will and wishes of 1,250 citizens should prevail as against the will and wishes of 100 citizens, and not the will and wishes of 100 as against the will and wishes of 1,250.

Do you think there is a disinterested Democrat or Republican in New Jersey who will gainsay the proposition that a citizen of New Jersey should have the right to vote?

42 States of the American Union, a political party has marched to certain victory by opening the ballot box which had been locked by a political boss, and now the people in 43 States, are allowed to vote on the license question; that is, they are free; but in three States of the American Union, and New Jersey is one, the saloon, backed by the political boss and ring set the people at defiance and deny the right to vote.

In 1871, Bill Tweed answered the indignation of the outraged people of New York with the cool, terse, tantalising question; "As long as I count the votes, what are you going to do about it, see?" It was thought by Samuel J. Tilden that that question should be answered and it was answered.

To defy the people illegally or legally is in bad political taste.

In Pennsylvania, Judges Umbel and Van Sweringen, one a Democrat and the other a Republican, recently held the Fayette county license court.

Two booze politicians applied for a license in the beautiful village of Perrypolis, where no license had existed for thirty years.

The case was heard by the court and the license was granted.

If the fair local option bill had been made a law the people of Perrypolis could have protected themselves against such a monstrous outrage.

In Pennsylvania, one of the three slave States, the people have at last rebelled, and have said to the criminally corrupt Republican machine and to the criminally corrupt Democratic machine, which have both been and have gone over to the enemies of free government, and we will commit our political rights to an independent party," and the Keystone party is a concrete illustration of the fact that there is a political point beyond which forbearance ceases to be a virtue.

If the Democratic party in Pennsylvania had done its duty and declared for the right of home rule on the liquor question, it would have drawn to its standard all the Republican voters who will now vote with the Keystone party, but it resisted the right and the people projected a new party into the political arena.

The assessor draws on the taxpayer and the collector calls on the taxpayer for the money to build the poorhouse, the asylum and the prison, and the courts promptly fills them with its victims; then the assessor draws on the taxpayer and the collector calls on the taxpayer for the money to feed and clothe these victims; yet when the people object and claim the right to vote whether the victim-maker shall continue to impose this charge on the taxpayer or stop his victim-making trade, the Republican boss steps into the Republican legislature and the victim making trade goes on.

It is the conviction of Democrats that this is injustice; that this is despotism.

I would not slight or slur a single right of the people. As Democrats, we should stand for, and boldly demand the restoration of all popular rights. But, I put black letter emphasis on the right of majority rule from which all else proceeds. When there are mercenary men in this State who would pass it by with averted look, and because you have given that principle political immorality in a glorious and memorable victory with your distinguished son and Senator, William G. Shanard, as the conquering captain of your cause.

That victory was an inspiration to the Democratic party of New Jersey, from Sussex to Cape May, and demonstrated the political power of a principle of justice and right in an appeal to the patriotism and conscience of the people.

Three years ago Hon. John Franklin Fort declared from the stump that he would rather go down in defeat upholding a principle of right than to win by the sacrifice of such a principle; and he told the voters not to support him unless they wanted the enforcement of the Bishops' law, for if he were elected Governor of New Jersey, that law would be enforced. With that significant challenge ringing in its political ears, and piled on every hand by the questionings of the pulpit and the press as to its purpose, touching the preservation of the American Sabbath, the Democratic party stood mute and non-committal till the last half of the eleventh hour, and that silence brought its defeat.

We expect to teach us that we must dare to do our duty if we would win.

At the conclusion of his speech Mr. Swackhamer was hailed as the reform candidate for Governor by the four thousand people present. Mr. Swackhamer declared that he was not, but with a more enthusiastic endorsement of his views on the local option question.

The president of the meeting stated that he had never heard a more powerful and courageous declaration of the great principles of democracy, and that he will ask Mr. Swackhamer as candidate for Governor he believed the people's great fight for the right of majority rule would be won. The suggestion was received with long continued cheering.

Quite Oft.

Quite oft I walk about the town—
Indeed, I never ride;
I have an innate pride,
A kind of natural crown,
Which makes me feel that I
Must pass the luxury by
Of riding at my ease while those
My letters, possibly—who knows?—
Must walk. And so I walk,
And as I walk I think,
Perhaps I even talk,
and say I'm on the blink,
Or by the living Jar
I'd own a big red car
And ride in it and run the walkers down
And say
What right had they
To clutter up My way!
Quite oft I walk about the town.

GOLDEN EAGLES TO MEET

Twenty-seventh Annual Session of State Castle at Trenton.

H. J. MARTIN WILL PRESIDE.

Plainfielder at Head of Order Will Have New Honors Thrust Upon Him—Some Interesting Reports.

The twenty-seventh annual session of the Grand Castle of New Jersey, Knights of the Golden Eagle, will convene in K. G. E. Hall, Trenton, Monday morning, September 5, at 11 o'clock. Grand Chief Horace J. Martin, of this city, will preside, and indications are that it will be a two-days' session. Since the fire last winter, which burned out the hall of Mercer Castle, No. 22, in which the Grand Castle will meet, it has been beautifully rebuilt, and is now said to be one of the finest possessed by any castle of the order in the country.

The annual session of the Grand Castle promises to be of greater interest than any that has been held for a number of years past, by reason of keen contests for several desirable offices.

The customary five years' occupancy of the chairs of grand high priest and grand keeper of exchequer expires this year, and there are numerous applicants for these posts. The position of grand high priest is vacant at present, because of the recent death of Adam Q. Bloom, of this city, who died while rounding out his fifth year. The retiring grand keeper of exchequer is Halstead Wainright, of Farmingdale, a veteran of the order. Five years' service in these chairs entitles the occupants to the honors of past grand chief and membership in the supreme castle, which makes them eagerly sought.

There will, as usual, be no opposition in the promotion of the present "line officers." Grand Chief Martin will become Junior Past Grand Chief and will be elected as New Jersey's official representative to the annual session of the Supreme Castle of the United States. Grand Vice Chief Martin L. Ferris, of Asbury Park, will be advanced to the post of Grand Chief and Grand Sir Herald Peter L. Alberse, of Paterson, to the post of Grand Vice Chief.

For the succession to Mr. Alberse as Grand Sir Herald, which is regarded as the first of the promotive offices, there will also be several candidates. South Jersey claims if should come that way this year, but Princeton and other centres in the central and upper parts of the State are said to have formidable candidates.

A. L. Clark, of Trenton, the efficient Grand Master of Records, will doubtless be re-elected unanimously. The jurisdiction claims that no Grand Castle in the United States has his superior in the secretary's office. Mr. Clark is the designer of the official degree robes and some other paraphernalia of the order and the rank of Past Supreme Chief has been conferred upon him by the Supreme Castle for his great services to the order.

The new Supreme Master of Records of the order, John B. Treibler, of Baltimore, who succeeds the lamented Albert C. Lyttle, of Philadelphia, has promised to be in attendance at the session and it is probable that he will come commissioned by the Supreme Chief, Dr. E. F. Lake, of Denver, Col., to install the new officers of the Grand Castle.

Statistics compiled by Grand Master of Records Clark for the year ending June 30, last, show that there are seventy castles of Knights of the Golden Eagle in New Jersey, with a total membership of 7,671, which is a gain of just seven sir knights over the preceding year. There were 514 candidates initiated during the year, 35 received on withdrawal cards and 63 reinstated, a total of 612, but this gain was nearly offset by the suspensions, 494; deaths, 71, and the withdrawals.

Receipts—From initiations, cards, etc., $1,997.60; from dues and fines, $58,184.38; from investments, etc., $21,355.75; total, $81,537.73.

Expenditures—Sick benefits, $21,299.92; death benefits, $5,839.31; donations, $401.35; total relief, $26,540.58. In addition to this $33,890.02 was paid out for sundry other purposes and $16,183.43 invested, making a total expenditure for the year of $78,814.03.

The castle's total fund June 30 was $125,685.47, showing an increase for the year of the goodly sum of $8,118.57.

The Grand Castle finances show the following figures:

Balance on hand at last report, $330.36, receipts for the year, $2,644.22; total receipts, $2,174.58. The expenses were $2,949.98, leaving a balance in the Grand Castle treasury of $224.60, in addition to which there is $590.79 in the emergency fund.

A matter often discussed upon the floor of the Grand Castle will come up again in the form of a project to amend the constitution as to time and place of meeting. The proposed amendment reads: "There shall be one stated session of this Grand Castle held each year, during the first week in September, at such place and on such day as shall be ordered by the Grand Castle at the preceding regular session."

The project has been frequently defeated in the past, the Grand body adhering to Trenton, Labor Day at 11 o'clock, as the most suitable place and time and refusing to accede to the proposal to "jump over the State."

The Grand Temple of Ladies of the Golden Eagles will meet in Trenton at the same time, occupying another room in the Ribsam building. This organization is said to have had a prosperous year.

The Supreme Castle of the United States will convene in Scranton, Pa., on Tuesday, October 11, next. Supreme Chief Lake has reappointed P. S. C. William B. Kirby, of Bridgeton, official press reporter for the session.

TOBIAS W. NOLAN WEDS MISS MARY W. M'CARTHY

Miss Mary A. McCarthy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin McCarthy, of Manson place, and Tobias W. Nolan, of 634 East Third street, were married at St. Mary's church at 12 o'clock today in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends of the couple. Rev. Father Hogan, assistant pastor of the church, performed the ceremony.

The bride was attended by Miss Blanche Skinner, of this city, as bridesmaid, while Joseph McCarthy, a brother of the bride, was best man. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a wedding luncheon was served. The bride, who is well known here, is popular in a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

PIONEER MERCHANT DEAD

James M. Dunn, a Well-known Retired Groceryman, Has Passed Away.

PASSED FOUR SCORE YEARS.

Engaged in Business in Early '70s on Park Avenue, near North—He is Survived by Two Daughters.

James M. Dunn one of the pioneer merchants of the city, died at 11 Saturday morning, at his home on East Fifth street. He had been in feeble health for some time, but his death was not expected. He was about 80 years old.

Mr. Dunn lived here practically all of his life, being one of the first to engage in the grocery business in the early '70s. His store was on Park avenue, where Mrs. L. J. Denton now conducts a florist business. When Mr. Dunn decided to retire from active business he sold his grocery to Gardiner & Vail, who continued there until the property was sold to make room for the erection of the Stirling building.

Mr. Dunn was a member of the First Baptist church for more than forty years and was always a regular attendant at the services. He never held public office and never took any active part in politics. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him and was a devout Christian. His wife died several years ago.

Mr. Dunn is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Suydam, widow of the late Judge Suydam a prominent lawyer in his day; and Mrs. Peter Buckalew; also one granddaughter, Miss Charlotte Suydam.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE AT PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Preparatory to the opening of the local theatrical season at the Plainfield theatre Messrs. Proctor & Sanderson are making numerous changes at the West Second street house which they believe will receive the approbation of their patrons. In the first place the playhouse is being entirely renovated and cleaned and will be re-decorated in attractive colors, making it more inviting than ever.

Perhaps one of the most important changes is that of removing the box office from the right to the left of the entrance, where it will be located in the store formerly occupied by T. A. Kurzhals, the barber. This will afford more room and light, another much desired. The box office for those desiring tickets for the gallery will also be located in this part of the building, facing the alley where the entrance to the gallery has always been situated.

The whole front entrance will be brightened through the use of paint, and the foyer will be redecorated. A large force of men are now engaged in making the changes, the plan being to get everything in readiness for the opening on Labor Day, September 5, with a production by the new Plainfield theatre stock company.

HERE AND THERE.

The authorities of the village of Josketa in Saxony, with 215 inhabitants, recently installed electric light in the streets. The light is cut off at 11 p. m., when it is supposed everybody is in bed.

The authorities, however, discovered a month or of clubmen, who were "afraid to go home in the dark" and who kicked about having the lights extinguished at 11. To meet their demands the authorities have attached penny in the slot devices to the light poles.

A tired clubman going home in the dark after 11 can now fumble his way to an electric light pole, drop a penny in the slot and light his way home. If he lives far from his club two successive pennies will do the trick.

The pessimistic reports of widespread damage to the vineyards of most of the wine-producing districts of France have already had their effects in Paris. Proprietors of restaurants have promptly raised the price of their wines, and not content with that have increased the prices of the plates on their bills of fare.

They have some justification, for the cold and rainy weather which has damaged the vineyards has also made vegetables and fruit scarce and dear. Their patrons, however, do not like the increased prices, and Paris, like all other capitals of the world, is wailing over the high cost of living.

The French for once do not put the blame upon the American tourists who spend their gold so lavishly in Paris and other French towns during three months each year. They politely realize that the Americans could have had nothing to do with producing the weather that has afflicted France since spring.

FANS SEE GREAT GAME

It was the Real Article When Plainfield's Team Defeated McNulty's Nine.

BY SCORE OF TWO TO ONE.

"Brit" Martin Shines, as Do Many Others—The Local Aggregation Has But One Error Marked Against It.

Before a crowd of fifteen hundred wildly-cheering fans, the Plainfield Baseball Club team defeated its old rivals, the McNulty Brothers' nine, of New York city, on the oval Saturday afternoon by the score of 2 to1. The local boys got right into the harness in the first inning and clinched the game by bringing two tallies across the rubber. Although the opposing aggregation managed to save itself from a shut-out by scoring one run in the sixth, the result of the contest seemed never in doubt.

On account of rheumatism and a strained knee, Warry McLaughlin, the old standby of Dorflinger's aggregation, was unable to do the twirling and so Ward, a youngster from Newark, occupied the slab and he did the honors in great style. He was opposed by Wolfe.

Brit Martin, the first man up for the Plainfield team, clouted the first ball pitched to him for a double into deep center. "Chick" Boyd did his part in the cannonade by lacing a neat single into the same garden, Brit rounded third and as he was starting for home, the centerfielder recovered the spheroid and threw it to the plate. The catcher stood with open arms to give Brit a warm reception, but the second baseman stepped in the backstop's glove and scored the first run. Of course the fans went wild with joy.

Boyd in the meanwhile had reached second and then stole third. Emery sent a pop fly to short-stop but Jack Martin was on the job with a hit into deep short and Boyd raced home. "Chick" also got in a mixup with the catcher at the plate but came out of it safely and with a run to the good. That ended the Plainfield scoring.

The McNulty's tally came in the sixth round, which Dowling opened with a triple into the high grass back of centerfield. Holler, who had not made much of a noise as a third-baseman, wafted his willow for a single at the crucial moment and that's how the run came in.

Brit Martin made a clean double in the first game and two two-sackers and a single in the second game. He also made some catches in the field that were thrillers. Jack Martin was there with the stick work, too, making a double, and two singles with five difficult chances at short without an error. Barnes also deserves credit for his steady playing on the initial sack. Fourteen putouts without a misplay is going some.

Here's the work they each did:

WRITER KILLS HIMSELF

James W. Harkins, of Worcester, Mass., Put Bullet in Brain.

DESPONDENT OVER ILLNESS.

Took Long Walk and Returned to Home of Cousin Weakened—Was Author of Famous Plays.

Apparently having become despondent over his poor physical condition, Jas. W. Harkins, Jr., a noted dramatist, of Worcester, Mass., committed suicide on Saturday evening by shooting himself in the head with a revolver at the home of his cousin, James Harkins, of 1003 Watchung avenue, County Physician F. W. Westcott, who was immediately summoned by Detective Sergeant Flynn, viewed the body and gave his permission for its removal to the undertaking establishment of George Cole.

According to the best information obtainable, Mr. Harkins had been suffering for some time from creeping paralysis and it was said that he felt that a cure was impossible. On Saturday afternoon, it is said, the dead man took a long walk, during which he made an attempt on his life, but finding the task to inadequate, returned to the home of his cousin, and securing himself in his room shot himself to death.

The Harkins family were out of doors when the suicide retired ostensibly to rest, and they were suddenly startled by the sound of a revolver shot from the direction of the room occupied by the writer. Hastening thither, Mr. Harkins found the door to his cousin's room locked, and after forcing an entrance discovered the dead body.

The funeral was private.

Among the works of Mr. Harkins which have enjoyed some big successes on Broadway are "The White Squadron," "The Midnight Alarm" and "The Man Without a Country."

BOUND BROOK WINS EASILY.

The Bound Brook baseball team defeated the Elizabeth A. C. in a ragged game on the Bound Brook grounds Saturday afternoon by the score of 18-2. Ortlieb was invincible and allowed the visiting team only three scattered hits. The Bound Brookers swatted the ball at will and piled up nineteen hits Roberson distinguished himself with a home-run clout, and Shaw was among the heavy hitters, with a three-bagger.

How to Wear a Veil.

For those who are partial to the use of the sailor hat, here is a wrinkle concerning the adjustment of the veil: First fasten the top edge of it to fit round the crown, so that it stands up firmly in a fold; then gather up the loose ends and knot them at the back. The veil (of double width) thus maneuvered, seems to soften the outlines of the whole hat, fits over the face perfectly, and defies the stormiest wind. The perfect fitting of a veil is no mean triumph, as she, or even he, who never makes observations on this point must acknowledge. Last summer, French women formed the top edge of their veils into a definite fold, which they placed to stand round the brim of the hat. With fresh crisp veiling the effect of this is extremely good and most becoming.

Suburban Nine Goes Back With a Victory Over Plainfield Y.M.C.A.

SLAB ARTISTS' EXHIBITION.

Opportune Hitting of Scotch Plains Aggregation Told in the Result of Game, Which Was 6 to 4.

From a somewhat loosely played game, the Scotch Plains ball tossers carried the scalps of the local Y. M. C. A. nine back to their native haunts Saturday afternoon as a result of a 6-4 victory over the association boys in the opening contest of the double-header at the oval. Hits when hits meant runs did the trick for the suburban team, while the same diagnosis holds for the defeat of the cityites.

The pitching honors of the game were just about equally divided between Slocum and Frederickson. Both twirlrs fanned eleven men and although Slocum was only banged for six hits, he gave free trips to the initial sack to five batsmen. The game was attended by a large crowd of fans, who were interested in seeing these two promising and much talked of young twirlers opposed to each othr. Brit Martin scored the first run for the association team in the seventh round. He got a pass, stole second, and came home on a trot after Fritts sent a clean single into the vicinity of left field.

HELD AS CHICKEN THIEF

Geo. Minsky Caught by Albert Barber of East Second St., at Revolver's Point.

DOG ASSISTS IN THE ARREST.

Empty Bag and Cap Found Near Coop and the Cap Fits Minsky —Losses Reported From Other Hen Coops.

When Albert Barber, of 1475 East Second street, heard his wife scream at 11:30 Saturday night, he decided that it was about time for him to investigate the trouble which had been evident in his back yard for a few minutes previous. Grabbing his revolver, Mr. Barber ran down stairs, clad only in his nightie, and ran to the assistance of his wife, who had discovered a man crouching close by the Barber chicken coop, with his hand in the coop exit. He called to the crouching figure to get up and face him, adding the threat to shoot if compliance was not forthcoming. The man did not move, and Mr. Barber fired one shot in the air. The figure moved with a sudden jump and attempted to get away.

A dog owned by Mr. Barber caught the intruder by the coat tails and held on until Mr. Barber had time to get a clutch upon his arm.

Then, leading him to the street lamp, he managed to get a good look at the man, and then he telephoned police headquarters. Detective Sergeant John Flynn and Roundsman Higgins were soon on the job, and caught two men, George Minsky and Frank Slonsky, both of whom appeared suspicious. Later Minsky was identified by Mr. Barber as the man whom he found at the chicken coop.

After hearing the stories of the two police officers and viewing the bag which it was alleged the thief had dropped, together with his cap, Judge Runyon held Minsky in $100 bail for the action of the grand jury, and Slonsky was allowed to go, insufficient direct evidence having been produced against him.

Five owners of fowls have reported to the police thefts of their feathered beauties during the past few weeks, all of whom live in the neighborhood of Mr. Barber. They are Mulford Cole, Llnes Groo, John Conway, James Eatts and Michael Vesteeg.

It is believed that the thefets will stop in this section, now that Minsky has been caught.

DUNELLEN WINS FROM CENTRAL R. R. NINE

The Dunellen baseball team defeated the crack nine of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, Saturday, at Dunellen. Pender was pounded hard throughout the game, the good support by his team-mates being the only thing that kept Manager Adams' boys from running up a much larger score. Montross was invincible in every inning except the fifth when the Centrals bunched three of their hits, and aided by an error, they made their only runs of the game. The score:

MR. DAY FINDS HIMSELF

Oak Tree Man Who Disappeared July 11 to Kill Himself a Penna.Farmer Now.

WRITES TO THE DAILY PRESS.

He Says He is a Physical Wreck and That His Wife Was Not to Blame For His Strange Actions.

Wilson T. Day, the former ticket agent at Oak Tree and Potter's Crossing, on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, who suddenly disappeared several weeks ago and was reported to have committed suicide at Coney Island, July 11, has written a letter to The Daily Press, stating that he has returned to his wife and that at present they are sojourning on a farm near Easton, Pa., where he hopes to regain his health.

Mr. Day says that he is a nervous wreck and adds that his reason for leaving home was altogether a personal one, the blame for which can be placed on no one except himself. He further says: "In sensational cases similar to this, there are always many different stories afloat, so I wish to make this public statement to exonerate Mrs. Day from any blame which the public may see fit to place upon her."

On the day of his disappearance, Mr. Day told his wife he was coming to Plainfield to visit a dentist, but an investigation showed that he did not do so. The next day, Thomas Brantingham received a letter supposedly from Day, in which he said that he had gone to Coney Island, and that his dead body would be found there. Some of his clothes were found in a bath-house, giving the impression that the man had taken his life. However, his friends did not believe such to be the case.

Starting from the one-minute mark, George Simon won the ten-mile handicap bicycle race in the city championship series Sunday morning on the mountain avenue course. Edward McNee, who leads in the total number of points for the summer's races was second. He received a handicap of one minute. The time prize and third place was won by Robert Gutridge, a new man from Northerwood, who covered the course in the remarkable time of twenty-seven minutes and fifteen seconds. Percy Haberle took fourth place, starting from scratch and finishing only a fifth of a second behind Gutridge.

The race was one of the best ones that have been held by the Plainfield Cycling Club this year. There were eight entries, William Drake and E. S. Bird being put out of the race on account of falls.

STEPPED INTO THE LAKE

HAD AN EXCITING EXPERIENCE.

Mrs. Warnock, Miss Anna Warnock and Miss Florence Levy Are Brought Safely to Shore by as Many Men.

Miscalculation as to how far they could step from a high dock to a row boat, caused Mrs. W. W. Warnock, of Craig place, her daughter, Miss Anna Warnock, and Miss Florence Levey, of High Bridge, to take an involuntary bath in Lake Hopatcong Saturday noon and incidently furnished more excitement than has been seen at Nolan's Point in several years. All three were thrown in the water and piercing screams emitted by Mrs. Joe Levy, who was nearby, and who believed her daughter and friends would be drowned, caused a rush of 1,000 people to the scene.

Although the struggling women were in no great danger as the depth of the water where they went overboard is only about 4 feet 5 inches, would-be rescuers leaped in after them and a score of boats put out from as many directions. The struggling and hysterical trio were quickly lifted ashore and today are no worse for their experience except for slight colds.

Mrs. Warnock and her daughter and Miss Levey have been guests at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Haynes, in Great Cove, and with Mrs. Levey spent Saturday morning at Allen's dancing pavilion. They were about to return home at noon when the accident occured. The two girls had gotten into the boat and were standing in an upright position holding it to the dock for Mrs. Warnock's benefit. The latter misjudged the distance and instead of stepping in the centre came down full weight on one side. The boat immediately capsized and Mrs. Warnock went to the bottom of the lake while the other two were thrown on top of her. Miss Levey was terribly frightened and her cries brought every one in hearing on a run to the dock. Her cousin even reached scores of dancers on Allen's floor and every one stampeded for the doors, musicians included.

Adolph Hoffman, of Paterson, a student in the University of Maryland, and an expert swimmer, was the first to leap into the water and lifted Miss Warnock out of all possible danger. He was quickly followed by Jack Williams, a steam boat captain, who sprang from the deck of his craft, and Carlton Voorhees, of Halsey Island, who caught hold of Mrs. Warnock. She was half conscious because of swallowing a large quantity of water and did not fully recover until taken to the Haynes cottage. Miss Levey was rescued by Bert Stockbower and John T. Treadwell, who were in nearby launches. Mrs. Levey continued screaming all the time the victim was in the water and was hysterical for several hours afterward. Although she did not participate in the ducking, she suffered more through fright than any of the others.

Mrs. Warnock and her daughter gave an exhibition of nerve after they had donned dry clothing by getting into a launch and making a mile and a half trip to Ram's Horn Camp on Halsey Island where they had a dinner engagement. Mrs. Warnock returned home Sunday while her daughter will remain at the lake until after Labor Day.

FUNERAL OF MRS. SERRELL HELD SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

The funeral of Mrs. John Albert Serrell was held Saturday afternoon from her late residence on Myrtle avenue. Only the relatives and most intimate friends of the dead woman attended the services, Rev. Dr. Boocock, the former pastor of the church in Bayonne, to which Mrs. Serrell belonged, officiated.

The minister spoke briefly upon the beautiful life which Mrs. Serrell had led and declared that little need be said about the woman for her life spoke for itself and all those with whom she had come in contact knew of her sweet Christian character better than words could express.

After the services, the remains were placed in a vault at the Hillside cemetery awaiting burial.

Preparing for Theatre Opening.

Plans are rapidly being completed for the opening of the regular season at The Plainfield theatre on Labor Day, with that stirring western drama, "Three of Us," to be followed the last half of the week by "St. Elmo." The box office will be opened on Thursday morning, the sale of tickets at popular prices. Proctor & Sanderson are making many desirable changes at the theatre, which they feel sure will be appreciated by the patrons.

MAKING A BANK VAULT

How the One Being Installed in State Trust Co. Office was Built.

AN INTERESTING DESCRIPTION.

Story of the Evolution of the Vault as Illustrated by the Manganese Product Constructed in This City.

The Manganese Steel Vault Company is installing in the banking rooms of The State Trust Company, at Park avenue and Second street, one of the finest round door manganese steel vaults ever constructed by the concern, and when erected in position it will offer protection to valuables that will be absolutely fire, mob and burglar proof.

The tremendous material prosperity of the country in the last ten years has had an immediate reflection in the demand for increased facilities for banking, and safeguarding valuables. In localities where ten years ago a single bank more than sufficed for the needs of the community are now found three or four institutions, all of which are doing a good business. The man who ten years ago measured his worldly wealth by a deposit in the local savings bank has now become an investor in securities and demands proper facilities for keeping these safely.

Hardly a bank exists now that does not find it necessary not only to guard its own securities, but to offer protection for the valuable personal property of its depositors.

The evolution of the vault has been well defined, from the rock-hewn cavern closed by heaped-up stones, to masonry chambers with massive wooden doors studded with nails and locked with huge bolts or later with primitive keys, or the alphabetical locks of the seventeenth century. Wooden chests were displaced by those of metal, and with the development of the iron and steel industries the sizes of the chests increased until they became strong rooms with iron walls.

But as fast as the security increased, faster grew the daring and skill of marauders, and so, keeping pace the one with the other, the race between security and attack has kept up to the present day. Iron walls gave place to those of steel, and when ordinary steel proved insufficient, the makers turned to hardened steel, though hampered always by the fact that the harder the steel the more brittle it became and the more susceptible to crack under shock. To avoid this and in default of a metal possessing the qualities of both hardness and toughness, alternate layers were used of tough soft steel and hard brittle steel, the combination being deemed sufficient to give hardness to protect from penetration and toughness to resist shock.

This type of vault, known as the laminated or plate vault, answered the purpose until the advent of nitroglycerine, whose power against such construction is well known, and later of thermit, the latter a substance burning with intense heat sufficient to draw the temper from hardened steel. This agency practically destroyed the efficiency of hard steel. The discovery of Manganese Steel, a combination of ferro-manganese and iron, provided a metal inherently hard enough to be impenetrable to a drill, and when properly treated so tough as to be secure from cracking. This discovery led to the introduction of solid-wall Manganese Steel vaults, which in the past few years have come more and more to be recognized as the most desirable form of security.

The solid vault came into being as a result of the discovery of a metal which could take the place of the combined hard and soft steels in the laminated vault, and was constructed upon the theory that if a wall three inches thick, composed of three separate plates, offered protection against attack, a solid plate of the same thickness, provided it was composed of a tougher metal, would be stronger. The plates of a solid vault being cast, it was possible to make them of much larger size than the plates employed in laminated work, and we therefore find in the solid construction single sheets of metal three inches thick and as much as nine feet square.

Vaults composed of Manganese steel consist of a series of individual plates having a minimum thickness of two inches and of appropriate dimensions to suit the requirements of special contracts. The peculiarity of Manganese steel is such that it requires no treament to give to it the desired hardness, this quality being inherent. It is practically unmachinable. It is therefore essential that the separate plates should be cast so nearly to the ultimate dimensions that they may be finished by processes of grinding or abrasion.

JOHN KONESKY IN TOILS OF FANWOOD POLICE

Patrolman Logan of the Fanwood police arrested at 3 o'clock this morning John Konesky, of this city, and when arraigned before Justice Sheelen the latter sentenced the youth to thirty days in the county jail pending an investigation into last night's conduct of three boys, of whom Konesky was one.

Officer Logan surprised the three youths who apparently had designs on the Fanwood station and when he made a grab for two of them all three ran. Logan managed to capture Konesky who when searched turned over to the patrolman 121 pennies some of which were wrapped in the original bank packages. Konesky refused to account for the possession of the coins and likewise imprudently refused to tell anything more about himself than his name.

Young Konesky has been in the clutches of the police of this city, and only recently was released by Judge William N. Runyon in the charge of vagrancy made against him by Patrolman Dobson. At the time Konesky was given a chance to behave himself and Judge Runyon made a personal appeal to his father to again receive the youth in his parents' home. Konesky promised to be good and he was allowed to go his own way. It is not known now who the two companions of the youth their names will be learned when Konesky is questioned at Elizabeth.

No report of a robbery of slot machines or banks has been received nor has anyone reported the loss of packages of cents. Konesky would not tell where he obtained the coins.

SOME NOTES FROM BORO. POLICE COURT

Charles Van DeWorth, his wife Hannah, and daughter, Katie Smith, all colored and residents of Warren street, were arraigned in the borough court this morning on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. They were taken in custody by Chief Marshal Weiss and Marshal Keller yesterday afternoon. Charles had been arraigned several times on the same charge and his promises for reform have proved useless. Consequently Recorder Dolliver imposed a fine of $5 on each.

Patrick Simon, of South Second street, and Charles Joy thirteen years old, and William Harrison, a colored boy of the same age, were arrested yesterday afternoon by Chief Marshal Weiss for stealing two bottles of milk from a milk wagon. The boys were caught after a long chase. In the borough court this morning J. Henry Crane appeared as counsel for the colored boy and Recorder Dolliver suspended sentence after giving the culprits a lecture. Both boys promised to be good and Mr. Crane said there would look after the young Harrison and see that he behaved himself.

RESCINDED AN AWARD OF STREET WORK BONDS.

Through a motion offered by Councilman Mygatt at the September meeting of the Common Council last night, a previous resolution awarding the City National Bank the $30,000 street improvement bonds, was rescinded, and bids will be advertised for according to law. After the bonds were awarded to the City National Bank, Mayor Charles J. Fisk called the attention of the members to the fact that the procedure was irregular and not in accordance with the provisions of the law.

When the Council meets in adjourned session, September 19, this matter will be taken up. It may be that the city will issue bonds from time to time as it may need money for the street work, instead of issuing the entire $30,000 worth of bonds. This will be done if possible.

Accepts a Position in Manila.

Jack Douglass, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Douglass, of 676 West Eighth street, will leave tomorrow for Manila, P. I., where he will accept a position with the MacCloud Company, importers and exporters. Enroute he will visit relatives in Chicago and will also stop over at Denver, where his brother, William C. Douglass, is a student at the Colorado School of Mines. He will then go to Seattle and thence by steamer to the Philippines.

Grower of Fine Tomatoes.

Monroe W. Farnham, of 967 West Fifth street, is a grower of fancy Jersey tomatoes. In the rear of his residence he has a number of tomato vines, which by his care have grown tomatoes averaging a pound and a half in weight. His garden is to be imitated next season by his neighbors, who have become interested in the raising of tomatoes.

CITY FATHERS' ROUTINE

Many Minor Matters are Disposed of at the Regular Sept. Meeting.

RECEIVE SOME PETITIONS.

Reports Are Read and Resolutions Passed by the Common Council —To Meet Again on Monday, Sept. 19.

In the absence of President Ralph I. Tolles, who is ill at his summer home, Woodmont, Conn., Councilman Herbert Buxton presided at the September meeting of the Common Council, last night. It was a short session, most of the business being routine. Councilman Duncan W. Taylor and Frank Randolph were also among the missing.

Among the petitions was one from Solomon Mann, of Stebbins place, asking for an electric light on that street, between West Third and South Second streets. This was referred. E. L. Hand, clerk of Fanwood township, informed the Council that the township was willing to care for Cushing road, if the city would look after a portion of Woodland avenue, in accordance with a recent suggestion. This was referred to the street committee.

The Highland Park Realty Company, through H. R. Linbarger, secretary, communicated with the Council regarding the macadamizing of a portion of Leland avenue and the assessment thereof. This was referred to the finance committee.

T. F. Dunigan, of Woodbridge, who was the lowest bidder on the proposal to macadamize certain streets, asked the privilege of withdrawing his bid as he had forgotten to include "filler" in his bid. The request was granted. Later resblut'ons were offered by Mr. Gloak, chairman of the street committee, awarding the contract for macadamizing to John McNabb, of Bound Brook, and Mobus & Burke, of this city, the next lowest bidders on certain streets.

The attention of the members was called to the unsightly condition of the roadway fronting Hillside cemetery, by George P. Mellick, and he suggested that they take the matter up with the Public Service Corporation, whose trolley tracks run through that thoroughfare. The matter was referred to the committee on public affairs.

A resolution offered by Mr. Mygatt and adopted, authorized the city treasurer to pay the city's share for macadamizing certain streets, the amount being $2,671.93, and a similar resolution offered by the same member and adopted, authorized the payment of the city's share of a sewer assessment amounting to $444.27.

Clerk Horace G. Adams, of the District Court, reported receipts for the past month to be $84.77 and the balance, $58.40, was turned over to the city treasurer. Overseer of the Poor A. D. Ayers reported total expenses of $449.56 for the past month.

Several resolutions were offered by Mr. Mygatt for the finance committee and adopted. One authorized the city treasurer to borrow $2,000 on account of the sewer extension, and another authorized the borrowing of $1,000 for the fire fund, while a third resolution authorized the retirement of a $5,000 street improvement bonds, dated 1911.

Specifications for the proposed extension of the sanitary system of sewers were filed by Mr. Gloak, and he offered a resolution fixing Monday night, October 3, as the time when bids will be received for doing the work and furnishing the materials. In this connection Mr. Gloak offered an ordinance which was read for information, calling for an addition to the sewer system on East Front street, Randolph road, St. Mary's avenue and Watson avenue. The ordinance will be taken up later.

A resolution offered by Councilman Charles C. Randolph and adopted, authorized the installation of one two-way hydrant on West Eighth street, five hundred feet west of Grant avenue. The petition of F. B. Lawrence and others for two electric lights on Ravine road, was granted in accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Montgomery, as was also the petition of H. B. MacDonald and others for a light on West Sixth street, near Lee place.

The ordinance previously adopted on two readings, which describes the manner and conditions to be followed in the funding of the dedication of streets to the city's use, was passed on third reading on motion of Mr. Holt, who introduced the ordinance. It was decided to hold an adjourned meeting of the Council on Monday night, September 19.

Fred E. Smith will have charge of the prayer meeting at Trinity Reformed church tonight.

HEPTASOPHS' SOCIABLE

Meeting in Coward's Hall Attracts Large and Interested Gathering.

ORGANIZATION IS GROWING.

Fraternal Insurance Discussed by Officers—Speeches by Men Eminent in the Order—New Class Organized.

Friends and members of the Improved Order of Heptasophs gathered in Coward's Hall last night for the purpose of introducing the new members of the order to the old and to have a generally good social time. J. V. E. Vanderhoef, supreme committeeman, presided at the function, and several noted speakers were present and addressed the company.

Edward Sheffield, department organizer and one of the most eloquent men in the order, told of the progress recently made in the different States and incidentally told of the fact that over $1,000,000 had been paid out during the thirty-two years of the existence of the order. Mr. Sheffield quoted from a speech recently made at a convention held in New York city at the Manhattan Hotel in which a man who is not a member of the order of Heptasophs, but who is interested in fraternal insurance, said: "The order of Heptasophs has been taken as a model on which to base future legislation on fraternal societies. It is certain that the Improved Order is one of the best organizations in existence today. The Knights of Columbus come second in the estimation of the insurance men."

During the evening H. H. Heath, deputy superior archon, of Asbury Park, and O. D. Bryan, of Philadelphia, one of the members of the legal department of the order, spoke on topics relating to their respective departments and aroused much enthusiasm of the local members.

A new class which is forming will soon have a membership of twenty-five, and when it is completed the degree team of Morristown will initiate the class. Nineteen new aspirants for membership in the order have been obtained, and when the other six have passed the rigorous examination the whole class will be initiated with an appropriate ceremony here.

After the speakers had concluded last night, Professor Davis gave some splendid piano music, and Jack Hallard sang. It was said last night that a movement was on foot among the various lodges of the order to establish a sick benefit fund, which will prove an innovation in this order.

27 YRS. A PATROLMAN NOW TO BE PENSIONED

Doorman Thomas McCue, who has been employed by the city in the police department for twenty-six years and three months, resigned from the department last night, and he was placed on the police pension roll at an annual pension of $450, the same to be paid in monthly installments. Mr. McCue is the first member of the police department to go on the pension list, and this action was taken following the adoption of an ordinance several months ago.

Corporation Counsel Marsh instructed the members how to proceed in the matter, informing them that Mr. McCue must tender his resignation. The ordinance provides that members of the department may retire after twenty years' service.

Mr. McCue entered the police department nearly twenty-seven years ago as a patrolman, which position he held with honor until advancing age incapacitated him from active work on the street. He was then appointed doorman at headquarters and this position he has held until the present time.

STEWART-KELLY NUPTIALS

Couple Wedded at Home of Bride by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring.

THREE HUNDRED PRESENT.

Numerous Gifts of Cut Glass and Silverware Are Received by the Couple—Will Reside in City.

Miss Eva Celsa Kelly, daughter of Mrs. Lillian Kelly, of Putnam avenue, was married last night to Leslie Raynor Stewart, of Lenox avenue, at the home of the bride, 1349 Putnam avenue. The wedding was attended by many friends and relatives of the couple from this city, New York, New Brunswick, Brooklyn and nearby towns. The decorations were in a scheme of green and white and were tastefully carried out with clematis, palms, ferns and other greens.

Promptly at 8 o'clock the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march were played by Clifford Braider, and the bridal party descended the stairs to meet the bridegroom, while Mrs. Chester Briggs sang the words of the march.

First came little Esther Neubrand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Neubrand, of Tarrytown, who strewed asters from a basket she carried in the path of the bride. She is slightly over two years old but took her part of flower girl with all the grace of an experienced social leader. Then followed the ushers, James Christopher, of Flushing, and Byard Naylor, of Bound Brook. The matron of honor, Mrs. Chester Briggs, of Cranford, was next in line; and she preceded the bride who was escorted by her grandfather, Henry C. Corsa, of this city. When Miss Susie Lowrie, of Dunellen, the bridesmaid, had descended, the party went forward to met the bridegroom and his best man, Charles M. Eoff, of Crescent avenue.

The bride met the bridegroom in front of a bower of hydrangias, clematis, and ferns in the parlor, where the double ring Episcopal ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of which the bride is a member. The bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, Henry Corsa.

Immediately after the ceremony the Mendelssohn wedding march was played by Clifford Braider while the guests crowded forward to offer their congratulations to the young couple. A collation by a local caterer was then served on the spacious piazza which was attractively decorated fro the occasion.

The bride wore a gown of white charmuse satin with Duchess lace trimming. She wore a tulle veil caught with a coronet of pearls and carried a shower bouquet of white bridal roses. The matron of honor was gowned in a white satin dress covered with a green chiffon tunic and trimmed with chiffon roses. She carried a shower bouquet of white asters. The bride's maid wore a gown of green crepe meteor satin with pearl and crystal trimming. She too carried a shower bouquet of white asters. The little flower girl wore a dress of white lingerie over green taffeta. She carried a basket of asters.

The gifts included cut glass, silverware and many other useful as well as beautiful articles. Among the gifts was a Japanese chocolate set presented by the class of 1906 of the city high school, of which the bride is the first member to get married. The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a LaValliere set with oriental pearls and a baroque pearl pendant. His gifts to the best man and ushers were scarf pins set with pearl. The bride's gifts to her attendants were wishbone gold corsage pins; and the flower girl received a sterling silver bracelet.

Amid a shower of rice and confetti the couple left for Metuchen in a large automobile which took them to Metuchen, where they boarded a train for Atlantic City, where they will spend a two weeks' honeymoon. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will go to housekeeping at 1219 Lenox avenue. Mr. Stewart holds a responsible position in the Corn Exchange Bank of New York.

The grandparents of both the bride and the bridegroom attended the wedding. They were Mr. and Mrs. John H. Stewart of New Brunswick and Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Corsa. Mr. Stewart is 86 years old. Another unusual circumstance was the fact that just a year ago today the matron of honor, Mrs. Chester Briggs, was married.

—Housekeepers should not lose the opportunity offered by Neuman Bros. tomorrow, when they will offer 200 baskets of fancy canning peaches, white and yellow; also Bartlett pears and fancy canning tomatoes.

ARTHUR MURPHY WANTS JUDGESHIP NOMINATION

Arthur Murphy, one of the aspirants for the position of city judge, to succeed William N. Runyon, is conducting a vigorous campaign and says he is receiving much encouragement from his many friends throughout the city.

Arthur Murphy.

Mr. Murphy is the youngest son of the late Rev. T. Logan Murphy, who was rector of the Holy Cross church for many years. He was born in this city and has always lived here. He attended the North Plainfield public schools and later attended the Franklin school and the city high school. After leaving the local schools, for five years he was employed by the Leather Manufacturers National Bank, of New York. At the expiration of that time he entered the New York Law School, completing the course. He has practiced law in this city since 1907, in which year he was elected a member of the Union County Republican executive committee. He is a brother-in-law of State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, having married the latter's youngest sister, Miss Lydia Ackerman. He declares himself to be independent in Republican politics.

THREE BURGLARIES IN DUNELLEN LAST NIGHT

Three burglaries were committed in Dunellen last night. The Dunellen Lumber and Stone Co., the Dunellen Coal and Supply Co., and Clarence T. Voorhees' butcher shop were the places entered, and in each case the thieves were successful, but the booty was trifling.

At the Dunellen Lumber and Stone Company's office, the thieves got $1.50 in postage stamps and petty cash. Only a few cents was secured from the Dunellen Coal and Supply Company, this amount being taken from the cash drawer. At Clarence Voorhees' butcher shop the burglars got only 55 cents from the cash register.

In each case, entrance was gained by cutting a hole in a window and removing the glass. Marshal Benson believes that the jobs were done by novices, possibly that the robbers are residents in the vicinity of the borough.

On Monday night the home of William Clum, the architect, on Lincoln avenue, was entered in the same manner as the places entered last night.

Ring as a Memorial.

Mrs. Richard Gamble, of 420 Orchard place, who recently passed a Civil Service examination for the position of departmental clerk at Washington, has been presented with a valuable ring by Miss Frances A. Cowles, of New York, in memory of her sister, Helen, who died the latter part of July. Mrs. Gamble values the ring highly from its association with her friend, who wore it almost constantly during the thirty-three years of their friendship, as well as for its beauty and intrinsic value. The late Judge Walter S. Cowles, father of the Misses Cowles, was Mrs. Gamble's guardian for many years.

Carnival at New Market.

The residents of New Market held a carnival day on Monday and the town was a gay one from morning until sundown. The program of the day included a canoe regatta on the lake, speech making by some of the prominent citizens, and a large concert by a ten piece band. Dancing was enjoyed at the pavilion near the lake during the evening. The affair was held under the auspices of the Lakeside Social Club.

READY FOR SCHOOL DAYS

Teachers and Pupils in Borough Prepare for the Fall Term Opening.

ON TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12.

Buildings Renovated—Many New Faces to be Seen Among the Teaching Corps—Some Will Be Missed.

The North Plainfield public schools are now ready for the opening on Tuesday, September 12. Teachers are arriving in town, ready to start their work with a vim. The pupils are making the most of their last week of vacation time. Superintendent H. C. Krebs has returned from his trip to the British Isles and is now hard at work getting the machinery of the school system in running order.

All the borough school buildings have been cleaned and renovated from top to the bottom. Slate blackboards have been installed in the Somerset school, thus bringing this building up to the modern standard in every detail.

As yet no definite prediction can be made as to the enrollment in the schools for the coming term. There will be eighteen pupils in the high school department this year from Warren Township, which will pay their tuition and the expenses of two wagons to bring them to school each day.

There are forty-one teachers on the rolls in the borough system. They will be called together at 4 o'clock, Monday, September 12, by Superintendent Krebs, who will lay his plans before them and explain the workings of the borough teaching system to the new instructors. The high school courses are to be improved and enlarged upon with similar additions in the grammar and primary departments.

Two new faces will be noted among the faculty of the high school. George C. Baker, a graduate of Lafayette College and the Bloomsbury, Pa., State Normal School with five years experience in the Pennsylvania high schools, will take charge of the department of mathematics, in the place of F. Eugene Seymour, who goes to Montclair. Miss Roxana Love, a graduate of the Plainfield high school and of Mount Holyoke College, will be the teacher of science, filling the vacancy left by the resignation of Miss Edna M. Wilkes, who has been appointed to the department of physics in the Girls' High School of Philadelphia.

Miss Elizabeth M. Pound, who graduated in the Plainfield high school in 1908 and who has been a student in the Pratt Institute of Brooklyn, will take the place of Miss Elsie R. Horn, as the teacher of domestic science.

Miss Katherine Nelson, who has had four years' experience in teaching in the Newton schools after her graduation from the Oneonta State normal school, will succeed Miss Grace Van Vatten, who retires from the profession. Miss Malvina Rittenhouse, also retired, will be succeeded by Miss Mame Barrow, a Bloomsburg graduate of three years' experience.

Miss Evelyn Huff, of the Genesee State normal school, has been appointed to teach in the second grade of the Somerset school. Miss Lucia McClintock, a graduate of the same school, will take the place of Miss Daisy Freeland, who enters the Montclair normal school. Miss Sadie Tiffany, a graduate of the Trenton State normal school and who has taught in Newton for the past two years will have charge of the sixth grade work this year.

Miss Bessie Dunham, a graduate of the Plainfield high school and also of the Westfield, Mass., State normal school, will fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Miss Amanda Tyler at the Watchung school.

Superintendent Krebs has been extremely confident that the present staff of instructors is a fully competent one.

Embroidered Collars.

Now that all the summer blouses are cut low, the Dutch collar is again with us, but mounted on a neckband so as to avoid the unpleasant exposure of the whole neck so frequent last summer. These collars are often, of course, of embroidered linen, but are seen also in joined rows of insertion or in allover lace, with a gathered or frilled edging. They vary in width from two to five inches. One quit new style is in plain lawn, with rounded front ends, with double-over bias folds of lawn or batiste stitched upon them. Sometimes every alternate row is in black or color. No shirt is worn with these collars, but they are fastened by means of a large cameo or some other pin in the same quaint fashion.

Back From Auto Trip.

Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Anderson have returned from an auto trip in Washington, Mount Vernon, Alexandria, and Arlington, Va. The run to Washington was made in fourteen hours and Dr. Anderson said that he could have made it in twelve hours if he had been alone. Only two accidents occurred to his little Buick car on the trip, these being tire troubles.

COULDN'T BUNCO MAYOR

Bogus Solicitor For Funds Failed to get $50 Out of Plainfield's Executive.

POSED AS CROKER'S SECRETARY

New York's Fire Chief Didn't Know "Riley" and Mr. Fisk's Tip Helped to Catch Him.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk is nothing if not astute; when it comes to helping the police in detecting criminals he is more than that. And by this token it is perceptible that it behooves the would-be grafters and imitation book agents to steer clear of his Honor in the future.

Yesterday the Mayor received a subpoena to appear in the criminal branch of the circuit court in New York city, and at 2 o'clock this afternoon he was there to prove his ability to get the better of the bunco men. Magistrate Moses Hermann signed the court order and it will probably result in the prevention of further depredations of a gang which has systematically robbed the prominent men of the metropolis on pretense of benefitting some benevolent object or society.

All the metropolitan newspapers contained this morning an account of the arrest of Walter G. Lynch, the reputed son of Theresa Lynch, of diamond fame in New York, on a charge of attempting to swindle our Mayor out of $50, besides twenty cents expressage. And this was the manner of the attempt:

"Mr. Riley, private secretary to Chief Croker, of the New York Fire Department," called Mr. Fisk on the telephone some days ago, requesting an interview. Mr. Fisk responded that, owing to a pressing business engagement, he would be unable to meet "Mr. Riley," but would be glad to see him later. Five minutes later, on attempting to pass out through the office door to his New York establishment, Mr. Fisk was stopped by an inquirer who said, "Are you Mr. Fisk?" Being answered in the affirmative, the stranged unfolded a plan of assistance toward building up the funds of the Firemen's Benevolent Association of which he claimed to be a special agent, owing to the fact that he had been incapacitated from work through injuries to his eyes.

After a few moments' conversation Mayor Fisk told the visitor to return and that if after an investigation of the facts he found that the object was a worthy one he would be glad to subscribe. On Tuesday afternoon Mayor Fisk received a postal card from Adams Express Co. in New York saying that they were hold subject to his order a package of books, and would he be kind enough to call at the office and pay the charges, $50.20. The Mayor said he would investigate this case, and after a lengthy talk with Chief Croker over the telephone he decided to let detective headquarters in New York take the postal card and intercept the seller of the books. This was done, and Walter G. Lynch, for whom the New York detectives have been looking for some time. It is alleged that many others have been victimized by the same man.

HIGH COURT UPHOLDS THE AUTOMOBILE LAW

The Supreme Court, at Trenton, in an opinion handed down yesterday, sustained the constitutionality of the New Jersey automobile law by upholding the conviction of Frank J. Paine, a New York man, who was arrested in Paterson, for operating an automobile without a New Jersey license.

Paine made a trip through New Jersey without procuring a license, in order to bring the interstate commerce feature of the law squarely before the courts. The contention of the automobilist who was suspected Paine was that the imposition of license fee was a tax for revenue only, as therefore a violation of the constitutional provision on that subject.

The Supreme Court holds, however, that the Legislature acted within its prerogative when it passed a law putting resident and non-resident automobilists on an equal footing. The case probably will be carried to the Court of Errors and Appeals.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF DAVID E. SCRIBNER HELD.

The funeral services of David E. Scribner were held this afternoon at 2.30 at his late residence on Somerset street. A large number of the young man's friends attended the services, at which Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor of the Grace M. E. church officiated. A representative delegation from the Somerset Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of which the dead young man was a member, was in attendance.

The pall bearers were all close friends of the dead boy. They were: Russell Hand, Roy Hand, Dudley Welch, William Bush, Robert Fahn, and William Richmond. The interment was made in the North Plainfield cemetery.

AUGUST'S REPORT OF CHARITY ORGANIZATION

The report of the Charity Organization Society, for August, presented by Miss Mabelle C. Phillips, one of the two agents, shows much progress. A feature was the outings for children and mothers and the closing of the garden contest. Clifford Dunn, of Belvidere avenue, gave the use of his automobile two afternoons a week and money from Miss Allison VanBuren, provided ice cream to complete the afternoon's treat.

In the spring the society received five hundred large packages of seed from Congressman Fowler and these were divided among the children and mothers who asked for them. The women guests at Truell Court provided $4 for four awards and four awards of less value. Mrs. George F. Mellick, Mrs. Laurence Van Burden, Miss Mary Tweedy and Mrs. Kathleen Ryder acted as judges. They awarded the first prizes to Mrs. Julius Steiger at the Sanatorium, the Kirsting children at 323 Prescott place, Mrs. Jenny Martin of 302 Arlington avenue, and Mrs. Ella Johnson, of 14 Regent street.

Those receiving second honors were Mrs. Martha Jones, 312 East Fourth street; the Birzanti children, 336 McDowell street, Susan Driscoll, 1032 South Second street, and the Thomas children, 6 Dupont street.

TIPS FOR THE ANGLERS.

In wading a running stream cover every point where large rocks make eddies; bass move from place to place, and are just as likely to be at one point as another in the mid-die. Bass, more than most fish, take the fly as it drops on the water, and dart like a flash after a moving fly. A long deep pool should be fished from the bottom, casting upstream; such a pool have a ledge, rocky side force the fly close to it. Fishing on lakes is quite different from river fishing. The time of day, weather conditions, flies on the water, all have influence in getting bass to rise. The best time is when the water, gray sky, just after a rain on a warm morning. Have the boat in deep water, cast far out towards shallow bars, rocky or weedy places. Never allow the flies to lie still on the water; if they sink it is better then jerk in short runs; in a word, tease the fish and they will respond. Make every effort to drop a fly on the spot where a fish rises; if no response, repeat the cast a few feet away with a new fly.

Casting the minnow and artificial lures, next to fly casting, is the most artistic mode of angling for bass; indeed, in some respects it is more difficult. The same method of casting will suffice for both live bait and artificial lures—the difference comes in when the fish strikes. With live bait the bass should be allowed from four to twelve seconds to gorge the bait before striking. With artificial lures the strike of the fish should be followed instantly by the strike of the angler to set well the barb before the fish can eject the lure, which it does instantly it discovers the deception.—Collier's.

BOROUGH BILLS ARE ORDERED PAID.

In addition to the passing of the sewer ordinance, the Borough Council transacted the regular routine business. A protest was received from the residents in the vicinity of Codington avenue against the erection of a barn in that community. The matter was referred to the building committee. Two petitions for street lights, one at the corner of Duer street and Gavin place, and the other for a light on Verdon street, were referred to the lighting committee.

Bills to the amount of $2,037.12 were ordered paid. The report of the Recorder, showing twenty-nine arrests made and $36 collected in fines during the month of August, was accepted. Councilman Stahl reported that the expenses of the fire department for the past month had been $307.62.

A bill received by the borough clerk from the F. L. C. Martin Co., for $104.92 for automobile hire at the time of the Buckley murder in April was ordered paid.

REBUKE FOR CANDIDATE

Mr. Fowler's Campaign One of Personal Vilification and Mean Insinuation.

SAYS THE ELIZABETH JOURNAL.

"Mud-slinging, Slurring and Carelessness of Assertion" Characterize Him in His New Role.

The Elizabeth Daily Journal, Republican, expressed its opinion of Mr. Fowler's campaign in its issue yesterday as follows:

"Congressman Fowler's campaign was begun on the low level of personal vilification, mean insinuation and the most repulsive kind of attack on the members of his own party. He has not only kept up this kind of campaigning, but by his example has incited others to mud-slinging, slurring and carelessness of assertion. Mr. Fowler's speech last evening, delivered before one of the smallest audiences which have greeted him anywhere this year, finely illustrated the kind of campaign he is waging. Under the circumstances it is not to be wondered at that the Congressman has alienated already scores of citizens who formerly stood by him.

"The Fowler campaign in the Fifth Congressional district should be compared by the intelligent voter with the contests which are being carried on by so-called progressive candidates in other parts of the country. It will take very little reading to appreciate the difference between the fight Mr. Fowler is carrying on and that of the progressive political candidate who is conducting himself sanely enough and intelligently enough to voice the sane way of thinking. Mr. Fowler's campaign smacks strongly of insurgency of a repulsive type, but it is far from being progressive as it possibly could be.

"The really progressive political candidate has, as a rule, put his campaign on the highest grounds. It is political ideals and not unimpressive and vitrolic personalities with which the sincere progressive deals. He has too much to talk about to dwell upon personal differences with his party associates. His desire is not to create party discord for its own sake. He has no personal differences to settle. He hopes to appeal to the intelligence of the American people by giving them something to think about which will impress them. Petty and spiteful criticism is barred from the campaign of real progressives generally.

"The people of the Fifth Congressional district have been quick to size up the situation as Mr. Fowler has developed it. They regard him as a disappointed politician. They have seen him grow more and more bitter following his defeat at the hands of Speaker Cannon. They have been quick to appreciate the fact that personal rather than political grievances have influenced him to conduct his campaign on the low level which the voters now find it. That he is dealing with General Wadsworth in the kind of fight which he is waging is not strange, of course."

REUNION OF VETERANS AT SOMERVILLE, SEPT. 21.

Baldest Man in Congress.

The baldest man in Congress is Representative Ollie James, of Kentucky. His head is as smoothly made and as highly polished as a billiard ball. One hot afternoon, when he was engaged in a heated colloquy with Mr. Payne, of New York, he shook his fist and wagged his head with great energy.

"Will the gentleman from Kentucky allow me to interrupt him?" queried Mr. Payne politely.

"For a question, of course," agreed James.

"Well," retorted Payne, "shake not your gory locks at me."

That ended the debate.—Popular Magazine.

JUNIOR SOCCER LEAGUE

Plainfield A. F. C. A Member of the New Amateur Football League.

SEASON OPENS IN TWO WEEKS.

New Organization Decides Not to Petition the A. F. A. for Admittance—Schedule of Games.

The Junior Amateur Soccer Football League, of which Plainfield A. A. is a member, has decided not to seek affiliation with the American Football Association, because it is the consensus of opinion of the members that they can pilot their own ship without the cost of joining the big body. The league will consider all its own protests and settle the amateur standing of its players for themselves. Any player who has not signed a professional or amateur contract to play for a senior team is eligible to the junior league. It matters not if he was a professional last year, so long as he hasn't signed a senior "blank" this year and doesn't receive money this year.

A schedule of Saturday games, providing for the opening of the season September 17, has been adopted, after the constitution was amended allowing any club that cannot play Saturday games to meet their opponents on Sunday when arrangements are mutually agreeable.

The Pomeroy Thistles, whose representative stated that his club had obtained the use of Weidenmann's Park, Newark, for their games, were admitted to the league as the eighth club.

Th use of "field tags" of uniform size, showing the color of the home club, has been decided upon. With the exception of the Pomeroy Thistles, who were given four days of grace, all the clubs must file their players' contracts with the secretary by tonight, and the forfeit money by Saturday, September 10.

Referees for each club furnishing a name, will be assigned by the president. The officials will have absolute power over the players and will be instructed to squelch any attempt at rowdyism by expulsion from the game, even if the team is reduced to six men. As no man can be replaced in soccer this will be a severe penalty. The schedule, with the name of the home club first, is as follows:

September 17—Elizabeth United vs. Eureka A. A., American Types vs. Marshall A. A., Nairn A. A. vs. Plainfield F. C., Thomas A. A. vs. Pomeroy Thistles.

BOLD BURGLAR NABBED

Patrolman McDonald and Doorman O'Gorman Make Important Capture.

NEGRO ARRESTED AFTER FIGHT

Prisoner May be Able to Enlighten Police on the Many Recent Burglaries—Third Degree Today.

In the arrest of William Connett, colored, twenty-one years old, the police of this city believe they have captured the most daring burglar who ever operated here. Connett was caught, after a struggle, by Patrolman Mc Donald and landed in a cell at police headquarters.

For some time past petty burglaries have baffled the police and in none of the crimes committed has the thief left any tangible clue behind. Last night, shortly before midnight Patrolman Mc Donald while inspecting the doorways along Madison avenue near West Front street, saw a suspicious shadow against the wall of the store of Honeyman Bros. agents for motorcycles, and as it aroused the suspicions of the patrolman he investigated.

McDonald is not timid, and after trying the door and finding it locked stepped back across the street to the saw a colored boy whom he knew and asked him to get the janitor of the building so that the door might be opened. In a few moments Mr. Honeyman, Doorman O'Gorman and McDonald were ready to enter the store. O'Gorman was taken the key in the lock and as the door turned inward he attempted to find an electric light switch. Just as he was reaching for one that he knew the position of, something brushed past him. Quick as a flash McDonald made a dive for the shadow and at the same instant O'Gorman came to has assistance resulting in the capture of the man who has given his name as Connett.

After starting for police headquarters, and apparently going without intentions of giving any escape, Connett suddenly dived for the street in an attempt to get out of the way of the cops. But it was useless. Before he could escape their clutches Connett was pinned to the pavement and was finally double handcuffed.

Patrolman McDonald's timely appearance on the scene of Connett's operations probably saved the Honeyman firm from considerable loss as their establishment contains valuable goods besides automobiles which involve much money.

Among the thefts reported to the police recently was the cash register in the store of Bernhard Mann, at 124 West Fourth street, where the cash box was taken from Mr. Mann's store and opened in the back yard. Twenty-nine dollars were abstracted and the register left.

During all the time that the burglaries have been going on Chief Kiely has all his men working hard, tried to get a clue to the perpetrator of the crimes, but until Patrolman McDonald's capture last night nothing tangible had been found. It is likely that both McDonald and O'Gorman will be commended for their bravery in capturing the man.

"FATHER'S DAY."

There is going to be a Father's Day next June. Mrs. J. B. Dodd, of Spokane, Wash., believes it is noble and inspiring to have a Sunday set apart every year in which to pay reverence to the mothers, but she also thinks the fathers should not be forgotten. She has made it her mission to see the fathers have a kind pat on the back and a kiss and be told how fine they are. She favors the third Sunday in June, and has planned that on that day every father shall receive a June rose and be praised for all the good things he has done in the year, and his delinquencies are not to be mentioned. Mrs. Dodd has enlisted the services of the preachers in Spokane and is forming an association by which she aims to spread the good work for father throughout the country. She already has begun an active campaign and is seeking to interest in her scheme women and preachers throughout the country. "I think it is time," said Mrs. Dodd, "that we do something for our fathers, a little thoughtfulness of this kind just to show them how much we appreciate all they have done for us will make them happier."

MRS. LAURA E. POPE DIED THIS MORNING.

Mrs. Laura E. Pope, widow of A. D. Pope, died this morning at the home of her son, George W. Pope, on New street, following a long illness from an incurable disease. Mrs. Pope's husband died on April 21 last, and since that time she has appeared to fail rapidly.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Pope was Miss Laura E. Bunting, and was the daughter of the late John King. As a well known carpenter and builder. She had been a resident of this city about fourteen years and had many friends. She is survived by two sons, James L. Pope, of Grant avenue, and George W. Pope, of New street.

"Is their garden a success?"

"Yes, indeed, but they still find it convenient to patronize the vegetable peddler."

NEW PHYSICAL DIRECTOR

Thomas B. Whittakes of Reading, Assumes His Duties at the Y. M. C. A.

HE SUCCEEDS G. L. LISTMAN.

New Man Has a Reputation as an Athlete and as an Organizer —All the Staff Have Returned to Their Work.

Thomas B. Whittaker, who was elected by the Board of Directors of the local Y. M. C. A. in July to take the place of George L. Listman as physical director of the Plainfield Association, assumed his duties in that capacity this morning. Mr. Whittaker came to this city last night from Reading, Pa., where he has been engaged as director of the large municipal playgrounds, and as city swimming instructor.

The new physical director comes here with a reputation as an athlete in track, football and swimming. He is also a good manager and capable organizer, qualities which are needed in his branch of work. He is especially competent in aquatic sports and has won many medals for speed swimming and fancy diving. He has raced against all of the crack swimmers in the country, including the world's champion, Charles Daniels. Plans have been made by him to make swimming one of the features of the physical department work.

The regular work in the department of physical training will not be formally started until the latter part of this month on account of the extensive repairs which are to be made to the gymnasium, swimming pool and locker rooms. All of the equipment in this department of the association is to be put in first-class condition, and the locker rooms are to be painted and renovated.

With the addition of Mr. Whittaker, the regular force for the Y. M. C. A. work is now back at its duties. Herbert E. Parker, the general secretary, returned from his vacation from his vacation, which he spent in Cleveland and Buffalo. C. William Bingaman has taken charge of the boys' work, after spending a month at his home in Buffalo, and Henry Wallie, the superintendent of the building and chief engineer, is again at work, after enjoying a two weeks' trip in New York State.

George L. Listman, who has been the physical director for the past few years, has gone to Montclair to take charge of the physical work in the Y. M. C. A. institution. Mr. Linsman, who has acted as assistant physical director and assistant general secretary for the past year, and who has won many friends in this city by his competent management, leaves the local association with the well wishes of the Springfield Training School at Springfield, Mass., where he will make a study of the theory of Y. M. C. A. methods in preparation for association work.

FASHIONS IN BLACK.

The serious and artistic gown builders are exploiting white and black as though it were an original combination. They are giving it the prestige of a new discovery.

Just why these two colors, brilliantly opposed to each other, should lean into such sudden and dominant fashion is not hard to find out. It is the echo of the British king's death. It began in Paris.

The odd part of it is that the juxtaposition of the two colors is heralded, even over there, as the success oft eh season. But it must be admitted that the French are committing them with more dash and sensationalism than we are doing here.

Everyone who is in authority thinks it will last through the winter, or rather, through the autumn. Time was when a combination, if acceptable, was intended for an entire season, but those halcyon days are ended, at least, temporarily. The dressmakers and manufacturers would be sorry to see them return, but all those who have a care too much to do in this world to run after a new set of fashions every other month would be delighted not to have reason to do so.

Some of them go so far as to devoutedly wish that a sleeve would at least remain in style until it had been worn twice. Judging by last winter's experience there is a happiness that we have no reason to believe will occur.

THE NEW CORPORATIONS

In Union County 142 Companies Were Formed in a Year.

THE CAPITALIZATION $8,655,100.

Forty-seven Have Principal Offices at Elizabeth and Thirty-one Here—Some Statistics as to Them.

Union county is the home of many corporations. During the past year, or from September 1, 1909, up to today, there have been 142 new corporations formed in the county. Of this number forty-seven give their principal office address as Elizabeth, while thirty-one have offices in Plainfield. The rest are scattered about the county, Rahway, Summit, Westfield and Cranford having quite a number. The aggregate total authorized capital stock of all the corporations organized in the county during the year is $6,656,100.

Of these new corporations, thirty-five are clubs and various other organizations not formed for pecuniary benefits. During the year Elizabeth has had fifteen such associations incorporated, while Plainfield has had four.

Real estate and manufacturing are the aims of most of the new corporations. During the year thirty-one real estate and brokerage firms were incorporated in the county. Seven of them have offices in Elizabeth while eight are located in Plainfield. There were also twenty-nine manufacturing concerns incorporated in the county. The products of these manufacturing companies vary from machinery to the making of teddy bears and mechanical toys. There are seventeen concerns dealing in merchandise incorporated during the year. Five of these companies are in Elizabeth, while six are in Plainfield.

Some interesting data regarding these new corporations may be obtained at the office of County Clerk Calvert, where the certificates are filed preparatory to being sent to the Secretary of State's office.

With the increase in the number of concerns in the county comes also an increase in the number of building and loan associations and banks, which is regarded as an evidence of prosperity. There were five savings institutions and building and loans incorporated in the county during the year. Four new religious organizations, two of them churches, were incorporated, which shows that the county is growing in religious as well as in business strength.

Other concerns incorporated during the year were three automobile companies, a water company, a steam laundry, a live stock company, two newspapers, five contracting companies, one hotel and six express and transportation companies.

EPISCOPAL CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN OCTOBER

The general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church, which will open in Music Hall, Cincinnati, October 5, is arousing great interest because of the important religious questions that are to be considered.

The delegates will go to the convention as the representatives of the Episcopalians in their respective sections of this diocese and the influence they exert upon the deliberations of the general body will indicate the prevailing sentiment of their district.

The delegates are representative of both the clergy and laity. At the diocesan convention held some time ago at Trenton, the following clergymen were chosen, in the order given, to represent this diocese: The Rev. Dr. Otis A. Glazebrook, rector of St. John's church, Elizabeth; the Rev. E. Broden Shepherd, of Riverton, and the Rev. Dr. H. H. Oberly, rector of Christ Church, Elizabeth.

The New Jersey diocese delegates will probably have different opinions on the questions brought up for consideration. Among the important questions to be debated are the adoption of a preamble to the constitution of the church which comes up for final action, the discussion relative to the election of a suffragan bishop and to the amendment to the constitution providing for the office of suffragan bishop.

Another point which will be thoroughly discussed is the so-called open pulpit canon. The indefinite wording in the amendment adopted late in the session of 1907, which has been interpreted both liberally and reactionarily. Indiscriminate opening of the Episcopal pulpits at this time is favored by none; Christian unity has not advanced that far yet. The majority seem to favor taking away any seeming liberty the law confers.

Oscar S. Straus, the American Ambassador to Turkey, has succeeded in obtaining the right for the exercise of religious freedom. The division of the Turkish Council includes educational and benevolent operations under Christian missionaries.

PEACHES TOO PLENTIFUL JERSEY FARMERS REPORT

The peach crop, on which so many of the farmers depend, is this year a failure, says a report from Whitehouse, not because the peaches are poor or few, but because they are so abundant that it will not pay to ship them to market. Only the very best will sell well enough to pay the freight, and the farmers are picking them as fast as they can at the best prices obtainable to get them off their hands before hope of marketing them at all has departed.

The best price for middling fruit on the tree in Hunterdon county is 17 cents a basket. Ninety cents has been obtained occasionally for the best. Never in the history of the State have the orchards borne so abundantly as this year.

From 40 to 45 cents a basket is the prevailing price for the best peaches at Annandale. One farm shipped 1,500 baskets yesterday and it is estimated that it will market 15,000 by the time the season has closed. No attention is being paid to the poorer fruit. The market is so glutted that it does not pay to ship any but the best.

LIFE IN THE OPEN.

Cycle-campers are certainly better off today than they ever were before, because big outfitting provides them with necessaries that are miracles of lightness. There is no need to think that, by confining oneself to the articles that can be carried on the bicycle, one must undergo hardship. A little thought beforehand, and a conference with one's companions, and everything necessary can be carried.

Nowadays tents are made which can be easily carried on bicycles. They are small and light, but afford enough room for two people. Of course, they are not "bell tents," but are made in the shape of a gable roof. The material is very light and as the parts are separate they can be shared by the cyclists.

Of pots and pans for cooking, too, there are no end. The best are aluminium, and ought to be carefully selected so that they will fit into each other—"nest" together, as the old saying has it. For the actual cooking nothing more elaborate than a spirit-stove can be carried; but it is surprising what an experienced cycle-camper can do with even that. I have heard of one camper who cooked a fowl over his in a most ingenious manner. Soon after breakfast he plucked the fowl and prepared it. Then he put it in an aluminium sauce-pan and allowed it to simmer for an hour. When the time came to strike camp he "jambed" the lid of the sauce-pan firmly on, putting a piece of paper over the sauce-pan first, and then pressing on the lid. Then he wrapped a portion of the tent round it all "to keep the heat in," and strapped it carefully to the carrier. By the end of the day that bird only wanted about half an hour's warming up to make it perfectly delicious.

Just one word of advice. It is not at all a bad plan before you start on a cycle-camping expedition to make an experiment in your own garden. Set up your tent, sleep in it, and cook your own breakfast in the morning. It is almost certain that you will learn much from this experiment, and may in this way save yourself trouble later on.

But a still better method of camping is to combine it with river boating. In the first place, it is possible to carry a great deal more in a boat than on a bicycle, and, consequently, the load is more evenly distributed.

One may have either a tent to pitch on the banks, or one may hire a boat provided with a canvas cover that converts it into a sleeping place at night.

This last has many advantages, an important one being that, as the banks of our principal rivers are not fond of campers, the boat with the canvas cover may come in useful in the event of a refusal from an owner to allow camping, for it is always possible to find a mooring place.

The couple will reside at Woodcliffe, Hudson county, near which place the groom is employed. He is well known here, where he has a large number of friends.

BOY SCOUTS HOME AGAIN

Plainfield Youth Returns From Ernest Thompson Seton's Camp at Lake George.

ENJOYED THE EXPERIENCE.

Each Scout Lived on Thirty Cents a Day; Cooked His Own "Grub" and Slept in a Tent—Just Like Real Indians.

The local party of Boy Scouts returned this morning from its two weeks' encampment at the Ernest Thompson Seton experiment camp on Silver Bay, Lake George, N. Y., all tired out from their long trip but tanned and the picture of health. The camp was a great success and the out door simple life, which the boys led while at the place, was beneficial to them in every way.

There were a hundred boys in the camp from all cities in the United States and the entire company was in charge of Ernest Thompson Seton, the noted author and forwarder of nature's charms. The camp was run as an experiment in the Boys' Scout movement, which has taken a strong footing in this city and has been the means of the formation of William D. Murray Council here, named in honor of William D. Murray of West Ninth street, who has taken a deep interest in the work.

The boys lived for two weeks in Indian style, sleeping in tepees and cooking their own food. There were eighteen tepees in the encampment, five boys living in each one. The would-be Indians were supposed to exist on thirty cents worth of food a day for each one. But the clear air of Lake George and the numerous branches of exercise made the Plainfield lads go far beyond that limit.

After rising at an early hour in the morning, the boys spent the day almost as they pleased, keeping out of doors all the time. The swimming in the lake was perfect and the canoeing was romantic, according to the local youngsters. Several long walking trips were taken and the boys climbed Black Mountain, the highest point in the vicinity of Lake George. Baseball and other sports were indulged in at the camp where the Plainfield boys showed up well.

Th food was purchased by each individual boy from the general store at Silver Bay and each boy was his own chef, waiter and dishwasher. At night a grand council was held to which every boy was supposed to be present. The Plainfield boys took a prominent part in these meetings.

Needless to say the local delegation was a jolly one and each member of it said that he had had the time of his life. The boys were ably managed by Chauncey R. Murphey, of Watchung avenue, who acted as the director and chaperon of the group. Mr. Murphey said that he had his hands full with his charge at times but the boys were a credit to the city in the way they took hold of the camp life.

Among those in the local party were: Chauncey Murphey, Cedric Ostrum, William Thompson, Schuyler Line, Frank Dunning and Murdock Hetfield, all of this city. Julian Hovey as a member of the party, from Washington.

CLEANING BLACK GOODS.

Where black must be worn in summer, as for morning, it is hard to keep it from getting gray and dusty looking.

A frock must be well shaken as soon as it is taken off, and the hem of the skirt gone over with a stiff brush. Then dust carefully with a fine whisk, using a soft velvet brush or piece of black crepe for silk or net trimmings.

This treatment should be insisted upon where a maid is kept, and otherwise should be done by the wearer. When the habit is once established it does not take long, and a frock is always ready when needed.

If the material has grown gray or shiny it can be freshened by wiping off with alcohol. This is particularly good for black hats and does not hurt crape if carefully applied.

Where black goods are much spotmon brown soap—such as is used in the kitchen. Sponge well with a thick suds of the soap, rinse and press on the wrong side or under a thick cloth to prevent shininess.

When mud stains remain on a black skirt after careful brushing they can often be removed by rubbing with half a raw potato.

Do not use ammonia to clean black gowns. This is a common cleanser, but makes the material, especially woolens rusty.

Black goods are apt to turn gray unless carefully washed. Black starch should be used.

Girls and Gifts.

The moment a girl is made of feel a sense of obligation for too costly or too frequent gifts she loses that happy sense of independence which is every young girl's right and should be one of her most carefully guarded treasures. Once lost, self-respect soon follows. Of course, there are occasionally careless or selfish girls who freely take whatever an acquaintance chooses to offer. Such girls can only learn wisdom by some unpleasant experience, if, indeed, they are capable of learning it at all.

TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY SPECIAL MEETING

At the request of the finance committee, a special meeting of the trustees of the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, was held last night at the home of the president, William S. Tyler, on West Eighth street. The evening was taken up chiefly in discussing the "financial needs of the society" to carry on the work at the camp and support the visiting nurse. This work requires a monthly expenditure of $300 and the society is now in need of funds.

As the work has passed the experimental stage here, and has been a proven success, the society hopes that many people will be led to contribute generous sums. A remarkable change has been noted in the patients under treatment at the camp and many have been discharged as a result of the improvement in health. There are always eight patients at the camp, there being accommodations for that number of people.

There was also a discussion about placing the Red Cross stamps on sale at Christmas time. This movement was started by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, and "arrangements for the sale of the Christmas seals were announced today. The national society has decided to use a seal, instead of the stamps, which caused much confusion last year, many using them in place of the regular postage stamps for postage.

The local society has planned to join the movement and will have the seals on sale here. The national society has reduced the cost of the seals to local societies from 20 per cent. to 10 per cent., which will mean at least $50,000 more for tuberculosis work in all parts of the United States. The stamps are to be designated as "Red Cross Seals" this year, and are to be placed on every piece of letter mailed on the front. It is expected that over 430 anti-tuberculosis associations and hundreds of Red Cross societies in every State of the Union will unite in the sale of Christmas seals.

The trustees also discussed plans for a large mass meeting to be held here in the fall, to be addressed by men prominent in the fight for the extermination of tuberculosis, and due announcement of the date and speakers will be made later. As this is the only society of its kind in the State that supports a camp, and it has attracted considerable attention in consequence.

ENJOYED SUMMER DAYS AT THE TUNXIS CLUB

Among the hundreds of Plainfielders who go to the seashore and mountains in the summer, few, it is believed, have had a more enjoyable time than those who have spent the time at the Tunxis Club, Tolland, Mass. Although this club is but a few years old, it now owns more than six thousand acres of valuable land in a picturesque part of the Berkshires.

During the past few years many Plainfielders have been attracted to Tolland, through the influence of Miles Roberts, of this city, who is treasurer of the club and an enthusiastic member of the colony, and many handsome bungalows and small cottages have been erected there, including those owned by Mr. and Mrs. John B. Cottrell, Miss Harriett Halloway, Mr. and Mrs. Miles Roberts, while the Misses Cahoone, of Watchung avenue, possess one of the finest summer homes in that section, where they spend a greater part of the year. As a delightful place to spend the warm weather, Tolland combines all of the natural beauty of mountains, together with a large lake, a mile and a half long and a half-mile wide, which is situated directly in front of the clubhouse and cottages. Here is to be found fine boating, bathing and the best of fishing, the water being stocked with bass, pickerel, perch, while but a short distance away is one of the best trout streams in Massachusetts.

Among the many Plainfielders who have been at the club during the summer are Albert B. Beers, Dr. and Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson and son, Witter, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Hopton, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McBride, Mrs. McBride formerly being a soloist at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church; Mr. John S. Zelie and son, J. church; Mrs. John S. Zelie and son, J. S. Zelie, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Dobbins, while those who have spent the summer there are Mr. and Mrs. Miles Roberts and sons, Blakeslee and Stewart, and daughter, Dorothy; Mr. and Mrs. John B. Cottrell and five children; Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Halloway and Miss Harriet Halloway.

During the fall and winter months there is fine hunting at the club and many of the members, including Travers Carman, of "The Outlook," and Mr. Brewer, together with their friends, visit Tolland in search of game which is always plentiful. Among other members of the club is Mrs. Charles W. Foster, of East Seventh street, who, with her children, plans to visit Tolland some time during the summer season. Several

A PLAYGROUNDS SOCIAL

PRAISE FOR THE MONITORS.

Many Mothers Take Opportunity of Seeing What the Public Amusement Scheme Means for Their Offspring.

More than two hundred children enjoyed the lavish refreshments provided for them yesterday afternoon at the final function of the playgrounds. Parents who were prevented from attending the dances on the previous day appeared in numbers yesterday and entered into the spirit of the event with some of the enthusiasm of the children. Mothers, who had not had the time to see what was being accomplished by their offspring during the heated weather had a chance to see yesterday what had been accomplished by Miss Moe and others who have had the children in charge.

Dances of the old folk character were performed on Tuesday afternoon. As was told in the Daily Press yesterday, the dances were executed with the accompanying voices of the children, and with the utmost precision. Some of the mothers present yesterday were: Mrs. Gildersleeve, Mrs. Weisman, Mrs. Kiely, Mrs. Wall, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Schroeder, Mrs. Reubenstein, Mrs. Dugan and Mrs. Ord.

The girls who took part in the folk dances were: Maude Feale, Minnie Gildersleeve, Margaret Price, Ida Butler, Edna Strauss, Ruth Carder, Bessie McGoldrick, May Burke, Sadie Hart, Elsie Hart, Lillian Ryno, Loretta Kneiff, Thora Vail.

The boys who amused the audience with their tumbling on the big platform and who seemed to disdain the hard surface were Daniel Kiely, George Gildersleeve, Raymond Sherer, Randall Rubenstein, Edwin Dugan, Robert Bowers and the three sons of Rev. Mr. Tilden, Rufus Clifford, Harry Vail, Robert Price, Richard Cass, Truman Sharp and Harold Wilson.

The monitors to whom much of the credit is due for the discipline maintained at the grounds during the summer are: Ethel Runyon, Helen Weissman, Maude Morris, Eva Little, Mildred Clark, Frederick Quentin and others.

There appears to be doubt as to the value of the public playgrounds and there is enthusiastic endorsement yesterday.

HERE AND THERE.

Judge Gaynor, Mayor of New York, who holds that "all honest folk should be in bed before midnight," would find Vienna a city after his own heart. The Viennese are subject to a form of impost unknown to America, the "sperr-geld," or door opening tax. They all live in flats, and the street entrance is invariably bolted at 10 p. m. When the bolts are drawn persons passing in or out must pay twopence until midnight and fivepence from that hour until 6 a. m. The to" is levied every time you go through the doorway. If you post a letter you have to pay to go out and pay to come in. If you dine with a friend and stay smoking until the small hours, it costs you fourpence to leave his house and fourpence to enter your own. The janitors or "house masters", as the Viennese call them, draw handsome incomes from this source, although persons influential in other respects strongly object to paying "sperrgeld," and will hurry over a costly dinner to save twopence.

"Your political reporters cannot be believed any more," said a friend to James Kerney, editor of the Trenton Times and a member of the Civil Service Commission, in the State House the other day.

"Why?" asked Kerney rather briskly.

"Well, one day last week I read an item in your paper purporting to describe a visit of James E. Martine to the State House and in the article appeared this sentence: 'Mr. Martine refused to talk politics.' How do you expect people to believe such stuff as that?"

"I don't," replied the editor.

New Attache a Plainfielder.

William Vroom, the new state carpenter at the Plainfield theatre, is a Plainfielder by birth, although he has not been here for several years. When a boy he resided on West Second street. Since leaving Plainfield he has been connected with some of the largest theatres in the country as stag carpenter, and is an expert in the business.

Defeated at Nyack.

In the tennis tournament of the Nyack Country Club for the Nyack Country Club for the Nyack Challenge Cup in Women's doubles, Miss Edna Wildey, the local expert, together with Miss Adelaide Browne, defeated Mrs. John Weeks and Miss Griffin, in the semi-finals, 6-4, 6-1. They were beaten, however, in the finals by the score of 6-4, 4-6, and 6-4. The victorious pair was Mrs. H. Pouch and Miss Louise E. Hammond.

INTERESTING STATISTICS CONCERNING MINISTERS

A bulletin just issued by the government gives facts never before collated about Christian ministers in American cities, their number and salaries, and about the mortgage debts of churches. The figures are for 1906, but have just been made public.

There were 164,820 Christian ministers and 1,084 Jewish rabbis in the United States in 1906, and they increase at the rate of nearly 4,000 a year. Their average salary is $663, and there was paid to them in 1906 a total of $69,667,587. Baptists and Methodists have more than the whole number of ministers in the country, due to their large number of small churches, especially in rural districts.

The highest salary ever offered a minister to preach in New York was $18,000 a year and a house offered last year by the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, Manhattan—and declined! Several ministers receive $15,000 a year, and there are a dozen or more who get $12,000.

These salaries are the highest in the world. London and Berlin averages are hardly more than $3,000 a year. That is, a London minister who gets $3,000 is near the top.

The government shows the average salaries of ministers in cities having 300,000 population and over to be: Baptist, $1,017; Congregational, $1,938; Methodist, $1,642; Presbyterian, $2,450; Protestant Episcopal, $1,873; Reformed, $1,938; Roman Catholic, $684, and Jews, $1,492.

In the smaller cities and rural districts, ministers salaries run away down. Baptists in the south average $334, and colored Baptists in the south $227. On the other hand, bodies that are strongest in the cities, like Baptist, $1,017; Congregational and the Roman Catholic, the averages stay about the same.

For example Unitarians receive the highest average salaries of all, their figures being $1,543. The Protestant Episcopal ranges down from $1,873 to $1,517, while Roman Catholic does not fall off at all, the rural districts ranging higher than the average, at $724.

In actual money, Methodist ministers get most of all, their salaries amounting annually to $16,150,000. Baptists receive $10,322,000, Presbyterians $7,610,000, Roman Catholics $6,779,000 Episcopalians $4,154,000, Reformed $1,682,000 and Jews $911,000. It is estimated on the basis of increase that in 1910, $100,000,000 will be paid in salaries, and that congregational expenses, missions and extensions will involve $200,000,000 more.

FURNACE 'PRODUCER GAS' PATENTED BY JERSEYMAN

After four years of study and experiment with the invention, the States Patent Office has finally granted full patents to W. C. Finck, of Elizabeth, for his method of applying "producer gas" to furnace use. This method has been adopted in many large foundries and smelting works where it has succeeded oil fuel and has given better results at great'y reduced cost. During the past year Mr. Finck has received royalties on his invention, but now, with his rights fully protected, all manufacturers will be forced to pay for its use.

As "producer gas" can be manufactured very cheaply, Mr. Finck began to study a method of increasing its efficiency. After years of study he has worked out a device by which the heating power of the gas is doubled. The gas has a heating power of 1,500 degrees Fahrenheit, but with the new invention this becomes 3,000 to 3,600 degrees. Since the gas can be made at two cents a thousand cubic feet and possesses such high heating power, its mercantile value is immediately evident.

All the prominent scientists of the day have been visitors at Mr. Finck's laboratory in Orchard street, studying and experimenting with his system, but all failed to account for it scientifically until Prof. Looms, the best expert at Princeton, and Edgar Finck, the son of the inventor, accounted for it according to the laws of science.

The Government experts were so astounded at the invention, which seemed contrary to all laws of science, that they refused to give patents for the gas, and built their own plant in Washington, studied it and found the results exactly as claimed by Mr. Finck. The evidence being directly before them, they could no longer deny it.

Among the many large concerns now using the invention are the Westinghouse Smelting Works in Utah, the Westinghouse Company, American Locomotive Works at Richmond, Va., and the American Iron and Steel Company at Lebanon, Pa.

Mr. Finck has also discovered a new metal not yet named which resembles platinum in its properties, and is known as Finck's metal, which is in the School of Mines at Columbia University. Another invention made by Mr. Finck is a machine for making wire-cloth, a device considered impossible for may years.

IN CLEVELAND'S MEMORY

Tower at Princeton Univ. to be the Nation's Monument to Dead President.

THE COST WILL BE $100,000.

Already $75,000 Has Been Raised and an Appeal is Made to Jerseymen for the Balance.

Announcement has been made of the completion of plans for a national memorial to Grover Cleveland at Princeton. It will take the form of a tower 150 feet high and 40 feet square at the base, which will be erected upon the tract known as the old golf links. On that site it will be distinctly visible from the public highways and the railway. The material will be silver and gray stone.

Selection of a site awaited decision in regard to a group of buildings for the Graduate School of Princeton University, with which Mr. Cleveland was closely identified in he last years of his life, and for which bequests aggregating several million dollars have recently been made. The perfected design is to cluster these buildings around the tower, making a fine architectural mass.

The tower will be a plain, dignified shaft, without external ornament of any kind. A statue of Mr. Cleveland will probably be placed in one of the rooms in the large base. It is also thought will be other accommodation for memorial purposes, including personal and national relics associated with Mr. Cleveland's life work.

This memorial has been undertaken by friends of Mr. Cleveland, who formed an association to raise funds and arrange other details. The cost of the tower will be $100,000, of which $75,000 has already been pledged. Subscriptions have ranged from $1 to $5,000, and have come from all parts of the country.

Appeal is made for the remaining $25,000. The officers of the association are Senator John F. Dryden, of Newark, president; President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton University, vice president; Daniel S. Voorhees, of Morristown, treasurer, and Henry D. Winton, of Hackensack, secretary.

LOCALS WIN FIRST GAME

Ward Outpitches Archer and Plainfield Defeats McNulty Bros. in Morning Contest.

TWIRLERS HAD GREAT CONTROL

Doerflinger's Men Bunch Hits in Third and Clinch Game—Jack Martin, Ward and John Payne the "Stars."

In a hard pitchers' battle between Ward and Archer, the Plainfield team took the long end of a 3-1 game on the Oval Monday morning, and it was the superior twirling of the local box artist that did the trick. The locals managed to bunch their hits in the third inning, and clinch the game with a lead of one run. Another tally was added in the seventh and the visitors never had a look in after that.

Ward was the whole show for the Doerflinger aggregation although the team work of all the nine men was a big factor in their final result. The new twirler allowed the New Yorkers only seven scattered hits and didn't give a single free pass. At the bat he was there in every sense of the word for he clouted out three safeties out of four times up. Archer, the New York pitcher, was touched up for ten hits and although he too donated no bases on balls, four of these safe cracks came together and lost him the game.

The feature of the game was the speedy work of Jack Martin at short stop. He took ten chances without a misplay and handled some of the hottest liners as though they had been easy pop flies. He was handy with his stick, disgruntling Archer with two clean safeties. But another feature of the contest (and this was a disagreeable one) was the queer umpiring by John Payne. Several of his decisions on both sides were of the cross-eyed order, and stirred the anger of the hungry fans.

The McNulty Brothers scored the first run of the game, making the tally in the third inning. Reeves got a life on a fielder's choice and came home when Deroizer doubled along the right field foul line. The hit was plainly a foul, for the ball struck outside of the diamond and a foot and a half outside of the foul line—but the "ump" didn't see it that way. And that is the reason why the McNulty's two weren't shut out in the morning game.

In the locals' half of the third two runs weres cored and clinched the game. Boyd sent a two sacker to left, crossing the rubber when Emery singled to deep center. Jack Martin was equal to the occasion and clouted a beauty into the wilds of left field and Emery came home with a tally. Nelson singled but the next two men sent up pop flies and here ended the scoring for that inning. In the seventh round, Fritts started things a moving by lacing a neat hit to center. He reached second on Brit Martin's sacrifice and came across on an error by McGrath.

In the first inning, Ward pitched himself out of the hot hole. Pfeiffer slammed the first ball over the pan for a double, making third on Dowling's single. The Plainfield twirler fanned the next two batters and McGrath sent up a weak pop fly to Jack Martin, thus ending the suspense for the local fans.

The joyful story:

LABOR DAY ON THE LINKS

Events at the Country Club and the Park Golf Club Courses.

Although weather conditions were not ideal for golfing, the numerous events attracted a large field to the Plainfield Country Club, Monday, while the clubhouse was thronged all day with members and friends enjoying the cool breezes, as well as the lunches and dinners served. The social features were much enjoyed, as was also a dance in the evening.

In the morning there was an 18-hole medal play handicap, for both Class A and B. William T. Glenney won the Class A event and George S. Clay the Class B competition. The best scores:

Class A—William T. Glenney, 75-6-69; Howard G. Lapsley, 89, 15-74; C. C. Burke, 91, 15-76; R. G. Morse, 90, 13-77; H. T. Eaton, 93, 15-78.

Class B—George S. Clay, 91, 23-68; William T. Kaufman, 90, 16-74; W. King, 104, 25-79; A. M. Holstein, 106, 27-79; James P. Murray, 99, 18-81; Silas P. Wood, 105, 20-85.

The afternoon event was an 18-hole medal play handicap, four-ball match, the players taking for their handicaps one-half of the low plus one-third of the high. C. W. King and G. M. Holstein were the winners with a net of 64. The scores:

C. W. King and G. M. Holstein, 85, 21-64; Leighton Calkins and Morris Dumont, 74, 7-67; R. G. Morse and Stuart H. Putter on, 79, 10-69; E. P. Goodwin and H. L. Hall, 87, 14-73; Silas P. Wood and William T. Glenney, 80, 6-74; H. R. Stockton and Clifton Wharton, Jr., 83, 9-74.

There were numerous holiday events at the Park Golf Club, yesterday, attracting a large field. Throughout the day there were social features at the clubhouse, and in the afternoon tea was served, at which President of the women members presided. The game contains all of its popularity, as was shown in the large number competing for honors.

There was the initial play for the Oakmont cup, offered by L. K. Hyde, weekly competition until Election Day. The best scores were as follows:

W. E. Lough, 100, 24-76; U. G. Tingley, 102, 25-77; W. V. Byard, 89, 21-78; W. R. Faber, 103, 22-81; Dr. H. E. Carroll, 99, 16-83.

In the play for the Holiday cup, 36 holes, the leading scores were as follows:

W. V. Byard, 199, 42-177; W. E. Lough, 207, 48-159; U. G. Tingley, 201, 50-151.

There was also the initial play for the Ladies' Autumn cup, nine holes, the play to continue weekly until November 1. The point-winners:

Miss E. Bird, 50, 3-47; Miss Bess McElyea, 50, 2-48; Miss Grace Tenbyck, 66, 13-53. This aggregation and putting competition was won by Miss E. Bird and W. E. Lough with a score of 9, while A. M. Morrell was the winner of the driving competition.

Another event was the qualifying round for the Fnall championship, and the sixteen who qualified will continue at match play next Saturday.

THE NEAT GIRL.

We all have among our acquaintances the girl who, without being in the least good-looking, always manages to look neat and welldressed.

Perhaps she has only a small dress allowance, and whenever you happen to meet her she looks smart and attractive, while other girls, with twice te hmoney at her command, too often look shabby and dowdy.

What is the secret? Nothing more or less than taking care of her clothes: she has a place for everything, and everything is kept in its place, her ribbons, gloves, handkerchiefs, etc., are not all huddled together in one drawer, neither do they lie about on the tables and chairs until they are wanted. Every article of apparel is put away with the most scrupulous care, first being dusted, shaken or mended, as the case may be.

There is a great difference, too, in the way in which girls put on their clothes, and very often a girl dressed in a shirtwaist and plain skirt will look twice as neat as one clad in an expensive gown, the reason being simply and solely this: the one has put her dress on anyhow, the other has taken care that all shall be neat and fresh.

It is the duty of all parents to see that their children are taught from their babyhood to take proper care of their wearing apparel, for the child who lets he clothes drop on her room in a heap on the floor invariably grows into the careless, untidy woman with whom we are so familiar.

A large tube or roll of art cardboard or heavy paper, covered with linen and embroidered—or rather, covered with linen that has been embroidered—will keep centrepieces and like embroideries from showing the wrinkles of careless use. Book cloth lines the tube and the whole is fastened and bound with inch-wide satin ribbon, which ends in strings wherewith to fasten the tube after rolling. Place a sheet of blue tissue paper between each two pieces after laying them within; this will keep their color from turning yellow as they are laid away for any considerable length of time.

HINTS FOR THE GARDENER.

In locating shrubery plant the small sorts in clumps; not too many nor too closely, three or five together, to give a massed effect. These may be the same or different varieties to please the taste, and used in the corner of road and in rear ornamental, or planted near the roadway. Larger growing shrubs look weall nearer the house and at the sides, and produce a well graduated effect from the background to street. Leave avenues of view far up and down the road and in front for mother likes to see father and the boys when they are coming home. Nothing can add effect to the well kept sward in front of a rural home, the contrasting side display enhancing its plain simplicity. Straight walks and driveways to front gates are necessary, parallel by no slantings, as long, straight flower borders give place to the seedtime, and the seasond yellow leaf is unsightly in masses.

In my opinion, says a correspondent, the best fowls for the small confined run in a town are Black Leghorns. Their bright plumage and smart yellow leks make them of attractive appearance, and they are well set up, shapely birds, that will make the most of their quarters, however cramped. There can be no doubt about it that in small runs the great point is to get birds that will lay well, keep fit and healthy, and make good table specimens, and all this the Black Leghorn will do. The handsome and finely upstanding for the back garden, for the proportionate results per bird are not sufficiently satisfactory, and if one contemplate beginning poultry at this time, take my advice and go in for birds of the Leghorn strain, and you will pay more for them in the first instance, but it will be to your profit in the long run. On account of the sooty surroundings of our cities, light-colored birds are totally unfitted for small suburban runs, and in Nature white birds, and other animals, too, for that matter, are seldom so strong as the dark ones. The dust bath is of the greatest importance to all poultry in close quarters, and it should be provided by every suburban dweller, while a supply of broken oyster shells or "grits" should also be given to the hens as material with which they may form their eggshells.

One of the most satisfactory fruits for the farmer's garden is the currant. It thrives best in a cool climate, but may succeed in warm localities, but may succeed in warm localities under partial shade. They grow in any well-fertilized garden soil, but may be planted close to a lawn fence. Set the plants four or five feet apart. In the early spring give them careful cultivation, and prune them so that a bush form results. Old canes must be removed and straggling shoots shortened. As with gooseberries, this fertilizer. Put a few forkfuls around the roots as a mulch in the fall, when it becomes well rotted. Of the red currants cherry, Fay, red Dutch and Grandaliare considered the most desirable kinds. The white and the white Dutch have been quite successful. In ordinary farm gardens plant lice do much damage, causing the leaves to curl and eventually injuring the plant. Those can easily be controlled by applications of kerosene emulsion. Make up the emulsion and apply it with a small brush broom, if only a few plants are to be treated. Where the number is larger any spraying outfit will answer.

Two Ideas.

The first was a millinery hint. The hat, in poke-bonnet shape, fitting closely to the blond head of the wearer, was of black net, and was with no trimming but a buckle and tassel of black wooden beads at the left side. But all round the inner edge there was a narrow frill, about an inch wide, of white pleated lawn with a tiny embroidery edge. The touch of white gave coolness and distinction to the whole hat. The other idea was a welcome change from the eternal black waist with white ruching, the waist worn by a woman evidently in half mourning, and consisted of a white tucked batiste waist, cut with a round Dutch neck, and with a folded collar edging of half-inch wide black lawn. Here again was excellent finishing touch produced simply by a reversal of the common-place and ordinary.

Poached Eggs and Macaroni.

Break some macaroni up into inch pieces, rinse well, put two ounces of butter into a fireproof dish, put the macaroni in and pour enough milk over it to cover it thoroughly, stirring it now and then. When three-quarters cooked, lift it out and put it in another dish, seasoning it well with pepper and salt, and pour over it half a pint of good brown gravy, then put it back in the oven again and leave it until cooked. When ready lay some poached eggs on it, sprinkle lightly with Parmeasan cheese, pepper and serve.

FEW SCORES POSTED AT PARK GOLF CLUB.

Although there was a large field at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, only five scores were posted in the weekly competition for the President's and golf club trophies, as follows:

U. G. Tingley, 97, 25-72; Charles B. Morse, 93, 19-74; W. V. Byard, 96, 21-75; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 96, 16-80; W. E. Lough, 106, 24-82.

LOCAL NINE LOST THE SECOND CONTEST

Amidst a hurdle of errors and a myriad of poor decisions, the Plainfield team failed to keep up its morning reputation in the game on the oval Monday afternoon and went down to defeat at the hands of the McNulty Brothers by the score of 6 to 3. The New Yorkers only made six hits against eight by the local batsmen but "bonehead" work on the bases was the added feature of the Plainfield playing. There were many chances when the local nine could have tied the score if the base runners and batters had only worked in unison, but alas, this virtue was not forthcoming and hence the defeat.

Warry McLaughlin was on the slab for the Plainfield aggregation and he pitched a good game at that, but poor support handicapped his chances of winning. Wolfe, the New York twirler, was not in the best of form, allowing four passes and being batted for eight hits. This weakens all the excuses of the local boys for not winning the game.

Pfeiffer and Dowling were the real article of baseball and had the fans cheering every few minutes at some startling plays. The New York console's foot stop made some miraculous stops, and Dowling's work with the willow and on the bases was all that could be asked for. Emery might also be commended for his clever playing on third base. He accepted seven chances without an error and added to the collection of hits with a two sacker at the critical moment. "Big Six" Nelson showed up in god form and proved to the fans that he can come back. Umpire John Payne distinguished himself almost as much as he did in the morning game.

A hit by Dowling, two errors by Brit Martin, and a single from Damreau's bat gave the visitors two runs in the fourth inning, and a hit and two sacrifices with Nelson's error, scored one more for the New Yorkers in the fifth. Plainfield came back in the fifth and tied the score; Brit Martin got a life on a free pass, going to second on Boyd's single. Emery then came along with a double to left, which brought the two men home, Jim reaching third on an error. Nelson singled and brought Emery home but here the scoring ended.

By some mean hitting mixed up with errors, the visitors managed to make three more tallies and win the game. Plainfield had several good opportunities to score but failed in the pinch.

The sad story:

OLD SONG REJUVENATED.

I cannot wear the old hair
I wore some months gone by,
I've laid it on the topmost shelf
With many a weary sigh.
No longer are they wearing puffs,
And rats are quite de trop;
I cannot wear the old hair—
Oh, what a cruel blow.

I cannot wear the old hair
For which good gold I paid.
Red hair is so expensive when
One gets the proper shade.
I felt si dressed when it was coiffed,
But I can't wear that old hair,
Alas for Fashion's whirls!

I cannot wear the old hair,
Four switches I must buy
And wind them round and round my head
As fat as they will lie.
My face is far too plump for this,
My nose is much too long;
But I can't wear the old hair,
It's altogether wrong.

DUNELLEN TWICE VICTOR

All Brunwicks and Caldwell A. C. Are Both Taken into Camp.

SOME GOOD TEAM WORK.

In the Morning the Score Was Two to One and in the Afternoon the Result Was Nine to One.

Dunellen took both games in the double header on its grounds Monday, defeating the All Brunswicks in the morning in an exciting game by the score of 2 to 1, and smothering the strong Caldwell A. C. in the afternoon to the depth of 9 to 1. McCroskey, a pitcher from New York, did the twirling against the Brunswicks and held them safe in the pinches. Jimmie Montross was on the mound in the afternoon and was invincible, allowing only three scattered hits. The borough boys worked together in great shape and accorded their pitchers good support. SATURDAY'S RESULTS AT THE COUNTRY CLUB.

The event on Saturday at the Plainfield Country Club was an 18-hole match play handicap against par, the players taking three-quarters of their medal play handicap. The competition was for both Class A and B players and the good scores were returned as follows:

Class A—Morris J. Dumont, 5 down; George S. Clay, 6 down; J. S. Erickson, 6 down.

Class B—H. J. Cochran, 5 down; George S. Clay, 6 down; William T. Kaufman, 6 down; Henry L. DeForest, 7 down; T. W. T. Maxwell, 8 down.

INDIANA CONGRESSMAN'S NOSE.

The Honorable W. A. Cullop, member of Congress from Indiana, has a long, long nose—some what would have made Cyrano de Bergerac's pale into insignificant flatness and general unobtrusiveness. What is more to the point, Mr. Cullop knows his nose.

He was standing in a crowded street car in Washington one afternoon, says a writer in the Popular Magazine, when he noticed a man staring at him in a fixed and unswerving manner. So frank was the stare that it peeved and irritated and ruffled Mr. Cullop—and reminded him of his nose. He stood first on one foot and then on the other, glared at the staring man, frowned and cleared his throat in a hostile tone. But the staring gentleman never batted an eyelid. He had evidently found something extremely interesting in the personal appearance of the member from Indiana.

"Look here, my friend," burst out Cullop in great indignation, "I know what you're looking at! You're looking at my nose and thinking how long it is. Well, I know it's long, all right, but you can bet it's never stuck into other people's business!"

GOLF COURSE RULES TO BE ENFORCED

At nearly every well-regulated golf club rules are in force governing three and four-ball matches on Saturdays and holidays, and at the Plainfield Country Club there will rule in force providing that on Saturdays three and four-ball matches are permitted to start only before 1.30 p. m., and after 3.15 p. m., and on holidays only before 9.15 a. m., between 10.30 a. m. and 1.15 p. m., from the first tee at any time while a two-ball match is waiting to play. Of course, these rules do not apply when four-ball matches are scheduled for competition.

During the summer, however, these rules have not been strictly enforced but from now on during the remainder of the season, it is the intention of the golf committee to enforce these rules strictly. At the Montclair Golf Club the committee has prepared a set of regulations and local rules which they have had printed on cards and distributed to members requesting that they carefully study the regulations which have been adopted for the purpose of preventing possible misunderstandings regarding etiquette and practice of the game, and the following extract from the reading of "Priority of the Course," will be of interest to those who follow the game here.

A single match (two players or a two-ball match), has precedence or right of way through three or four-ball matches (except on Sunday afternoons) when ready to be decided. The three and four-ball matches must give way when they see a single match approaching or on request at any time during the round.

Players in the match play rounds of a competition shall have the right of way from the first tee over those merely engaged in a handicap event or ordinary use of the links.

"A single player has no standing, and shall give way to a match of any kind," (rules of golf.) He must allow any match to pass (local rule.)

If a match fails to keep its place on the green and loses in distance more than one clear hole on the players in front, it may be passed on request being made (rules of golf.) It must give way on request (local rules).

In the case of a match starting out with a clear field ahead of it, that plays so slowly as to hold up a match behind, after one successive tees, it must give way on request.

Players looking for a lost ball should allow other matches coming up to pass them; they should signal the players behind them to come up pass, and having given such a signal, they should not continue their play until these players have passed and are out of reach (Etiquette of Golf). Players signaled to go through, either on account of lost ball or by reason of "rules of priority," must be allowed to pass out of reach before the match passed plays another stroke (local rule).

Note: Out of consideration for those following, it is the duty of players to play through under the above rules, rather than be held back and hold back the entire field that is following.

EIGHT MOS. RAINFALL TOTAL 29.24 INCHES

Weather Prophet John Nesgle's statistical report for August shows that the total rainfall from January 1, 1910, to September 1, 1910, was 29.24 inches. The normal amount for the same period of time is 23.74 inches, the deficiency being 4.50 inches. The mean temperature for August was .09 degrees below the normal and the precipitation for the month was 0.07 above the normal. The prevailing wind was northeast. The figures for August follow:

Make a Rose Leaf Pillow.

Gather the roses each morning while the dew is yet on the petals, for they are more fragrant then. Spread them on newspapers in an airy place to dry. It takes a large basketful of the dried petals to make a pillow. Mix with the petals a teaspoonful each of ground cloves and cinnamon and shake thoroughly. Put in a cambric tick and cover with silk or silkolien.

MR. FOWLER'S RECORD AS JOURNAL VIEWS IT

The following is an editorial expression of The Elizabeth Journal, concerning Representative Charles N. Fowler:

"It is inevitable that the critics of Congressman Fowler should at this time draw attention to the fact that his record of absences in the House of Representatives is discreditable. The people have a right to expect faithful attention to duty on the part of their public servants, and when they find that instead of faithfulness there has been neglect it is not at all surprising that they are finding fault. Indeed, Mr. Fowler must have expected, in view of the fact that his record of absenteeism is well known, that the people would ask, when he faced them again, for an accounting.

"Perhaps the best way to tell whether a member of Congress is paying proper attention to the duties of his office is by glancing at his record on roll calls. No one would be so foolish as to demand that a member be present every hour in the day while Congress is meeting. That would be unreasonable. But what about the record of the Congressman on matters of sufficient importance to cause a roll call? Whether he has voted as all his constituents thought he ought to is one matter, but to be absent when the vote is present to vote at all is quite another.

"Aye and nay votes are of frequent occurrence. They help carry along the routine. Roll calls in comparison are rare. Members may be excused for reasonable lengths of time, showing that they be legislative matters of importance are under consideration, without piling up an unenviable record for absenteeism. The record of Congressman Fowler, under the circumstances ought to be of interest to the voters of the Fifth Congressional district:

Congress.	Session	Roll Calls	Answered	Unanswered
Fifty-ninth	First	160	21	79
Fifty-ninth	Second	24	18	35
Sixtieth	First	272	121	151
Sixtieth	Second	44	7	37
Sixty-first	First	36	19	17
Sixty-first	Second	114	37	77
Total		649	223	377

"The labor union men are now complaining about Mr. Fowler's record from their point of view. They point out specific instances where his vote has been cast against their interests. Doubtless the representative of the Fifth district has reasons for voting as he has and can defend himself if he thinks it necessary. But the really conspicuous feature of Congressman Fowler's so-called "labor record" is that he has voted not at all. Naturally the trade unions refuse to overlook this now, holding that a man elected to represent the people is expected to let them know where he stands by his vote on measures in which they are interested.

"How it can be expected that the needs of laboring men or of the district generally will receive consideration from a representative with so bad a record for absenteeism is difficult to figure out. The argument has been heard that Mr. Fowler is interested in 'a big problem', and that he has to devote his time to it. It is said that he has spent a great deal of time and money in an attempt to create an impression with bankers favorable to his views for reforming the currency system of the Nation. But somehow this does not satisfy the laboring man, or any other thinking voter in the district. In the first place, it is not his business primarily, and, furthermore, it is considered by no weak an argument to occupy the attention long. Whatever a representative in Congress may have for his special hobby, he owes it to his constituents that he try to serve them. He has no right to be absent from his duties. There is no excuse for persistent absenteeism in Congress except ill health.

"Doubtless Mr. Fowler's habit of absenting himself from the duties of his position led Judge Runyon to state in his declaration to the people:

"'I believe in independence of thought and action, and if elected, my highest aim as a Republican representative shall be to attend faithfully all sessions of the House; to give the best study to every public question; to deal fairly and honestly with every proposition brought forward for the consideration of Congress, and to make the affairs and interests of my own district matters of prime importance.'

"On first reading these words may have seemed very strange to the average citizen who does not follow affairs closely at the National capital. The idea of a Congressman promising to attend faithfully all the sessions!' some may have exclaimed. That would naturally be expected of any man chosen to the position. Is the thought which comes to us. To have a candidate promise to make the affairs and interests of his own district, matters of prime importance' seems equally absurd. But in neither case has Mr. Fowler's opponent made a mistake. He has struck at a sore point with the voters of the Fifth district, who realize that they must have a representative who both attends the sessions of Congress and looks after their interests. If he is big enough and interested to do more than this so much the better, of course."

MORELLO USED HIS GUN

Shooting at Scotch Plains Colony Arouses Entire Neighborhood.

APPARENTLY NO ONE HURT.

Italians Quarrel Over Money Matters and Morella Tries to Settle With Bullets.

Saved only because the aim of his would-be assailant was poor, Dominick Scrapello is thankful to be alive today. Scrapello and a friend named Morello, a fellow Italian came to a heated argument over money matters on Sunday evening with the result that Morello is alleged to be a fugitive from justice and is being sought by the police of Jersey City, Brooklyn and New York.

Early on Sunday evening it is alleged that Morello and Scarpello entered into an argument in which the principal theme was some money which Morello claimed that Scarpello owed him and which had been due for several months. Words of war followed the first claim and when words failed to convince Scarpello, Morello used his ever-ready gun. In all five shots were fired, none of which took effect, although it is said Scarpello fell to the floor as though wounded. None of the Plainfield police could detect traces of blood anywhere in the vicinity of the alleged crime and up to now none of the witnesses can tell what happened to Morello, excepting that he had made good his escape after the last shot from his revolver was discharged.

The noise of the altercation had attracted a numebr of the residents in the Italian colony near Hunter avenue, Scotch Plains, but it seemed impossible to obtain a coherent account of what actually transpired when Morello and Scarnello came together. Scarpello, it is said, has always borne a good reputation and it is further declared that the two men have held amicable business relations for several years.

A warrant has been sworn out for the arrest of Morello and a description of the man has been sent broadcast over the country. No one was struck by the flying bullets.

ROBT HERZOG HELD WITHOUT BAIL FOR GRAND JURY.

When Robert Herzog was arraigned before Judge William N. Runyon Monday morning in the city court, he pretended to not understand what was said to him, but his understanding was sharpened when he was told that he would be held without bail to await the action of the grand jury on one of the most serious crimes on the calendar.

If what is said by a sixteen-year-old girl who was brought before Judge Runyon that Herzog was guilty of the attempt upon her, and after her positive identification of the man he was remanded to a cell pending his removal to Elizabeth, where he will have to stand trial. Herzog claimed that he had but one friend in this country and that he would like to consult with her. She was sent for by Chief Kiely, and may undertake to act in defending the man.

THE FASHIONABLE WAISTLINE.

Where is our waistlines going?

Just as we are congratulating ourselves that we have a waistline once more and in its proper place comes the word that we must wear the "girdle a la religieuse" and have our skirts up under our arms.

Perhaps it is not quite so bad as that, though the proper place for the girdle is at least two inches above the natural waistline and every sign points that it will go higher.

The Empire line is in great favor for evening gowns, but not as it was formerly used in pointed shape, but in every instance a round line with an easy curve from the back to the front.

The Green Eyed Monster.

Charged with threatening to kill Mrs. William Holmes, a widow, colored, of West Fourth street, Thomas Edward Johnson, sometimes known as Grouch, was arraigned before Judge Runyon Monday morning and sentenced to hereafter leave the widow alone. This was the only remedy left when the stories of the warring colored people had been heard by Judge Runyon. Mrs. Holmes declared that Johnson had once declared that he would carve her unless she became his. He swore yesterday morning that he didn't want either her or any part of her relations. He wanted his clothes and was assisted in removing them by his employer who knows Johnson to be a respectable man. It would appear that jealousy had had much to do with the severing of the friendly relations of the two people.

Dr. Gardner's Fine Sermon.

Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardner, editor of The Recorder Press, preached a fine sermon at Trinity Reformed church, Sunday morning, taking for his text, 1st Timothy, 4-8, the last clause of the verse: "Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 11, 1910.

Topic.—Proud—of what?—Jer. ix. 23, 24; 1 Cor. i. 26-31; Rom. xii. 3. Edited by Rev. Sherman L. Doyle, D. D.

The Bible has a great deal to say about pride—our undue self esteem, personal exaltation and a feeling of superiority over others—which leads to a haughtiness and a lordliness over others that are contemptible and despicable. No Christian Endeavorer should ever possess such a spirit, for it is one of the most conspicuous of faults and at the same time one of the most unconscious after it has been allowed to fully develop itself in us.

There are many things in life of which men are proud that, instead of showing them to possess a noble spirit, proves that they are unworthy. Jeremiah quotes the Lord as saying, "Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might; let not the rich man glory in his riches." And yet how many are proud of these very things—wisdom, power and riches! But why should they be? Why should a wise man be proud? He inherits his wisdom or the ability to accumulate wisdom, so why should he be proud of what cost him little or nothing? Moreover, in the presence of God, who alone is all wise, their wisdom is foolishness, and "the foolishness of God is wiser than men," says the apostle. The heathen nations, declares the apostle, "thinking themselves to be wise, became fools." Thinking themselves wise, they forgot God, to whom they should have glorified God, and thereby they became fools.

Why should men be proud of their physical strength? They should not, answers the apostle, because "the weakness of God is stronger than men." How uncertain physical strength is! Who gave it to man but God, so why should the strong man be proud? And one who only normally strong adopts great strength shortens his days—certainly a poor cause for pride.

Why should the rich be proud of their riches? Much of it is inherited from others and is no sign of any unusual ability possessed by the heirs. Moreover, when personally acquired there is no room for pride. Nothing is more uncertain than riches. They fly from us, or we die and leave them. The rich fool in the parable of Christ said, "Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years," but the Lord said: "This night thy soul shall be required of thee. Then whose shall these things be?" What a contrast between "many years" and "this night!" But how often does this sentiment find utterance in this respect! Men toil and labor to lay up well, neglecting God and the higher aims of life. Gold is their God. When they have enough they expect to give up business, become religious and live comfortably for many years. But who ever gets enough, and if here and there a man does and settles down how long does he live to enjoy it? The least thing in all the world of which to be proud is money, and yet here is most exults, and the rich are proud and haughty and use their money to trample underfoot the poor.

Why should men be proud of their birth? Yet how many are! They may have lost fortune and everything else but high birth, and yet how haughty and proud they remain! It is bad enough to be poor in this world, but to be "poor and proud" is about the limit.

Why should men be proud of their personal morality? Yet many are. They are so strictly good that they have no need of repentance or of Christ to save them. They expect to be saved on their own merits, but there "is no other name under heaven given to men whereby we must be saved" except the name of Jesus.

If we should not be proud of our possessions or talents, what should we do? Thank God in deep humility for the extra bliss which all men do not possess. Glorify God and the crucified Saviour. God forbid that I should glory save in Christ and Him crucified.

Spurgeon and Belfast Union President.

"Herries, you'll do."

Herries was a student in Spurgeon's college, London. Mr. Spurgeon wished to test the ability of the senior students to make an impromptu speech in the presence of the professors and the whole college. He wrote a number of indifferent slips of paper and asked the students to draw one each. Each student was allowed two minutes to collect his wits, and then he was expected to get up and make a speech on the subject he had drawn. Mr. Herries drew "Zaccheus." He rose and said, "The subject that has fallen to my lot is Zaccheus, and no subject could be more fitting to me—firstly, Zaccheus was a little man, so am I; secondly, Zaccheus was up a tree, and I; thirdly, Zaccheus made haste and came down, so shall I." "Herries, you'll do," cried Spurgeon. Mr Herries was recently appointed president of the Belfast and district Christian Endeavor union. He comes from York-shire, England, where Christian Endeavor is very strong, and he will be a power in his new field.—Christian Endeavor World.

Hey, There, Christian Endeavorer!

Make hay while the sun shines.
Make hay if it clouds.
Make hay if the wind whines.
Make hay snowing shrouds.
Make hay any weather.
Make hay any crime.
Make hay altogether.
Make hay all the time.

H. G. ADAMS ENDORSED

For Position as Secretary to N. J. State Firemen's Relief Association.

HAS LONG VOLUNTEER RECORD.

District Court Clerk Since 1906 is Candidate for Position Held by William Exall, of Newark.

Whether William Exall, the present incumbent, secretary of the N. J. State Firemen's Relief Association, shall succeed himself and enjoy the emoluments of his office to the exclus'on of any other candidate will be a matter which will be threshed out at the annual convention of the association at Atlantic City on September 15. There is a feeling among those who are most intimate with the inner workings of the association that Horace G. Adams, one of the most active members of the old volunteer association, deserves the position now held by Mr. Exall, and with any doubt there will be a warm fight on for the position when the question comes up in its regular order.

Mr. Adams was endorsed for the position of general secretary at the meeting of the Exempt Firemen's Association meeting held in North Plainfield on August 8 and this endorsement will have considerable weight with the delegates to the convention. There is a feeling among the members of the relief association that a member of the exempts, and one who is not under the pay of the present paid department should have the office, which carries with it a salary of $800 per year.

Mr. Adams is well known as the clerk of the District Court in this city, was born in Newark February 1, 1871, and obtained his education in the public schools of that city. He came to Plainfield in 1887 and served an apprenticeship in the Pond Tool and Machine Works, afterwards being for many years in the employ of the Scott Press Works.

After his appointment as clerk in the District Court in January, 1906, Mr. Adams filled that position with more than ordinary intelligence and today enjoys one of the largest acquaintances among lawyers and other professional men in this city.

As to Mr. Adams' record in the old volunteer fire department there is no one who holds a better one. He entered the North Plainfield department in April, 1892, and served it with credit for years. He has been affiliated with the relief association since its inception and is at present one of its trustees. Mr. Adams has represened the association at its regular conventions for the past four years and has always taken a lively interest in the matters looking to the best for the volunteers. He believes that an old volunteer deserves the support of the entire association and he is out for the position.

FOR ICED TEA.

Iced tea has become the ntaional summer drink despite the doctors. Hence some of the interesting novelties for the serving make acceptable wedding gifts.

Iced teaspoons with long handles are rarely given, yet they are almost essential in tall glasses. Some of them have holdowd tubes for handles, used as straws. They are scarcely as sanitary nor are they as handsome as individuals that can be marked with a monogram.

There are long handled spoons to stand in an iced tea pitcher that are useful. Those with respousse handles are especially new. Iced teaspoons to match make a handsome gift.

Tall thin glasses especially for iced tea are always acceptable. Good looking ones can be had very reasonably, though those of cut glass and rock crystal are expensive.

Coasters are almost essential with iced tea glasses, as the moisture generated is bad for a bare table. The silver rimmed ones can be used for all kinds of glasses, but there are special glass plates or saucers made for iced tea.

As a smaller gift, a silver rimmed glass plate with small silver fork for lemon or a silver rimmed glass strainer and cup for lemon juice are appropriate accessories to a complete iced-tea service.

SALVATION ARMY OUTING ENJOYED BY CHILDREN.

A very enjoyable outing for poor mothers and children was given Saturday by the local corps of the Salvation Army. It was held at Wayside Park, Dunellen. At nine o'clock in the morning stages and trucks filled with happy children and mothers, about 150 in all, left the Salvation Army hall and made their way to the picnic grounds. Everything that would bring pleasure to the children was provided; suitable games and sports were enjoyed and prizes were distributed to the winners of the foot races.

An abundant lunch, consisting of sandwiches, bananas, ice cream, lemonade and cake was served free to all. Many mothers with their children remarked that this was the only outing they had had during the whole summer. The return trip was made by trolley.

From a Man's Point of View

Having strolled into the room unconcernedly, the mere man paused in surprise. His eyebrows went up. Nobody paid the slightest attention to him.

At one table his wife was pounding doggedly, determinedly, with a little hammer, something placed upon what looked like an old-fashioned bread-board. At a card table the young woman from three floors above hammered viciously with a little mallet at another bread-board. Between them, upright in a rocking chair, the young woman from the floor below wrinkled her fair brow as she tied mysterious knots in what looked like a heap of straw brought in from the barn lot.

"Excuse me," said the mere man, "but is this room No. 205, or isn't it? One gets so confused in a family hotel, you know—"

"Don't be any more foolish than you can help!" interrupted his wife, between poundings. "We're just doing Christmas things!"

"Oh!" said the man.

"It's brass work," explained his wife. "We are making electric light shades, the perforated kind. At least Mrs. Tryem and I are. Flossie, however, is doing raffia work."

"Well," said the man, strolling over to the basket weaver. "I'm glad that one of you girls knows about the value of fancy work. It sort of gives tone to the assembly and takes the edge off the remarkably crude and brutal heartiness with which my wife and Mrs. Tryem are conducting a perfectly good imitation of a foundry. How have you noisy people squared yourselves with the persons in the rooms above, below and on either side of you?"

"Why," explained Mrs. Tryem, "we don't know who's above us and the man on the left is out and the woman on the right is deaf, so it's all right."

"I am so glad it's all right," said the man. "If they telephone up from the office, telling us to quit the racket or get out, I can just explain in a few brief, well-chosen phrases that they needn't worry because it's all right and that I was told so on excellent authority. What odd ideas women have! Taking a nice, shiny piece of brass and spoiling it by punching holes all over it so they can hang it up and obscure what little light an unobstructed electric bulb gives!"

"But they are dreadfully pretty," protested his wife.

"Of course, that's different," admitted the man. "Give us beauty, even if we don't know it. If reacts on your soul and character, you know. I heard that once in a lecture and I've always remembered it, because the lecturer had such weird whiskers. But, say—you're 'way behind time! I can think of a money, and yet here you could simplify that work. That stiletto thing pounded by hand gets in only thirty or forty punches a minute. Just take your sewing machine, put in an extra heavy needle and run the wire through and let 'er go. Why, you could finish a whole shade in an hour!"

Mrs. Tryem gazed at him with speculative, fascinated eyes, but his wife looked scornful. "The chief charm of those things," she said, "is that they are hand work. Machinery-made stuff is always horrid. What could we do with the extra time if we did save it? We'd just have to find more things to do and for all you know they might be worse than this!"

"Then by all means don't," interupted the man, in haste. "Take just as long to do these as you choose. Do you leave the edges raw that way or do they go in tufts of Irish crochet or what? Otherwise I don't see what you are ever going to do with all the yards of stuff you've been crocheting. Do you have stated times to pound your fingers or how do you arrange that? Nobody has smashed a finger since I came in so I consider the entertainment a frost!"

"I can pound one of yours to jelly if you'll bring it over here," suggested Mrs. Tryem, pleasantly. "I might give you something to think about so you wouldn't continue to waste time as you've done the last ten minutes!"

"Anyhow," retorted the man, "it won't be a month before somebody will put on the market a machine that will punch the entire pattern on a dozen shades at one time with one punch and then you'll hate yourselves to think how you slaved! Flossie, here, little ladylike Flossie, is disturbing no one but herself with her work. She chooses to do harmless knots in pieces of straw, she just shall, bless her heart! You can burn up straw, you know, and get rid of it, but it's harder to dispose of brass. Of course, people can put a hole in the back yard and bury it, but in cold weather the ground is so frozen—"

"See here!" cried his wife, with poised hammer, "would you very much mind going down and talking to some of the men in the smoking room for about an hour?"

"Indeed, no!" said the mere man, with injured spirit. "Not when you have turned my happy home into a boiler factory. Of course, against Flossie I have no grievance. She can string straws for hours if she wants to!"

"Aren't men perfectly horrid!" said Flossie as the mere man closed the door after him.

CANDIDATES LIKE STEPHEN

Stoning of the Martyr Metaphorically Like Present Day Method.

"BEHOLD I SEE THE HEAVENS."

The Four Characteristics of St. Stephen as Revealed by Study of the Scriptures—The Two Prayers.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire did not preach on the subject announced in Saturday's papers last night, but he did more than that—he brought to the surface a greater element in character than perhaps his original topic would have developed. The topic announced, "Christian Character," might have had some reference to aspirants for political office in the approaching campaign, but who knows?

The thought for the present must therefore be confined to the subject actually selected by Mr. Maguire and the announcement made from the pulpit of having to a mistake of his own a wrong impression was given in the newspapers as to what the topic would be.

Selecting Acts, 7-56, "Behold I see the Heavens open and the Son of Man standing on the right hand of God," Mr. Maguire drew three vivid pictures of the death of Stephen, beginning from the stoning of the martyr to his transition from earth to Heaven. Both of these pictures were described in language which cannot be reproduced in type, that is to say, so that it will reach with the same impulse the senses of those who might best be benefitted by the telling. However, the four pictures of the stoning to death of Stephen as described and commented upon by Mr. Maguire will remain a living memory among his hearers.

The four situations were those of Stephen seeing into the heavens; the result of his vision of Christ; the stoning and finally the two prayers of the martyr in which the first was was for his own soul and the second for the men who were stoning him to death.

The only reference to politics or politicians made by Mr. Maguire was that in which he likened candidates for office who were likely to be subject to persecutions to St. Stephen. He declared to those who sought office that they must bear with the stone throwers.

A GUESSING-LUNCHEON.

Girls who want to give clever midday feasts to their friends should try a guessing luncheon, in which all or many of the dishes are given names.

Every guest is given a chance to find out what the food is before the feast is served. Cards are handed around and small pencils. There are a dozen or more sentences written on the card, each of which stands for a food. The one who guesses the most of these correctly is awarded a prize. It is not necessary to serve the food; it is only necessary to guess it. A jumble would result if the hostess served the luncheon which is on the card.

One of the best of these is as follows:

1. Emblem of silence—Oyster.
2. The penalty for looking backward—Salt.
3. Made keen by its mother—Vinegar.
4. Boston diet—Beans.
5. Forbidden to Jews—Pork.
6. Emblem of stupidity—Goose.
7. Universal crown—Hare.
8. Largest part of the foot—Sole.
9. To shrink from danger—Quail.
10. Ludicrous situations—Pickles.
11. Tailor's tool—Goose.
12. Country of the "Sublime Porte"—Turkey.
13. One of Noah's sons—Ham.
14. Woman's weapon—Tongue.

PUTTING OFF.

"What made you stop right in the middle of your sentence, and then start talking about something entirely different?" The questioner laughed, and her friend joined in as she replied to the puzzled query.

"If I think in time, I make it a rule never to say today the mean thing that can be put off until tomorrow," she explained. "By tomorrow it is out of date and does not get said at all."

Which goes to prove that putting off—of a certain sort—is not always the bad habit we have been used to believe it. How about the falsehood that tempts us but off until a quiet moment, it is easily banished forever, and one can be honestly glad that he did not "do it now." What of the doubtful amusement? Put aside until one has time to investigate or think it over, it loses its lure. Whoever repented of the ill-considered put off until later reflection or greater courage came to conquer it?

Biscuit Dough.

When you have tea or baking powder biscuit dough ready for cutting, instead of making plain biscuit, spread the dought with butter, sprinkel with sugar and dust lightly with cinnanon, roll like a jelly roll and cut into slices an inch thick, and bake in moderate oven. These are excellent with tea or coffee for lunch or breakfast.

Making Him Feel at Home

"It was perfectly dreadful!" said the girl with the imitation Irish lace collar, as she straightened the bolts of ribbon on her counter.

"It must 'a' been funny! What was it?" said the girl who was marking the price tags.

"I just shriek whenever I think of it!" pursued the girl who was straightening the ribbons. "Him calling me up like that when I hadn't seen him in such a time! You see, I've been keeping steady company now with Mr. Sykes for several weeks, so Art and me haven't seen much of each other."

"I think Art is better looking than James Sykes," interrupted the girl who was marking tags. "He has more style!"

"Well, he hasn't got the salary if he has the style!" said the young woman who was straightening the ribbons. "Not that money makes a particle of difference to me, but there's much more to Mr. Sykes than you'd think. And any one who makes fun of his size doesn't know what she's talking about, and—"

"I ain't got no grudge against Mr. Sykes' nose," said the girl who was marking tags. "He can have any kind of a nose he wants and welcome. What'd he do?"

"Oh, Mr. Sykes didn't do anything," said the girl who was arranging ribbons. "You see, he generally comes over on Wednesday evening, so when somebody called me on the phone I s'posed it was Mr. Sykes, and—"

"'Hello!' he said. 'Going to be home this evening? All right, I'll be over.'

"I had on my blue dress and I got out the curling dish and the stuff to to make fudge. You wouldn't believe how fond of chocolate fudge Mr. Sykes is! He likes it with nuts in it, and—"

"So does everybody else," said the other girl, ruthlessly. "He ain't no different from the rest of the world when you come right down to it, even though you may think so!"

"Well, anyhow," pursued the girl with the ribbons, "when I heard the bell ring I ran out part way down the stairs to meet him. He sort of likes to have me act as though he was welcome, you know."

"Huh!" said the other girl. "Why don't you have it woven on a door mat?"

"Maybe you think you're funny!" indignantly said the young woman at the ribbon counter. "Just as I made the turn in the stairs I ran right into him. And who do you suppose it was? It was a duke!"

"Well," said the other girl, pausing in the operation of marking tags, "what'd you do?"

"If you could 'a' seen his face!" giggled the girl at the ribbons. "Sort of bewildered and embarrassed and uncertain! There was I rushing down the stairs in my eagerness to meet him, as he supposed, and I guess he thought at first I'd been just sitting at home all these months waiting to hear him ring at the door. Then he got a long hold of the newel post and burst out laughing, and after I started I couldn't stop! I simply shrieked! I wish you could 'a' seen him!"

"What'd he do?" asked the other girl.

"He got hold of my shoulder and shook me and wanted to know what on earth was the matter," giggled the girl at the ribbon counter. "And of course I couldn't tell him that I wasn't expecting him. He kept asking what was so funny, and whenever he did I'd start to laughing again. When he saw the things out for the fudge it sort of proved that I did expect him, but that's the girl doubtful again.

"'Lizzie,' says he, finally, after figuring it all out, 'I bet you thought I was someone else!'

"'Why, Art!' I cried, just as mournful as I could, 'didn't you telephone you were coming?' And then I got to laughing again.

"He's bright, Art is. 'But I forgot to say who I was,' he insisted.

"Then I told him that I'd know his voice among a thousand and he told me I was the dearest girl a-livin' as ever, and most of the fudge boiled over, and it was just like old times. Art got real cheerful until I took some of the fudge and put it away, because I wanted to save it for Mr. Sykes. I told him I was saving it for father.

"'Father be blowed!' Art said then. 'Your father'd rather have some fine-cut any day than chocolate fudge! You're stringing me, Lizzie—you've got some one else up your sleeve!'

"I thought I might as well make a good job of it, so I told him solemnlike that there wasn't another man on earth but himself, honest!"

"Did he believe you?" inquired the girl with the ribbons.

"I think he had his doubts," giggled the girl who had finished assorting the ribbons. "But he is coming to see me again to-night."

Heraldry.

According to the highest authorities, heraldry finds its starting point in the totemism of prehistoric man. In the barbaric custom of painting or carving the totem on oars, the bows and sides of canoes, weapons, pillars in front of houses, etc., and in tatooing it on the various parts of the body, as we have the real origin of the insignia that are so precious to the upper-tension of to-day. It was in the ignorant superstition of the savage that he sprang from a crane or a bear or some other animal that the various "coats of arms" of the "big families" of the present time found their inception.—New York American.

SEARCH FOR HEIRS OF MICHAEL CURRAN

Chief of Police Kiely has received from Edward Trautwein, of Cedarhurst, L. I., a communication which may prove of interest to the family of one Michael H. Curran, whose last address in this city was at 45 William street, now known as Plainfield avenue.

It is sa'd that some property belonging to the Curran family mentioned in the letter is awaiting the heirs in the Long Island town and it is in the hopes of locating these heirs that the news has been handed to the local newspapers.

The actual amount of the value of the property has not been stated, but it is believed to be considerable. Anyone knowing of the whereabouts of the Curran family will confer a favor upon the Chief by notifying him.

TO SWAMP THE LORDS.

A Threat That Always Brings England's Upper House to Terms.

To override the veto of the house of lords by a wholesale creation of peers is a plan that has been often threatened, but hardly ever put into practice. It certainly places the king in a very unenviable predicament—so much so that in 1719, after a crisis of the kind, George I. refused to be introduced into the lords a bill for limiting the power of the sovereign to create peers, a sort of royal self denying ordinance.

The measure was twice passed in the lords, but twice rejected by the commons, which was lucky, for had it been carried it would have made the house of lords an almost unchangeable body, entirely beyond the control of king or minister or commons.

The nearest approach that was ever made to "swamping the lords" was in 1832, when the fate of the great reform bill trembled in the balance. Over and over again the measure had been passed by the commons, only to be rejected by the lords. The country was furious. Payment of taxes was refused. Riots broke out everywhere.

The prime minister, Lord Grey, went to the king and begged him to create new peers to carry the bill. His majesty refused, and the ministry resigned. The king, however, presently changed his mind and, fearing a revolution, agreed to the creation of a hundred new peers, "or more if necessary." Then, very reluctantly, the upper house gave way, and the bill became law.—London Family Herald.

THE DEATH DICE.

A Murder Case in Which They Returned a Just Verdict.

The German emperor some time ago presented to the Hohenzollern museum the "death dice" with which one of his ancestors decided a difficult case in the seventeenth century. The history of these dice is generally given as follows:

A young girl had been murdered. Suspicion fell upon two young soldiers, Ralph and Alfred, who were suitors for her hand. They both denied their guilt, and even torture failed to extract a confession from either.

Then Elector Frederick William decided to cut the knot by means of the dice box. The two soldiers should throw for their lives and the loser should be executed as the murderer.

The event was celebrated with great solemnity. Ralph had the first chance and threw sixes, the highest possible number. The dice box was then given to Alfred. He fell on his knees and prayed. Then he rose to his feet and threw the dice with such force that one of them was broken. The whole one showed six, the broken one also gave six on the larger portion, and the fragment split off showed one. This was a total of thirteen, one beyond Ralph's throw. The audience held its breath in amazement.

"God has spoken" cried the prince.

Ralph, appalled by what he regarded as a sign from heaven, confessed his guilt and was sentenced to death.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Got What She Wanted.

"I can stand for some things, but not for everything," said the clerk as he watched a shabby dressed young woman leave the store.

"What is the matter?" asked the proprietor, who had walked up unobserved.

"That woman who just left hustled up to the counter and asked to see men's shirts. I showed her every style and color we carry. After inspecting the entire stock she rose and thanked me sweetly, adding: 'I didn't wish to purchase any. You see, I am making my husband some shirts, and I wanted to be sure I was doing them right. My husband is very particular about the finish of his shirts.' Can they say married women are so easily pleased?"

The boss sighed and walked away.—Boston Transcript.

The Sun.

It is computed that the temperature of the sun would be expressed by 18,000 degrees on the centigrade thermometer, or about ninety times the temperature of boiling water. This is about five times the temperature that man is able to produce by artificial means. The light given off from the surface of the sun is reckoned as being 5,300 times more intense than that of the molten metal in a Bessemer converter, though that is of an almost blinding brilliancy, or, if we compare it with the oxyhydrogen flame, the sun sheds a light equal in brilliancy to 146 times the intensity of the limelight.

Plant That Feigns Death.

In South America there is a plant, a species of mimosa, which resorts to death feigning, evidently for the purpose of preventing grass eating animals from eating it. In its natural state this plant has a vivid green hue, but directly it is touched by a human finger or by any living animal it collapses into a tangle of apparently dead and withered stems. Among British wild plants the most sensitive to touch is the insectivorous sundew of English bogs.—London Globe.

Kind Critics.

"How did Jones get such a reputation both as a singer and an artist?"

"He sang before the Painters' club and painted pictures for the Musicians' union."—Cleveland Leader.

Reason Enough.

"Why does she think he has such a splendid future?"

"Because she has promised to marry him, I guess."—Houston Post.

A BRAVE GIRL.

Her Terrible Experience While on a Smuggling Expedition.

This tale of heroism displayed by a young woman engaged in smuggling contraband goods over the Swiss-Italian border comes from Geneva: "Mlle. Poretti, aged eighteen, and her brother, aged twenty-three, left Swiss territory to cross the Maldisco pass carrying contraband goods into Italy. On the summit they were overtaken by a violent snowstorm and were soon in deep snow. The Poretti roped themselves, the young man leading. They lost their way, and while attempting to find the path Poretti fell through the snow into a crevasse into which he nearly dragged his sister. The girl, however, planted her ice ax in the snow and withstood the shock.

"Early the next morning several smugglers crossing the pass from Swiss territory into Italian found the young girl near the ordinary route taken by smugglers and recognized her at once, as she belonged to a smuggler's family and lived at Chiavenna. The smugglers at once drew up the brother, but found that he had died during the thirteen hours his sister had held him by the rope. He had received the very slight injuries in the head, and his body was frozen.

"The smugglers carried down the brave girl, who was almost unconscious, as well as the dead body of her brother, and notified the Poretti family at Chiavenna. On reaching the valley the girl had recovered sufficiently from her terrible experience to explain that she and her brother had spoken for several hours after the accident and at last he had said that he felt nothing and wanted to sleep.

"A warm night followed the snowstorm, or two dead bodies would have been found. Under the great strain the rope had cut through the girl's clothes and her waist was bleeding when she was rescued."—Chicago News.

MISERY AIDING MISERY.

The Helping Hand Among the Beach Combers of Marseilles.

Harry A. Franck in "A Vagabond Journey Around the World" writes of the trying times when he was a beach combers at Marseilles: "Long, hungry days passed, days in which I could scarcely withstand the temptation to carry my kodak to the mont de piete (pawnshop) just off the sailors' square. Among the beach combers there were daily some who gained a few francs by an odd job, by the sale of an extra garment or by 'grafting,' pure and simple. When his hand closed on a bit of money the stranded fellow may have been weak with fasting, yet this first thought was not to gorge himself, but to share his fortune with his companions under hatches. In those bleak November days many a man ranked a 'worthless outcast' by his more fortunate fellow beings toiled all day at the coal wharf or Marseilles and tramped back, cold and hungry, to the Place Victor Gelu to divide his earnings with other famished miserables whom he had not known a week before.

"More than one man sold the only shirt he owned to feed a new arrival who was an absolute stranger to all. These men won no praise for their benefactions. They expected none and would have opened their eyes in wonder if they had been told that their actions were worthy of praise. The stranded band grew to be a corporate body. By a job here and there I contributed my share to the common fund, and between us we fought off gaunt starvation.

"In a dirty alley just off the place was an inn kept by a Greek in which one could sleep on the floor at 3 sous or in a cot at 6, and every evening a band of ragged mortals might have been seen dividing the earnings of some of them into three sou lots as they made their way toward 'L'Auberge chez le Grec.'"

Halley's Achievements.

Edmund Halley was a very great man. He was not only the first to predict correctly the return of a comet, that which is now known by his name, but also—before Newton had announced his results to any one—arrived at the conclusion that the attraction of gravitation probably varied inversely as the square of the distance. While these and other important achievements of his are well known it seems to have been forgotten that Halley devised a method of determining the age of the ocean from chemical denudation.—Dr. G. F. Becker in Science.

Tommy Knew.

She broke off abruptly to point at a boy in the class.

"What would I be, Tommy?" she asked.

"A cinch!" shouted Tommy.—Exchange.

BORO. TO HAVE SEWERS

North Plainfield Council Legislates For Much Needed Improvement.

THE VOTE WAS UNANIMOUS.

All Parts of Municipality to be Provided with Sanitary Sewer Connection—The Improvement Will Cost $300,000.

Without discussion, the ordinance providing for a sanitary sewage system in North Plainfield was passed on its third reading by the Borough Council last night. The vote was unanimous. After a resolution was made by Councilman Rogers and passed by the borough fathers, the ordinance was read for the third time by the clerk, Frederick A. Martin. One amendment was offered by Mr. Rogers, which provided that the word "Warren Township" be changed to "North Plainfield Township," that being the exact location of the disposal plant of the new system.

There was some discussion among the members of the Council regarding the necessity of putting the sewers through sections of the borough which were not occupied by houses, as is provided in the ordinance. It was decided that sewers through unoccupied districts would tend to build up such sections.

For the new sewerage system, the borough will be bonded to the extent of over $200,000. This will include the entire cost of the system. Work will be started before the winter sets in and as soon as the ordinance has been published in the North Plainfield newspaper, bids on the work will be received.

By the new system the borough will receive the sewer accommodations and there is an ordinance now before the Councilmen Common Council providing for a sewer system in that borough in connection with the North Plainfield system. The disposal plant will probably be located on the Zavolnack farm in North Plainfield township. This property has not as yet been purchased by the borough.

THE BUTTON-ONS.

A Vacation Pest.

It is remarkable what changes can be run in a slender wardrobe by a judicious use of the button-ons, or, in other words, of the interchangeable trimmings and accessories that can be hooked or buttoned on a garment.

There is the petticoat idea; the girl who adopts it owns just two petticoat tops, one of black sateen and one of white lining material. On these she buttons any number and variety of deep ruffles, the dark on the black and those of the white. There are silk ruffles to match every gown, sateen or seersucker ones for rainy days, white lace and lawn ones for lingerie gowns. The money she saves in material and making is considerable indeed, and she rejoices daily in her buttonholed ruffles and the row of black or white buttons on her underskirt foundation.

Then there are hat trimmings. How many sailors boast hooked-on bows no one but the owners will ever know; and they are certain of a trimming to agree in material and color with every stitch of clothing they own. Ribbon, velvet, straw, leather, name the varieties are endless—and the gamut of shades is limited not even by the rainbow. Other hat trimmings, too, may be hooked on for the occasion—feathers, flowers and buckles—and one good substantial straw may be the concealed foundation of every type of hat from the tailor-made to the lingerie.

Flat pockets buttoned or hooked on to petticoats and inside blouses are another invention of the button-on girl, and she finds them vastly more convenient than the easily lost handbag. They are made large enough never to bulge, and thus they are unnoticeable.

All the pretty frills every one is wearing are easily buttoned on with pearl or crocheted buttons; and thus one blouse may boast half a dozen of these dainty accessories. A bright idea is to use gold baby studs, with buttonholes in both blouse and frill.

The button-on girl takes no chances with safety pins. Her waists and skirts are hooked together. There are five hooks on every one of her skirts, and five eyes in the same places on every one of her shirt-waists. In the more delicate materials, the eyes are sewed to a tape band that runs around the waist.

The same principle is extended to the petticoat and corset cover. No ugly drops and creases where a few flat buttons on large hooks and eyes save the day. And here again the tape band is in evidence. Only a few moments' extra sewing, but many hours gained in the wear and tear.

Moreover, the button-on girl makes one dress do the work of two. When she buys or has made an evening dress, she provides also a separate yoke and long sleeves; and for semi-dress occasions her decollete gown, with perhaps a net tunic or a draped bodice, appears with lace sleeves and yoke in quite different guise.

THE FASHIONABLE DOG.

Samoyede Canine Pets Are "It" This Summer.

THE LATEST FAVORITE OF FASHION.

The Samoyede dog is the latest comer in canine pets for fashionable favor. This dog is a sort of four footed Admirable Crichton. He can do anything you ask of him—that is, anything within canine powers—and he can do it very well. He comes from the northeast of Russia, and, although new as a smart pet, he is the oldest domesticated dog in the world.

He is an ideal dog for children—intelligent, quick to learn tricks, good tempered and gentle, intensely affectionate, faithful and invariably well behaved. In short, he is a perfect four footed gentleman.

The Samoyede does splendidly harnessed singly or in pairs to a child's go-cart. He takes to harness naturally, is untiring and strong and, to use a horsy expression, "quite without vice."

Apart from these excellent traits of character, the Samoyede dog's appearance is distinctly "fetching." In the puppy stage he is a fascinating little creature with a soft, fluffy white coat, for all the world like a Teddy bear, as he grows older he passes through the usual leggy state and at about a year old develops into a most aristocratic looking animal, very handsome and attractive, with long white fur standing straight out from the body, each hair having the icelike glisten peculiar to the breed.

Standing nearly as tall as a collie, ears pricked, eyes expressive, tail a spreading plume—not coiled tightly, like a chow—the striking appearance and elegant carriage of the Samoyede attract attention wherever he goes.

OF EGYPTIAN DESIGN.

A Vacation Pest.

The most delightfully planned outing in the woods may be ruined by that vacation pest—the mosquito.

Some persons poison so dreadfully life is a torment, and there is always danger of malaria from the bites.

If you are especially poisoned by mosquitoes, arrange to go where they are not. Don't go in for camping or frequent resorts that are subject to them.

If you will go, take with you preventives in the form of mosquito nets, lump camphor and citronella.

In extreme cases of misery, head nets that can be bought for a dollar. They are made of fine black bobbinet that will stand rain and washing. There is a circular cloth piece above the net over her hat and a cloth shaped piece at bottom fitted to the shoulders and tied under the arm.

For night use it is possible to buy frames and mosquito bars to fit folding camp cots.

The Beetle Watch.

Oddities in jewelry are constantly to be found, and the latest fad is the beetle watch that is worn on the end of a black moire ribbon.

A slight pressure on the end of the wings and the wings open and show the face of the watch.

An Outing Precaution.

Never go into the woods or out of the way places without being supplied with remedies in case of an emergency. Always take a hot water bottle and a medicine kit, stocked with such simple home remedies as you are accustomed to use.

In addition, there should be whisky, bandages, absorbent cotton, adhesive plasters, quinine, mustard and bella donna plasters and some cafe tablets. An ointment to allay stings or itching is also good.

A Chapter in Stelle History

By O. B. LEONARD

CHAPTER III.

In the two former chapters of the Stelle family of Piscataway, Middlesex county, N. J., their origin has been given. Poncet and wife, Eugenie Stelle were the founders of the line in America. Of their seven children born in the new world after leaving France, their oldest child, Benjamin, settled in Middlesex county near New Brunswick, on the Raritan river. Through his descendants only is the Jersey line being traced in these few chapters. The oldest son became a minister of the gospel, pastor of the Piscataway Baptist church, publicly constituted 1689. At his death, 1759, there survived him (besides his two daughters Susannah Hull and Rachel FitzRandolph) three sons, Deacon Benjamin, captain John and Benjamin Stelle. Their mother, Mercy, had passed away in 1746, after all of her children had grown up and were married. It is not unquestionably settled what immediate family she belonged to. It has been generally agreed that it was the Drake lineage. But "Mercy" was a cherished name for daughters of the early Dunn, Dunham, Pyatt and Hull households. Yet the strongest claim for maternal ancestry is Mercy Drake, daughter of George Drake and wife, Mary Oliver. This is confirmed by the frequent occurrence of the Christian name of "Oliver" throughout the subsequent descendants of the Stelles.

This third Mercy Stelle will record some of the numerous offspring of Rev. Isaac Stelle, youngest son of Rev. Benjamin and Mercy Stelle. Rev. Isaac Stelle was born February 6, 1718. Just when he reached his majority he married Christian Clarkson, whose license to marry is dated April 22, 1740. She was a daughter of substantial members of his father's parish, John Clarkson and wife, Bithia FitzRandolph (of Joseph and Bethiah). She became the mother of seven boys and two girls, all but one son and one daughter lived to mature years and raised large families. She died Sept. 27, 1778. A very flattering obituary of her notable virtues as a Christian was printed in the Philadelphia and New York newspapers of that time. Her funeral sermon was preached by her husband's bosom friend, Rev. Benjamin Miller, of the Scotch Plains, and the text was Ezekiel xxiv:16. The journal notice states she was in the fifty-fifth year of her age and had early made a public profession of Jesus Christ, and adorned the same with a becoming life and conversation. For over thirty years had an active and useful life in religious affairs. His usefulness was not confined to his own church and congregation. Before his ordination to the Gospel ministry in 1741 at Freehold, Monmouth, for several years, he assisted his father in pulpit and pastoral duties. When the aged man of God ceased from his earthly labors in 1759, the son was invited by the mother church to take the full charge of the pastorate, which he held at once and for twenty-two years continued the faithful minister of this ancient people. In company with Rev. Benjamin Miller, of Scotch Plains, he used to visit frequently the young and feeble churches of the then sparsely settled throughout New Jersey and adjacent colonies. He was highly esteemed for his wisdom, sound judgment and pulpit gifts. With Miller and Gano, of New York, they were spoken of as "burning and shining lights." He must have been a man of more than ordinary vigor and consecrated piety to have been able to render so much assistance in other fields of Christian usefulness. The instances at our command are too numerous to mention in this brief outline of the multitudinous labors in which he took conspicuous part.

After his wife's death in 1778, he married again, January 5, 1780, Katharine Green. All his nine children were by first marriage. He died October 9, 1781, in the 63rd year of his age. There survived him his last wife with six sons and one daughter (of the former union) as cited in his last will made 1781 and probated same year on seventh of November.

Of the seven children of Rev. Isaac Stelle, their son (1) Ambrose, died Feb. 28, 1760, and daughter (2) Mercy died Aug. 14, 1777; neither one being married. (3) Benjamin, born in 1742 was prepared for college at Hopewell Academy, N. J., entered Princeton and graduated in the class of 1766. He soon afterward located in Providence, R. I., and established a thriving Latin school. He married Hudah Crawford and had two daughters, the younger one Mary B., became the wife of Hon. Nicholas Brown, benefactor of Rhode Island College to which institution his name was given and has ever since been known at "Brown University." While living in Providence he was a clerk in many years of the old Baptist church, of which President James Manning was pastor. He lived to be over seventy years and died in 1819.

(4) Mary Stelle, daughter of Rev. Isaac was born in 1754, Oct. 14. She married Aug. 15, 1780, Thomas Manning (son of Captain Nathaniel and Mary) and had six children. Mercy, Isaac Stelle married Rachel Banker, had 11, Jeptha, married Elizabeth Stelle (of Isaac and Mary Crow), Capt. William and John Manning. She died March 29, 1837, and with her husband lies buried at Metuchen, N. J.

(5) John Stelle, son of Rev. Isaac, born 1745, was licensed Dec. 19, 1768, to marry Hannah De Bon Repos, a descendant of the Huguenot family. The first of this French name to settle in America was Rev. David de Bonrepos, pastor of the exiled colony at New Rochelle, N. Y. He had a brother Elie Debon Repos (1685-1734). The only children of John and Hannah Stelle known to the writer were Hudah, Christiana and Lewis, and nothing more has been recorded of the family except that they went south.

In another chapter or two will be narrated the descendants of the four sons of Rev. Isaac Stelle, who furnished by far the largest list of the family name. These sons were Abel, Joseph, Oliver and Samuel Stelle.

MR. FOWLER'S RAVINGS.

Vainly scheming to make a wide-open breach in his party for his own selfish purposes, regardless of the cost to the Republican party, of which he makes pretense of being a loyal member, Charles Newell Fowler, the eloquent, egotistical and erratic one, is waging a campaign of mud-slinging and vilification that would become the cheapest demagogue. Instead of excusing his absenteeism in Congress; instead of explaining his record as an enemy of organized labor; instead of frankly stating his position in this year's nonsense he fulminates about Cannonism is due to his mortified pride in being deposed as chairman of a Congressional committee where he had outlived his usefulness or had never been of much use to the country; instead of being honest with the voters and giving them some tangible and sound arguments why he deserves, why he has earned, a renomination for a ninth term, he is pursuing a course that is a disgrace to him and would bring the blush to the decent self-respecting voter.

As the Elizabeth Journal said editorially the other day: "Congressman Fowler's campaign was begun on the low level of personal vilification, mean insinuation and the most repulsive kind of attack on the members of his own party. He has not only kept up this kind of campaigning, but by his example has incited others to mud-slinging, slurring and carelessness of assertion."

That Mr. Fowler who forgets that he is not talking to a Kansas audience, but to a sane and intelligent Jersey constituency, has demonstrated by his own words that he has lost the people's confidence must be perfectly clear to every thinking man who has heard or read his vain, bombastic and yellow utterances. Take for instance the buncome he handed out to the people of the Second District when he gave vent to this ludicrous talk:

"The man who would stoop down into the gutter of infamy and say to any of these honest and thinking men who express an opinion so and so, 'I want you to vote over to the interests of so and so,' is a mean contemptible soul." Is there a man in this community to be fooled by such bosh? Is there a living soul here who does not believe that the accusation was made only at the doors of Mr. Fowler's henchmen? The men of Plainfield know who are using the whip, who are able to control the votes of scores of loyal friends of Judge Runyon to such an extent as to get their bidding, or because such voters crave their favor they are willing to betray a true friend, a capable candidate.

Now, just one more reference to this wild-eyed and feverished brained candidate. In a deceptive explanation why the Republican papers of the district, Union Morris and Warren counties, are supporting the candidacy of Judge William N. Runyon for the nomination, he uttered last night what he knew and what his audience knew to be an outrageous slander on newspaperdom. He said: "It is the duty of the newspapermen to go around among the people and gather the honest opinions of men so far as possible and give expression to these opinions in a fair, unbiased manner and not to allow the opinion of the people to be subverted by the payment of $100 or $200." Was ever a more vile aspersion uttered? Were there any evidence to support such a serious accusation, the newspaperman referred to should be driven out of the profession, for he is unworthy of an honorable calling. If Mr. Fowler knows as a fact what he insinuates to be true, it is his duty to expose such a creature. And this paper suggests that he come forward and name the man he accuses.

AGAINST HOBBLE SKIRTS.

Woe is to be the portion of any woman of Groveville, N. J., who dares to add to her wardrobe so much as one gown with a hobble skirt, for the edict has gone forth from the sanctum of the Rev. Peter Henry, pastor of the First Reformed church of that place, that none shall enter the portals of the edifice over whose destinies he presides. Further than that the reverend gentleman declares that any woman who would so debase herself and her sex as to wear such a sartorial travesty should be spanked.

Mr. Henry characterizes the women wearing hobble skirts as "walking balloons," "lunatics" and "godless ones."

HANDCUFFS.

Various Devices That Have Been Used In Fettering Prisoners.

In Vergil is to be found the first recorded instance of the use of handcuffs, for the poet tells us that Proteus was thus fettered and rendered powerless by Aristaeus, who apparently knew that even the gods themselves were not proof against this form of persuasion.

In the fourth century B. C. an army of victorious Greeks found several chariots full of handcuffs among the baggage of the defeated Carthaginians, and it is highly probable that the ancient Egyptians had some contrivance of the kind. The word is derived from the Anglo-Saxon "handcop," whence comes evidently the slang term "copper."

In earliest Saxon days "handcops" were used for nobles and "foot cops" for kings, but in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries the vogue was supplanted by the terms "shack bolt" and "swivel manacle," and the instruments were as cumbersome as the names by which they were known.

Up to the middle of the last century there were a few kinds of handcuff in general use. One, known as the "flexible," was very like that which is still used; the other kind, called the "figure eight," was used to restrain violent prisoners. It was so fashioned that a prisoner could not move his hands and was universally dreaded. For the pain caused by a limb immovably confined is almost unbearable.

A simple but powerful device for securing prisoners was the "twister," now also going to the injuries it inflicted. It consisted of a chain with handles at each end. The chain was put around the wrists, and the handles were brought together and twisted until a firm grip was obtained. The least struggle on the part of the captive and the chains bit deep into his wrists. Of the same nature, but made of wire, is "la ligote," while in an emergency whipcord has proved perfectly satisfactory.

The handcuff used in some parts of eastern Europe is most primitive. It consists of a V shaped piece of metal, in which the wrists are inserted, the open ends being then drawn together by means of a cross bolt, which must be kept tight the whole time. The most handy form of cuff, which is in general use at present, comes from America. It is lighter and much less clumsy than the old "flexible."

It is no uncommon thing to clap the "bracelets" on a person who is struggling violently. Inventors should turn their attention to the subject, for much remains to be done before the fighting prisoner can be quickly and strongly secured without fear to himself or his captor.—London Globe.

The Tuaregs.

In his book "Across the Sahara" Hans Vischer writes: "On a spot recently excavated by the wind I picked up blunt arrowheads and knives, Carthaginian coins, money lost by Romans and Arabs, and fragments of beautifully colored marble slabs which probably once adorned some Roman villa on the North coast.

Strange peoples were met in that long march across the Sahara—the Tuaregs, for instance, who need not a suffragist attack to bring them to their senses, for "among the Tuaregs it is the woman who has the say in all the laws of the country has to obey the woman. Descent is traced through the mother. Woman shows her proud face to all the world, while the man goes veiled."

The Artist and His Work.

The great artists, like the great heroes, have always done whatever came to hand. Michelangelo grumbled and said he was a sculptor when Julius II. set him to paint, but he painted the roof of the Sistine chapel. Shakespeare chafed at the popularity of the fool in the drama of his time and then produced the fool in "Lear." If either of them had waited for perfect conditions and an inspiration untrammeled by circumstances he would have done nothing. They produced masterpieces because they made the best of things as they were. And this is the business of the artist in life.—London Times.

His Pockets Were Empty.

Damoreau, an actor, fought a duel in 1834 with an orator named Manuel. The orator proved the better swordsman and would have run Damoreau through the body had not his sword struck a five franc piece which happened to be in the actor's pocket. This drew from a notoriously impecunious journalist the exclamation: "Alas, if I had been in Damoreau's place it would have been all over with me!"—New York Post.

Domestic Joys.

Wife—I came across a bundle of your old love letters today, Husband—Did you read them over? Wife—Yes. Husband—And what was the effect of that perusal? Wife—I wondered which was the bigger fool—you for writing them or I for marrying you after receiving them.

The Test.

"They seem to be in love."

"Yes; I really believe those two think as much of each other as they do of themselves."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

AN INDEPENDENT WEEKLY.

A. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

Plainfield, N. J., September 8, 1910.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

The New York Hippodrome opens for the season tonight with a big new triple bill entitled "The International Cup," "The Ballet of Niagara," and "The Earthquake," produced under the direction of R. H. Burnside, invented by Arthur Voegtlin and supplied with music and lyrics by Manuel Klein. Several hundred people have been added to last year's tremendous cast making the greatest number of performers ever seen together on the Hippodrome stage. The first of the three spectacles, "The International Cup" furnishes some entirely new and original stage effects including the flight of an airship and a yacht race, in which two full-rigged racing vessels are seen in motion. In this part of the program the circus is given and Marcelline and Silvers Oakley help to furnish the fun. Performing bears, lions and elephants appear on the stage at one time. There are twelve big circus features in all. The second part of the program is given up to "The Ballet of Niagara"—an American ballet founded on a legend of the Iroquois Indians and presenting excellent opportunities for gorgeous costumes and scenery. The last spectacle on the bill is entitled "The Earthquake." The scenes are laid in South America, and here again Mr. Voegtlin has seized the opportunity for colorful and effective scenic setting. In this piece the great water tank is brought into requisition and the climax of "The Earthquake" is a Tidal Wave which is in keeping with all the splendid water spectacles which have preceded it. The Hippodrome show is without doubt the biggest entertainment of its kind in the world.

Duke Franz Joseph, of Bavaria, one evening last week attended the performance of Eddie Foy in "Up and Down Broadway" at the Casino Theatre, New York, occupying a box with a party of friends. The Duke was the guest of the Messrs. Shubert and expressed himself as delighted with the production, which was the first American theatrical entertainment he had ever witnessed. In his own theatre work, occupying a box with a party of friends. The Duke was the guest of the Messrs. Shubert and expressed himself as delighted with the production, which was the first American theatrical entertainment he had ever witnessed. In his own theatre he has been accustomed to see the scenes after the first act, and was introduced to Mr. Foy, Miss Carus, Vida Whitmore, George Anderson and Martin Brown. He was particularly interested in the rapidity with which the scenery was changed and complimented the principal players on their individual excellent work. He was also especially pleased with the ensemble effects. "It seems to me that these are the prettiest girls I have ever seen anywhere in the world," said the Duke. "They are not only beautiful, but full of life and energy My friends had told me of the superiority of American choruses, but this really surpasses all my expectations."

POSTMASTER GONE; SHORTAGE ALLEGED.

The receipt of a letter by his parents stating that he would not be back again is a sequel to the sudden departure from town of William T. Briggs, postmaster at Hartford, near Mt. Holly, who is alleged to be short in his accounts.

A postoffice inspector, who visited Hartford Friday, after making an investigation of the manner of conducting the office, stated that he found the books in bad shape. Briggs went away Saturday, leaving a sensation behind.

The amount of his alleged shortage is not known. A year or two ago the young man took the Keely cure but he is thought to have returned to his old habits.

The absence of Briggs creates a vacancy on the election board. The County Board of Election will appoint a Republican successor tomorrow morning. Briggs announced his candidacy for assessor of Mount Laurel Township early in the spring.

W. H. Pope's Big Contract.

William H. Pope, of North avenue, has the contract and is now installing a complete electric light system in the greenhouses at J. B. Duke's country estate at Raritan. The contract is a big one and will require considerable time to complete the same.

An Evening Gown.

A charming little frock of supple satin of rose and white is trimmed in a novel manner with quantities of pink leafless roses of the rambler description, laid flat close together in a band about four inches wide, confining the overdress of pale rose tulle, slightly bouffonnee, then an epaulette of the same.

Even Then.

Captain Kid—What's the trouble? Can't you make the prisoner walk the plank?

Lieutenant—No, cap; he absolutely refuses to be a part of the spectacle unless we guarantee him a percentage of the moving picture receipts.—Puck.

MISSIONARY DESCRIBES SUFFERING OF CHINESE

G. Herbert Condict, superintendent of Hope chapel, read an interesting letter from Gilbert Lovell, 18 Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church's missionary in China, at the Sunday-school session, Sunday afternoon. His letter depicts conditions as they really are and suggests the relief which is of the imperative. Since the letter was written on June 24, however, supplies of foodstuffs, clothing and other necessities have been sent to the flooded area and afforded great relief.

"This time we are out of danger," says Mr. Lovell, "but we are already being thrown into another experience, the worst flood that Chang-teh has seen in thirty years. Last year's crop was a total failure from the same cause, and now this has all gone. People are dying by the score daily. Rice is being given out in the streets here and at Deh San, and the laborers who are burying the dead cannot work fast enough. The situation is so desperate in Chan-teh and immediate vicinity that we have united in sending a letter to the Christian Herald appealing for funds. It may mean that some of us will have to drop our work temporarily in order to devote our energies to relieving immediate distress.

"The water has gone down considerably, but the suffering is increased. Our cook has just returned from the street and says he saw eleven dead bodies. I have seen poverty at home, but nothing to compare to what is constantly going on about us in this place."

Schlick—Klein.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klein of Somerville, announce the marriage of their daughter, Lillian Anna Klein, to Jacob Schlick, a young business man of West Third street. The ceremony took place Saturday afternoon and was performed by Rev. Cornelius Schenck, pastor-emeritus of Trinity Reformed church. The bride was attended by Miss Margaret Gelbeler, Monroe A. Nichols, of this city acted as best man. The young couple are taking a trip along the Atlantic coast and on their return will reside at 724 West Third street.

ANNUAL REUNION OF THE HUMMER FAMILY

The seventh annual reunion of the Hummer family residing in this part of the State was held Monday at the home of Henry Hummer, at Stelton, where a large gathering partook of a fine dinner and enjoyed the day's program. One of the features was the presentation of a handsome bunch of roses to Mrs. Ann Hummer, of Annandale, by her children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. The bouquet comprised eighty-two roses, for as many years as she was old.

The presentation speech was made by Henry Hummer and the response was by Joseph Anderson, of Stelton, on behalf of Mrs. Hummer, expressing the wish that she might be able to meet with the family for many years to come. There were representatives of the family from Annandale, Stanton, New Market, Dunellen, Middlebush, East Millstone, Somerville, Plainfield, Union Hill and Stelton. The gathering dispersed toward night all looking forward to the next reunion to be held a year hence, which will be in the form of a picnic. Henry Hummer, Joseph Anderson, of Stanton and Charles Hummer, of North Plainfield, were appointed to make necessary arrangements.

MOY MASS MEETING ON THURSDAY NIGHT

In order to let the Republican voters know where he stands on local questions and what policies he considers best for an administration of the city, George W. V. Moy will speak at a mass meeting to be held in his interest as a mayoralty candidate at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium on Thursday night. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock sharp. Mr. Moy announces that his topic will be "Municipal Affairs."

Mr. Moy declares that his interest will be held before the primaries on Tuesday, probably either on Saturday or Monday night, at the same place. On that occasion others beside Mr. Moy will talk on local topics. An opportunity will be given anyone in the audience to ask the candidate where he stands on any local political question.

Former Sheriff B. Frank Coriell, who is being supported by the "regular" Republican organization, is making a quiet campaign. He has not arranged for any meetings.

Cole—Leach.

Miss Sophronia H. Cole, of Madison, sister of Mrs. Alfred B. Stephens, of Grandview avenue, North Plainfield, and John B. Leach, of Bangor, Pa., were married Saturday night at the home of Mrs. Stephens. Rev. Oro J. Shoop, pastor of Grace M. E. church, performed the ceremony. Only the immediate relatives were present and after the ceremony a wedding supper was served. The couple will reside at Bangor, Pa.

Twenty Years' Service.

On Saturday P. S. Klein, chief of the Plainfield police department, completed his twentieth year of active service. He was subjected to the importunities of his friends who wanted to tender their congratulations and manage to escape them only by declaring that he was twenty years younger than he was twenty years ago and that he was good for more than twenty years more.

TAUB LOSES HORSE IN A STABLE FIRE.

At a fire in his stable on Fifth street near Franklin place at 8:15 Monday night, H. Taub lost a valuable horse and Captain Feiring, of the fire department, had a narrow escape. The horse was badly burned and died shortly after he was led from his stall by Feiring, who was severely burned about the arms. The fire was quickly gotten under control after $150 damage to the building had been done.

The fire was caused by the breaking of an oil lantern, which Mr. Taub was carrying near the horse's stall. The blazing oil ignited the straw and Mr. Taub ran into the house to telephone the fire department. Edward Baker, who was passing by, pulled box 23.

There were three men in the Ford car, one of whom gave his name as J. Tywell, of 1438 West Front street. The names of the other autoists could not be learned.

2 KILLED BY EXPLOSION

Victims Alone in Moving Picture Storehouse at Time of Accident.

VALUABLE FILMS ARE LOST.

Cause of Fatal Mishap at Pathe Freres Plant Unknown—Charred Bodies of Victims Found by Workmen.

Fred W. Miller, aged 35 years, of South Bound Brook, and Louis Streiff, aged about 30 years, both employed by the Pathe Freres Moving Picture Company, at Bound Brook, lost their lives at the company's plant, Tuesday, as the result of a fire in the storehouse. What caused the fire will probably never be known, as the only persons who were present at the time were the two who were burned to death. There is a rumor that one of the men, in violation of the rules, struck a match to light a cigarette and that the head of the match flew off into the highly combustible materials used for making films.

Practically everything was destroyed in the concrete building used as a storehouse, and aside from the death of the two men, the loss is a heavy one, as thousands of strips of negatives and finished work, as well as thousands of feet of unprinted films which cannot be duplicated, were found very soon after the fire by other workmen about the place. The loss will not affect any other part of the plant, as it was confined entirely to the storehouse, which occupies a central point in the tract of land upon which the company's buildings are located.

Mr. Miller, who was an American, had been employed by the company for several months and was well-known at Bound Brook. Mr. Streiff was a Frenchman and had only recently come to this country to take a position at the works. He was recently married. He leaves a young wife, as does Mr. Miller.

Along the edges of each plate, and forming an integral part of it, are placed a series of lugs, located approximately nine inches apart, and so spaced that when the edges of two plates have been ground to true planes and placed edge to edge, the lugs upon one plate will register with the corresponding lugs of the other. These lugs are approximately four inches in width, and of the same thickness.

When the sand is ready to be assembled steel rings or links are heated red hot and when in the expanded condition, resulting from this treatment, are driven over and around each pair of lugs. These links are two inches in thickness, showing in cross section, therefore, approximately eight square inches of metal, having a tensible strength of about 90,000 pounds to the square inch. The total holding power of each of the links, therefore, is in excess of 720,000 pounds, or this strength is available to hold the adjoining lugs together.

The door of a Manganese steel vault consists of a single solid casting twelve or more inches thick on the edge or jamb. The door of this type of vault differs from the laminated vault door in that the edge or jamb of the door is pierced by the necessary apertures to permit the use of the locking bolts. In other words, the door is its own bolt frame while in the laminated types of door the bolt frame is screwed to the back of the door. A perfect fit is accomplished by first grinding the door and the door opening to their approximate size, after which the door frame is laid down flat on its back, the door placed in position, and having been painted with a mixture of emery and oil, is rotated by powerful machinery until it gradually grinds its way into its permanent seat in the same manner in which a metal valve is manufactured. A slight depression will be noted in the circular door opening. Into this groove the bolts contained within the door project when the door is locked. The door bolts are controlled by a combination and time locks, as in the case of the laminated vault. It will be seen how diametrically opposed to the laminated or plate construction is the solid form of vault.

Ten years ago Manganese steel and vaults composed of it, were practically unknown. In a comparatively short time since their introduction, however, they have come to be recognized as the highest type of burglar-proof vault. The State Trust Company vault is the only Manganese steel vault in Plainfield.

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN VISIT HIGH BRIDGE

Fifty members of Company K attended the celebration of the 200th anniversary of chartering of the town of High Bridge yesterday and were right royally entertained by the members of the committee having the celebration in charge. Captain Mitchell with his fifty men marched in the parade which included members of the Jr. O. U. A. M., Red Men, Haymakers, Knights of Pythias, Odd Fellows and delegations from several other societies.

The celebration was one of the old-fashioned kind in which everybody joined with hearty enthusiasm until the oppressive heat and humidity caused deflections from the ranks. A fine dinner was served in the rooms of the High Bridge Board of Trade to which Company K did ample justice. The heat prevented the special drill which the committee had planned for, but the marching of the K boys more than offset the disappointment of the spectators.

Many of the men in line had heard of the success of the "Jersey" boys at Sea Girt and when they passed the numerous groups of girl admirers they returned their salutes with cheers. Most of the boys of Company K would have been glad to have been at Sea Girt, but they were glad to be alive and receive the welcome of the inhabitants of High Bridge.

'CITIZENSHIP' THE TOPIC OF JUDGE W. N. RUNYON

Speaking for twenty minutes on "Citizenship," Judge William N. Runyon at the Mt. Olive Baptist church Monday moved a big congregation to applause time and again as he pointed out the true duties of a man in this Republic. The meeting was in the nature of a sacred entertainment given by the organ club of the church, and the Judge had been invited to deliver the principal address.

Rev. Mr. Vaughn, the pastor, introduced Judge Runyon. He referred to him as a man of high character and ability, who had given much of his time in the uplifting of his fellow men and one in whom those of all creeds, color and occupation in life have the greatest confidence.

Judge Runyon impressed upon the congregation what is meant by the ideal citizen; what makes the ideal home and how essential he is to the well-governed community and to the country at large. Honesty with one's self and with his fellows tends to the development of a character that is worth more than great riches, he declared. He urged his hearers to model their lives after that of the greatest negro of the country, Booker T. Washington, president of Tuskeegee Institute.

In addition to Judge Runyon's address, there were solos by Clark Munroe, G. P. H. James and Miss Maude Green, all of which were enjoyable.

Crap Players Released.

Five colored men were collared playing craps on Saturday afternoon by Patrolman Dobson, but of all the five none would swear against his brother and they were all discharged. Their next offense will result in a heavy fine.

FRESH AIR HOME CLOSES

A Silver Loving Cup For the Matron and Prizes For the Children.

REV. MR. MAGUIRE SPEAKS.

He Tells the Youngsters of the Poor Little Colored Children in Africa—J. D. Loizeaux Presides.

An unprecedented crowd attended the closing exercises at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home Sunday afternoon and evening and several events commemorative of the season took place. The presentation of a silver loving cup to Miss Curry and the awarding of medals to boys of the camp for results in Bible study being the features aside from the instructive talk of Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire.

Older boys who had been visitors at the camp in years gone by were present to take part in the services and to enjoy the felicitous part of Miss Curry their appreciation of whom Miss Curry and his assistants have accomplished among the East Side children, of New York. The George Cadman prize was presented to Miss Fisher.

In the evening there was a special service in the auditorium at which big audience. She told but little of her own personal sacrifice, but dwelt on the splendid work of others. J. D. Loizeaux presided at both meetings and when Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire was introduced to the children, many of whom had heard of his wonderful trips through Africa, there ensued an attention which hardly has had its counterpart in the history of the camp.

Rev. Mr. Maguire gave an interesting talk to the children taking for his subject the African children and contrasting their condition with that which surrounds the American. The advantages of the latter are so far superior to those of Africa that it made the poor little colored folk seem to be just what they have been said to be by missionaries from that country.

Mr. Maguire told of the conversion of one little fellow, Amoki, who learned under the tuition of the man who told the story, how to read and write English. This boy became a splendid missionary himself through the efforts of those who took the gospel to the center of Africa and then he was poisoned by one of the venomous snakes and knew that he had to die he declared that he had seen a vision of the Saviour and his people hearing it became one of the greatest bands of native missionaries in the Dark Continent.

Mr. Maguire's story kept the little folks and all the audience in rapt attention and at the conclusion of the talk could not escape the eager questioners who surrounded him and plead for more information about Africa.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

At one o'clock Monday afternoon the married and single men of the borough engaged in a terrific struggle on the diamond in which the happy men came off victorious by the score of 12-1. This result is not authentic but it is the closest to a correct score that could be obtained up to the hour of going to press. According to score, the game was an exciting one and kept the fans amused and on the jump until the big show of the afternoon came on the program. There has been no reason given out as yet why the married men were defeated but every excuse has been handed except the old umpire story—and yet the name of the official has not been told.

The teams lined up as follows: Single men—R. J. Fisher, p and ss; Fred Kirschner, ss and p; Earl Ising, c; George Apgar, 1b; Byard Naylor, 2b; Peter Sanford, cf; Morgan Curl, lf; John Logan, 3b; Clarence Voorhees, rf. Married men—Hamley and Hurlick, p; Rinehart and Seery, c; J. N. Apgar, 1b; Henry Schenck, 2b; John Sloan, 3b; Arthur Vail, rf; Theodore Apgar, lf; John Fenner, ss; George Schenck, cf.

Although the borough fans were disappointed on Saturday, when the rain prevented the deciding of the championship between the Dunellen and Plainfield teams, they were more than delighted at the baseball on the Madison avenue grounds Monday. The borough boys played great ball against both the All Brunswicks and the strong Caldwell A. C., winning in each contest. The second game was more of a walkover than anything else, for the Caldwell team was unable to get more than three scattered hits off Smiling Jimmie's delivery. McCroskey swirled in great shape in the morning contest but was hit more freely than the Dunellen stand-by. There was a large attendance at both games.

Miss Meta Pennock, of Madison avenue, leaves September 8 to take up a position as teacher in the school at Bushkill, N. Y. Miss Pennock was graduated from the Plainfield High School last June, being the valedictorian of her class.

RUNYON'S BIG VICTORY!

DeMeza Sweeps Every District and Easily Wins Nomination for the City Judgeship.

William G. DeMeza.

It was a veritable landslide for William G. DeMeza in the city judgeship contest at the Republican primaries. Francis J. Blatz, his closest rival, who was picked to win by many wiseacres, did not have a look in for a moment in a single district, DeMeza carrying every one of the ten by good majorities. DeMeza is a brother of the late George DeMeza, who was city judge some years ago.

DeMeza received 1,250 votes in the city and Blatz 607, a majority of 713. V. W. Nash, Jr., ran third, his total vote being 259, while Harry C. Runyon was a close fourth, getting 245. J. Henry Crane, endorsed by the Progressives, received a total of 212. Arthur Murphy's total was 97.

Favored Martine.

Little interest was taken at the primaries here in Union county generally over the choice for U. S. Senator. The Progressives cast their votes for Fowler, while the Democrats generally favored Martine.

DUNELLEN'S PRIMARY WAS UNUSUALLY QUIET

There were only a few contests in the primaries at Dunellen yesterday, the principal fight being in the nominations for members of the General Assembly. William J. Campbell, Rene P. F. vonMinden, and A. V. Schenck were elected for the Republican ticket and W. E. Ramsey, J. V. L. Boorsem and H. B. Cook for the Democrats. The race in the choice for U. S. Senator was a close one in the brough, Stokes receiving the majority. James E. Martine was given a complete victory. Peter C. Cement walks will be laid about the new Jefferson school and the lawn will be graded at once so that the property will be in perfect shape before winter. This was decided at the meeting of the Board of Education last night. The other business of the meeting included the reports.

Bills amounting to about $2,000 were ordered paid. The Collector's report showed receipts of $1,417. The balance with the custodian, August 1, was $30,000.23. The finance committee was authorized to borrow a sum not exceeding $12,000 to meet September salaries and current bills.

Choice for U. S. Senator.

In registering their choice for United Senator, the Republicans of New Jersey at the primaries yesterday gave Former Governor Murphy the highest vote. The Democrats showed by their vote that they favor Dr. Woodrow Wilson. The result is in nowise binding on the Legislature, which will select United States Senator John Kean's successor.

Regulars Win in Middlesex.

The regular Republican ticket won out in Middlesex county, yesterday, although it will probably be tomorrow before the complete returns are known. The only contest was that made by Molineaux, of Metuchen and Campbell, of Cranbury, local optionists, who were out-voted 5 to 1 throughout the county. The vote was a light one, about one-fifth of the people casting their ballots.

WORLD'S CHAMPION DIVER VISITING IN PLAINFIELD

Plainfield is enjoying a visit at the present time of no less a distinguished personage than Otto Eppers, the sixteen-year-old Brooklyn boy, who on June 29 last startled New Yorkers by leaping from the middle span of Brooklyn bridge to win a bet of $250 and two suits of clothes. He is a guest at the home of Peter Jensen, of Essex street, to which he came Saturday after an all summer engagement at Coney Island, where he gave exhibitions of high diving in steeplechase park. He has been declared the world's champion in this respect and leaves for England next week.

FOOTBALL SEASON BUT THREE WEEKS OFF

With the college football season but three weeks away, coaches are already sending their stars letters telling them where to report to get into condition for the gruelling grind of the season of 1910. The adoption of changes in the rules will make the game even more attractive to the spectator than they were last year. The dangerous diving tackle has been abolished and such changes in the forward pass have been made as will make this play still more open and more thrilling.

It will be a year for the lithe, wiry youngster rather than the heavy veteran and great knowledge of the old game will not be a necessary qualification for an aspiring youth who wants to shine on any one of the big college elevens.

The smaller colleges are supposed to have been given more chance against their bigger rivals than ever before, but as the season progresses it will probably be noticed that Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Pennsylvania will still be in the van, as usual.

CURRENT VERSE.

The Passionate Shepherd.

Come live with me, and be my love,
And we will all the pleasures prove
That valleys, groves, and hills, and fields,
Or woods or steepy mountains yields.

And we will sit upon the rocks,
Seeing the shepherds feed their flocks
By shallow rivers, to whose falls
Melodious birds sing madrigals.

And I will make thee beds of roses
And a thousand fragrant posies;
A cap of flowers, and a kirtle
Embroider'd all with leaves of myrtle.

A gown made of the finest wool
Which from our pretty lambs we pull;
Fair lined slippers for the cold,
With buckles of the purest gold;

A belt of straw and ivy-buds,
With coral clasps and amber studs;
And if these pleasures may thee move,
Come live with me and be my love.

The shepherd swains shall dance and sing
For thy delight each May-morning;
If these delights thy mind may move
Then live with me, and be my love.
—Marlowe.

How to Win.

When you see a pleasant chap,
Sort o' brisk and cheery,
Giving luck a friendly slap
"Stead of looking blue and weary,
You will find beyond a doubt,
Fortune he's beguiling—
Find that he is winning out
With his cheerful smiling.

You can see with half a glance
That he has the habit;
Smiles, and so he sees a chance
He is there to grab it.
Does not sulk when things go wrong—
Rather'd be a-grinning.
Feeling sure it won't be long
Till he'll make a winning.

Bad luck causes no dismay,
Though it tries to squeeze him,
For he grins and laughs away—
Doesn't let it tease him.
Maybe that's the reason he
Smiles and looks so winning,
When such ways as his we see
Seems like winning's easy.
—Chicago Post.

If Love Is Blind.

If Love is blind, why is it that he spies
So many wonders hid from other eyes—
Strange new delights in earth and sky and sea,
That lend the grayest day his sorcery?

If Love is deaf, why is it that he hears
Sweet harmonies unheard of other ears,
The softest whisper and the faintest breath,
And, even, the lightest word a woman saith?

If Love is dull, why is it that he knows
The very secrets of the bird and rose,
The word that shall awake a sleeping maid,
The honeyed poison needful for each dart

If Love can neither see, nor hear, nor know
The ways paths down which his subjects go—
If none may understand his mystery,
How hath that he holds the world in fee?
—Charlotte Becker, in New York Sun.

The Magician.

Love moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform,
About his steps delusions play
And marvels round him swarm.

E'en as the crafty wizard shifts
The magic of his wand that,
Or unsuspected rabbits lifts
Out of a tall silk hat;

So Love doth clothe with saving grace
Each bandy legged freak,
Tone down the terrors of his face
And smooth his mottled cheek.

Oh, Providence was wondrous kind
To all poor homely chaps,
When he made Love blind and made him blind
To facial mishaps.

So that although your passage through
The world may raise a grin,
There's sure to be one woman who
Will always take it in.
—J. B. Van Buren, in New York Sun.

Nancy.

Not softer clouds shade evening skies
Than darken in her sombre eyes,
Nor dayer than her laugh at me
Is morning sunlight on the sea!

Like mountain air 'mid dewy grass
The musings of my little lass—
With her pert dusty thoughts regain
Greenness like leaves in tender rain.

Ah, yes, you smile! But I confess
I simply dare not love her less,
Or scorn hegrever a perverted plan
That snaked the child of thought from man.

Sin strong as bou's living snare,
Glides past, surprised to find her there,
The stealthy ills that suck my breath
Draw bars in mine, and feel is death.

But if I gravely stoop to kiss
That little cheek's rosy bliss,
She scampers off, with teasing spite,
And furtive glances of delight!
—Spectator.

Eternity.

HE.

When the moon is nothing but floating bow!

JOHN HAY'S SENSE OF HUMOR

Statesman Was Exceptionally Gifted in This Respect, According to Biographer.

Few of our public men have had a more delicate or delicious humor, coupled in an unusual way with a keen and cutting wit. We are fortunate in the preservation of so many of his addresses. Speaking of his frequent opportunities for talking in England, Mr. Hay wrote to a friend: "You never saw a people so willing and eager to be bored as these blessed John Bulls. If I were of the Neronic type, which takes delight in human anguish, I could make a speech every night the year round. But I refrain—being merciful and lazy."

Of a candidate for the presidency, he said: "There seems no limit to his eager credulousness. . . . He seems able to believe anything—all he asks is that it shall be incredible." The man's party he characterizes as a "fortuitous concourse of unrelated prejudices."

Describing a collection of sacred relics gathered by Philip II., he playfully writes: "With the exception, perhays of Cuvier, Philip could see more in a bone than any man who ever lived. In his long life of osseous enthusiasm he collected 7,421 genuine relics—whole skeletons, odd shins, teeth, toe-nails and skulls of martyrs—sometimes by a miracle of special grace, getting duplicate skeletons of the same saint."—"Castilian Days," Charles C. Moores, in Putnam's Magazine.

MEDICAL MEN IN BIG SUPPLY

America Is Credited with Almost Twice the Number That Supplies European Wants.

One of the medical journals recently announced that the number of physicians was decreasing. It admitted that there was no immediate prospect of a noticeable dearth of doctors, but it suggested, to put it plainly, that there was danger of young men being scared off the medical field "by the constantly increasing requirements for admission to the medical schools."

Now comes another lot of statistics which shows that the doctors in the United States numbered 154,000 in 1910, versus 132,000 by the United States census of 1900, giving, with the increased population, an increased clientele a doctor from 572 to 594. In Europe, says the Post-Graduate, experience has shown that one physician can care for 1,000 of the general population, and it is estimated that, even with more stringent requirements to diminish their ranks, it will be past 1949 before a proportion is reached which is there deemed normal. We are over 35 years in advance of the natural requirements, which means not only individual average suffering for the profession, but also a serious economic problem for the country.

Duties of Oldtime Carvers.

At the formal banquet of the sixteenth century the man who carved the meat was bound with the red tape of precedent. When carving for distinguished guests he had to remember that certain parts of the birds or meat must be set aside. In carving for his lord and lady he was expected to exercise great discretion in the size of the pieces he sent around, "for ladies will be soon angry and their thoughts soon changed, and some lords are soon pleased and some not, as they be of complexion." He was expected to have the rules both of the kitchen and the peerage at his knife's end. A pike, for instance, must be dished up whole for a lord, and in slices for commoner folk. The rank of his diners, too, determined whether a pig was to be served up whole, with sage plain or with gold leaf, or whether new bread or bread three days old should be eaten.

Suez Once a Natural Channel.

There is every reason to believe that some 4,000 years ago, in the time of King Solomon, there was a natural channel through Suez, by which the light draft vessels of the Phoenicians passed through on their voyages to Asia and to the gold regions of Ophir, which are now known to be in Africa, and reached from the east coast of that continent. In the course of time the two seas (the Mediterranean and the Red), by action of the waves, filled up the connecting channel, and in it from 1859 to 1869 it was opened by the French under De Lesseps' traffic November 17, 1869, at a cost of about $85,000,000. It was subsequently enlarged at moderate cost.

His Dilemma.

Customer (hurriedly)—I want a beefsteak to take home to dinner. Unexpected guest, you know. Wife telephoned me to get the steak. Jane always buys the meat herself, you see, and she's awfly particular. What have you?

The Butcher (encouragingly)—Well, wot do you say to a nice juicy porterhouse, cut thick; or maybe you'd prefer a couple o' cuts of tenderloin?

Customer (still more nervously)—Well, I'm blest if I know which. Say, you couldn't lemme have a couple o' samples to take home an' show her, could you? It's only a half dozen blocks from here.

Confidence of Genius.

"You say your dirigible balloon is a success?"

"Yes," answered the inventor.

"But it came down to the earth with a terrible bump."

"True. But it hit very close to the spot I was aiming at."

PLAYING CARDS IN HISTORY.

Origin May Almost Be Said to Be Lost in Antiquity. Although Something Is Known.

Playing cards probably date back to an early period in China. They are said to have been invented in the reign of Seunho, about 1120, although some authorities maintain that they were known even at an earlier date in Hindustan. Originally the Chinese playing cards contained only 30 in the pack.

The game of cards was known as early as the thirteenth century both in England and France as "Four Kings"—which, by the way, would be considered a fairly good poker hand in these days.

Some of the writers on antiquities contend that the game of cards was known among the ancient Egyptians, and that the merry old kings and queens played something like "Old Sledge" to "while away" the weary hours and make a dollar now and then.

It is recorded that in the year 1778 a French game of solitaire was caught playing some sort of a game of solitaire with a deck of cards in a church. He was haled before the mayor of the town, and thus excused himself for his little lapse from the ritual:

"The ace reminds us that there is but one God; the deuce signifies the Father and Son; the trois the Father, Son and Holy Ghost; the four represents the Four Evangelists; the five, the Five Wise Virgins; the six says that in six days the Lord made the heavens and the earth; the seven tells that on the seventh day the Lord rested from his work; the eight signifies that eight righteous persons were saved when the Lord drowned the earth; the nine, that nine lepers were cleansed by the Saviour; the ten means the Ten Commandments."

"When I see the queen," continued the prisoner, "it puts me in mind of the queen of Sheba; and the king is the king of heaven and earth."

"And what of the knave?" queried the magistrate.

"Ah, the knave is the sergeant who brought me here," quoth the soldier.

"I don't know that he is the greatest knave," replied the mayor, "but surely he is the greatest fool."

Whereat the court returned to finish his game of solitaire.

It is true that the number of spots on a deck of cards is 364; it is true also that there are 52 cards in the deck—where they don't play with the joker—coincident with the number of weeks in the year, and that there are other strange similarities between the deck and the calendar. But there is nothing in all the archives to show that these things are more than mere coincidences.

Japanese Substitute for Cow's Milk.

The Japanese have discovered a very cheap and good substitute for the milch cow in the form of a tiny bean. The juice extracted by a special process from the bean is said to be an excellent vegetable milk, the properties of which render it highly suitable for use in tropical countries.

The preparation is obtained from the Soja bean, a member of the leguminous family of plants, and a very popular article of food among the poorer classes of Chinese and Japanese. In making the vegetable milk the beans are first of all softened by soaking and are then pressed and boiled in water. The resultant liquid is exactly similar to cow's milk in appearance, but is entirely different in its composition. This Soja bean milk contains 92.5 per cent. water, 3.02 per cent. protein, 2.13 per cent. fat, 0.02 per cent. fiber, 1.88 per cent. non-nitrogenous substances and .45 per cent. ash. Common salt and a little phosphate of potassium are added in order to prevent the elimination of the albumen, and then the mixture is boiled down till a substance like condensed milk is obtained. This "condensed vegetable milk" is of a yellowish color, has a very pleasant taste, hardly to be distinguished from that of real cow's milk.

The Gospel of Getting.

Get your desires and get them quick. Get money, which, as things are, is the root of all good. Get exclusive bonds, get gardens. Get motor cars. Get old oak, and brag about it. Get invitations. Get all you can of all that is good and correct—so you remember early—so you remember enough—the words which contain the wording of all fathers and the passion of all experience. "Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom, and with all thy getting get understanding."—John O' London, in London T. P.'s Weekly.

If She Had Not Married.

The lover of euphonious female names must look back with regret to the eighteenth century with its fragrant memories of Belinda, Arabella and Amabel. Yet in Spain euphony is still preserved. Could you have a more beautiful name than Juana Maria de los Delores de Leon? It is one of the ironies of history that the owner of these charming vocables was fated to be known in after life as Lady Smith, and to bestow that much less attractive and euphonious title upon a town in South Africa.

"Your novels will not endure," said the critic.

"I know it," said the author.

"They are not literature," said the critic.

"Correct," said the author.

"Well, then, what do you mean by them?"

"Money," said the author. "Waiter, fetch me a porterhouse steak."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 18, 1910.

Topic.—Resist the devil. How?—Jas. iv. 1-10; 1 Pet. v. 5, 9. Edited by Rev. Sherman B. Doyle, D. D.

There are many references in the word of God to the devil. The word "devil" means "slanderer," and in this particular we see his name illustrated in the book of Job, where he slanders Job before God. The name "Satan," so frequently applied to him, means "adversary." In the temptation of Eve this is the word that is used, simply "adversary." But Satan is particularly the adversary of the human soul. Having lost his own spiritual position in relation to God, he is everlastingly engaged in leading the souls of men and women astray, that they may be as he is. This is also a characteristic of those whom Satan has won to sin and evil. We would imagine that those who have failed into sin and have experienced its consequences would strive to warn others and to keep them from failing. But, alas, in most cases they delight to draw them down to their own level. It is a monstrous trait of an evil one, yet it is true. The spirit of the devil in this respect seems to possess them. How necessary, therefore, to "resist the devil," not even for our own sakes, but to escape such a doom as delighting in ruining the eternal souls of others!

The origin of the devil is not greatly dwelt upon in the Scriptures. It is, however, distinctly taught that he is a real spiritual being, once an angel from heaven who was cast out of heaven for some sin, probably the sin of ambition, as Milton declares in "Paradise Lost." The Bible does teach that the devil is a spiritual being, possessing a power far above man and possessing great skill and tact in attacking the weak places in man's spiritual character. "Your adversary, the devil, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour." If he were a physical foe we might not fear him so much, but being a powerful, unseen enemy, knowing just when and how to attack us, we do indeed need to be constantly on our guard against him and his associates, the evil spirits of sinful men.

How are we to resist the devil? We should, that is sure, for James says, "Resist the devil and he will flee from you." Evil in any form is usually cowardly. Satan and sinful men seek easy victims, but are afraid of strong, vigilant souls. We should therefore resist him. (1) By submitting our souls to God. Then, with the armor of God around us, God will fight our battles, and God is more powerful than the devil. (2) By prayer. In temptation go to God in prayer. Draw night unto God, and the nearer you go to Him the farther you will go from the devil. (3) Be on your guard at all times. "Be sober, be vigilant," resisting the devil in the faith. Watch your life well. Sow good thoughts and good deeds and the devil will have no chance to success fully tempt you. "Cease to do evil by learning to do well." "Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord and He will draw thee up." (5) Use the Scripture as a means of offense and defense. It is double edged and can do great harm. Thus Christ beat off Satan in the great temptation. Satan used the Scripture, falsely intrepreted, as he and his associates so often attempt to use the Scripture against Christ. But Christ understood the Bible too well for him. In each instance Christ used also the sword of the Spirit, the Bible, only He thrust it a little deeper into the adversary, and after the third clash of arms the devil fled from Christ, and angels administered to Christ.

A Tribute From Manchuria.

Rev. A. V. Bryan, writing from Port Arthur, Manchuria, about the value of Christian Endeavor, said:

"When I think of the great help Christian Endeavor has been to the church I can only wonder that any one, especially the pastors, can neglect it. It seems to me that the organization was begun at just the right time. When I was a boy there was no place in the church for those who were not born in that way. They were set aside by the older element and told to wait. Your organization gave a chance to those who otherwise would have been lost to the church. And I recognize the great change that has come in the church when I see the younger generation coming out to the foreign field and see the Christian nurture and culture they have, which place them far ahead of what I was at the same time of life. In Japan there are military academies that are taking young boys and training them for future military service. It must be so as long as this country is a military power. You are preparing the future church army, and any pastor who is interested, as he should be, in the spread of the gospel ought to help you in any way he can. If criticisms are made of your organization, there are many who find fault with the churches, but the only thing to do is to recognize that neither is perfect, but always striving for better things."

HIGHWAYMEN SENTENCED

Jerolaman Gets Two and a Half and Wade One and a Halt Years.

THEY WAIVED INDICTMENT.

Both Pleaded Guilty and Sentence Was Passed by Judge Case in Somerset County Court Friday.

William Jerolaman and Frank Wade, who waylaid and attempted to rob Mr. and Mrs. John Witwroth, of New York, on Greenbrook road three weeks ago, were sentenced Friday morning by Judge Clarence E. Case in the Court of Special Sessions at Somerville, after waiving the indictment of the grand jury and pleading guilty to the charges. Jerolaman was given two years and a half in the State's prison and Wade received a sentence of one year and a half. They had each pleaded guilty to the charges of assault and attempted highway robbery.

The court decided that both men were equally involved in the crime, but as Jerolaman had fled and put the county to considerable expense, he was given an extra year in prison. They will be taken to the Trenton prison next week.

A. M. Beekman, the counsel for Jerolaman, made a plea for his client, alleging that Jerolaman was not a desperate character. He declared that the highway robbery was resorted to by him when under the influence of liquor. Wade was not represented. He is a rough looking character and from his statements to the police it appeared that this was not his first experience in highway holdups. But the fact that he had submitted to arrest and had given the authorities very little trouble made the court lenient. The maximum penalty for this crime is a fine of $3,000 and twelve years at hard labor.

On the night of Saturday, August 20, Mr. and Mrs. John Witwroth, of New York city, were held up by these two men at the corner of Main and Greenbrook road. The police of the borough were notified by people living in that vicinity and when they arrived on the scene, Wade and Jerolaman were both taken into custody after giving battle. While on the way to the borough jail, Jerolaman gave Marshal Keller a shove throwing him from his bicycle. The policeman went sprawling. Jerolaman ran through a cornfield and escaped. He boarded a freight train on the Lehigh Valley line and went to Dearborn, N. Y. He was located and brought back. Wade was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Thomas H. Smith, of the borough, and pleaded not guilty. He was held for the grand jury. During the past week, both prisoners asked to have the indictment of the grand jury waived and be brought up for sentence, promising to plead guilty.

Thorn Seeks to Recover For Injuries Received in Auto-Cycle Collision.

SUSTAINED MANY BRUISES.

Accident Happened Last May—Alleged That Hansen Ran Away From Scene After Running Down Thorn.

Harvey R. Thorn, of East Second street, through his counsel, Judge William Newcomb, has instituted suit for $10,000 damages against Harold Hansen, of West Front street, seeking to recover for injuries received on May 13, last, when he claims he was run down by the defendant in his automobile while he was riding a motorcycle. The accident occurred at East Front and Richmond streets in the early part of the evening. Thorn was thrown a distance of several feet from his motorcycle, and was picked up in an unconscious state by a dying condition and taken to his home, where he lay in a serious condition for several weeks.

Mr. Hansen, who was driving his machine, it is alleged, did not stop to inquire into the facts of the accident or render any assistance to Mr. Thorn, but continued on to his home. It was several hours later when the police learned that it was Mr. Hansen who was implicated in the accident. When first questioned about the affair, the defendant, it is alleged, denied that he had figured in any accident, or in fact that he had had his machine out that evening. Later, the police secured additional evidence to convince them that Mr. Hansen was the man wanted and he finally admitted the fact.

Mr. Thorn's injuries were of a serious nature. He sustained several fractured ribs, and there were general bruises and contusions over his entire body. He was confined to his home for nearly two months, during which time it is alleged he was under the constant care and attention of his physician, Dr. T. S. Davis.

It is alleged that the defendant violated one of the most important provisions of the State automobile law, which specifically states that in case of an accident of this character the parties involved must bring their machine to a full stop and furnish all necessary information, including the names of the occupants of the car. A heavy penalty is provided for violations of this law.

Mr. Hansen later appeared before J. R. R. Smith, State superintendent of motor vehicles, His automobile license, which had been taken away from him, was returned. Owing to a heavy court calendar, the case will probably not be tried before the January term of the Supreme Court.

DR. MAGUIRE CHOSEN FOR N. Y. PUBLIC LECTURE BOARD.

Rev. Dr. Gabriel R. Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, has been appointed as a member of the public lecture staff of New York city by the New York Board of Education. His schedule to date is as follows: November 1, at the Brooklyn Public Library, "The Needs of the Hour;" November 3, at the Bryant High school, "Six Years in the Dark Continent;" November 18, at Public School No. 20 in Brooklyn, "Africa and Its People;" December 8, at Public School No. 126, "Among the Cannibals in the Upper Congo." The lectures on Africa will be illustrated by views which were taken by Dr. Maguire during his stay in that country.

There are now two Plainfielders on the New York city public lecture board, Charles L. Lewis being the other. Mr. Lewis lectured several times last year upon the subject of "Panama and the Canal Zone."

Miss Margaret Kenney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Kenney, of Sandford avenue, has taken a position as teacher of mathematics in the Newark High School, and has entered upon her duties. Miss Kenney was graduated from the Plainfield High School and last year from Barnard College, attaining high honors in both institutions.

Lyonnaise Potatoes.

Two cups of cold potatoes, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon chopped onions, two tablespoons butter or beef drippings, two tablespoons chopped parsley. Put on a platter, garnish with parsley and serve.

Ways of the Alligator.

Late one afternoon, when the lagoon was aglow with the wonderful copper tints of a Papuan sunset, some one pointed out to me a long dark streak moving swiftly across the water 200 or 300 yards away, and in the streak just the slightest speck of black. It was an alligator at last.

"Now you see why you can't go swimming in the lagoon," I was told. "They are worse than sharks. They don't show themselves and give you a chance. They just come down undersea to you and pull you down, and that's all you or no one else knows about it. They don't eat you at once, only hold you under the water until you are drowned or half pulled to pieces and then store you away somewhere under a bank or in a hole till you are 'high' enough to be savory—just as you would do with a pheasant, you know. He's a knowing beggar, the alligator. The shark isn't in it with him for brains and savvy."—Wide World Magazine.

The Spider.

Of all the solitary insects I have ever seen the spider is the most sagacious, and its actions to one who has attentively considered them seem almost to excel belief. The spider is formed by nature for a state of war, not only upon other insects, but upon its fellows. For this state nature seems to have formed it with singular perfection. Its head and breast are covered with a strong natural coat of mail, which is impenetrable to the attacks of every other insect, and its lower parts are enveloped in a soft, pliant skin which eludes the sting even of a wasp. Its legs are terminated by strong claws not unlike those of a lobster, and their hairy coat, like spanish serves to keep every assailant at a safe distance. Not worse furnished for observation than for attack or defense, it has several eyes, large and transparent, covered with a horny substance, which, however, does not impede its vision.—Scotsman.

Not What They Seemed.

A marquis who was in residence for a few days at a Parisian hotel discovered that her pearl necklace, worth $15,000, had disappeared from her room. Suspicion fell on a messenger boy, who admitted his guilt, but declared that the necklace had been taken from him by his mother. The mother corroborated her son's statement, adding astonishment that so much trouble should be made about "a trashy little trinket," which, she explained, looked so cheap and tawdry that she had given it to her children to play with. The young woman, in fact, displayed an equal contempt for the "bits of things." She told the police that she had given the necklace to her little girl to wear, but she had removed about half the beads. All the missing pearls were found in a box among buttons and hooks and eyes.

A Gleam of Hope.

They were evidently from the country and had wandered into the first place of amusement they found. A performance called "Variety" was in progress, and after buying tickets they went squeaking down the aisle, led by the usher, to seats well toward the front.

They watched the stage at first with hope of some excitement, but with steadily decreasing interest. At last the young woman touched the young man.

"Let's go out, Jim," she said. "It's more interesting out in the street."

"Let's hold on a minute longer," returned her escort. "It cost considerable to get in, and, besides, that clown has just called for a boss. I shouldn't wonder if the show's really going to begin now, Emma."—Youth's Companion.

When Cricket Was a Crime.

Under a statute of Edward IV, England's great national pastime, cricket, was declared a felony, owing to its game having become so popular that it interfered with archery, the then sport of kings. The law was rigorously enforced, and every person convicted of playing the game was fined £10 and sent to prison besides. It was not until the formation of the famous Hambledon Cricket club in 1749 that the statute was repealed.—Dundee Advertiser.

A DARK OUTLOOK.

When the Sky Will Be Obscured by a Cloud of Aeroplanes.

The already narrow not the gain but the irretrievable loss of the sky—the trivial physical conquest, indeed, but the tragic spiritual loss.

In the future, if it remains before aviation is all accomplished common place of our lives man is literally looking his last on the sky. All too soon it will be impossible even for a rich man to enjoy the peace which is mine this afternoon as in the heart of an old hollow I lie upon the fern and contemplate the mystery of the boundless sky. Soon that flawless infinity will be feverishly alive to ear and eye with all the temporal traffic of the world, all the turmoil and vulgarity of any other earthly thoroughfare. Solitude will be utterly and forever destroyed, and wearied town tired folk that had been wont to flee into the country to rest their eyes and feed their nerves on tranquil spaces may as well remain in the city and look at a map of the country—on the sky, which will then be as suggestive of peace as Broadway at bonfide.

All the old peace and prayer of the world will have gone. The air, once so pure and transparent, will be filled with the sound of gongs, the flash of signals and undreamed of forms of noise and colors. Man will have placed a cloud of gigantic snars between him and the infinite, and, however high he may ascend in his swift aerial ships, never will he find again the same sky that blessed him with its blue peace, its beautiful old dreams of better worlds and fantastic fairy isles and seas and laid the consoling hand of the eternal upon his tired human brain.—Richard Le Gallienne in Smart Set.

BURBANK THE GRAFTER.

A Number of Long Felt Wants With Which He Might Wrestle.

Luther Burbank, the wizard of plant life, has, it seems, perfected a new poppy of titanic dimensions and brilliantly variegated coloring, together with a primrose of vestal whiteness five inches in diameter. He has proved that he can do almost anything with plants and flowers. It has been suggested that he might devote his energies to producing a bachelor's button that can be sewed on so that it won't come off and a sagebrush to go with the cocksomb. But there are a great many other horticultural needs to which he ought to devote his attentions. Some persons are urging Burbank to give them a cantaloupe without a hole in the middle, raspberries and blackberries without seeds and odorless onions.

Others look to Burbank to devise a mushroom that will yield a superior grade of mush, and they hope that by crossing lemons and watermelons a plant may be evolved that will contain lemonade. Just as some varieties of cactus are reservoirs of water. They think that by grafting pineapples on pine trees he can produce pineapples, and they look to him with confidence to get prunes by properly pruning the hedges. But, while all of us wish Burbank would give us the best kind of things, many people wish that thyme were shorter, and others want it longer. Others object to Burbank's activities in general on the ground that he is a grafter. It is impossible to please every one.—Philadelphia Ledger.

School Children and Swimming.

Leaders in the Young Men's Christian association of Chicago have started a movement that they hope will result in every boy and girl in the public schools learning to swim. They have offered through one of the branch associations to teach all the pupils in eight public schools how to take care of themselves in the water. From this beginning it is expected that the movement will be extended to all schools. "The need for instruction in swimming is demonstrated by the fact that over 4,000 men and boys in the United States and Canada are accidentally drowned annually, and the records show that most of these persons could not swim," says one of the Young Men's Christian association teachers.

In Changing Manhattan.

On a site in the Wall Street district a record has just been made in the tearing down of a skyscraper of the older class. In forty-second street the lately massive Grand Central station is melting away almost like a bank of snow under a hot sun. In midcity a ten story business house of a square block has reached exterior completion in two-thirds of a year. These are some of the marvels of the transformation period in New York. Between the various exhibities of destruction and constructive old residents feel now and again like strangers in a strange town. Yet there are things that linger. The cross-town horse car and the uncomplicated public school system faithful to tradition.—New York Post.

The Queen Mother's Crown.

One of the many matters of detail that King George will have to settle will be the style of the crown to be worn by the queen mother. The crown she used at the coronation was broken up almost immediately after the ceremony for the very simple reason that the bulk of the diamonds of which it was composed were only hired for that purpose. The queen's crown, however, was purchased and made for Mary of Modena, is not at all likely *to be taken into use, and the small dia*mond crown which Queen Victoria had made at her own expense was her private property. By her will she directed it as an heirloom to belong to the queen consort for the time being.

From Lucile's Diary

It occurred to me a few weeks ago that I should like to identify myself with some charitable work. I think it is broadening in one's character to take part in any good movement of that sort, and as nearly all the fashionable people whom I know are interested in one or another of the philanthropic societies of the city I determined to join one.

"You know, Lucile," said Ruth rather doubtfully when I spoke of the matter, "all the girls in our club are hard workers. We not only attend the meetings faithfully, but we pledge ourselves to do our utmost for the charities we assist. Just now we are trying to raise a considerable sum of money to give at Christmas time to worthy charities."

"I'd be glad to contribute $25 if that would be any help," I remarked, casually.

"Indeed it would and it's awfully good of you, Lucile." Ruth's manner was perceptibly warmer. "Of course it would be very nice to have you in the Dix Amies, but I wasn't sure you'd like the name, have time for the work. You know we are getting up a bazaar now."

"I just love such work," I cried, enthusiastically. "Is it to be a fancy dress affair?"

"No; don't think of wearing peasant costumes."

"Oh, do," I said. "I should choose to be a girl from Alsace. A big Alsatian bow in my hair is so becoming to me."

"Of course then we shall have to have the peasant costumes."

A few days later I was notified that I had been elected to membership in the Dix Amies. I at once asked for the large amount of the initiation fee, for it is quite impossible for me to stretch my allowance beyond my usual expenses.

"And father," I said after he had written the check, "I am extremely anxious to contribute to the charity fund which the club is raising for a Christmas offering and if you will give me $25 I'll feel that you've made me a very lovely and generous Christmas present and I won't expect any other gifts from you or anybody else."

"Why, Lucile, are you sure you won't be disappointed when all the ribbons and tissue paper are being strewn around Christmas morning?" he asked.

"No, indeed, I shall be only too happy in thinking how much good my present from you will do others."

Father dipped his pen in the ink and when he had written another check he handed it to me with a smile which showed he was pleased with my unselfishness. Mother told me afterward that he was quite touched. It's a real pleasure to me to feel that I have won the approval of my dear father.

Notwithstanding that I argued strongly in favor of fancy dress at the bazaar the girls decided against it. Even Ruth said the money and trouble that fancy costumes cost might better be expended upon the worthy charities destined to help.

The only fun I had at the bazaar was in displaying a beautiful lapis-lazuli necklace which I put on. Walking around the room I tried to induce some one to buy it. But no one appeared to be in the mood to spend $30 for even such an attractive ornament. Just before the bazaar closed I went back to the jewelry booth and told Ruth, who was in charge there, that I feared it was hopeless to try to sell it.

"Well, may be it will go if we mark it down to $25," she said, thoughtfully. "We should still make a small profit, for the dealer let us have it for wholesale price."

"That seems quite a bargain," I said. "Yes, of course it's too bad to make so little on the necklace, but it would be better to let it go at that than not to sell it at all."

"I'll take it myself, Ruth," I said, with sudden determination.

"Oh, will you? How nice!" she exclaimed, as I gave her the money.

The day after the bazaar the Dix Amies had a business meeting, but I was too tired to go. Ruth came in to see me on the following afternoon and told me that we had made a considerable sum.

"With the $25 you have so generously promised, Lucile," she said, "we shall have the amount we have set our hearts upon. I suppose we can have your contribution at any time?"

"Why, I have already paid in that $25," I answered.

"You have! When?"

"When I bought the lapis-lazuli necklace."

"Why, Lucile," explained Ruth, "you must know that only a small part of the price of that necklace came to the club."

"Well, you seemed very glad to sell it and I supposed I was doing the club a favor when I bought it," I explained.

"It certainly was a great bargain and I congratulate you on getting it, for I am sure it is very becoming to you," said Ruth, laughing in her disagreeable way. Then she went almost without a word.

When I think of that exasperating laugh of hers I feel that Ruth has not had the advantages of thorough culture but I try not to judge her harshly.

A Wedding Eve Quarrel

By R. S. PHILLIPS

"If you do go"—Anne pouted, and *Anne's style of pout was almost as de*liciously distracting as her smile—"you can just consider everything, everything"—emphatically, and the stamp of a small foot added weight to the assertion—"at an end between us!"

"But, honey, don't be unreasonable. It's become almost a time-honored custom."

"Bachelor dinners on the eve of your wedding may be the custom, but if you really loved me as you say you do, you would spend our last unmarried evening with me—with me only." There was a suspicion of tears in Anne's clear eyes.

"Anne! It's quite time this nonsense stopped." Having tried cajolery, harassed Robert Warren vainly supposed that a bit of sternness in his attitude might prove an antidote to his capricious lover's mood.

The pretty nose assumed a greater altitude, and a little slipper began to beat a devil's tattoo upon the soft rug. After deep contemplation, Anne said but two words: "Indeed!"

Often had just these two words reduced that stalwart man to abject submission. Now, however, the abject element was altogether lacking.

"Very well!" springing to her feet and clenching her fists out of the way, the fullest height, which allowed a little more than normal measurement on account of Louis XIV. heels. "Go to your bachelor dinner, and tell your precious ushers that it heralds your re-entrance into artificial headdress! I'm glad! Glad! Glad! Robert Warren," tempestuously, "that I've found you out before to-morrow!"

And, with a tragic gesture that Dune would not have scorned, Anne swept her lithesome out of the room. The tragic pose changed quickly, however, to something rather pathetically human, and Anne subsided in a miserable heap among the cushions of the wide window seat.

Weary, left alone, mused wrathfully upon the inconstancy of woman in general and one in particular. He argued bitterly to himself that he had never dreamed his hitherto "darling Anne" could be so vixenish. Such a ridiculous cause to create a tempest—as if all eligible bachelors didn't give their particular chums a dinner chance to wish them godspeed upon the troubled sea of matrimony. "Really, Anne is about her bridesmaids' luncheon," he muttered, resentfully, kicking spitefully at a fat hassock, "and I'm sure I wanted to see her this afternoon, too!"

Then he stopped and tried to imagine a dainty, dimpling Anne, who was sunshine most always, with just enough prettily cloudy weather for effective contrast. Yes, life without Anne was utterly out of the question. He wondered what if she should make up. Well, poor unfortunate man could only fall in such a venture. He hastened into the hall in search of an obliging maid, to whom to intrust his mission. There he encountered the miserable, sobbing heap on the wide window seat.

"I won't do it, Anne!"—gathering the fascinating bunch of misery into his strong arms.

"Really, really, Bob!"

"Then you can—and must, I only wanted to be sure, dearest, that you would give it up for my sake."

Which last sentence only made Bob Warren's chance a deep and very upon the inconstancy of woman in general and one in particular. However, he didn't argue the matter, but kissed Anne instead.

Matches.

*Three millions of matches, accord*ing to the statistians, are turned out every minute of the 24 hours of the day by the civilized natives of the earth. This is a consumption of seven billions a year, and it is said that half of them are burned in the United States. Matches are cheap and very insignificant compared with some other articles of wood, but the manufacturers complain that they are beginning to find the raw material for their product scarce. Only the choicest portions of the best trees are suitable. Sapwood, knotty or cross grained timber will not do. Instead of being a by-product of other articles of manufacture, the little match is turned out at hundreds of mills over the country where the by-products are bulky objects like doors, sash, shingles, siding, posts and cord wood. The pines, linden, aspen, white cedar, poplar, birch and willow are the most suitable match timbers.

Savings and Losings.

The British P. O. savings bank is raising hob about carrying petty current candy accounts of the kids. Say bootblacks and newsboys will deposit, for instance, and take it out two cents at a time. Now, every such transaction costs the government exactly 11 cents, same price as a $100 transaction. Still it seems to Tip if a youngster can put the shilling at interest, and has candy resistance enough to purchase only two cents' worth at a time, such young Rothschilds should be encouraged, even if it does cost the government a matter of a thousand or so pounds more or less per annum.—New York Press.

HERE AND THERE.

A Surprising "Bag."

A Californian who was shooting quail in a large vineyard near Santa Rosa, had met with excellent success. Indeed, his "bag" was so fine a one that an element of mystery entered into the affair.

At first he thought he must be *shooting tame quail, the birds be*haved so strangely, refusing to fly until nearly trodden underfoot, and then fluttering through the air in a most unnatural manner.

The hunter's dog continued to bring in live birds, which he supposed at the outset he had wounded; but when their number began to exceed the number of his shots, the fact was borne in upon him that this was a very strange hunt.

Finally he came upon a bird lying upon its back and kicking. He picked it up. It appeared to be uninjured. Setting it upon its legs, he watched to see what it would do. It staggered and floundered a few feet further and then fell hopelessly on its back.

Then a suspicion of the truth came to the hunter, and he proceeded to investigate. It turned out that the quail had been feeding on frost-bitten grapes, which had fermented on the vines. They were quite drunk, and as completely incapacitated as human beings are in a similar condition.—Harper's Weekly.

The golden glow that enveloped earth and sky during the electrical rain storm of Tuesday evening was a phenomenon so remarkable that all who saw were filled with wonder and delight. The flaming sky, differing in its tones in every where and intensified by the flashing and quivering lightning caused more than one child to exclaim! "Is the world coming to an end?" The scene was too beautiful for alarm, and "Jerusalem the golden" was suggested to many a beholder, who felt that Wordsworth's "light that never was on sea or land" was for once an actual reality.

Bernhardt and John L.

This story about Sarah Bernhardt and John L. Sullivan is being told in theatrical circles in Paris. The two celebrities occupied rooms in the same hotel in Sydney, Australia several years ago. The tragedienne's declamations greatly disturbed the pugilist's rest and injured his tender feelings, and when, one day she ascended the stairs one day, he frowned horribly at her and gave her an inarticulate growl. Bernhardt was so frightened that she fainted, and it was not a short time before the next day she moved to another hotel. Sullivan afterward described the encounter as a one-round knockout, but generously admitted that he had an overwhelming advantage in weight.

For Weak Ankles.

Do not wear braces for weak ankles until you find them absolutely necessary. Try to strengthen the joints and muscles with some simple exercise first, like standing on the balls of the feet and swaying the body back and forward. Do not bend the body at the waist or the knees, but hold it perfectly stiff and let the ankles act as a pivot.

PLAINFIELD POLICEMEN PLAN FOR ANNUAL DANCE

Thursday, November 10, has been selected by the local branch of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association for the1r second annual ball. It will be held in Saengerbund Hall in the borough. The following patrolmen have been selected to act on the various committees, with Andrew Sellers, Jr., chairman and Richard Birmingham, secretary:

The ball and banquet last year was a decided success and served to show the half thousand guests just what timber composes the local force. A splendid time was passed by the throngs who attended the last function at Truell Hall, and the patrolmen hope that the coming event will be as pleasant. Their efforts will be directed toward accomplishing that desirable end.

MRS. CHARLES WESTERVELT SEVERELY INJURED BY FALL.

Mrs. Charles Westervelt, aged about 58 years, who lives with her brother-in-law, Charles Thompson, at 237 East Third street, fell down stairs at the above address last night, fracturing one wrist and sprahining the other; also receiving a bad cut on the back of the head. She was attended by Dr. T. H. Tomlinson. While her condition is not serious, she will be detained to the house for some time.

Mrs. Westervelt was standing at the top of the stairs, about to descend, when she was seized with a dizzy spell, and fell the full length of the stairs. At the bottom her head struck a small chair, inflicting a painful wound from which the blood flowed freely, and which will probably leave a deep scar.

An Auto Mishap.

Jacob Dunham, janitor of the Smalley building on North avenue, was run down over by L. D. Harris' automobile on Park avenue, at the corner of Park avenue and Second street. He was badly shaken up but his injuries are not serious. As Dunham was crossing the street at the corner, his attention was attracted by an automobile coming toward him on Park avenue and he did not notice Harris' car, which was going west on Second street, until the machine was too near for him to escape. The colored chauffeur applied his brake but not before Dunham was knocked down and a wheel had passed over his legs. The injured man was assisted to his feet by a passerby and Patrolman Dobson ordered the man taken home in Harris' auto. No blame is attached to the colored chauffeur for the accident.

Trephagen—Scheelein.

A wedding of interest to a number of Plainfielders took place Wednesday evening in Jersey City, when Miss Florence Scheelein, daughter of Mrs. Catharine Scheelein, was married to Louis Trephagen at the home of the bride's mother. The Rev. J. C. Jerolaman officiated. The bride and two maids, Miss Ida Scheelein, a sister, and Miss Elvira Hoersler, a cousin, of this city. She was given in marriage by George Scheelein, an uncle, of this city. The bridesmaids wore gowns of pink silk mull and carried bouquets of white carnations while with Irish lace trimmings.

Walked Home From the Lake.

Percy Bailey, George Townley, of the borough, and James Buckley, Jr., of this city, who have been enjoying their vacation at Lake Hopatcong, returned home on Wednesday, walking all the way from the lake. They left at 5 o'clock in the morning, reaching Plainfield at 6 o'clock in the evening, going by the way of Dover and Morristown. They were a tired lot of boys, but declared that they enjoyed the long tramp.

Martin Hertz a Bankrupt.

Martin Hertz, formerly engaged in the lace business on East Front street, had been declared a bankrupt on a petition filed by F. L. C. Martin, one of the creditors, who is represented by Judge William Newcomb. C. Rumsey has been appointed receiver. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., represents Marcus Silbert, one of the creditors.

With gowns no one has seen before.
And all such junk.

But I would seek some far off place
Where I'm unknown,
And let my whiskers deck my face
And be alone.

She sighs for parties and for teas,
They are her wish,
I merely want to take my ease
And loaf and fish.
She wants to lead a life that's grand,
In silken skirts;
I want to wear old trousers and
My out'ng shirts.

DEMOCRATS CONTROL MAINE LEGISLATURE

Complete returns of the vote for Senators and Representatives in the Maine State election Monday gave the Democrats substantial majorities in both branches of the Maine Legislature, which at the beginning of the new year will elect a United States Senator to succeed Eugene Hale, a Secretary of State, State Treasurer, Attorney General, and Commissioner of Agriculture.

The new legislative body also will be called upon probably to carry out the declarations of the Democratic party platforms of recent years and resubmit to the people the amendment to the constitution prohibiting the sale of liquor and to repeal the Sturgis Liquor Law Enforcement act.

According to the unofficial complete returns the Legislature will have a Democratic majority of 36 on joint ballot. The Senate will consist of 21 Democrats and 10 Republicans, while the House will have 88 Democrats and 63 Republican members. The last Legislature consisted of 122 Republicans and 60 Democrats, the Republicans having a majority of 15 in the Senate and 47 in the House.

Practically complete returns today on the vote of the State for Governor gave Col. Frederick W. Plaisted, Democrat, 73,644, and Gov. Bert M. Fernald, Republican, 64,912, a plurality for Col. Plaisted of 8,732 as against a plurality of 8,064 for William T. Cobb, Republican, elected Governor four years ago.

The total vote of the two leading parties yesterday was 138,556. Four years ago it was 130,790.

C. M. Daniels Retires.

Charles M. Daniels, the noted swimmer and record holder for the 100-yard and many other distances, has announced that he is going to retire from swimming races for good. It is reported that matrimonial cares are the cause of his retirement. Daniels has been one of the most consistant athletes in the sporting world and has reigned supreme in his events for the past seven years. His mark of 56 4-5 seconds for the 100 yard swim is liable to stand for some time.

The Boys' Batallion of the First Baptist church has resumed its weekly drills, meeting Friday night in the Sunday school room.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Staats, of Brooklyn, have returned home after spending a few weeks with Plainfield friends.

FELL FROM A TROLLEY; BROKE ONE OF HIS RIBS

William Gildes, aged about 35 years, a carpenter employed at the new Jefferson school on Dunellen avenue, alighted from a main line trolley car at West Front street and Mariners' place, before it stopped, about 12 o'clock yesterday, and received severe injuries, including a scalp wound, a broken rib on the right side, and his face and knees were scraped and bruised.

The ambulance and police patrol were summoned, but the ambulance reached the scene first and the man was removed to his home, 110 Watchung avenue, where Dr. C. A. Gessler attended his injuries. The physician does not believe there are any internal injuries, although Mr. Gildes complains about severe pains about the abdomen.

GOLF.

According to the official program for the women's National golf championship, to be held October 10 to 15 at the Homewood Country Club, Flossmore, Ill., similar conditions to those of a year ago will prevail. The competition is open to all women amateur golfers belonging to clubs which are members of the United States Golf Association, and to those foreigners visiting this country who may be invited by the Executive Committee of the association. In this tournament the Robert Cox trophy and four medals will be played for.

On Monday, October 10, the women will compete in an eighteen-hole medal play testing round, and the thirty-two making the best scores will qualify. Thereafter one match round will be run off each day. In the event of a tie for last place in the qualifying round, the contestants so tied shall continue to play until one or the other shall have gained a lead by a stroke at any hole or holes to be played out. Competitors shall enter for the championship through the secretaries of their respective clubs. An entrance fee of $5 must accompany each entry, and must be received by the secretary of the association not later than 6 p. m. on Monday, October 3.

Beginning on the second day of the tournament side events will be held each afternoon. On Tuesday there will be a consolation medal-play handicap for the non-qualifiers, while on the following day the women will have a chance to compete in a handicap versus bogie. Driving, approaching, and putting contests are carded for Thursday, best-ball foursomes on Friday, and mixed foursomes on the last day.

FOOTBALL.

Augustus Widowson, better known as Joe, who was a tower of strength to the P. H. S. line last year, will be back in the game again this season and he says that he is in fine fettle. His brother, who is the same size as Joe and has as good in a rough house as his big brother, is enrolled among the students at the high school and will join the candidates for the team.

Nearly all of the big college squads have assembled for the season's work. The practicing this year will be unusually difficult on account

FAVORITE FADS IN COSTUMES.

The woman who would give a distinguished and individual air to everything she wears will cultivate a fad for dressing.

Let us suppose, for instance, she is devoted to one special kind of embroidery—the new limit, for example. Then everything—on her lingerie, her gowns, her white hats, her parasols, even on her handkerchiefs and dressing-table accessories this embroidery will appear. If she will only choose an easily adaptable stitch, this is easy of accomplishment in whatever form of embroidery she especially favors.

Or perhaps leather is her dress fad. Leather then will appear on all her belts, her morning-hat trimmings, the buttons, lapels and cuffs of her linen or serge suits. She will display cut leather in her desk and bureau furnishings, and cling to a special form of kid gloves, bags and shoes. After a while her trig and tailormade appearance will be understood by all who know her to be the result of her fancy for leather.

Again, there is the woman with a passion for fringes and tassels, and the other who loves beadwork. Just now, when both of these are so popular, what opportunities they will have for artistic individuality! Without so overworking the thing as to make themselves conspicuous when the fashion goes out, they can achieve a small triumph, sartorially speaking, by their use and adaptation of their favorite trimmings.

Moreover, without absolutely confining herself to it, every woman should have some preferred color, which would appear on everything she wore. A touch of violet, perhaps—so becoming to either blonde or brunette — on hats, lingerie, gloves, stockings, belts, ties, dress trimmings—even the merest suggestion of it in plaids and cresdens; and soon she will become so daintily distinctive as was the lovely Miss Ainslee, in Myrtle Reed's "Lavender and Old Lace," in her charming lavender.

G. O. P. and Democrats Support Sebring and Mobus Respectively For Sheriff.

Charles P. Sebring and Frank Mobus, the Republican and Democratic candidates for the shrievalty nomination, respectively, were given large majorities in North Plainfield at the primaries yesterday. Both candidates carried every district by a big margin. There was a large Democratic vote cast during the day, being greater in proportion to the number of voters than the Republican poll.

North Plainfield gave Sebring 245, Kay 27, and Fitzga 7 votes. Mobus won in the borough with 217 votes against 13 for his opponent, Charles S. Hamilton.

'UNCLE DAN' HAPPY

"I am mightily pleased," said State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, leader of the Regulars in Morris county, when asked for his opinion of the result of the Republican primaries. "The result bears out my statement made long ago as to the situation. Judge Runyon carried Morristown by an overwhelming majority and he has won in Madison and Wharton. He received all but one delegate in Dover, and he got one delegate in Boonton which we did not expect."

PROBLEM TO FIND SEATS FOR 2,835 CITY PUPILS

The matter of seating pupils in the city schools is going to be a problem according to superintendent Henry M. Maxson. The increase in enrollment in the schools was greater than anticipated, and it is expected that when the new Jefferson School is opened the total enrollment in the city schools will be over 3,000. The contractors have as yet not completed the new school but it will be opened next Monday. It is expected that 200 pupils will attend.

The enrollment of the city schools today is 2,835, and is divided as follows: High School, 408; Stillman, 380; Whittier, 167; Franklin, 433; Washington, 391; Bryant, 404; Lincoln, 301, and Irving, 351. The division in the high school among the classes is as follows: Seniors, 63; juniors, 63; sophomores, 87; and freshmen, 95.

The enrollment in the High School is 56 more than on the opening day last year. The freshmen class at present shows nearly 60 larger than last year and the secnior class, ten larger; but these figures are subject to change as the pupils get more closely graded. The Stillman, Franklin, Bryant and Lincoln schools are each a little larger than last year. In the other schools it is not possible to make comparisons since there have been readjustments and transfer of classes to relieve crowding so that conditions are now different from what they were last year at this time.

MT. ST. MARY'S OPENS SEMINARY TODAY.

The seminary course in Mt. St. Mary's college opened with the preliminary exercise this morning. An unprecedented number of pupils had matricu'ated and a statement of the total enrollment will be printed within a few days.

The college has become strongly entrenched in the favor of female institutions and it is believed that the present season will surpass any female collegiate enterprise of its class in the State of New Jersey. Many of the graduates from this institution are now occupying positions of prominence in the educational world.

FIRE ENGINE RECEIVED FOR N. P. TOWNSHIP

At the meeting of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Society, held in Texier's Mills Monday, the matter of a payment of three dollars each for the members of the society who claimed pay for their services on the day of the recent hill climb conducted by the Plainfield Automobile Club, was turned down by the society.

Ground for the new town hall and fire house was donated by Henry B. Guinard, who through C. C. Wheeler presented to the society the proposed site, which was accepted. A vote of thanks was given Mr. Guinard. Among other things a note of sympathy was sent to the widow and children of the late Frank deLacy Hyde. Forty-one members of the newly organized fire department have received instructions in the drills, and night alarms may be sounded from the Wilson Memorial chapel bell.

President William DeL. Anderson made a speech in which the new work in the township was highly commended. Charles P. Sebring, candidate for Sheriff in Somerset county, made a short address. Speeches were also made during the evening by Judge Holmes, of Chicago, Justice G. T. Hughes and Hugo Maul.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

A large roll of twine can be attractively decorated for a gift in this way: A small, round piece of wood is slipped through the centre of the roll finished on each end with a small gilded knob. A bow of pink or blue ribbon is tied on each knob and the ribbon carried from one side to the other forming a handle. A piece of the ribbon doubled with a pair of scissors on it is fastened to one of the knobs for cutting the twine when it is needed.

A pretty tobacco pouch will always delight the masculine heart. Dull green leather or suede lined with crimson silk will be a pretty combination . The top can be pinked, and silk cord, with tassels on the ends, run through eyelets at the top for drawing the strings. The three initials, embroidered on the centre of the bag with shades of green silk and gold thread, will be sufficient decoration. Make the bag wide enough for the pipe to slip in easily to be filled.

To embroider a linen cardcase cut strips of linen two inches longer on each end than an ordinary cardcase when stretched open. Work front of case with elaborate design of needle and thread embroidery. Turn back ends for two inches to form pockets, the ends finished in a quarter of an inch hem. Baste edges together, double thickness in a buttonhole scallop. In doing up the cardcase cut the linen should be stiffly starched.

An attractive set of candle shades are made on water-color paper, decorated with a design of small medallions, a girl's head, either pasted or painted on, surrounded by a tiny red rose and leaves. Two medallions will be of tiny roses between and connecting them. The water-color paper under the medallions can be cut so that the light can shine through them. Finish the edges with gilt cord, either slipped or in a narrow band.

Choosing a Carpet.

When choos'ng carpets, if economy must be studied select one with small pattern and of a rather light color. The small pattern cuts to greater advantage, for there will be waste in matching the design as the breadths are sewn together; and when the wool begins to wear the light color will not contrast so painfully against the string foundation as it would if it were many shades darker in tone.

Returned From the Shore.

Among the returned visitors to the sea shore who have spent their vacations recuperating their strength for the coming winter's work are Postmaster Ellis Bird, who was at Atlantic City, Eugene Laing, of Central avenue and Chief of Police P. S. Kiely, who with his two sons enjoyed the sea air for a few days.

Will Teach at Stirling.

Miss Rose M. Nash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Nash, of Westervelt avenue, has taken a position as teacher in the public school at Stirling. She is a graduate of the Plainfield High School, Class '08, and also a graduate of the State Normal School at Trenton.

Lock the Medicine Chest.

The nursery medicine chest may be a source of danger if left unlocked for even such things as mustard for plasters, cough mixtures or seidlitz powders may become sources of danger in the hands of a small child. The cupboard may be ever so high, but an inquisitive and exploring child, if it has a mind to, will find a way of reaching it. Keep it locked and you will have the "key of the situation."

Mrs. L. E. Hart has taken possession of one of the apartments in her new house at West Front street and Elmwood place. The erection of the dwelling has greatly improved that corner.

JEALOUSY MURDER MOTIVE

Alleged Confessed Murderer of Patrick Cahill Faces Middlesex Co. Jury.

DETECTIVES GIVE TESTIMONY.

Comet Fright Alleged to Have Been Cause of Italian's Undoing—Is Said to Tell Story of Killing.

The trial of Luigo Cerefice, charged with the murder of Patrick Cahill at New Market, which crime he confessed at Newark under odd circumstances, was started Monday morning at New Brunswick before Justice Bergen and a jury. J. Victor D'Aloia, of Newark, represents the defendant. The jury was quickly drawn, but few jurors being challenged on either side. The jury was sworn in as follows: John W. Ellis, of Perth Amboy, foreman; David Nevius, Milltown; James Weaker, New Brunswick; A. C. Schreyer, New Brunswick; A. C. Schreyer, South Brunswick; William T. Redshaw, Madison; Arthur Perrine, Cranbury; John D. Reid, East Brunswick; John Van Norden, South River; Elmer E. Herpen, Cranbury; Dewitt Giles, Dunellen; David H. Smith, Jamesburg.

Prosecutor Booraem in his opening said the State would prove that Cerefice killed Cahill on the night of November 11, and that jealousy was the motive. Both men were in love with Elizabeth Varden, and it was to rid himself of Cahill as a rival that Cerefice shot Cahill twice, then clubbed him and buried his body within twenty feet of his shanty between some cornstalks.

Joseph Cordano, a Newark detective, testified to arresting Luigi near New Market on May 18, while looking for members of a "Black Hand" gang. Cerefice had acted suspiciously, and he believed him guilty of something.

Cerefice was arrested in the belief that he was a man wanted on suspicion of having been connected with the bomb outrages in the Second Precinct, Newark. He stepped, however, that the police had discovered the killing and confessed all, telling how he concealed the body.

It develops that in arresting Cerefice Detectives Cordano and Tenore had mistaken him for the man they were really looking for in connection with the Second Precinct case. Cerefice was entirely ignorant of any "Black Hand" crimes, and but for the "error" of the detectives the tragedy of New Market might never have been discovered.

According to Tenore and Cordano, when they came upon Cerefice he was leaving his shack with a jug to go after cider.

"Come here, we want you," demanded the two officers, and in the usual police manner they started to inform Cerefice how they had it all on him, and that there was no use of his trying to wriggle out of it, as he would only be punished more severely for the trial. The two detectives failed to state to the man what the crime was. It was a fortunate oversight on the part of the two officers.

Both were sure from the prisoner's manner that he was guilty of being implicated in the "Black Hand" outrages. They did not mention him further, but started on their trip back to the station. While walking the tracks, Cerefice suddenly blurted out:

"Well, what would you do if a man came to your house at night, and broke open your door and threatened to kill you if you did not give him money?"

"Kill him," promptly responded Tenore, not knowing what the man was talking about.

"Well, that's just what I did," responded Cerefice to the two amazed detectives.

Fearing to question him further lest they betray their ignorance of what he had revealed, the two detectives took him to the Second Precinct, Newark, and before Captain Brown, where he openly told of the details of the crime to the three.

Cerefice's confession was to the effect that he had called at his house on the night of May 11 and knocked on the door, stating that he wanted some money.

The prisoner said that he refused to admit him, and that the man then became angry and threw large stones against the door of the dwelling, which soon gave way. Believing Cahill meant to harm him, Cerefice declares, he shot him twice in the head, and struck him with an axe. Becoming frightened at what he had done, he dragged the body to the rear of the shack, buried it in the yard and threw cornstalks over it.

Miss Clarissa Lissignolia, of East Front street, who has been spending the summer at Belmar, will return home within a few days. She is now entirely recovered from her illness.

Mrs. Amos Gray and daughters, the Misses Maizie and Katheryn Gray, of East Second street, who have been sojourning at Ocean Grove, are expected home this week.

There is the usual bunch of good gridiron material at the North Plainfield High School and indications point to a most successful season. Principal Phelps, the ex-Yale player, will coach the eleven again this year.

THE POWER OF THE JEW

Rev. Dr. Maguire Delivers an Instructive Address on the Hebrews' Strength.

LEADERS IN ALL LANDS.

After Centuries of Persecution, Israel Has Become the Sovereign Dictator, He Declares—Gives Facts and Figures.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, delivered a discourse at the morning service, Sunday, taking for his subject, "The Jew," in which he attempted to show that as a race the Hebrews exercise a greater power today than in the days of Solomon, which is in accord with the prophetic word of Christ.

Mr. Maguire spoke as follows:

"Among the nations of the earth none are as remarkable as Israel. McCheyne says: 'The future of humanity is centered in the Jews.' Where are all the great nations contemporaneous with Israel's earliest history? Egypt, Assyria, Babylon, Greece, Rome. All lie buried under the dust of centuries, but Israel though scattered among the nations of the earth since the Maccabean reign and prosecuted and oft times bled white by cruel and oppressive manner, still preserves amidst all social, religious and political convulsions of these centuries her distinguishing peculiarities and characteristics as a people.

"The wonderful history of the Jewish nation is a stupendous monument of the truth of the Bible. The seed of Abraham is God's miracle in history. Only eleven chapters in the Old Testament have no reference to the Jews. Ezekiel 37:11 gives us an account of Israel's revival. Israel is now reviving. After long centuries of deadness there has come a most wonderful revival. In August, 1897, for the first time since the dispersion, the Jews held a national assembly. It met at Basle in Switzerland, and was attended by more than 200 delegates from all parts of the world. It was summoned to take counsel as to means whereby Palestine might be restored to its rightful owners and Israel become once more a nation dwelling in her own land.

"It is a remarkable fact that now for the first time in 2,000 years the Jews exhibit signs of national life. Now, this movement indicates many features of Israel which are coming to pass in this generation.

"One is the possession of wealth. Isaiah 60:9. We read that the silver and gold was to be theirs. This wealth was to be taken from the nations that oppressed them. Isaiah 33:1-24. We are beholding this transition. The money of the world is rapidly accumulating in Jewish hands. One Jewish banking house loaned in ten years thirty thousand million dollars. The Rothchilds in ten years loaned four hundred and eighty-two million dollars. Nearly one-half the gold coined in the entire world is in the hands of Jews, in the last half century these people have come to the front until now they rule in finances.

"In Germany nearly one-half of all the rich people are Jews. Six-sevenths of all bankers in Prussia are Jews. Petition circulated against them says: 'The fruits of Christian labor are harvested by Jews, capital is concentrated in Jewish hands.' The London Spectator asserts that the Jew displays a talent for accumulation with which Christians cannot compete, which tends to make them an ascendent caste.

"In Russia a few years ago 73 per cent. of the movable property in certain western provinces had passed from Russians to Jews. One-quarter of the whole property is owned by a Jew, M. Pollakoff. Such is this man's eminence and influence that at a banquet at the University of St. Petersburg his health was proposed by the minister of education immediately after that of the rulers.

"In the Austrian empire the same conditions of Jewish control are reported. In lower Austria, out of 59,122 merchants, 30,012 are Jews. The Bourse of Vienna actually lies wholly in their hands. In France Jews are in a fraction of the population, 82,000 out of thirty-eight millions, yet they hold the finances. Dusmont in his book declares, 'The Jews made a veritable conquest of France and one may see in that country today a whole people toiling for the other people who appropriate to themselves by a vast system of financial expropriation the benefits of other laborers.'

"An illustration of power among Jewish women is seen in the Dreyfus case. Notice was sent to the leaders in the Dreyfus prosecution that if Dreyfus did not get fair play all the Jewish banking houses would simultaneously begin to lower the credit of France. When Loubet took the Presidency of France, stocks began to fall. They dropped a little every day until the situation became serious. Jews declared that stocks would continue to drop until the country was ruined unless Dreyfus got justice. The very day a rehearing was ordered the drop in stocks ceased. In London, on March 1, 1899, the leading Jews of Europe met; there were about one dozen of them, but they controlled one thousand million of dollars or nearly all the ready cash in France. So we see who rules the finances of France.

"In England, since the Battle of Waterloo, Jewish bankers have controlled the financial policy. In 1816 after buying the British bonds at a depreciated value, they forced England to lessen her currency by adopting a gold basis. Since then other nations have been brought to the standard. The results have been in every case favorable to the Jew.

"In America the same accumulation is going on. The number of Jews in New York exceed 350,000, most of whom have come there within a few years. In dry goods there are 514 firms rating $58,000,000, in clothing 264 firms have a rating of $34,000,000. The rating of 2,018 firms is $267,388,000. There are thirty-five Jewish banking houses. Two-thirds of the wealth in New York is in Jewish hands.

"Regarding Jewish intellectual leadership the Word of God predicts that in the last days the Jews would rise to great power and influence in the lands where they were scattered. Zephaniah 3:19, says: 'At that time I will undo all that afflict thee and I will get them praise and fame in every land where they have been put to shame.'

"In Germany they were put to shame. In the eleventh century they were settled in Nemards where they compelled to be baptized or slain. In Germany although they are but 2 per cent. of the population they hold 104 professor's chairs in the universities of that land. Of the 3,609 students in Berlin University 1,302 are Jews. Nearly 10 per cent. of the judges are Jews. At the highest law court of Germany, Leipsic, there are ten Jewish judges out of the total of seventy-nine. In single law the proportion is greater. In Breslau out of fifty-seven lawyers, thirty-one are Jews.

"In Austria out of 370 authors 225 are Jews. In every land they are holding positions of the highest influence as scholars and educators. A remarkable instance is seen in Islam. In Cairo, Egypt, is the largest theological seminary in the world. It has 300 professors and 10,000 students. At the head of this school stands a Jew, Ahaal by name.

"In Europe in the passing generation we find a remarkable proportion of Jews. On the side of Christian scholarship, Neander, Delitsch, Frank, Eldersheim, Da Costa, the names of Jews, Mermay's, Kalisch, Mayhaum, Goldschackers, Frank Oppert, Ricardo will be recognized at once as Jewish. The most distinguished archaeologist in England, Prof. Solomon Schechter is a Jew. The most noted mathematician of the nineteenth century, Prof. J. G. Sylvester, was a Jew. Lombroso, the greatest expert on insanity, was a Jew. Says Walter Besant, poet, lawyer, painter, actor, statesman, physician, musician, there is not a branch of learning, art or science in which the Jew is not in the front rank.

"Jewish leadership is further seen in the extensive control of the press. Almost without exception the press throughout Europe is in Jewish hands. Most largely produced from Jewish brains. William Singer, a Jew editor of the Wiemer Gazette, is the president of the Continental Journalistic Congress. The four papers in the United States having the largest circulation are owned by Jews.

"In music they are without a rival. The names of Strakosh, Verdi, Rossini and Rubenstein tell their own story. In England they hold the position of leader in the House of Commons. The House of Lords was opened to Jews about twenty years ago, but already there are a number of Hebrew Peers among them. Lords Rothchild, Pirbright, Wantage and others. Sir George Jessel, the first of English judges was a Jew.

"No wonder Mr. Wilde writes: 'The Jew is the sovereign dictator of every nation in Europe.' This rise of the Hebrew race to power is the marvel of the age. A century ago they were just imbecile, now they exercise a greater power than in the days of Solomon. Stationary for 1,800 years they are now becoming the masters of the world. This is in accord with the prophetic word."

NOTED BY THE WAY.

A new petticoat for fall wear is of imported moreen, very light in weight and of excellent quality. The underskirt is a new effect and the design of the skirt is novel. The upper portion fits the figure smoothly to well below the knees, being most carefully gored to insure a perfect fit for the dress proper. From here the underskirt presents a sectional flounce showing clusters of tiny tucks and novel cording, the lower edge finished with a ruffle. The colors are navy blue, wistaria, Copenhagen blue and black.

Pretty and simple are the dancing frocks for girls this season. There is an absence of elaboration. At a boy and girl dance given recently the prettiest frock was worn by a girl of 18. It was of ivory jacquard mull the skirt gathered into the belt and held down below the knees with a band of soft silk drawn through a buckle made from small pink roses placed on the left side. The baby waist was confined with a belt exactly corresponding with the band on the skirt, and the round Dutch neck and the short sleeves were edged with tink roses. A half wreath of the flowers passed around the head from ear to ear. It was a home-made frock and owed its success to the simple lines adopted.

STATE TRUST COMPANY OPENS DOORS ON FRIDAY

On Friday next the State Trust Company of Plainfield expects to open its doors to the public in the Marsh building at the southeast corner of Second street and Park avenue. During the interim the Public Service Co. has installed electric lights and the workmen who are completing the interior arrangements may work at night. The installation of the new manganese vault has been attracting hundreds of visitors to the new banking concern's building.

One of the features which has attracted the crowds during the past few days has been the remarkable change which is being consummated in the interior of the building. Eight-foot mahogany wainscoting is taking the place of the old white walls; corrugated plate glass will surmount the specially large plate glass windows and the directors' room which is at the rear of the first floor will be one of the handsomest of its kind in the city.

It is expected that with the additional efforts being put forth by the workmen on the job that the new bank will be ready on the time specified, next Friday.

LADIES' CHRISTIAN WORK SOCIETY PLANS A FESTIVAL.

The Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, held its first fall meeting at the church, Monday afternoon, with Mrs. Elizabeth A. Parse, presidents, in the chair. A majority of the members have returned from their vacations and there was a large attendance at the meeting. It was reported that $60 had been received from the strawberry fund, each member contributing $1 for that purpose. The carpet has been purchased and laid in the church and greatly admired by all who have seen it. It adds greatly to the appearance of the general improvements.

The members decided to hold a peach festival in the lecture room of the church on Thursday night, September 22. Mrs. Edward T. Vanwinkle, as the head of the finance committee, is chairman of the festival committee and the other committees will be announced later. The proceeds from the festival will be used for church work.

CURLY PROBABLY JUSTIFIED IN PUNISHING BOY.

In the city court Tuesday morning Luke Curley, of Willover avenue, was charged with cruelty to her grandson, Charles Schenck, by Mrs. Catharine Schenck, who resides in the same neighborhood. After hearing Mr. Curley's daughter's statement, Judge Runyon dismissed the charge of cruelty and warned the two families to keep apart.

It was alleged by Mrs. Schenck that Curley deliberately thrashed the boy because a story told him by his daughter. The story involved pulling the child's hair and pinching her arms. The Schenck boy admitted having done this six months ago, but denied that he had done anything to the little girl since that time.

Mr. Curley told a straightforward story of the occurrences of last Saturday night. He declared that he was on his way home with his little daughter, when he passed young Schenck, claiming that he was the one who had pulled her hair and pinched her in front of the store of L. Kerwin, on West Third street, on Tuesday last. Mr. Curley caught the boy and administered a whipping, according to his own admission, and warned the lad to never molest his daughter again. This the boy promised to remember, and the case was dismissed by City Judge William N. Runyon.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE IN BOARDING A CAR.

A colored man whose name could not be ascertained Tuesday fell from the front platform of a main line trolley car last evening at about 6:45 near the corner of Front street and Park avenue and was rescued from having his limbs cut off by Conductor Hansen, who was in charge of the car. The young man refused to give his name, and continued his trip. He carried his grip, which was heavy, and in attempting to board the car in front the weight of his suit case overbalanced him.

Conductor Hansen, seeing the man falling, grabbed him by the coat collar and held him while the car traversed about fifteen yards. Hansen then lost his grip. The passenger fell under the fender, but Motorman Gans brought the car to a stop before the wheels could pass over the prostrate man. He probably owes his life to the prompt actions of the trolley men.

REV. DR. EATON'S TRIBUTE

KNEW HIM NOT LONG BUT WELL.

Comforting Words for Widow and Children From Eminent Divine—God Cares and He Knows.

At the funeral services of the late Francis deLacy Hyde, held on Sunday afternoon, Rev. Dr. C. A. Eaton delivered a short address in which he spoke of Mr. Hyde's life as he knew it. He said in part:

Sometime in this journey that we call Life, we seem to be adrift upon a sea that has no shore and no star. Speech must then give place to silence, and fortunate indeed are we if we then retain our hope and our faith. These moments are few to all, but I believe they bring out of the human heart the knowledge and fear of God. There is no sea beyond His ken are care, there is no sky that does not tell of the wondrous glory of His love and presence. There is no tragic experience that He does not understand. This is God's world, He made it, He made us, and He accepts full responsibility for the wondrous thing we call Creation. He looks with a love passing the love of woman indefinable, divine. So today we bring our spirits to this great thought: God knows, God loves, God cares, God guides. I know that when we are most disconsolate God is there, only know I cannot drift beyond his love and care. Men at their best see only a superficial exterior of things. We judge by appearances, we do not know. God knows from the beginning to the end. I take refuge in this great thought: I know that neither life nor death, nor things present nor things to come are able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus, our Lord. This world in which I had my light and shadow. We move and have our being in Him. He performs His work, we must do ours. We fail, He never fails. A mother loves her child when sick; better, perhaps, than when well. The strongest become sick the wisest fail, but God loves us because we are His. He knows, He loves, He cares, He guides, and I would say to these dear hearts and friends and neighbors that we sometimes draw nearer to God in these dark moments.

I did not know him long, but I knew him well. Sometimes in a half hour's conversation with a man you will know him better than if side by side for a life time. He had a white soul and God loved him, and I know that he loved God, for the last time I met him I heard him refer to God as Our Heavenly Father. I laid a tribute of love and respect upon his todies, and I can truthfully say that I shall miss this man as a beautiful spirit, gone from his burden and his pain, I believe, to be with Jesus, who knows and loves and guides.

Dear ones, we can only bring to you our love. You have your burden and your sorrows, you have your God and Father, who is ours. Only we must know that He loves and understands and that by-and-by we too shall get Home. Some out of through stormy way, some through calm seas. We shall all get Home to meet him and those dear ones whose numbers grow with the fleeting years. The happy days when pain, and sorrow is no more forever and we shall be free because we shall be like Him.

HOW WM. CLARK KEPT AHEAD OF FLAMES

William H. Clark, of Park avenue, has returned from one of the most interesting trips he ever made to the Pacific seaboard. During his railroad trip across the State of Washington the train on which Mr. Clark was a passenger was chased by the forest fires and one time of the engineer and fireman of the locomotive that they finally reached their destination.

Hundreds of thousands of trees and valuable farm lands were consumed in the fires, the train speeding to fairly eat up the dried underbrush and gasping trees. Only the miracle of rain saved the country from one of its most serious catastrophes.

Mr. Clark has been in the habit of making a trip to the west an annual affair, but the last trans-continental outing almost proved too much fr this seasoned traveler.

Pastor and Choir Returns.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chamblin, pastor of the First Baptist church, is expected to occupy his pulpit on Sunday, morning and evening, and the chorus choir, under the direction of Howard Case, will resume its services. They will both return this week.

Miss Carrie Coombs, of the same address was the bridesmaid. The couple will reside in the house on Jackson avenue, occupied by George Vlebrick, and the latter will remove to the borough.

Forty Friends at Party.

Games, dancing and music were enjoyed during the evening and refreshments were served at a late hour.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

To mend a torn umbrella stick black court plaster inside the tear. This will show less than a darn and will last for some time.

To remove grease from carpets made a paste of Fuller's earth and ammonia. Spread over the marks and leave till dry. Then sweep in the ordinary way.

If you have no iron stand use an ordinary brick to stand your irons on. You will find the brick (which should be heated first) will keep the irons far hotter than does the ordinary iron stand.

After cleaning the brass on the front door rub it with an old soft duster smeared with vaseline and then polish with a dry cloth. This will keep the brass from tarnishing even in quite damp and foggy weather.

When blacking a stove mix the black lead with turpentine. The polish will shine more brightly and last better.

After whitewashing a ceiling there are often stains of whitewash on the furniture and windows. These can be easily removed by rubbing with a cloth wrung out in a few drops of paraffin have been put.

Always shrink a new braid before sewing to a skirt, otherwise the bottom of the skirt will become puckered the first time of wearing in a shower of rain.

Varnished furniture will disappear if rubbed well with a solution of equal parts of linseed oil and turpentine. Rub this well into the scratches and then polish with a soft cloth.

Cracks in walls may be filled up with plaster of Paris. Mix this with vinegar instead of water. It will then be like putty and can be used with ease. If mixed with water it hardens so quickly that it is very difficult to use it quickly enough.

To remove iron mold from marble rub the marble with a cut lemon dipped in common salt. If this does not remove the stain try rubbing it with spirits of ammonia, which is often successful when other treatments fail. In either case it is well to afterwards rinse the spot and polish it with a soft cloth.

Krebs, superintendent of the borough schools, had everything arranged and when the doors were opened at 8:30 this morning the teaching corps was well prepared for the big rush. All of the school buildings, except the new Jefferson building, in the city, were ready for use after a thorough overhauling and cleansing.

On account of the crowded conditions no official records of the attendance in the city schools could be obtained. Miss Adelaide Ball, the attendance supervisor, said this morning that all of the schools reported a satisfactory enrollments. In the high school the attendance has broken all records.

There was a decrease of forty-five pupils in the schools of the borough this year over last. The high school department is the only one which showed a gain, there being six more enrolled than last year. It is expected that the pupils coming back in the next few days will bring the attendance up to normal.

The enrollment in the borough schools follows: High school, 122; increase of 6. Grammar school, 335; decrease of 15. Watchung school, 223; decrease of 21; Somerset primary, 347; decrease of 15. Total, 1027. Total last year, 1072.

BORDEN MILK CONCERN MAY INVADE PLAINFIELD

The Borden Milk Company, one of the largest single concerns in the dairy business in this country, is planning to extend its trade throughout New Jersey, and it is reliably reported that it will not be long before the company's dairy products will be sold in this city. At present they are being sold in Westfield, regular deliveries being made there.

For the purpose of taking up the matter of selling milk and cream here, the company has been in communication with George M. Christian, who is at the head of the publicity committee of the Board of Trade. The company is planning to arrange a meeting with one of its representatives and the committee from the Board of Trade, the idea being to make Plainfield a central distributing point for this section of the State, as well as sell milk and cream in Plainfield.

Two other large concerns are anxious to locate factories in this city, Cummings & Co., machinists, of New York, has been in communication with Mr. Christian. This concern wants about 25,000 square feet of floor space, while Dix Sons, of New York, manufacturers of women's suits, also want to locate here. They now have about five branch factories in New Jersey. They desire about 10,000 square feet of floor space.

FRANK HYDE'S SAD END

A GENEROUS HEARTED MAN.

Member of Many Clubs and Active in Business and Social Life—A Graduate of Yale.

More than two years of continued ill health and mental depression culminated Wednesday when during temporary mental derangement F. DeLacy Hyde took his own life.

Mr. Hyde realized his condition, and about two years ago planned an extended trip through Mexico, in the belief that he could regain his health. The expected benefit, however, did not result from this trip. His family and friends thought they saw marked improvement during the past year, but it is evident Mr. Hyde knew his own condition better and concealed it out of consideration for his family, which was quite characteristic of the man.

Mr. Hyde was born in this city, at the old Charles Hyde residence on East Front street, where his mother now lives. He prepared for college at Leal's School in this city and entered Yale, from which university he graduated in 1891. Following his graduation, Mr. Hyde resided in Titusville, Penna., where he became director and vice-president of the Second National Bank of Titusville.

About fourteen years ago Mr. Hyde married Carolyn Knowland, daughter of the late Frederick Knowland, of this city. They have three children, Francis deLacy, Jr., Edward and Carolyn. Mr. Hyde came to Plainfield in the fall of 1901, and has resided here continuously since then. His handsome residence on Mountain avenue, North Plainfield, was completed about seven years ago. Mr. Hyde has been prominent in the business and social life of this community, and conspicuous in his charitable undertakings. During his residence here he has been president of the Union County Investment Company and a director of the City National Bank of Plainfield. He was a member of a number of clubs, including the Plainfield Country Club, Park Club, Watchung Hunt Club and the Baltusrol Golf Club.

It would be hard to name a man who had gained more affection and esteem because of his qualities of heart and his sympathetic nature. His loss to this community will be deeply felt.

JURY SAYS WINGES SHOT MAYOR SANDFORD'S COW

In the Middlesex County Court at New Brunswick, Wednesday, Wm. J. Winges, of Dunellen, was found guilty of shooting a cow belonging to Mayor William Sandford, of Dunellen, on April 12. The case was tried before Judge Lyons. The State Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals brought the charge and assisted the prosecution.

Winges shot Mayor Sandford's cow when the animal was trespassing on his garden. According to the testimony, several witnesses swore that they had seen Winges shoot the cow and there were others who said that they had heard Winges boasting of his act to some friends. The case was first tried before Squire Wright and a jury at New Market, the S. P. C. A. being the complainant. Winges won, as he did at a subsequent trial in the same court.

When placed on the stand yesterday morning, Winges denied that he had ever shot the cow, had seen the animal, had heard a gunshot, or had ever talked with anyone about killing the animal. Miss Lurko, who resides in the vicinity of Winges, swore that she saw the defendant with a gun in his yard shortly before the cow was shot. The defendant denied this, saying that he owned no gun of any kind, and that he did not have a weapon in his hand at the time.

Mayor Sanford, who had testified for the State in the case, was called by counsel for the defense, this being done to admit a question, which Assistant Prosecutor Watson would not allow under any other conditions. Harry B. Cook was the counsel for the defendant.

The trial lasted for two days, the jury returned a verdict Wednesday. Judge Lyons did not pass sentence on Winges as yet. It is expected that the defendant will make an appeal.

Winges is a friend of Michael Gallagher, who has caused Mayor Sanders much annoyance.

Mr. Dobson is a member of the local police department and is well known here.

Constitutionalists Ask Pay.

MISS MARGARET RICKET NOW MRS. GEO. CONSTABLE

Miss Margaret May Rickert, of the borough, became the wife of George James Constable, of Flatbush, at the home of the bride's aunt, Miss Margaret Rickert, 68 Fairview avenue, at 7:30 Wednesday night. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The bride was given in marriage by Dr. A. T. Roberts, of Elizabeth. There were seven bridal friends present. Miss Edna May Hyatt, of this city, was the maid of honor and Frank J. Gundrin, of Brooklyn, acted as the best man. The flower girl was Miss Olive Elizabeth Roberts, of Elizabeth.

Immediately following the ceremony, a supper was served by an Elizabeth caterer. The house was tastefully decorated with palms and cut flowers, the prevailing color schemes being white, green and pink. The guests were from New York, Long Island, Brooklyn, Newark, Elizabeth and this city.

The bride's dress was of white satin and chiffon, the gown of the maid of honor was of pink silk, and that worn by the bride of cream lace.

The bridal party entered the room and marched to the altar while the Mendelssohn's wedding march was being played by Andrew G. Carpenter.

The bride is well known in the borough and this city, having been a student at the North Plainfield High Sbcool and a graduate of the Plainfield Business College. After an extended honeymoon, the destination of which is being carefully concealed, the married couple will take up their residence in this city.

MARTIN IS NON-SUITED POLYGLOT JURY ON CASE

The suit brought by Michael Martin, the twenty-three-year-old Italian who was struck by an automobile alleged to have been driven by John Slevin, of Franklin place, on July 2 last, was brought before Judge William Lanning in the district court Thursday, and the twelve jurymen decided there was no cause of action. Among the jurymen were a Chinaman, a Scotchman, a Swede, a Dane, five Yankees and three Irishmen.

The case has been postponed several times in the criminal courts and the present action is to recover damages which Martin alleges he suffered by loss of time from his work immediately succeeding the accident. Harry C. Runyon represented the complainant, while W. A. Codington is caring for Mr. Slevin's interests.

At the time of the accident it is alleged by Martin, who by the way is an Italian, he was coming from the mountains on Somerset street, and at Jackson avenue he was overtaken and knocked to the ground by the automobile driven by Mr. Slevin. Several witnesses testified that when the automobile overtake and knock down the wheelman, and as many others declared that the bicyclist was entirely at fault, having attempted to pass the automobile by sprinting.

On the day after the accident it was stated that the Italian was at fault. He was taken in an unconscious condition to Muhlenberg hospital, where his injuries were pressed and where he remained for several days. Mr. Slevin was arrested by Marshal Weiss and was later released in $1,000 bail, the bond being furnished by David Carney. After several postponements in the borough court, Recorder Charles M. Dolliver dismissed the case. The present suit interests the borough magistrate and he is in attendance to follow the procedure. In the direct testimony Rev. Father Lev. Paluson, pastor of the Presbyterian mission, acted as interpreter for the two Italian witnesses.

The young Chinaman on the jury is Wueryuk Keueue, who has been studying law since graduating from local school, where he perfected himself in the English language. Kueue has attended many of the sessions of the local courts, and has once acted as interpreter in the police court before Judge William N. Runyon.

CARED FOR MORE THAN 2000 CHILDREN

At a special meeting of the City Union of the King's Daughters held at the Charity Organization Aid rooms, Wednesday, annual reports of the baby camp and day nursery work were received. The camp on the mohntains was closed on September 1. The reports showed that 2,048 children were received at the camp from June 27 to August 29, and in nearly every case an improvement was noticed.

The union desires to thank its many friends for contributions of money and useful articles, including foodstuff. It was reported that the city nurse made sixty-nine visits to the camp. Anyone in need of the services of the nurse are requested to notify Mrs. Anna M. Most or the Y. W. C. A. The day nursery work is now in full swing again under the direction of Mrs. Bird, the matron.

Colors to Be Avoided.

Women who are possessed of ruddy complexions should bear in mind that the light green now so fashionable is not suited to them because of producing an overheated appearance. A delicate green, on the other hand, is favorable to pale blonde complexions, because it imparts a rosiness to such complexions —red, its complementary color, being reflected upon green. Violet is an unfavorable color for almost every kind of complexion because, reflecting yellow, it increases that tint when it is present in the skin or hair; it gives to an olive complexion a jaundiced look. Blue, again, is unsuitable to brunettes because it adds to the darkness of the complexion. Yellow, orange and red suit dark people because, contrasting with the dark skin and hair, they not only show to greater advantage themselves, but enrich the hue of the black.

HOUSEHOLD CONVENIENCES.

A place for everything and everything in its place describes the domain of a housekeeper. As much attention should be given the kitchen as any other part of the house. A busy housewife spends a large amount of her time in that room, and she should strive to render it a pleasant and not a dread to enter it.

A great convenience in a kitchen is a large, roomy wall pocket, a large pocket at the top and two smaller ones at the bottom for the automobile overtake and knock down the wheelman, and as many others declared that the bicyclist was entirely at fault, having attempted to pass the automobile by sprinting.

On the day after the accident it was stated that the Italian was at fault. He was taken in an unconscious condition to Muhlenberg hospital, where his injuries were pressed and where he remained for several days. BURLINGTON WINS GAME

Local Elks Royally Entertained by Their Brothers in South Jersey.

TWO BANQUETS ARE ENJOYED.

Blame for Loss of Game Laid to Chowder and Thirteen Errors —Locals Couldn't Bat.

Plainfield Elks returned from a trip to Burlington Thursday, after one of the most pleasant trips to the southern Jersey town they have ever had. Of course, they went there to play baseball, but that was merely an incident. The ball game was won by the Burlingtonites by a score of 6 to 2.

The local team played good ball up to the time MacNaughten tried to throw the ball over the fence with two men on the bags. That settled it, and Mac declares he will never play again. His resolution is all wrong. Even the two of them will never attempt it. Didn't Merkle make a mistake which cost the Giants the pennant in the National league?

Well, this story has nothing to do with Merkle or the Giants, but it will serve to show that Burlington went some when it put these two high-class words and besides entertained the local boys with some amusing vaudeville stunts. When the train pulled out of the station yesterday morning the special car contained at least forty of the locals, all bent upon having a good time. They had it. On their arrival at Burlington a delegation of the Burlington men met them at the station with coaches and automobiles and accompanied them to the club rooms. After the usual ablutions following a train ride the boys were conducted to the hall prepared for their reception and sat down to a repast which the Burlington men called "a lunch", but which our fellows designated as a "repast."

Some mention has been made since their return of a clam chowder. It was stated positively by the men that this particular chowder never had its equal in this State. In fact, it was so good that most of the Plainfielders absorbed double portions of it. Somehow or another the satisfaction expressed by the consumers of this particular chowder had the effect of putting ginger into the Burlington baseball players and taking it out of the Plainfield. Thirteen errors made by our team must be charged to chowder.

But then, there is another sad tale to relate—our fellows couldn't hit the ball. And there you are!

PATROLMEN'S CONVENTION ELECTS J. J. BEGGANS AGAIN.

The annual convention of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, which is in session at Atlantic City, declared itself in favor of John J. Beggans, of Jersey City, for president of the organization for another year, Thursday. Opposed to Mr. Beggans was James O'Brien, of Elizabeth, who had a numerous following. Beggans was elected by a vote of 65 to 24. Ledmond Latchoff, of Passaic, was elected vice-president.

Five of the local patrolmen, Messler, Flynn, Culver and two others represented the Plainfield department. Mayor Wittpenn, of Jersey City, and Mayor Stoy, of Atlantic City, addressed the assembled patrolmen.

They are Friends Again.

At the meeting Council meeting on Wednesday night, Mayor Sanford announced that he had received a letter from Wilson Frederick withdrawing his aspersions on the mayor and that his Honor accepted the apology in the spirit in which it was made. Mr. Frederick is alleged to have stated that ever since Mr. Sanford had been mayor he had been selling out the borough.

Returned from Canoe Trip.

Gardner Bristol and Frank Clarke have returned from a trip through the lakes of Maine with Professor Henry R. Hubbard, of the Plainfield High School faculty. The entire trip was made in canoes and the party slept at night in a tent, which was pitched in suitable places. John Zerega, also of this city, was a member of the party, but has not come back yet.

Raising Prize Produce.

Harry O. Bogert, of Bradford avenue, is raising some prize produce this summer. He has already picked tomatoes from his garden weighing nearly eighteen ounces, and he has cabbage, the heads of which measured seventeen inches across.

Seek False Alarm Fiend.

Elizabeth, Sept. 10.—The police last night had a clue to the person who sent in a false alarm from box No. 514 early in the evening. Several persons living in the vicinity state that they saw a man running through the streets immediately after the alarm was sounded.

SPECIAL GOLF TOURNEY STARTS SEPTEMBER 17

Stuart H. Patterson has presented a cup for competition at the Plainfield Country Club, to be known as the "Swatfest or Elimination Contest," which should interest every golfer of the club. The competition is scheduled for Saturday, September 17. It will be for both classes, each player receiving two-thirds of his regular handicap, strokes to be taken at holes as indicated on "Table of Odds," and upon turning in score cards at the end of the round a certain number of players will be dropped at each hole according to the number of entries.

For example, if nineteen players are entered one player will be dropped at each hode, namely, the player having the highest score on the first hole after applying his handicap will be dropped. The same operation will be repeated at the second hole for the eighteen men remaining in the contest, and so on at each hole so that only one player will remain after playing the 18th, that player shall be declared the winner.

If twenty-two players are entered, two players will be dropped at the first three holes and one player thereafter, if should there be thirty-eight players, three will be dropped at the first six holes and all other holes. In case of a tie at any hole the score at the suceeding hole or holes will determine the winner of the hole upon which there is a tie. For example, a player with a 4 at the first hole, 5 at the second and 5 at the third would be over a player with 4 at the first, 5 at the second and 5 at the third. In order to make this contest successful all members must return score cards irrespective whether cards are complete or not, or when not to finish as any player's card may change the result on some hole for other players competing for the entire round. A score sheet will be posted at the clubhouse showing the net score of each player and the hole at which he dropped out. In the event of a tie at the 18th hole the two tied shall continue until one is eliminated.

On the following Saturday, September 24, play for the club championship begins with a qualifying round at 18 holes, medal play, the first sixteen to compete at match play for the championship, and the second sixteen at 18 holes, match play, handicap, for a special prize. There will also be a prize for the winner of the defeated eight in the first sixteen. In past years a great many players have not entered for the championship event on the ground that they thought they had no chance, but this year with the second sixteen to be played on a handicap basis there should be a chance for even the high handicap player. Therefore, every golfer is urged to read the condition carefully and if possible enter the event.

Tomorrow's event at the club will be an 18-hole handicap, with prizes for both Classes A and B.

FASHION'S LATEST, THE HOBBLE SKIRT.

For all the fun that has been made of hobble skirts, and for all the fact that they are soon to vanish in the influx of empire gowns, for the rest of the summer and part of the fall they are still with us, and it behooves us still to observe the different forms which the abhorred "shackle" may take.

There is the broad tucked flounce, cut straight and with the full skirt gathered into the waistband; there is a straight vertical band down the front of the skirt also, reaching from the belt to the "hobble."

Then there is the stitched band into which the skirt is gathered, with double rows of stitching down its five or six lines of stitching.

Shirring, moreover, is in favor and makes the very easiest way of gaining the shackle effect. Two or three rows are all that are necessary, and the style is very good on a thin wash gown.

Quilling, ruching and fringing all come in for their share of work as shackle producers. They are stitched below the knees, so as to give the effect without the discomfort, and are, therefore, hailed by the maiden with the athletic stride.

Finally, there is the absolutely plain, straight flounce, falling from the tightened skirt, with only a row of silk or cotton braid to mark the limits of the "hobble ruffle," as it has been called, though, of course, it is not really a ruffle at all.

THE YOUNGEST GRANDMOTHER.

Mrs. Herbert Wink, of North Jefferson street, New Castle, Pa., is believed to be the youngest grandmother in the United States. She has attained the honor before she was 32 years of age, when most women are only raising their own families. Now, at 35 years of age, she has two grandchildren. Mrs. Wink was Miss Anna Wymer, of Lowellville, O., and was married at the age of 15 years to Herbert Wink. She was a mother before her sixteenth birthday, when a daughter, Bessie was born. Miss Bessie followed exactly in her mother's footsteps. She was married at fifteen and became a mother shortly before her sixteenth birthday. She is the wife of Richard Linton. Her first baby's William Linton, now 3 years of age, while his little sister, Lillian Belle, is 4 months old.

PENNS. TERMINAL WILL SOON BE OPENED

The new Pennsylvania station is so large that it is difficult for a person standing within it and looking about him to gain an adequate idea of its size. It is still less easy to give a descriptive notion of its largeness.

It is to say that it is the largest building of its sort does not do it justice in point of structure in the world, it is at least the largest, by all accounts ever erected at one time, without intervals, and on a single contract.

It covers what in many districts would be considered a good-sized farm. The area sheltered by its roof totals eight acres of the much-sought soil of old Manhattan. There now stands one building where formerly some 500 city structures, some of them considerable in size, formerly stood.

The high exterior walls of white stone that enclose the great building extend over a circuit of a half mile—a fairly long walk.

So much for area. If the hugeness of the pile may be measured by the fact that the building, apart from the real estate that it covers, was erected at an expense of $12,000,000 may give some idea of its magnitude. The labor of erecting it went on for six years.

Yet in spite of the dimensions the building does not give an adequate suggestion of its size. There is too much to be seen for all to be seen and realized at once. Moreover, the plan of the place is not devised so as to make size its main impression on the beholder. The station is too large to need to parade its magnitude.

Moreover, the size of it is no greater than what is necessary. Instead of being merely a building of magnificent spaces and distances, the station is a very full building. Its entrances, its waiting rooms, its dining rooms, its train platforms, carriage ways, baggage rooms and concourse; its kitchens, shops and stands; these would seem enough in themselves to fill the vast space. Yet in addition the station is an office building, containing acre upon acre of office space housing the general offices of the great railroad system.

The location of this city under one roof is area bounded by Seventh and Eighth avenues and by Thirty-first and Thirty-third streets. The dimensions of this great rectangle are 430 feet by 784 feet. The lesser frontage is on the avenues and the greater is on the streets. From no one view of the building covering all this ground can, owing to the masses of surrounding buildings, be had only from high points in the vicinity. This is the state of things natural in a much-built-up city, where land is expensive and wide approaches are out of the question.

Seen from a sufficient height, the building is discovered to be laid out on a seemingly simple plan. Around the station sides extends a building of more or less the same classic lines familiar in the public structures at Washington. The facades are lined with pillars, and in part with pilasters, so as to give an impression of one-story height. The number of actual stories is four.

This building is not deep. It is scarcely more than a thick wall enclosing the interior. In this heart of the station building are the most important structures of the structure. Straight across the middle runs the long, high superstructure of the waiting room. West of it is seen the curved roof of the train shed, with its skylights.

The great part of the whole structure rises to an even height of seventy-six feet. The more elevated central structure bearing the roof of the waiting room rises to 150 feet. The arched roof of the train shed rises slightly less than the top of the greater part of the structure.

The Seventh avenue facade may be considered the main front of the building. It is distinguished by a Doric colonade. Each Doric column is four and one-half feet in diameter and thirty-five feet high. A row of thirty of these columns screens the entire front facing Seventh avenue. At either end of the Seventh avenue frontage driveway entrances give admittance to a carriageway which leads behind the columns and downward into the lower level of the station.

Return From Long Auto Trip.

Drs. F. F. and N. S. Wilcox, of No. 8 Crescent avenue, have returned from a three weeks' automobile trip to Catskill, N. Y., Lake Erie and Meadville, Pa. The route covered more than 1,400 miles and it was made in the doctor's Buick without a mishap.

Why Not?

"I see some genius has set Mendelssohn's 'Spring Song' to ragtime."

"Well?"

"I wonder how 'Il Trovatore' would go as a musical comedy?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Novel Tie.

A novel tie idea was seen in a shop recently. The tie was silk, green on one side and lined with red. When made into a bow the puffed knot showed red, the ends green. The suggestion may be applied to ties of other materials and of any color and will look well with a plaid or two-color frock.

CHILDREN SURPRISE 'EM

Exercises at Stillman School Playground a Revelation to Parents.

CAPTAINS ELECTED BY PUPILS.

Miss Childs, Supervisor, Pleased by Showing of Her Pupils, Who Are Commended by Commission.

A happy crowd of more than two hundred children joined in the exhibition at the Stillman School playgrounds Wednesday afternoon and brought smiles of pleasure to the many mothers present as well as to supervisor Miss Mary Leonard Childs, under whose careful tuition the children of at least ten nationalities have learned to amuse themselves in a way to carry joy into the homes of their parents.

The exercises were witnessed by several of the members of the playground commission who added their commendation to that of the mothers in praise of Miss Childs. Among the members present were Messrs. Melick, Gavett, Best and Parker and they all agreed that the playground project has been attained and that it will grow.

The exercises in the afternoon consisted of the following: The Danish dance of greeting; a variation of the game of "Slap Jack;" Scamp in the Garden; whip tag, brick bat game, three variations of basket ball, dances by the smaller and larger girls, exercises on the slide, flag relay matches, and a match game of "Stealing Sticks."

Jack Rogers, Myer Cantor, Hazel Goodell and Lavina Rose acted as captains in the games and acquitted themselves well.

It is due to the public that some explanation of the means of directing so many children of different ages and nationalities should be made. The group system which has been in successful use in larger cities has been used, the children being arranged in lettered groups. They are thus classified. Each division elects its captain and the half day of play and the captain appoints his or her assistants who act as monitors, and strangely enough the discipline maintained is astonishing. The perfect control these masters have over the children amazes the onlooker.

During a summer morning when the nervous and distrait youngsters do not know just what to do with their hands there is a system of tutelage which has accomplished much to prevent mischief. Many examples of the children's handiwork were on exhibition yesterday and excited the admiration of the visitors. As was said of the Bryant School exhibition, the playgrounds is a great institution.

IRISH POINT LACE.

Good lace is so expensive that those who have it in their possession are anxious to keep it in good condition, for real lace cannot be bought every day. With care even lace that receives daily wear should last a lifetime, while the stronger kind may be passed on to another generation.

Much of the Irish point that is so much in vogue at present have been unearthed from boxes long laid by, the Dutch collars and rabats especially.

The average Irish lace is very strong, but the lighter baby Irish requires gentle treatment if it is to last a long time. The thread used is so fine that it is apt to snap at any time, and when a broken thread is discovered it should not be allowed to go further before repaired. Any amateur sewer can do the mending at this stage, but when stitches are allowed to run then the lace must be sent to a professional.

A noted lacemaker says that the thread she uses for repairing Irish crochet is just the ordinary sewing cotton. No. 60 is a good size, but the very finest lace will probably take a thicker number still. The torn lace is basted upon a foundation that is sold for the purpose, though this woman frankly admits that she finds several thicknesses of newspaper basted together make the very best kind of foundation and much easier to handle than the bought article.

BEWARE OF YOUR TEETH.

A man is known by the teeth he keeps.

The worst thing that can happen to our teeth is for them not to have enough to do. It is the worst thing that can happen to us also. Spiritualized and cultured as we have become, we still fight the battle of life with our teeth, though we no longer chew our enemies' ears or throats. Boned cored, enamel coated and rock ribbed as the hills, our teeth are more absolutely under our control than almost any other structure of the body, says Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Survey. Neglect them and they decay at once. Give them proper attention and they will go on repairing themselves for forty, fifty, sixty years.

Give children plenty of roughening food to chew and they will get the pearly vigor of the savage tooth with the endurance of the Caucasian's.

WOMAN'S IDEAL HOME

Showing How the Comet Was a Blessing After All.

By A. B. SEARLE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Fellows," said Ned Griggs as they were packing up to leave the university at the close of their college course, "I have a proposition to make. My cousin Loretta Butler"—

"The pretty one you were gallivanting around with on class day?" interrupted Fred Mason.

"The same. She's gone out with a lot of girls and old maids to establish a new woman's institution of some sort. They call it the Woman's Ideal home. The object is to establish a propaganda for the amelioration of the condition of women"—

"Woman's rights, votes for women, equal pay for women with men and all that?" asked Clarence Hughes.

"Exactly. They won't have a man on the premises. Now, I propose that we investigate the Woman's Ideal home. What do you say?"

"That invited we stay, forbidden we go."

"Don't you fool yourself about getting in easily," said Griggs. "We'll have to effect an entrance by strategy".

After a conference the young men decided to write a letter to the president of the Woman's Ideal home ostensibly from one of several women desiring to establish a similar institution requesting permission for a committee to inspect the home and look into the constitution and bylaws. As soon as the young men were established in a camp which they had prepared for their summer outing the letter was written, and in due time a reply was received inviting the committee to the Woman's Ideal home.

There were but three out of a dozen young men of sufficiently delicate and youthful appearance to warrant their attempting to personate women. These were Ned Griggs, Fred Mason and Clarence Hughes.

"Ladies," said the president of the home on receiving them, "I welcome you to our institution in the hope that you may duplicate it, and others may duplicate yours till our land is full of such homes for women."

"Mrs. President," replied Mr. Griggs, "it will be our effect to duplicate the work you are doing."

The president designated three elderly maiden ladies to show the visitors the institution. Mason and Hughes were so disgruntled at the selection of the guides that they came near giving away the party by their stifled grunts and grimaces. However, the three old maids and the three visitors sallied forth on the tour. At the end of ten minutes there were three old maids and two visitors. One of the visitors had lagged behind and couldn't be found. At the end of twenty minutes there were still three guides, but another visitor was missing. The inspectors seemed to be melting away like John Brown's little Indians in the nursery rhyme. Just half an hour after the start the three elderly guides stood alone together wondering what they were there for.

The first visitor to drop off was Ned Griggs. His cousin, Miss Butler, had recognized him. Shocked at his presence in the home and fearing the consequences for him if detected, she had beckoned him to drop behind with a view to getting him out as soon as possible. The second dropper out, Mason, had taken a desperate fancy to a black eyed girl in the party he passed on their tour and concluded to get what information he desired about the home from her rather than the regularly appointed guides. Hughes, finding himself deserted, told his conductors that he feared something had happened to his two associate committee women and he had better go and look for them. Coming upon a blue eyed, dazen haired girl, he begged her to assist him in his search.

The president was looking over the proofs of an article detailing the objects of the home when the three guides entered. The president looked up and, seeing the ladies alone, was astonished.

"Where are the ladies you had in charge?" she asked.

"Don't know," said one of the guides.

"Don't know! What do you mean?"

"One after the other they disappeared."

"Good gracious!"

Stepping to a bell button, she pushed five times, which meant that every woman in the institution should report in person immediately at the president's office. In a twinkling old, middle aged and young ladies came pouring into the room. When there seemed to be no more to come the president ordered:

"Call the roll."

The roll was called. The A's were all present, but when the B's were reached Miss Butler (Loretta) was absent. Among the T's Miss Fairchild (Dora) failed to respond. A third ominous silence occurred when Miss Waterman (Helen) was called upon to answer.

"Ladies," said the president sternly, "there was something unusual in the appearance of the three visitors that made me hesitate to show them our institution. It is evident from their disappearance upon the sounding of the alarm that they are somewhere in the building, and the nonappearance of Misses Butler, Fairchild and Waterman, three of the prettiest girls in our home, means that these visitors are—yes, ladies, we may be sure that they are men!"

"Heavens!" exclaimed a hundred voices, and 200 hands were clasped over another hundred bosoms.

"You ladies were appointed to show these—these Intruders the premises. Go at once and make a search for them. Bring them and the three missing girls here. All others remain where you are."

Meanwhile there was a concentration of the enemy's forces. The three visitors and the three missing young ladies were in a room together, and the girls knew that the visitors were men who had walked into a lion's or rather a lioness' den. Miss Butler was terror stricken on behalf of her cousin, and the other two girls sympathized with her and them. The girls were startled at the sound of the signal order for all to appear in the president's office. Miss Butler, seeing that the battle was on, took command. Two points of retreat were to be considered, the cellar and the cupola. She chose the latter.

"You girls," she said to Misses Fairchild and Waterman, "go and report. Leave these boys to me."

"It would not be honorable," said Miss Fairchild, "to let you shoulder the matter. I shall go with you."

"Me, too," said Miss Waterman, her excitement getting the better of her grammar.

The six of them ran up to the cupola and closed the trapdoor behind them. Then they all sat down on the door, screened from any one below by the encircling railing and seat.

Battles are often won or lost in consequence of some trifling incident, and it was so in this case. One of the searchers whose part it was to visit the cupola attempted to open the trapdoor. Since he could not move it, she assumed that it was locked. She was about to go for the key when it occurred to her that if it were locked no one could hide there, so she reported "nothing found."

When the search committee returned to the president and reported that not only the three visitors, but the three prettiest girls in the home, had vanished a hundred voices mingled, each voice suggesting some means whereby the vanishment might have occurred. In this way much time was consumed, and a couple of hours had elapsed before any further action was taken.

"'Night or Blucher," as Wellington said at Waterloo," moaned Griggs.

"What do you mean by that?" asked Hughes.

"I mean that if we don't get a show to leave the place pretty soon under cover of darkness it's all up with us."

Fortunately while he spoke the shadows were deepening. As soon as it was dark he told the others that he was going to slide down a steep descent of the roof to a lightning rod and thence to the ground. If he was not put out of the fight, then the next man was to follow by the same route. The girls told him the rod had been in place for thirty years or more and surely would not hold. But Griggs determined to try it. Hughes watched him as he descended till he was lost in the darkness. Presently there was the sound of a shake on the rod, a signal agreed upon to indicate that he was on terra firma.

Hughes followed Griggs, and Mason followed Hughes. The girls were alone.

Now, it needs to be stated that all this occurred at the time when Halley's comet was flaunting its tail in the earth in the western sky. No sooner had the last man descended than Miss Butler, looking up at the heavens for inspiration for forming a plan to get out of the dilemma, saw the comet.

"Girls, I have it," she exclaimed.

"How? What? Which?" cried the other two at once.

"Open the trap and call down for them to come up and see the comet."

"The very thing!" exclaimed the other two.

Miss Fairchild pulled up the trap, and all called out:

"Hello, hello! Mary, Blanche, Sadie, everybody! Come up and see the comet."

The ladies, who were scattered about below, all ran to the foot of the cupola stairs.

"Call Mrs. President!" cried Miss Winkles, vice president and custodian.

The president was called. Meanwhile the calls from above were continued.

"Oh, do everybody come up and see the comet! It's beautiful. The tails are as long as a broom handle."

"Young ladies," cried the stern voice of the president, "come down and give an account of yourselves!"

The girls descended, each wearing a well feigned look of innocent surprise.

"How long have you been up there?" asked the president.

"We went up this afternoon," said Miss Butler, "with our work. It was so cool up there. Then when it began to get dark we concluded we'd stay till the comet grew visible."

"Indeed! Where were you when the signal bell rang?"

"What signal bell?"

"To report at my office."

"Was there a signal bell to report at your office?"

"There was. Now I wish you to tell me what has become of the three visitors who came here this afternoon."

"What three visitors?"

The president, seeing that she was baffled, gave in, and when the girls turned upon her for her unjust suspicions she apologized and gave orders that the disagreeable episode should not be again mentioned.

That night the visiters told the story of their adventures beside the campfire.

LOCALS WON CLOSE GAME

High Bridge Was Defeated by Plainfield Team Saturday on the Oval, 4-6.

WARD WAS IN GREAT FORM.

Doerflinger's Boys Bunched Their Hits Off Blackwell—Emery and Boyd Distinguished Themselves by Speedy Playing.

The High Bridge team came to the Oval Saturday afternoon with an enviable reputation and with full expectations of adding the scalp of the Plainfield nine to its long list of victories this season—but the visiting boys were mistaken in their reckoning and went home to the tune of a 6-4 defeat. The Plainfield team had it all over the opposing players and except for a bit of hard luck in the sixth inning would have registered a shut out against its famous contemporaries.

A crowd of five hundred loyal fans were more than delighted at the work of the local ball tossers and also because the High Bridge followers were sports and left considerable money here at 2-1 odds. It was a fast clean game nevertheless, being played in the short time of one hour and twenty-five minutes.

Blackwell, the High Bridge box artist, who is considered to be only a little short of a wonder at the twirling game, had nothing that Doerflinger's boys couldn't solve and the ten clean discoveries of his carver hardly bunched. This accounts for the victory of the Plainfield team. Only six hits were clouted from Ward's delivery and only two of these came together. The local twirler was in fine fettle and had a vast assortment of speed and twisters that mowed the High Bridge batsmen down like so much tall grass. Ward also made two hits himself.

Emery had a big day and swelled his batting average with three safeties out of four times up. Two of these swats came at the proper time and resulted in runs. Boyd's work in the center garden was of the highest order. He nabbed four flies into his gloved paw, and the way in which he got under one sky scraper would have made Ty. Cobb green with envy. Schott also reeled off a thriller in the seventh when he caught E. Walton's line drive, which looked good for at least three bases. Jack Martin had an off day—he made two bad errors. Jack Walton was the whole show for the visitors, taking eight difficult chances on second without a mishap.

Plainfield started things agoing in the first round when Boyd beat out a bunt and went to third on Emery's single to right field. He came home on Jack Martin's long fly into right garden. The second inning added another run to the local's score: Ward singled, going to second on McLaughlin's sacrifice and scoring when Barnes clouted the leather for a safety in right. Two runs came in the fourth for the Plainfield boys. An error by Greenfield gave Nelson a life and he reached second on Ward's hit. McLaughlin advanced both runners on a sacrifice and Barnes brought home the bacon again by a swat into deep center.

High Bridge tied matters up in the sixth just when everything pointed to a shut out. E. Walton got on when Barnes fumbled an easy throw. Morgan fled to Schott. Blackwell sent Walton to the third station on a clean hit. Titus got a free pass and with the bases full, Ward fanned Greenfield. But Apgar got in the way of a speedy one and forced in a run. Then little fat Scully stepped up to the plate and banged the first pitched ball for a double into center, bringing home three more runs.

The locals won the game in the seventh when Schott drew a pass and made third on Brill Walton's two sacker into the tall weeds of center field. Boyd was an easy out on an infield grounder but Emery was there in the pinch and brought the two hopefuls across the rubber by a clout into left field.

"Bill" O'Loughlin officiated to the queen's taste.

WEST END A. C. DEFEATS TURNERS, 4-2

As a curtain raiser to th big show on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon the West End A. C. and the Gesang and Turn Verein met to settle their rivalry for diamond honors and the West Ends came out on the long end of a 4-2 game. The contest was played in the quick time of 1 hour and 10 minutes.

Opportune hitting was the cause of the victory for the West Enders, while the German club team could do nothing with Fulton's slants, and two hits in the first inning was the best that could be gathered from his delivery. Fulton, Wilson and Clinton were the stars for the winners. The Luthman brothers, Hansen and Mullin acted in the same capacity for the Turners.

SOMERVILLE SHUTS OUT FLEMINGTON; SCORE 1-0.

Somerville shut out the Flemington team at Somerville Saturday afternoon by the score of 1-0. The Flemington aggregation was padded with half of the Ridgewood team, but even this addition couldn't beat the Somerville ball tossers. Linderman and Farmer, the well known battery in this city, did the honors for the Somerville team, while Clinton and Torpey opposed them.

Clinton had the Flemington bunch at his mercy until the ninth inning when Speary made the first single for his side. The Somerville team got three hits off Linderman. In the eighth round, Speary made a costly error and together with a hit, the Somerville boys scored their only run.

The score:

Whitney Baker, a member of the club, played two 18-hole foursomes against the professionals of the Westfield Golf Club, Andrew Conway and Morris McCarthy, of the Morris Park Golf Club, last week. Our foursome was played on the Westfield links and the Plainfield pair defeated its opponents, by 5 up and 4 to go. The best ball of the Plainfielders was 69. The other foursome was played at the Cranford Golf Club and that match, too, was won by the Plainfielders, by 5 up and 4 to play. This time their best ball was 70.

BOUND BROOK DEFEATED THE DUNELLEN TEAM

In a one sided game, which was full of poor decisions and misplays, the Dunellen baseball team went down to defeat at the hands of the Bound Brook nine on the latter's grounds Saturday afternoon by the score of 3-1. Montross was hit at will, while Ortlieb had the Dunellenites at his mercy all the time.

Bruggey, Bollinger and Meehan were the stars in the Bound Brook line up, the first two getting three hits apiece. Dodwell and Seery were the show for the Dunellen boys, each playing a hard steady game.

TRINITY'S IMPROVMENTS

Practically Rebuilt Inside and Redecorated During Past Summer.

SUNDAY SCHOOL IS ENLARGED.

Accommodations for Beginners' and Primary Departments Will Meet Grow Requirements—New Organ Dec. 15.

Trinity Reformed church edifice in its new dress was the scene of an earnest reception to its returned pastor, the Rev. Joseph Broek, and the welcome was extended by one of the largest congregations ever present in the edifice. Pastor John Y. Broek had returned from a vacation and the church had been renovated during the summer, bringing the whole into a harmonious feeling for the morning service. The choir was present and while no special music was sung, the entire ensemble was one to encourage Pastor Broek.

Notable improvements have been made in the interior of the edifice during the past two months. The entire interior has been so changed that it looks like a new church and is one of the most beautiful in the city.

Pastor Broek took time before his sermon yesterday morning to thank individually and collectively those who are responsible for the improvements which have been made in the church. Not even the janitor was forgotten. Mr. Broek thanked the building committee, the finance committee, the Ladies' Christian Work Society, the organ committee and in fact all those who had in any way assisted in the rehabilitation of the church.

The Sunday-school rooms, which have been enlarged by building a twelve-foot addition in the rear, can now accommodate a greater number of pupils, especially in the beginners' and primary departments. Not a thing has been omitted which will contribute to the growth of this already large congregation.

It is expected that the new organ, which has been given by an anonymous member of the church, will be in position by December 15, together with the new altar furnishings. With these latter in shape the church will have completed the repairs which had long been contemplated and it will be something which the entire congregation may well be proud of.

Pastor Broek preached a short sermon yesterday morning and told of the preparations being made for the dedication of the new Sunday-school rooms on Rally Day, next Sunday, at 2:30. He also told of some of the experiences during his vacation, and the man who had detailed a sermon preached by Mr. Broek's father thirty-five years ago in Grand Rapids, Michigan. Mr. Broek has remembered the theme and will preach a sermon upon it in the near future.

THE SUMMER COMPLEXION.

The returning vacationer, if such is a person is of the feminine sex, is not at all elated to behold the ravages made by Old Sol during her solourn by the ocean or mountains.

A leading physician says that "tanned further by freckles at the largest size, a red and shining nose, looks back at her disgustedly from her dressing table mirror.

A well-defined line marks the place where the bathing suit failed to shield her neck from the scorching rays, which playing on a skin wet with salt water, got in some fine work.

The whole texture of the skin seems different; as indeed it is, from the soft, white cuticle of her usual carefully treated complexion.

Beauty doctors and pharmacists are besieged now for creams or lotions to "remove tan."

These wise ones smile and solemnly hand forth concoctions which satisfy and soothe the perturbed mind, and perhaps, if used wisely, harm the skin not at all.

The whole secret of the matter is that any lotion strong enough to remove the tan will also at the same time remove some of the cuticle and so result in a roughened surface not at all pleasant or wholesome.

Sunburn can be helped, but a long standing case of tan cannot be got off instantaneously, and this is a fact.

Lots of hot water, a good soaking of the face in the same, soap, a complexion brush, a little of the hand said to be manufactured for the bath-room and not the kitchen, and much may be done in hurrying away some of that brown look which has faded into a dull tan.

After the hot bath a careful, patient, long continued massage will prove for itself that much is being found done, for under the fingers tiny rolls and scraps of skin will be felt and this speaks volumes. It means that the surface layer of tanned skin is being removed, so in a few days the pink and white look which is so becoming will once again be back in its old place.

After such a treatment cold-water is needed to reduce the temperature of the skin and tone the relaxed tissues.

Such a careful bath and scrub and massage repeated several times, not too often, perhaps every second day, will help to remove tan in the most natural way known.

GRAFTING NOT A MODERN SYSTEM OF GAIN

"The Story of a Grafter, and What Happened to Him," was the subject of Rev. J. W. Musson's sermon at the Temple Baptist church Sunday. The text was taken from Second Kings, fifth chapter, twenty-sixth verse: "Is it a time to receive money and to receive garments, and olive-yards, and vineyards, and sheep, and oxen?"

Among other things Mr. Musson said: "We hear a great deal in these days about the crime which is called 'grafting;' that is, the using of public office to enrich oneself by ill-gotten means. So numerous have these cases been in the last few years, and that, by men who were regarded as worthy of the confidence of the people, that some are inclined to look upon the condition of things in our country as alarming; but such a view is wholly unwarranted. The exposal and condemnation of those found guilty of such practice, by the leading writers and speakers, is one of the most hopeful signs of the times. "Grafting," said the preacher, "is not a new form of evil. It has been indulged in by ignoble persons of all ages. We find it cropping out several times in the history of Israel.

The incident in Israel's history to which Mr. Musson referred particularly in his remarks last night was the case of Gehazi, the servant of the prophet Ilisha. Naaman, the commander-in-chief of the Syrian army, having been cured by Elisha, from the terrible malady of leprosy, wanted to show his gratitude by making the prophet a handsome present. Elisha refused to take it, on the ground that it was Jehovah, the God of Israel, who had performed the miracle, and therefore he had no right to receive the gift. Gehazi, tempted by the thought of obtaining so great a sum, ran after the Syrian general, and told him a very clever story, and was given twice as much wealth as he had requested. Elisha, discovering the true character of Gehazi with searching questions, laid bare his guilt, and then with awful appropriateness pronounced the curse of leprosy upon Gehazi and his family forever. Mr. Musson then drew the following practical lessons from the incident, and enforced them with pointed and telling illustrations:

"One may enjoy the greatest religious privileges, and yet be very wicked in heart and life.

"Temptations to evil are so subtle and so alluring that it behooves all of us to be on our guard.

"Sin always brings disappointment to its victims."

"How to be Beautiful."

A lecture entitled, "How to be Beautiful," will be given at Bethel chapel, Friday night, at 8 o'clock, by the Rev. Byron F. Gunner, of Hillburn, N. Y. Special music will also be a feature of the occasion.

FIRST AID IN CROUP.

Croup is a very serious ailment to which young children are especially liable; it is caused by inflammation at the top of the windpipe. Mucus forms round the windpipe, and this must be softened and kept moving, or there is danger of suffocation.

An attack of croup usually begins with the appearance of a common cold, accompanied by feverishness, hoarseness and drowsiness. After a time the breathing becomes wheezy, and there will be an attack of hoarse coughing, but this soon changes to the ringing, brassy cough, peculiar to croup, and the child will draw deep breaths that have a crowing sound.

At the first symptoms of an attack keep the child very warm, and give frequent doses of ipecacuanha wine —in the case of a young child half a teaspoonful. This dose can be slightly increased with years as is indicted, as in that way the mucus that surrounds the throat will be broken and brought up.

If there is no ipecacuanha available give the child sips of glycerin and water, which will soften the mucus. The proportion is one dessert spoonful of pure glycerin to half a teacupful of water.

This treatment, given immediately, will often avert an attack; but if it continues, fill flannels in sponges in boil'ng water, wring them out, and apply to the throat. The best method of doing this is to place a towel of pliable texture over a basin, place the sponge or flannel in the centre, and then pour over it plenty of boiling water.

Take the towel up by the ends (which have not been placed in the basin) and twist firmly round until all the superfluous water has been wrung out of the sponge, but it must be left moist. Apply it to the throat, and then bind round a strip of flannel, which will keep the sponge in place and also keep in the heat and moisture.

Substitute for Mushrooms.

The next time you cannot get mushrooms for frying with beefsteak cut small radishes into thin slices and fry them as the mushrooms. Though they do not taste exactly the same, as some enthusiasts declare, they are a good substitute, and give the meat a delicate flavor. Small button radishes cooked in a sauce such as is used for lobster Newburg are served by some of the large hotels and are also palatable.

REV. MADISON C. PETERS PRAISES THE HEBREW

Rev. Dr. Madison Peters, of New York, delivered a lecture Sunday night in the Y. M. H. A. hall on "The Rise of the Jew in Civilization." After the talk he distributed his books around the audience, which bought his entire supply.

In the course of his remarks, Dr. Peters said in part: "During the past centuries history shows that the geniuses of the ages have been Jews. In all the branches of the arts as well as in the mechanical lines, these people have taken a prominent place. Among the list of famous inventors, doctors, musicians, historians, politicians, financiers, scholars and statesmen, the Jews are found in large numbers.

"Rome with her great power has fallen, Greece is now unheard of, Egypt has passed into oblivion, but the Jews are the same today as they always were, and from all present indications they are coming back to the land of their fathers and will become a power in the world. The Jewish race remains today the miracle of history, the wonderment of mankind, and the fulfillment of prophesy.

"It is usually said that the Jews are rich, but of all the money in Jewish hands was divided among these people, the world would see a poor race. But they are industrious people and keep the business world on the upward increase. Where there are no Jews business is not on the boom but on the bum. People say that the Jew is only a middleman and not a manufacturer, but the retail dealer is just as important in the distribution of the necessities of life as the man who makes them.

"It is not fair to judge the Jew by his meanness. We are all after money, it is our god and we are all liable to lose Heaven on its account.

"The longivity of the Jew is an essential quality in his favor. The average Jew lives to the age of 37 while the average Gentile only reaches 26 years. As citizens the Jews have proved themselves to be most desirable. Disputes have arisen to this statement, especially regarding the number of Jewish convicts. But figures prove the decency of these people. Figures can't lie but liars can figure.

"The reason for this wonderful advancement of the Jews is due to their earnest desire for education and education for children. And much toward the advancement of your race can be accomplished by such improvement societies as you have here in Plainfield."

"EDDIE M'NEE THE WINNER OF EXCITING CYCLE RACE

In a close exciting finish, Edward McNee won the ten-mile handicap road race of the Plainfield Cycling Club yesterday morning, when he defeated George Simon by the scant margin of one-fifth of a second. The winner was only a wheel length ahead when the tape was reached. Only four men started in the race but there was plenty of excitement for the big crowd that lined the course.

From the crack of the starter's gun, McNee and Simon began to fight for the lead and kept up the struggle throughout the entire ten miles almost neck and neck. In the last half mile of the course, the riders started a desperate sprint for the tape, McNee winning out by a sudden spurt.

Gifford Jones, who won third place in the ten-mile free for all handicap of Labor Day, took the same honors in yesterday's race. The three place winners yesterday started from scratch.

McNee, who did the course in 29 minutes and 30 seconds, won the time prize as well as first place. He was presented with a sweater himself and the rest of the riders in the summer race series, taking a lead of 11 points.

The summaries: 1st, Edward McNee, scratch, 29 min. 30 secs.; 2d, George Simon, scratch, 29 min. 30 1-5 secs; 3rd, Gifford Jones, scratch, 29 min. 35 secs; 4th, Henry Phillips, 30 min.

Mrs. Margaret Colyer Kirkner, wife of John W. Kirkner, died Sunday afternoon at her home, 816 West Seventh street, from typhoid fever, which she contracted three weeks ago today while sojourning at Sea Girt for the summer. Her condition was serious from the first. Arrangements were made at once to remove her to her home, and since that time the best of medical skill and attention was provided, but without avail. Sunday morning Mrs. Kirkner suffered several sinking spells, and she passed away in the afternoon, being unable to overcome her extreme weakness.

Mrs. Kirkner, who, before her marriage, was Miss Margaret Colyer, was born and spent the greater part of her life in New York city. She was the daughter of the late Vincent Colyer, of New York, who died a year ago last January while visiting his daughter here. Mrs. Kirkner was married to Mr. Kirkner eight years ago last June, in New York, and the couple then made their home here. She was a graduate of the New York State Normal College.

During her residence here Mrs. Kirkner made a host of friends. She possessed a true womanly character and was admired for her many excellent qualities. She was a communicant of Grace church, and a member of the City Union of the King's Daughters. Besides a husband and one young daughter, Margery, Mrs. Kirkner is survived by a sister, Mrs. Richard Johnson, of New York, who is the only surviving member of the family.

A. B. ROSELL'S BODY FOUND IN N. Y. MORGUE

Abraham B. Rosell, of Red Bank, formerly proprietor of what was known as Hotel Rosell, now Hotel Iroquois, died in New York last Thursday, and his body was found in the morgue in New York on Friday. The funeral was held Sunday from the home of his brother at Freehold, where Mr. Rosell lived at one time.

It was reported that Mr. Rosell ended his own life, but his brother, Joseph Rosell, Jr., of Freehold, said today in a New York physician, who informed him of the death of the former, said that it was due to acute Bright's disease.

Mr Rosell was married twice, his first wife having committed suicide at Denville, Morris county, some time ago. He married again and his second wife survives. Recently she has been living in New York. Mr. Rosell was well known here. Lately he had been a cigar salesman and visited this city every few weeks. The last time he was in Plainfield was on August 29 and he was due here Monday His brother said today that the dead man had not been feeling well of late and he had heard him complain of being ill.

BANISHED FROM CITY FOR BEING DISTURBERS.

For creating a disturbance in using profane and indecent language Sunday night and Johannis Smith were banished from the city this morning by Judge William N. Runyon. They were allowed twenty-four hours in which to get out of town and return to their former home in Rahway.

The Smiths were living at a tumbledown shack on East Third street and had only been there about four weeks, but during that time it is alleged they have kept the neighborhood in an uproar. Quarrels and fights have been attributed to them and their neighbors wanted them removed. After a visit from Captain Chris Frederickson Sunday they quieted down, but shortly afterwards it was found necessary to send Patrolman Sue down to their home to make an arrest. The patrolman brought both to headquarters where the received their ultimatum Monday morning.

RUNYON NAMED FOR CONGRESS

DEMOCRATS NAME WILSON

Princeton's President Unanimously Nominated as Gubernational Candidate.

NOMINEE MAKES A SPEECH.

Thunderous Applause When Dr. Wilson Appears Before the Convention—Victory for James Smith, Jr.

Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University, was nominated for governor of New Jersey at the Democratic State convention at Trenton Thursday afternoon. The nomination was made on the first ballot by a vote of 749½, 41½ more than required. It followed a spirited contest waged in the convention hall throughout the afternoon, and in which Frank S. Katzenbach, of Trenton, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee of three years ago, led the opposition field.

The naming of Doctor Wilson followed closely the program mapped out by State party leaders a week ago, when he was first boomed for the governorship, and was accomplished through the influence of former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., the recognized Democratic leader in New Jersey. Mr. Smith patched up a truce with his former enemy, Robert Davis, leader of the Hudson county Democracy, and not only threw the whole weight of his political power for the college president, but swung the entire Essex delegation of 240 votes for him, which, with two-thirds of the Hudson vote, virtually assured Wilson's nomination on the first ballot.

Unfettered, Says Wilson.

While his nomination was being fought out in the convention, Doctor Wilson was enjoying a game of golf on the Princeton links. He was immediately apprised of his choice, and was rushed to Trenton in an automobile. The convention broke into a wild uproar as he stepped up on the platform. Intermingled in the roar of thunderous applause could be distinguished the snappy college yell of a group of Princeton students, who had forced their way upon the platform and joined with the cheerers in the demonstration.

In his speech of acceptance, Doctor Wilson declared that he did not seek office, but expressed his gratification in being named to lead the New Jersey Democrats to what he declared to be almost certain victory. He insisted that he had made no pre-convention promises, and that he accepted the nomination with no pledge to any other than the party. In outlining his policy, he stated that he would make his fight for election on the three issues now most conspicuous in the State—economical administration, equalization of taxation and the control of corporations.

"You know that this nomination came to me without solicitation," declared Dr. Wilson after being introduced to the convention. "It has come to me through no pledge or promises, and if I am elected governor of this State, as I expect to be, I shall be absolutely free to serve the people. I believe that the platform which you have adopted is sound, explicit and satisfactory.

Must Keep Pledges.

"It is couched in such terms that to one can mistake its meaning, and I am certain that it will win the confidence of the people. This confidence is to be maintained, however, only by living up to the party promises. The people have heard a great many promises made, to be later disowned. You, therefore, make promises at a critical time, and the people will expect you to keep them.

"Hostility does not solve public questions. If you regard vested interests with enmity merely because they are vested interests, you make a mistake. It is perfectly clear that we ought to have a public service commission, with power equal to that exercised at present in State matters by the public service corporations.

"You know that New Jersey creates a great many corporations, and yet I have not heard that she is in the business of controlling corporations.

"In this State, therefore, I covet the honor of showing the other States of the union how corporations should be controlled. I mean that New Jersey can scrutinize the corporations that it creates.

"What strikes me as most interesting in our position is that we must

Mrs. Charles Schemerhorn, of North avenue, leaves tomorrow for a visit in Wilkes-Barre and Mauch Chunk.

The Platform

We, the Republicans of the Fifth Congressional District of New Jersey, in convention assembled, commend in highest terms the able administration of our President, William Howard Taft. During the past eighteen months he has labored zealously and with an eye single to the fulfillment of the party pledges contained in the National Platform of 1908, and his record of achievement constitutes a splendid chapter in the history of beneficial federal legislation.

We pledge him our hearty and united support in his further efforts as Chief Executive of the nation.

Since its first assumption of power fifty years ago, the Republican party has been the party of progress and achievement, and during its almost uninterrupted enjoyment of the people's confidence, it has proven worthy indeed of the trust reposed in it.

We believe that it possesses the same wisdom, courage and capacity to face new problems and conditions that it had to grapple with the old, and is fully alive to the demands of the hour and can with safety be trusted in the future.

Under the wise guidance of President Taft, many measures have been adopted, many laws have been passed, which must commend themselves to a thoughtful citizenship.

Those worthy of special mention are: The withdrawal from private entry, in order to preserve for the public benefit, valuable coal and other mineral deposits, timber lands and water power sites, of over 71,000,000 acres of the public domain.

The establishment of the Postal Savings Bank System.

The admission of Arizona and New Mexico to Statehood.

The just and fair treatment of our dependencies.

The strengthening of our position and prestige among foreign nations through the vigorous and wise treatment of important international problems.

TARIFF REVISION.

We believe that while the present tariff is a step in the direction so much desired, viz.: Toward downward revision, further and more scientific revision is both possible and advisable. We accordingly endorse and approve the proposal of our President that such further revision shall be based upon the findings of the recently appointed Tariff Board; that the duties upon imports shall approximate as nearly as possible the difference in cost of production between this country and foreign nations; that the present duties shall be reduced wherever the rates are discovered to be higher than is necessary to afford labor a high wage and capital a fair return; that such revision shall be taken up and disposed of one schedule at a time in order to minimize the disturbance of business conditions which accompanies tariff changes, and that such revision shall occur as speedily as thorough investigation of conditions will allow.

CONSERVATION.

We endorse unqualifiedly the principle of conservation of our national resources and heartily approve the action of the present Congress and of President Taft in furthering legislation which looks to this end. The application of the homestead laws to millions of acres of the public domain whereby the landless settler can gain a limited patent to the surface while the government reserves to itself for future disposition the title to the underlying mineral deposits, is a measure we cordially endorse.

We demand the impartial enforcement of existing laws, and the enactment of such new laws as may be necessary to protect adequately our national resources against the encroachments of any individual or corporate interests aiming to take from the whole people that which is theirs by right.

LABOR LEGISLATION

We approve the action of Congress in the creating of a commission to investigate the question of employer's liability laws, and workmen's compensation acts and to make recommendations to the President and to Congress. All federal legislation designed to dignify honest labor, and to improve the fortunes of our worthy fellow citizen, the law abiding working man, merits and has our hearty approval.

We favor and urge such economy in public expenditures as will prevent undue waste, secure efficiency of the public service, promote the Plainfield's Popular City Judge Nominated as the Republican Candidate for Congress at the Fifth District Convention Held This Afternoon---Fowler Delegates Refuse to Make it Unanimous---Platform Praises President Taft.

Amid a scene of wild enthusiasm, with delegates standing on their feet applauding and shouting as if mad with joy, Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, was nominated this afternoon at the Fifth District Republican convention as the party's candidate for Representative.

The Plainfield theatre, where the convention was assembled, never contained a more demonstrative crowd than that which witnessed the formal selection of the brilliant and popular judge as the party's standard bearer in the congressional campaign.

The vociferous applause lasted for several minutes and when the band struck up "Hail to the Chief" the noise was deafening. When the candidate appeared on the stage there was pandemonium again, Chairman John H. Capstick rapping in vain to quiet the delegates so that the judge could be heard.

Apparently deeply moved by the honor conferred upon him, Judge Runyon delivered an eloquent speech in accepting the nomination. Time and again he was interrupted by applause, and when he had finished there was a great demonstration again.

Owing to the delay in the holding of the various caucuses of county delegates, it was nearly 1 Friday afternoon when Alexander Gilbert, as chairman of the Congressional committee, called the convention to order at The Plainfield theatre.

Mr. Gilbert Speaks.

In addressing the convention, Mr. Gilbert made a short speech in which he reviewed the achievements of the Republican party for the past fifty years, and in concluding his remarks made a strong plea for harmony.

Mr. Gilbert said:

"It is my duty as chairman of the Congressional convention to open this convention. Practically, there my duty terminates. I am not expected to make a speech, but only to give efficient service in the duty of my office.

"It is also my pleasure as well as my duty as one of the old-time residents of Plainfield to welcome you all to our beautiful city. We Plainfield people have an honest pride in welcoming strangers to our gates. We think we have one of the most beautiful cities in our State. We think we stand in the foremost among them in generous treatment of our guests and I am only sorry that we have not the time. We have the disposition to have fifty automobiles out front to take you gentlemen all over our city and you would then appreciate why we are so proud of our city and partake of our generous hospitality.

ALEXANDER GILBERT.
Chairman of Congressional Committee Who Called Convention to Order.

We have made provision for the inner man so you will, in a small measure, partake of our hospitality.

Plainfield's Position.

"There is one other thing that redounds to our credit in Plainfield and that is its rank among the Republican cities of this State, and yet there is a large independent element in the party. Only the other day at the primary around 3,000 Republicans voted. Larger by far than the vote for Governor or even at the Presidential election. That may be taken as evidence of the fact that our people approve of the primary laws of the State. We think the results prove the fact that the people think for themselves, and the election shows the merit of the law.

"I was said that a candidate received the nomination for an office at a clambake recently and another man came out for the office. The vote was heavy and a general expression of opinion was obtained in regard to the candidates. One man may be able to do this, but any group of men can bring out a candidate for the people as a whole to consider.

"I am not expected to say much nor am I expected to touch upon National issues. I think in a convention a man should make careful preparation to discuss such questions.

The Republican Party.

"I think, however, that I can say the Republican party is not afraid to grapple with the new problems which confront us. We have a record of fifty years, and when one considers the last fifty years of progress, development, the conserving of the public welfare, the position which this nation occupies in the world of nations, all these things have happened through the Republican party and its forward, progressive policies. The ever-changing conditions which this great republic faces have to be met, and we believe the present administration is doing every thing to warrant the support of all Republicans. Every Republican can afford to be proud and can afford to hold his head high when discoursing upon present day conditions.

"So, I say that amidst the confusing criticism the light stands out that the present administration has fulfilled, as far as able, the party pledges, and that we should approve the administration of President Taft, believing that he can be trusted to carry out to a successful conclusion the policies which the people want, the party pledges in the Republican platform upon which he was elected.

"A gentleman said to me as I came in here that this looks like a harmonious gathering. I think it is a harmonious gathering. I think, with the splendid record of the party to grasp hold of those principles which benefit the people, we shall do that which shall be for the common good.

"Gentlemen, my duty is to nominate a temporary chairman for this convention, and I nominate for that position Mr. John H. Capstick.

Mr. Capstick Chairman.

John H. Capstick, of Madison, Morris county, was presented as the temporary chairman of the convention. Secretaries of the convention as nominated respective delegations were Stanley Jones, of Union; Harry R. Watson, of Morris, and George P. Curtis, of Warren. The vice-presidents were also seated on the platform. The chairmen of the respective delegations announced to the presiding office their selections for membership on the various convention committees, as had been decided upon at the caucuses.

Union County Chairman F. H. Smith moved that the convention the make a recess for one hour for dinner. The motion was carried, and the convention adjourned at 1:30.

The Union County delegation dined at the Hotel Waldorf, while the Morris county delegation had its dinner at the Hotel Kensington. Warren county delegates dined at Timbo's restaurant.

Politicians Present.

Among the prominent Union county politicians present at the convention were Former County Chairman Hamilton F. Kean, brother of United States Senator John Kean; Surrogate George T. Parrot, County Registrar F. H. Smith, Sheriff Robert Kirkland, Collector Nathan B. Leavitt and many of the freeholders. Donald McLean, private secretary to Senator John Kean, was also on hand. State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees and John D. Capstick were conspicuous.

Friends of Mr. Fowler were conspicuous by their absence. John L. Blair Reilly, of Warren county, did not put in an appearance; neither did Charles N. Coding, former county chairman. City Clerk James T. MacMurray was not present at the morning session.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who has given much of his time to planning the convention, served as master of ceremonies. In recognition of his political prominence in the Fifth District as well as by reason of the fact that he is Mayor of the city, was invited to take a seat on the platform. Harry Van Gilder was made permanent secretary after the election of John D. Capstick as chairman.

When the convention re-convened this afternoon at 3 o'clock, the credentials committee reported that there were no contests. The temporary organization was made permanent and the rules of the General Assembly were adopted for the convention.

Morris county gave way to Union when Chairman Capstick called for nominations. Robert H. McCready,

FRANK H. SMITH.
Chairman of Union County Committee Who Was Largely Responsible for Judge Runyon's Nomination.

of the Second Ward, Judge Runyon's home ward, placed the name of the popular Plainfielder before the convention.

The platform was read by the secretary. It will be found in another column.

Mr. McCready said:

"When soldiers are trained for a battle they engage in mimic wars. At these times all the elements of real conflict are in evidence. The men fight with every ounce of power they contain. When the mimic war is over the vistors and vanquished meet together and talk over in a friendly way the causes of victory or defeat. When the umpires render their decision once more the opposing forces are joined together in a compact mass.

"As a result of the sham battle the leaders for the real war are chosen. Our mimic war is over. The leaders have been chosen for the coming fight and well chosen. The leader in this Congressional district is a man who has performed those duties which have been placed upon his shoulders more than well. Following the usual custom of picking out men, who accomplished the task set before them, we could have made no better choice this year.

JUDGE WILLIAM N. RUNYON.

Judge William N. Runyon is considered today the most popular man in Plainfield, if not in Union county. Since obtaining his majority he has devoted a large share of his time in the interests of all that is best for social, religious and civic betterment, and he has a strong personal following. He is the eldest son of former Judge Nelson Runyon and is now in his fortieth year.

Born in Plainfield, the judge was graduated from the High School of this city in 1888, and was the president of his class. That fall, he entered Yale University and was a classmate of Lee McClung, now Treasurer of the United States, and of Henry S. Graves, now chief Forester of the United States. During his college course, he was elected a member of the Scroll and Keys, one of the most coveted honors that could come to an undergraduate, and was also chosen a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon, one of the most prominent college fraternities in the country. For two successive years he was a soloist of the Yale Glee Club and at the commencement of his class he was a member of the senior promenade committee. After receiving the degree of bachelor of arts in 1892 from Yale, he matriculated at the New York Law School. He was chosen vice president of his class and was graduated two years later with the degree of bachelor of laws, being president of his class at the time. While pursuing his legal education he was chosen a member of the editorial board of the New York Law School Journal. The same year he was admitted to the bar in New York. After practicing in that city for a time he associated himself with his father in the practice of law in Plainfield, having been admitted as an attorney in 1898. Three years later he was made a counselor.

During the first McKinley campaign, in 1896, Judge Runyon organized the Young Men's Republican Club in Plainfield and was elected as its president. For the following two years he served as a member of the Common Council in this city, and in 1899 was chosen by an overwhelming vote as City Judge, which position he has continuously held for four consecutive terms, polling the largest vote of any candidate of his party on the same ticket, and in two instances being elected without the minority party's opposition.

Judge Runyon is prominent in fraternal organizations. He organized and was the first exalted ruler of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E. He is a past chancellor of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, and is past worshipful master of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M.

SOMERSET TAX BOARD FIXES COUNTY RATE AT 58 CENTS.

The Somerset County Tax Board, at its meeting on Thursday, fixed the county tax rate at 58 cents, which is two points higher than last year, when the rate was 56 cents. This is owing to the increased amount asked for by the Board of Freeholders $17,000, for the coming year. The State school tax rate was fixed at 26.1 cents, which is less than last year, when it was 27 cents.

The ratables of the county will be somewhat increased over last year, when they totaled something over twenty-eight million dollars. The various local rates, however, are not yet agreed upon, as the completed reports of the various assessors are not yet in hand. The clerk of the board, T. G. Winser, is busily engaged in tabulating the returns.

Freeholders Choose Architect.

Charles Oakley, of the firm of Oakley and Son, has been engaged by the Union county Board of Chosen Freeholders as the architect for the proposed tuberculosis hospital for Union county. The site of the new building has not been determined as yet, but it will be chosen in the near future.

A cheap floor polish may be made by saving all the ends of candles, putting them in a jar and melting them on a stove. Mix the wax with enough turpentine to make a soft paste and you have an excellent polish for linoleum, etc. Many people prefer this polish to beeswax and turpentine.

NEW BANK OPENS DOORS

State Trust Company Has Plainfield Men in its Directorate.

VAULT MECHANICAL MARVEL.

Has Large Out-of-town Clientele—Business Increases 120 per cent. a Year—D. P. Skellenger New Bookkeeper.

The new financial institution which opened its doors Friday at thee corner of Park avenue and Second street, the State Trust Company, offers to the public thee benefits of one of the best managed banks in this section of the State. While it occupied a unique position as the Borough National Bank, the greater portion of its business was done with customers on this side of the brook. The officers of the concern are, president, William A. Clark; first vice-president, E. Wanderhuef, A. W. Ransome, George S. Clay and George M. Hofstein.

This morning many visitors inspected the huge vault which has caused so much comment. Some were astonished at the size of the massive door, while others in her interested when they found that even this great weight, twelve tons, could be moved with the little finger. One of the expert men who are putting the finishing touches on the bank's furniture took a lead pencil, sharply pointed, and closed the door without breaking the pencil's point.

Of course the interior of the bank will not be finished until the mechanics who are making the necessary changes in the interior of the Marsh building are satisfied that their work is the best that can be done. It will take about ten days for this, but when the work is finished it is believed that the interior of the bank will equal in convenience, any similar institution in this city.

A feature that is said to be different from any other fiduciary concern in this city is that the stockholders are men who have been brought up here and all are self-made men. There is no outside controlling interest. The stock is distributed among some seventy-five stockholders and every one of them holding more than five shares is eligible to election to the board of directors.

A large proportion of the business of the new bank is from customers in this city, but there is a large out-of-town clientele, principally in Pennsylvania and New York States.

This morning Allen Strachan, the lock expert from the Yale Lock Works at Stamford, Conn., put the finishing touches to the inner mechanism of the massive steel door of the big safe. Daniel P. Skellinger, former teller of the First National Bank of Somerville, has been engaged as bookkeeper. STAPLETON ELKS LOSE

Plainfield's Batters too Strong For the Visitors From Over the Kill Von Kull.

LOCALS MAKE NINETEEN HITS.

Bombardment Started in First inning and Lasted Throughout the Game—Score 16 to 3.

It took but one inning Thursday afternon to demonstrate to the Elks from Stapleton, S. I., that they were not in the same class with the Plainfield men. In the first inning it was shown that Warry McLaughlin had the visitors at his mercy and thereafter he held them safe.

Every man on the local nine had his batting clothes on and the way they swatted the offerings of Mr. Kleeper, recent graduate from Manhattan college, was a caution. Nineteen hits for a total of thirty-seven bases shows how it all happened.

In the first inning every man on the team came to bat and the only one to miss connections with the pellet was Torpey, and he really should have been credited with a hit, but it was a question as to whether an error should have been charged against third baseman Mulligan. Kleren, the State Island mound artist, seemed to feel chilly, especially when Warry McLoughlin lifted one of his benders over beyond the right-fielder's head for two bags. Singles by Cadmus, Smith and Monahan in succession brought the tallies of the locals up to seven.

Jack Nicol surprised the talent by laeing one past Halloran for a base bringing in Smith and Monahan. Then the agony was over. In the third McNaughton, Hoyt, Monahan and Nichol scored on some swift work with the willow, a prominent feature of which was VanArsdale's double to center. VanArsdale, besides covering his position at short in masterly fashion, batted like a veteran, having a two-bagger and two singles to his credit.

Several changes were made in the batteries after it was seen that Plainfield had the game won. The "Bear Cat" battery being given a chance in the sixth just to prove that they were in good form. The bear cats were MacNaughton and Cadmus. The summary below will give a good idea of the game. Many women were present to witness the sport and one who passed near the scorer's stand when leaving the scene declared she had never enjoyed herself more at a game of the good things provided by the locals.

Mrs. M. F. Elderton Entertains.

Mrs. Millard Fillmore Elderton, of Park avenue, entertained a few friends at a bridge whist party and afternoon tea, Friday, from 4 to 6 o'clock. Mrs. Elderton was assisted in receiving by Mrs. W. A. Freeman. Several tables were in play. A feature of the affair was the singing of "Tanta A Mor Pour Tant D'Amour," a selection from "La Favorite," by Mrs. McNeill Hopcraft. She was well received, as was Mrs. Freeman, who sang "The Song of the Soul," from "The Climax." Mrs. Elderton and Mrs. Freeman poured tea.

HYDROPHOBIA A RARE DISEASE AMONG ANIMALS

The idea that hydrophobia has attacked every animal that shows a contrary disposition and the fear which accompanies the smallest allment of a beast is declared by Dr. Bambaud, of the Pasteur Institute in New York, to be rediculous. In an interview recently Dr. Bambaud declared that a sort of hysteria is no indication of rabies and that people should not rush to too quick conclusions. Dr. Andrew C. Aarmstrong, of the New York Veterinary Hospital, expressed the same views as were printed in the New York Herald by Dr. A. M. Stimson, of Washington, who has declared that rabies or hydrophobia is a rare disease and but few of the suspected animals are affected with it when killed.

"The foolish superstition that dogs become rabid in summer," said Dr. Bambaud, "is due wholly to the fact that thousands of dogs are killed during the hot weather, because they are suspected of being afflicted with rabies. As a matter of fact rabies knows no season and there are cases occurring in the winter as well as in summer."

Dr. Armstrong is equally emphatic in his statements regarding the disease. He recently said that everyone who has followed the matter has become convinced that hydrophobia is a rare disease and the slaughter of innocent dogs in the summer is a wanton operation. The person who is bitten by a dog in the summer instantly believes himself lost simply because saliva is dripping from the animal's mouth. He frightens himself into a needless nervous state and the imagination does the rest.

Several other veterinarians have decided that the disease from which many shrink in terror is nothing but a mind trouble brought on through fright. Among those holding to this belief are many dog fanciers and horse lovers. Otto E. Eggeling, of Hawthorne, N. Y., has said that he has found hydrophobia a very rare disease and in all his long experience he had noticed but one actual case. Other so called cases were simply due to imagination and fright.

It looks as though much needless worry has been caused by false impressions of the conducts of dogs and other animals and it would be advisable for the use of common sense in many instances where the symptoms deceive the credulous.

MISS BLYDENBURGH NOW MRS. CHAS. L. BYRNE

One of the good old fashioned weddings which in the Colonial days gladdened the hearts of the onlookers and made the merry feet trip to the music, occurred Thursday at the old Sebring homestead in Greenbrook. When Miss Florence Blydenburgh, formerly a resident of West Seventh street, but now of Brooklyn, became the bride of Charles Lee Byrne, of New York, an employe of the D. L. & W. Railroad. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. L. Culp, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Bound Brook. The bridesmaid was Miss Bessie Perry, of Bound Brook, and the best man Ernest Herbert Layton, of New York city. Miss Natalie Parker, of Bound Brook, was the flwer girl.

The ceremony was performed in the parlors of the old mansion at Greenbrook and was conducted under bowers of green cut from the old rock and spruce trees from the farm. Charles Sebring, candidate for Sheriff in Somerset county, gave the bride away, and Miss Edna Long played the Lohengrin wedding march as the young couple entered the parlor.

After the ceremony the guests, numbering nearly a hundred, were entertained at a wedding supper, while the congratulations of their friends were showered upon them. After a month's tour of the western cities, Mr. and Mrs. Byrne will reside in New York.

Even though the visitors were defeated they returned to their homes in Staten Island with a conception of how the Plainfielder can entertain. They were entertained at luncheon at noon and after the game a little after 8 o'clock and Monroe, with Uncle Dan Voorhees at its head, arrived at 11 o'clock, most of the delegates coming in automobiles. The biggest showing was that of the Union county delegation, which, headed by a brass band, came in special trolley cars.

Union's Caucus.

At the caucuses Robert H. McCready was elected chairman in Union, with Victor Myralag, of Elizabeth, as vice-president and Stanley Jones, of Rahway, secretary. The following were elected for convention committees: Credentials, R. C. Plume, of Cranford; rules, C. M. Smith, of Elizabeth; permanent organization, C. M. Morrell, of Rahway; congressional committee, Alexander Gilbert, of this city, and John L. Howe, of Roselle. The total vote of the Union county delegation cast in caucus was Runyon, 80, Fowler 28.

Morris Caucus.

Morris county was right on deck with an almost solid vote for the local judge. Uncle Dan had the delegation well in hand and when the announcements of the vote in caucus was given he had these men on the list: Chairman, Albert Richards; vice-president of the convention, Carnot B. Meeker; secretary, Harry R. Watson; permanent organization, Fredrick McEwen; rules, Abraham Ryerson; credentials, J. J. A. Owens; resolutions, Joseph F. McLean.

Warren Caucus.

Warren county which gave to Mr. Fowler such a strong support that it seemed that their enthusiasm would carry the convention, but failed, turned in for Judge Runyon only 3 7-10 votes, while Mr. Fowler received a total of 28¾. W. H. Pierson was elected chairman of the Warren delegation, while Harry Riddle got the vice-presidency. The secretary was George H. Curtis. Members of the committees were named as follows: Permanent organization, W. J. Axford; rules, F. G. Andrews; credentials, John Laughlin; resolutions, W. R. Lair.

Music enlivened the proceedings in county rooms in the Frost building while the deliberations were in progress and every time that Judge Runyon showed himself previous to the opening session of the convention he was given cheers which must have given him encouragement.

THE REIGN OF THE PURPLE.

Everywhere one sees the queen of colors and its shades of queens. This is one of the shades that Paris forgot to mention in her forecast, but she has sent it to us just the same.

Here is a linen suit of deep wistaria, with big smoke pearl buttons. With it goes a rough straw hat of the same shade, trimmed with masses of purple and silver gray changeable ribbon.

Then there is the lilac-colored linen, so faint that it seems almost a pale gray, but with more silk lapels, cuffs and buttons of a bit deeper shade. The dainty little hat that goes with this is one cluster of white and purple lilac over a white chip straw, faced underneath with lilac messaline.

Linen dressists are showing little lavender scallops on the ever-present frill, and lavender embroidered pabots with a velvet bow, caught by stitched strips of linen, of the same witching shade.

Then there is the cool blouses of violet china silk, with frilled Dutch collar and turn-back cuffs, accordion pleated, of the same material as the blouse itself. Sometimes there will be an extra frill of white or cream-colored net, with violet dots in satin stitch and a piped edging of violet silk.

Leather handbags are seen in royal purple and the new moire silk bags in the duller shades of plum and clouded purple. They are lined in the same, and all their dainty accessories come to match.

Even handkerchiefs have partaken of the general craze and are embroidered in tiny squares of violet, or with a spray of natural-looking violets in their own colors in one corner. The little images of Chantecler seen on the new handkerchiefs are frequently shown in some single shade quite impossible to a real rooster, and the different sort of purple lead here.

White kid gloves are being stitched in purple on the backs, in quite wide bands and in all sorts of new stitches, which give the appearance of fagoting or of cross-stitch. And long white silk gloves are embroidered at the tops in tiny violet designs in a wreath effect.

Altogether purple reigns. Long live her majesty!

COUNTY RATABLES SHOW INCREASE OF 9,000,000

Having equalized the ratables turned in by the assessors of the county, the County Board for the Equalization of Taxes is now giving its attention to the fixing of the city and county rates. It is probable that the rates will be announced early next week.

The total valuation assessable, as shown by the assessors, plus the second rate railroad property, is $135,332,456, against $126,486,188 last year, or an increase of practically $9,000,000. The amount this year as equalized by the county board is $135,387,489.85, compared with $127,013,402 last year.

"It has been said that 'a prophet is not without honor save in his own country,' but the vote in Plainfield has clearly demonstrated that the people know the man and appreciate his worth. Never before at a primary election has such a large vote been cast, and never before in my political experience have I seen such a consistent and overwhelming vote of confidence in a man whose every act and quality is known to those who cast their votes.

"We have a difficult campaign before us. We have misunderstandings to clear up and misgivings to overcome. For this purpose we have selected a man who has inspired confidence during all the time he has been before his constituents. His friends are many, his enemies few. He is a man if given a task to do has always been on the job. Gentlemen, it is my pleasure to present to you the name of a man who, when sent to Congress, will be on the job —William N. Runyon.

John J. Hoos, of Roselle, Union county, placed the name of Charles N. Fowler before the convention after Judge Runyon's nomination had been seconded by Joseph McLean, of Morris.

The nominations were closed and the balloting began. Morris gave Runyon 56¾ and Fowler 12¼.

Union cast 80 for Runyon and 28 for Fowler. Warren gave Runyon 4 19-20, and Fowler 27 1-100. The total was 140 94-100 for Runyon and 40-100 for Fowler.

Morris then made it unanimous for Runyon, but Union declined. The nomination was not made unanimous.

Frank H. Smith made a motion that a committee of three be appointed to escort the candidate to the platform. Chairman Capstick appointed W. R. Coddington, of Union; Joseph McLean, of Morris, and Wm. Reaser, of Warren, for the purpose. The band played "Hail to the Chief" as the candidate walked to the centre of the stage amid vociferous applause. Judge Runyon said:

"Mr. Chairman, Gentlemen and Fellow Republicans of the Fifth Congressional District: I beg to assure you that I am deeply and sincerely grateful for the honor which has come to me this day, and I realize the grave responsibilities which go therewith. To have been chosen as one who is to represent thousands and thousands of citizens of this State brings home to me with great force the fact that you have great confidence in me. I would be a traitor to my country, to my party and to the people unless I be worthy of that confidence. This task well befits the strength of the best of men and I deeply appreciate it.

By instinct, by precept, by firm belief, I am a Republican. From my earliest days I have had the great truths taught to me and the accomplishments of the Republican party are second nature to me, and since I have become older I realize more and more the great progress which this party has been instrumental in developing the resources of this country and more and more from the conviction that the present administration is worthy of the support of every Republican, and I desire to be known as a Taft Republican.

"These are factors that militate to make me sincere and honest. I urge them in all sincerety to inspire confidence in me. I shall go forth to Washington with the determination to be fair to every one of you."

At this point the judge was greeted by a hearty round of cheers and it was several moments before he could continue.) "That which has just passed has been a great contest. To those who espoused the cause, I offer the same courtesy and fair play in other persuasion I congratulate them for an able contest splendidly made —that was a difference of opinion that the Republicans had a right to hold.

"Now gentlemen, we must let by gones be by gones. We must go forth with a firmer purpose to uphold President Taft. So far as the District is concerned, I clearly realize the lustre that Mr. Fowler has brought to the district. And gentlemen, rest assured that if I go as your representative, I will exert all of my abilities to be a a fair and good power in behalf of the country. There is a hard battle before us. We believe in the right. We will the result should be satisfactory to each and every one of us. I beseech you for a united front, for loyalty. Not for myself do I make this, but to the loyal upholders of our leader, President Taft, who now presents a united front to our enemies."

James F. Buckle, of Union; Daniel S. Voorhees, of Morris, and Wm. Bruner, of Warren, were appointed on vacancies, and on motion of Robert H. McCready, a resolution was unanimously adopted expressing the confidence of the convention and appreciation of the services of Charles N. Fowler.

Dr. Richards' Quartet from Dover then sang several popular songs, appropriate to the nomination of Judge Runyon. After a vote of thanks to Chairman Capstick, the convention adjourned at 4:15.

Delegates to the Congresional convention held in this city today beheld an unusual spectacle, for they saw the Union county delegation come marching toward the provisional headquarters in the Frost building, the last of the delegates to arrive. Warren showed up strong at

BUSSE FAMILY MUST BEHAVE, SAYS JUDGE

The troubles of the families of John Scriven and George Busse, of South Second street had the attention of Judge William N. Runyon in the city court Friday for an hour or more. Francis J. Blatz represented Mr. and Mrs. Busse, while Mr. Scriven told his own story. The Busse family will have to be careful for the future or either or both of the parents will have to spend sixty days in the county jail.

According to Judge Runyon the Busse couple have been disturbers in their neighborhood for some time and it was this that caused the judge to impose the possible sentence of sixty days.

Mr. Scriven, the complainant, declared that on last Friday he was annoyed by the children of the defendant and that it was not the first offense. The youngsters rolled a discarded wire spool across his lawn and when asked to desist answered impudently. It is also alleged that he told the children to take the spool away or he would throw it in the brook. It appears that the boy and girl told their mother that Mr. Scriven had threatened to throw them into the brook and this brought Mrs. Busse to Mr. Scriven's house in a hurry. The language which was used in the ensuing dialogue between Mr. Scriven and Mrs. Busse as alleged by the complanant, would not look nice in print. Judge Runyon's decision left no doubts in the minds of Mr. and Mrs. Busse as to what would happen to them if they again offended or broke any of the city ordinances.

Jack Peacock did the most consistant hitting for the season, finishing up with a .302 record for eleven games. Carlton Smith laced the ball at a .300 clip.

Fredrickson, the clever southpaw, had a perfect record in the field although his batting was only .200. Hand accepted 190 chances during the season, keeping his fielding up to a .960 gait for eighteen games. Fritts is also among the players that come in for a word of honorable mention.

GEORGE VOEHL WEDS MISS CARRIE BECHTLE

Miss Carrie Bechtle, daughter of Fred Bechtle, Jr., of West Second street, and George Voehl, of Verdon street, the borough, were married at 6:30 Wednesday night by Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church. The ceremony was performed at Dr. Anderson's home on Central avenue.

Miss Tina Voehl, sister of the groom, was the bridesmaid and Frank Merritt, of this city, was best man. The bride was gowned in white net over satin, and carried a bouquet of bride roses.

Following the ceremony the couple left in Mr. Voehl's automobile for a trip, which will include a visit to White Lake, N. Y. Upon their return they will reside on Verdon street, the borough.

Mr. Voehl is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Voehl, of Second street, and for many years was engaged in the bakery business on West Front street.

To Hold Her Veil Tight.

The girl has conceived the idea of running narrow beading around the buttons and threading it with baby ribbon, which she pins at back. Both beading and ribbon are, of course, of the color of the veil, and fasten under the chin, so as to be inconspicuous. She finds this a solution of the veil problem, with a low-necked blouse, as her veil never looks either untidy or bulky.

His Business.

"Are you a vegetarian?" asked the long-haired man.

"No," replied the business-looking stranger seated next to him; "I do not handle vegetables at all; I'm a fruiterer."—Yonkers Statesman.

Mr. Perkins is a Grandson of Edward Evarts and is Advertising Manager of Scribner's Magazine.

William L. Saunders announces the engagement of his eldest daughter, Miss Louise Saunders, to Maxwell Emmons Perkins, of New York. The wedding will take place in January. The ceremony will be performed at the Church of the Holy Cross and a reception will follow at Mr. Saunders' mansion, 112 Rockview avenue. FOUND A $250 DIAMOND GOT 50 CENTS REWARD

Through the honesty of Benjamin Johnson, a colored man, who is employed as a street cleaner in North Plainfield, Mrs. Walter G. Thomas, of Hammonton, is now in possession of her diamond engagement ring, which she lost Friday night. The street cleaner was at work with his broom in front of the borough fire headquarters this morning, when he saw something sparkle in the heap of dirt. He searched through the mass of rubbish and discovered that the sparkling substance was solitaire diamond in a belwy gold ring. After a careful examination of the ring, Johnson found that on the inside was engraved the initials, "W. G. T. to M. R. E." The finder handed it to Street Commissioner John Y. Barrow.

Saturday a well dressed woman came into the borough police court, inquiring whether anyone had found a diamond ring, which she said that she had lost last night. She immediately identified the ring that in the chief's possession. Others. She said that she was Mrs. Walter G. Thomas and that her maiden name was Mary R. Reynolds. The owner gave her address as Hammonton, N. J., and said that she was visiting friends on Mountain avenue for a few days.

Mrs. Thomas said that the ring was worth $250. She thanked the chief and then gave the colored man fifty cents for his honesty.

E., Monroe Avenue and Grace churches, and will be preceded by a week of preparation in each church.

The announcement of the engagement of W. J. Jenkins, of 710 South avenue, and Miss Mabel Stanbol, of Fourth avenue, Newark, was made this morning. No date has been set for the wedding. Mr. Jenkins is the son of W. J. Jenkins, of Newark.

Queer.

The English speech is very queer. As any boss will say, The clerks with whom he can't put up He "cans" without delay.

A ball game.

Plainfield will play the crack Brooklyn Elks' team next Wednesday afternoon.

DEMOCRATS NAME WILSON LEGISLATURE NOMINEES

not only show ourselves sincere, but practical. The time when you could play politics and fool the American people has gone by. Now it is a case of put up or shut up. Now, as I have said before, conditions are such on the inside that the fellow on the outside always has the advantage. It is therefore evident that one should not covet office. It is easy to tell people how to run things, but in this case I accept the office inasmuch as the other fellow doesn't know how to do it and we ought to try."

Leading these candidates was Mayor Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City, and State Senator George S. Silzer. Complimentary votes were also cast for Sheriff William Harrigan and William Hinchpeff, of Essex.

Wilson's victory was complete after the polling of the Union county vote, but counting the Warren delegation, following which his nomination was made unanimous, the official ballot stood: Wilson, 749½; Katzenbach, 373; Silzer, 219; Wittpenn, 76½. Harrigan, 6; Hinchpeff, 1.

Colonel Livingstone Price, an old Democratic warhorse, was chairman of the resolution committee and presented the platform. Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, of Somerset, presented a minority report, in which he insisted upon injecting a local option plank into the platform. He was repeatedly drowned out by derisive shouts, which seemed to come from the Hudson and Essex delegations, and was finally overruled by the chairman on a technicality.

Clarence J. Cole, an Atlantic City lawyer, who for a time was boomed for governor by the shore Democrats, placed Mr. Wilson in nomination, and was seconded by Smith, of Essex. Senator Brown, of Burlington county, named Mr. Katzenbach, and ex-Judge John W. Westcott, of Camden, se conded the nomination. Much of the afternoon was consumed in nominating speeches and affirmations.

Trouble started with the polling of the ballots. As the result of the elimination of the unit rule, Chairman Hardin was compelled to recognize the protests against the Atlantic county vote, and a revision threw seven votes from Wilson to Katzenbach. This incipient rebellion brought hope to the Mercer delegation. Later, when the Essex roll was called, a contest was made by supporters of Sheriff Harrigan, who claimed thirty votes for him had not been counted by Chairman Smith. A recount, however, left Harrigan only one vote and increased the Wilson poll to 234 for the county.

Many of the old-time leaders who led the Democrats in their fights more than twelve years ago when the party held sway in the State, joined in the demonstration which followed the counting of the ballot and led the cheering when Wilson was led onto the platform to be introduced by Chairman Hardin. James E. Martine, who led the Democrats at the popular primaries for United States Senatorial indorsements last Tuesday, occupied a seat near the chairman and was one of the first to congratulate the successful candidate. He was jubilant over the prospects in the State for a Democratic victory, but refused to discuss the possible outcome of his own candidacy should a Democratic legislature be elected.

Forty-two Mile Walk.

Douglas Clarke Anderson completed Thursday a 42-mile walk from Green Pond, where he spent a week at his old home, Raymond P. Heath, a Cornell man and enthusiastic athlete, accompanied Mr. Anderson. The entire distance is about forty-two miles, and it was made at an average speed of 7½ miles an hour. The two pedestrians passed through a part of the country which *left last*ing impressions upon them, and they both declare it was an exhilerating experience.

The Plainfield Graded Primary Union held its annual picnic on Wednesday at the home of one of its members, Mrs. George Banks, at Mount Pleasant. The Sunday-school teachers made the trip part the way by trolley on the Arlington avenue line, as far as the Plainfield Country Club, and then walked the rest of the way. The day proved a pleasant one for all.

proper growth and development of the country and maintain its dignity and position among the nations of the earth.

We declare emphatically any federal legislation designed to further individual or corporate interests to the detriment of the people at large.

The adoption of such changes in the rules of the House of Representatives as shall best secure for every member thereof full and free opportunity to represent his constituency as his judgment may dictate, has our entire approval.

We favor an early reform of our currency laws. Under no circumstances should this measure be *delayed beyond the term of the pres*ent administration. The country is entitled to, and should have the best banking system that can be created. There can be no reasonable excuse offered for failure to act promptly in this matter.

We heartily favor the passage of such other laws as shall fulfill in their entirety the pledges made in the national platform of 1908.

With a record of honest endeavor, of great achievements, of pledges redeemed, we ask of the voters of this District their continued confidence and support, to the end that President Taft and the Republican party may carry to completion the work in which they are engaged for the prosperity of our State and Nation.

MACHINE SHOP' RUN SIMPLY ON PAPER

Charged with obtaining money under false pretenses from a man in his employ, Elfred T. Barrett, proprietor of the 'Printers' and General Machine Shop," of Newark, is locked up at Newark police headquarters. He was arrested late Thursday on complaint of John Kovalsky, of Bayway, Elizabeth, who claims that Barrett obtained $60 from him. The prisoner was held for examination Monday.

Kovalsky told the police that he gave Barrett the $60, with the understanding that it was to be invested in the business for six months at the end of which time he was to get it back with the interest. In a written agreement with Barret, Kovalsky was to be given a position with a salary of $18 per week. Kovalsky declared that he took the job, and after working two weeks quit. He was paid for one week.

Going to the First Precinct Police Court Kovalsky had a warrant issued for the arrest of Barrett. The warrant was placed in the hands of Detectives Meehan and Donovan. When they went to Barrett's place of business yesterday the officers were told he was not there, and no one knew where he lived.

On a piece of paper near the telephone Meehan noticed the number "314 Arlington," and taking that as a clue went in search of Barrett. He learned where the number was located, and going to the neighborhood found where Barrett lived. He waited for him, and shortly before 6 o'clock recognized Barrett by description when the latter was four blocks from his home. Meehan placed him under arrest.

When Barrett was taken into custody, Meehan said he wanted to make a settlement with Kovalsky. *The prisoner gave his age as forty*nine, his occupation as machinist and his address as 84 Brighton avenue, Kearny.

Barrett is not the only one who suffered as a result of Barrett's operations. The police know of two others who are minus a few hundred dollars and believe there are more. The two are John Roberts, of 67 Springfield avenue, and a man whom he knew only as "Mahoney." Roberts is out $400 he invested in the business and $93 in salary, and Mahoney is said to have dropped $500 he had in the business and his salary for several weeks.

It was Roberts who told the police about Mahoney. The latter, he said, was the book-keeper in the place and put $500 into the business. Roberts said Mahoney tried to get his money and couldn't, and after working for a time without getting any pay, quit. Another employe, whom he knew as "Fred," invested $140. This man, Roberts said, Barrett paid back after the man threatened to make trouble.

Roberts was the one who also told the police that Barrett had bills for every piece of machinery and furniture he had in the place. He said there was a bill from Rising & Thorne for $150. Most of the machinery, he declared, had come from a Newark second hand dealer in Chestnut street and the desk, chairs and safe in the office were all borrowed on a promise.

Joseph C. Martin Resigns.

Martin, for many years connected with the dry goods firm of Woodhull & Martin and more recently with the Woodhull & Martin Company, has tendered his resignation and will soon become the manager for Woodhull & Martin's new dry goods store at Elizabeth. Mr. Martin is one of the best known men in the dry goods trade here, having started as an errand boy for I. H. Boehm about twenty years ago.

SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE

Runyon's Able Address Wins Plaudits of 5th Dist. Convention.

PLEDGES HIMSELF TO TAFT.

If Elected, He Says He Will Represent the Whole People, and Not One Man or a Set of Men.

Considered by his friends as the finest speech he has ever delivered, the address of Judge William N. Runyon in accepting the nomination at the Fifth District Republican convention here Friday afternoon came as the climax to that exciting contest. It provoked tumultous applause time and again and it was noticeable that the friends of those who had cast their votes for his opponent were as demonstrative as his warmest admirers.

Judge Runyon said:

"I beg to assure you that I am deeply sensible of the honor—the great honor—which has come into my life this afternoon. Full deeply too, do I realize the weight and gravity of the responsibility which goes therewith.

"That I have been chosen as your nominee for Congress by you who are the representatives of thousands and thousands of people brings home to me with all powerful force the fact that you have confidence in me; and too, that if I would be true to myself, true to you and to my country and to by Maker, I must be worthy of that confidence.

"It is a task which will befits the utmost endeavors of the best of men. By inheritance, by training and by conviction, I am a Republican. From my earliest days there was taught to me the doings and accomplisments of the Republican party and since I have become a man I have realized more and more what it has meant for the uplift and progress of this great country, and more and more has been forced upon me the conviction that the Republican party has at all times had a large hand in it.

"And now with changed conditions in front of us, we must, as we have always done, look to the Republican party for the solution of the many varied problems. I say here unqualifiedly that I stand before you as a Taft Republican. A Taft Republican because I believe in him, a Taft Republican because in *his quiet, calm way, he has accom*plished so much already; a Taft Republican because if you will give him the support which is his right in the election of a Republican House of Representatives, he will further accomplish those things which were promised in the Republican platform of 1908.

"Gentlemen, I am glad to go forth in the campaign standing on the platform which has been adopted here this afternoon. It is fair, it is honest, it is frank; it realizes what this country needs, what this country and its citizens most desire, and it pledges unqualifiedly measures looking to that end, but it does not bedit me at this moment to discuss the issues of the campaign.

"I feel that to many of you I am an utterly unknown quantity, and I therefore trust you will pardon the injection of the personal equation in things which I have to say. Let me say to you that I believe now and at all times in independence of thought and action. My duty I conceive to be a duty to the entire people and not a duty to one man or a set of men, and I believe that the people in their entirety are the only ones to whom I shall be responsible, and in the event of my election that shall be my stand.

"Many and many things militate to make me feel deeply the responsibility that rests upon me this afternoon. I am not a man of means or of wealth, but I do come from a long honorable, plain-living, highly respected ancestry, and it is my purpose—God helping me—to prove worthy of your respect. I could not be true to them and be otherwise. By dint of self-denial my parents gave me opportunities for an education the equal of that afforded any boy in this country. They toiled and saved that I might be educated and for the sake of my father—who has been an elder brother—and for the sake of that mother who has now gone, I cannot be false to you for at the same time I would be false to them, and there is nothing else had come to me in the contest recently gone by than the vote of this dear little town of mine, I should have been content. It was here that I was born and it is here the citizens have known me from as boy to man, and as the results rolled in the other night and I realized that those whose livelihood is gained in the great city of New York, those who work here both as employers and clerks, and last, but not least, that splendid body of artisans, the men who toil with their hands, had come to the polls in hundreds to express their confidence in me, I knew that I would not dare, even if the inclination were mine, to play them false in any respect. If the confidence expressed in me this afternoon shall be backed on election day and I shall be made your representative, I shall go forth to Washington with the sole determination of being fair and only fair to everyone.

"Gentlemen ,that which has just passed has been a great contest, made altogether possible by the laws of this State. To those who espoused my cause I wish to return my heartiest thanks. To those of the other persuasion I wish to extend my felicitations for the contest so openly fought, is done and done now. You have decided and now we must let by gones be by gones. We must unite; form ourselves into a legion, into a great army and go forth with one single purpose and uphold the hands of President Taft so far as our district is concerned.

"I realize what the position means in many ways in this district. I realize the lustre which the gentleman who has occupied the position for many years has brought to the Fifth Congressional district. What lustre it may continue to hold time alone will tell, but you may rest assured that there will be a Republican there who is doing to his uttermost that which he believes to him to be fair and right and in behalf of his constituents.

"We have a hard battle before us, but I take it that we believe in majority rule; I take it that the contest has been open and fair and that the result thereof should be satisfactory to each and everyone of you, no matter what your predilections heretofore have been. I beseech you for loyalty, not so much for my own sake because I do not ask it for myself except in a representative way, but I do ask you as loyal adherents and supporters of our great President to uphold his hands and send him a Republican representative from this district.

"In the eight months which are ahead of us I purpose to visit all parts of this district, going to every town, village and hamlet and making myself personally acquainted with you, your friends and fellow-citizens, and to discuss the issues of the campaign. I ask you that whatever feelings you have had heretofore, that I may be looked upon as the candidate of the whole Republican party. I have tried in the days and weeks gone past to make no distinction as between Taft men and to weld the Republicans into one homogeneous, harmonious party, and that shall be the continuation of my efforts.

"I ask you in all sincerosity and I believe that if the proper spirit inspires you we shall without doubt go forth to a great victory and one that will cheer the heart of him who is the leader of us all—Taft, the great Taft of Ohio.

MISS LOUISE HEIDLOFF NOW MRS. FITZ RANDOLPH

Miss Louise Marie Heideloff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heideloff, of West Front street, and Robert Fitz Randolph, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fitz Randolph, of New Market, were married at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon by Rev. George H. Gardner, pastor of the New Market Baptist church. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents on West Front street. The couple stood under a large floral wedding bell, arranged in one corner of the parlor, around which there was a bank of ferns, palms and flowers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her sister, Miss Emma Heideloff was the bridesmaid and Fred Fitz-Randolph, the groom's brother, was the best man. The wedding march was played by Miss Ethel Morris. The bride was gowned in white satin trimmed with white satin and she carried a bouquet of white bride roses.

Congratulations were extended to the bride and groom, after which supper was served by D. Demolli & Co., the caterers.

Mrs. Randolph was the recipient of a large collection of gifts, including $70 in gold from the groom's father. Mr. Randolph is a mechanician in the employ of Brokaw Brothers, and the firm gave the bride a handsome oak book-case, while the groom's fellow employes gave a complete set of table linen. After an extended wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Randolph will be "at home" after October 1, at 540 West 160th street, the house being completely furnished and ready for their occupancy.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

'Tis fifty-six long years ago,
Sweet lady of the gentle deeds,
Since you went sailing Eastward ho!
To succor those in soldiers' needs.

The clouds were black; the days were dark;
Our lads were in a piteous plight;
But 'mid the gloom there shone one spark—
One clear, redeeming ray of light—

Yourself, who faced Crimean snows,
When all was chaos, muddle, mess,
And still on angel pinions rose
Above confusion and distress.

Our boys put up some gallant fights,
Their grit on stricken fields displayed;
They pressed to storm the Alma's heights,
They charged with Cardigan's brigade.

Stark heroes these; who long shall live
As glories of the thin red line.
Aye, heroes! Yet the palm they give
To one unwarlike heroine.

Though many warrior names there are
Which still with pride the Britons reads,
You shone the first Crimean star,
Sweet lady of the gentle deeds!

INVENT MONOPLANE THAT CAN'T CAPSIZE

Monoplane success is believed to be solved in the machine which the inventors, Gustave A. Brachausen and Henry Albisser, of Rahway, announce *finished after six months' la*bor, was placed on exhibition yesterday. Both men are confident that it will be a success from the first flight, scheduled to take place in two weeks.

The new idea is in that the weight of the operator and the machinery is below the wings and the means of procuring stability is obtained by departure from the customary methods. By means of the steering wheel the operator will wholly direct every move. A movement of the wheel, the makers claim, will completely controvert any caprice of the wind.

Cables guiding the wings are connected with the wheel, thus enabling the operator to readily right the machine.

"It is the same plan as that by which a bird flies," said Mr. Brachausen. "The wings extend from the upper part of the bird, leaving the weight wholly under the wings. This is the idea of our machine, together with the method of securing perfect equilibrium. By a simple act of the steering wheel the wings are controlled absolutely and the machine consequently cannot capsize.

"This is a great point, for probably the greatest cause of accidents to monoplanes has been exactly this, the difficulty in having the machine sail smoothly. In other machines there is grave danger when the machine becomes tilted."

Concerning another advantage of their machine, Mr. Albisser said: "It will not collapse if the motor gets out of order, but the position of the operator will enable the machine to float to the ground as gently as a parachute."

The length of the prospective machine is fifty-two feet and the two front and main wings each are sixteen feet. The surface is 264 square feet, fifty-four more than that of the monoplane in which Blériot crossed the English Channel. The weight is 825 pounds. The frame is constructed of spruce and Roebling cables are used throughout, except in holding the framework together, where piano wire is used. The propeller is six feet long. The power is obtained from a 12-horsepower motor, but it is not unlikely that the inventors will install another before venturing aloft. In fact, they are contemplating using a larger motor.

The machine is on exhibition in a tent near Monroe street, on the banks of the Rahway River.

MISS CRANDALL WEDDED TO CHARLES CUMBERSON

One of the notable social functions to occur at Leonardsville, N. Y., was that of the wedding of Charles Percival Cumberson, a native of Plainfield, to Miss Blanche Margaret Crandall, of Leonardsville, on September 15. The wedding was attended by more than 100 guests many of whom came from Plainfield and Dunellen. It was performed by Rev. R. J. Severance, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, of Leonardsville, of which the bride is a member.

Among the guests from this city were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee, Miss Mary Cumberson, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Champlin, Miss Katharine Champlin, Theodora Champlin and Milton St. John.

A luncheon followed the ceremony and the young couple started on a wedding tour up the St. Lawrence to Quebec. Plainfield, N. J., September 22, 1910

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

When the Fifth District Republican convention yesterday afternoon nominated Judge William N. Runyon, a Morris county delegate, who had cast his vote for Charles N. Fowler, accepted the verdict in a spirit that should be emulated by every true Republican in the district. Jumping to his feet, he shouted: "We are beaten, but we are Republicans!" He did not claim this as original on his part. He declared he had the authority of no less a personage than Mr. Fowler for the ultimatum. All praise to Charles N. Fowler for such a manly declaration!

There was no semblance of a contest over the right of any delegate to cast his ballot and the result of the vote was simply a confirmation of the verdict expressed at the primary polls on Tuesday. Under such conditions, no real Republican has any excuse for not loyally supporting the nominee. To fight, to fight, to fight—the lowest of human beings, has manhood enough in him to shake the hand of the man who whips him in the ring. He accepts the thrashing he gets without a murmur and bears no ill will against the man who proved the better man in his turn. This is the universal rule in life. It applies as much to the political game as it does to any other form of rivalry.

There is no need for any alarm in the Republican camp over possible defections at the general election. The handful of men who are disgruntled now are not to be feared. In their calmer moments they will reason it out for themselves that they have no ground for grievance; they will awake to the fact that it is their duty to do unto others as they would have the others do unto them. They will vote the Republican ticket—that is all there is about it.

WOODROW WILSON.

It must be admitted that the Democratic party has lifted itself out of the rut it has been in for many years by unanimously nominating Dr. Woodrow Wilson for the Gubernatorial office. From every standpoint he was by far the strongest and ablest candidate before the convention and the party was fortunate indeed in getting his consent to accept the nomination. It meant no small sacrifice on his part personally as well as on the part of the great seat of learning of which he is the distinguished head. There is no Bryanism or any other fanatical "ism" in the platform upon which Democrat of the old School—of the school of Tilden, Cleveland, Randall, Bayard, Olney and Bissell.

The Republican party will make a fatal mistake if it underestimates Dr. Wilson's strength. His career has been such as to command National, if not international, attention. A man of letters, a political economist of recognized ability, and a scholar in the fullest sense of the word, he will undoubtedly appeal to many independent voters. Therefore, it behooves the Republican party to present to the people a candidate of equal merit. That it will do this is the hope of every adherent of true Republican principles.

WATER IN THE LAKE LOWEST IN 30 YEARS

The New Market lake is lower this week than it has been in the past thirty years at least. As a result, bathing is practically spoiled. The island in the middle of the larger and upper portion of the lake is far above water, and it is now possible to walk on dry land from the island to the shore adjoining the railroad tracks.

Because the lake bottom is exposed to the sun an unpleasant odor from decayed vegetable growth in the lake bottom, makes the atmosphere unpleasant; but according to health authorities, this is not necessarily unhealthy.

The drought of the past month is given as a reason for the unusual lowness of the lake. In contrast to this is the well-filled South Plainfield lake whose volume of water is normal. The reason for this is that the South Plainfield lake contains numerous fresh water springs while the New Market lake contains none. The flow of water over the South Plainfield lake dam, which feeds the New Market lake, is small.

Local lakes and Watchung lakes also show effects of the drought.

Paroubek Bros. Suit.

The suit which has been brought against B. A. Paroubek, of this city, by his brother, A. J. Paroubek, of Jersey City, which has already had two hearings before Vice-Chancellor Garrison, will be resumed on Monday, October 3, in chancery court in Jersey City. George W. Y. Mop, of his city, is counsel for B. A. Paroubek.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Nance O'Neill, who plays the leading feminine role in David Belasco's great play, "The Lily," at the Belasco Theatre, where "The Lily" enjoyed one of the greatest runs in a decade. This gifted artiste may now boast of having crossed the Atlantic Ocean forty-two times, to which may be added a half-dozen trips across the Pacific, twice to Australia, and once to China and Japan. Besides all that, Miss O'Neil has made three trips to South America, where she appears, in most of the leading theatres.

The third week of the New York Hippodrome will begin on Monday with the new triple show in full, successful running order. "The International Cup," "The Ballet of Niagara," and "The Earthquake" form a trio of unusual drawing power even for the big playhouse, where crowded houses are the rule. "The Ballet of Niagara" with its wonderful scenic background and poetic accessories of costume and lighting, continues to be a potent factor in the success of the new show, while the circus with its 12 feature acts, including performing lions, bears and elephants and equestrian novelties, is far ahead of former seasons. Among the special scenic features may be mentioned the Yacht Race, in which two full sized racing vessels are seen in action, The Shipwreck, the Race between a Locomotive and Horses, the Earthquake and Tidal Wave and some special aquatic surprises at the finale of the big show—always an interesting climactic feature at the Hippodrome.

In connection with the highly successful and important revival of Sardou's "Diplomacy," which opened at Maxine Elliott's Theatre, New York city, last Tuesday evening, for a limited metropolitan engagement of only three weeks, comes the announcement that the Messrs. Shubert and Wm. A. Brady, who are jointly interested in the producing firm known as Wm. A. Brady, Ltd., have determined that the company presenting this revival shall form the nucleus of a permanent stock company of unrivalled excellence. The presentation of "Diplomacy" was opened with remarkable enthusiasm and the general verdict is that this revival surpassed every previous performance of the famous Sardou drama. The members of the company are Effingham Pinto, of this city, Charles Dalton, Florence Roberts, Theodore Roberts, Mrs. Le-Moyne, Milton Sills, Chrystal Herne, Thurlow Bergen, Marion Ballow, Jewel Power, Frederick Esmelton, Leslie Bassett and C. E. Harris. In accordance with the plan outlined above, "Diplomacy" will go on a brief tour of the leading cities after the conclusion of the engage at Maxine Elliott's Theatre.

The total valuation on Plainfield property this year is $24,120,430, as against $23,430,240 for 1909, the increase amounting to $750,090. Upon the receipt of the certification from the county board, the matter was referred to the corporation counsel. The Common Council will receive a detailed statement of the county figures within a short time.

Removing Temptation.

Yeast—The preacher won't let us take our umbrellas into church on a wet day.

Crimsonbeak—Well, he's right. I don't think temptation should be put in a man's way in church.—Yonkers Statesman.

REV. DR. ZELIE'S TOUR

He Saw England's Cathedrals and Passion Play Performance at Oberammergau.

GUEST OF ANDREAS LANG.

Plainfield Minister also Witnessed the Funeral of Florence Nightingale—Home Again.

The Rev. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, has the unique distinction of having visited all of the great cathedrals in England. This summer he made a pilgrimage to the remote St. David's cathedral in the south of Wales completing the list. The journey was made in a carrier's cart over the eighteen mile—long hills. This was one of the interesting incidents of his fourth trip to England taken this summer and which was completed Saturday when he arrived in New York on the Philadelphia of the American line.

Among the other interesting incidents of the trip was a visit to Sir Robertson Nicoll, who is a personal friend of Dr. Zelie. He also saw the funeral of Florence Nightingale and attended the Passion Play at Oberammergau. He spent two nights with Andreas Lang, who takes the part of the Apostle Peter in the play. When asked what he thought of the play, Dr. Zelie commended it highly. "The text was good, and the scenery, the music and the acting were in keeping with it," he said. "Further. I especially liked the spirit of those who took part in the play. It did not appear to me to be commercialized."

Immediately on his return he took up his work in the Crescent Avenue church; and Sunday morning preached a sermon to a large congregation from the text, "By Grace Ye are Saved," Ephesians II, 5. Sunday afternoon he spoke at the rally at Hope chapel Sunday school.

Beginning next Sunday, evening service will be resumed at the church. In the morning, communion service will be held; and a preparation service for this will be held Wednesday night.

CLAIM AGAINST CITY FOR DAMAGE TO TIRES

Frank W. Weed, of West Front street and Oxford place presented a bill to the Common Council at its adjourned meeting Monday for $72.50 for automobile tires, which he claims were ruined by the slag, nails, etc. which was dumped on Oxford place against his wishes. He stated in his communication that he had complained of the matter to Street Commissioner Gavett and had submitted specimens of the material to him, and had also called the attention of three members of the street committee to the condition of the street, but to no purpose.

Mr. Weed further explained that Councilmen Charles C. Randolph and W. L. Gloak had investigated the condition of the street at his request, but the dumping of the slag was continued, and he now believes that he is entitled to reimbursement for the damage to the tires on his automobile. The communication was referred to the street committee and a report will be made at a later date.

CASE PUTS 'LID' DOWN IN SOMERSET COUNTY

The lid was down tighter in Somerset county Sunday than at any time within years. Every drinking place was closed promptly at 11:30 o'clock Saturday night, and the doors were drawn aside yesterday, and no place where intoxicants are sold opened before 6 o'clock this morning. All bars will be closed promptly at 11:30 o'clock every night hereafter, with screens down and not opened until 6 o'clock in the morning.

When Judge Clarence E. Case, a young man, ascended to the bench in Somerset county some months ago, he found the granting of all licenses was largely at the discretion of he court, and he conceived a plan for using this discretionary power as a club to beat the defiant liquor dealers into strict observance of the law. During the last week Judge Case sent out through the mails to every licensed wholesale and retail liquor dealer in Somerset County a set of nine rules for the purpose of aiding the court in exercising the discretion committed to it by law.

The rules in part require every applicant for a license to be a citizen of the United States, and in addition to the statutory hours of closing laid down in the bishops' law, all wholesale and bottling places are required to be closed and no deliveries made between the hours of 7 p. m. and 6 a. m., and that all other licensed places be closed between the hours of 11:30 p. m. and 6 a. m.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED ON STRENUOUS MOTHER

Harmony has been restored in the Harmony street district wherein Mrs. Charlotte Miner is trying to bring up a family by means of a vigorous use of the rod. This was Tuesday morning when Recorder Bolliver suspended sentence on Mrs. Miner on condition that quiet reigns in the future in her household.

Trouble was caused Monday night when Mrs. Miner whipped her eleven-year-old son. The lad's cries were so agonizing that a neighbor ran a block away, and led James Boyd, a neighbor, to lodge a complaint with the borough police. When Marshal Culver responded to the call the chastisement was still in operation.

On the entrance of the officer Mrs. Miner proceeded to energize him by means of verbal abuse. The upshot of the matter was that Fred Miner, a twenty-year-old boy, was arrested. He too had been adding to the general din at the Miner home. In court testimony was brought forward to show that the noise has been continuous; and has resulted in frequent complaints to the police by neighbors.

When sentence was suspended Mrs Miner said that in future when she had to chastise her children the operation would take place outside the borough limits.

NEW CONVENT BUILDING A HANDSOME STRUCTURE

When the new convent for St. Mary's church at the corner of West Sixth street and Liberty street is completed next spring, the local Catholic parish will have a group of buildings harmonizing in architecture, convenient to each other and especially fitted for more effective educational and religious work.

Work is being completed on the exterior of the new convent which faces Liberty street. The architect has displayed skill in the arrangement of the rooms. The porch will lead into a vestibule on the main floor. To the left of this will be the community room, and to the right the reception room. Back of the community room will be the refectory; the parlor will be in the rear of the reception room. Shut off from these living rooms will be the kitchen and pantries.

On the second floor there will be six bedrooms fronting on Liberty street, and in the rear along the Sixth street side will be a beautiful chapel. This will be fully equipped. In the rear to the left will be the sacristy.

The third floor will contain eight bedrooms, six of which front on Liberty street, and in the rear will be the sewing and other rooms for the convenience of the sisters.

The building is in red brick, with trimmings of white brick to harmonize with the church, the rectory and the parochial school. In this way a passerby will immediately discover the identity of the group of buildings. For the present, however, the old Washington school, which was purchased by the church for commercial school, will not undergo proposed improvements to complete the architectural idea. This is made necessary by the fact that the school is now crowded to its capacity by three full classes. The regular school, too, is crowded to its capacity, and the total enrollment of the parochial schools is 527.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 25, 1910.

Topic.—My denomination at work for my country.—Ps. lxxxix, 1-18. Edited by Rev. Sherman R. Doyle, D. D.

There is little doubt that every one of the great Christian denominations is doing something for our country or working along some lines of home missionary work. The probability also is that the majority of them are doing the same kind of work. One great evil in the great west at least has resulted from the haphazard and unsystematic manner in which the mission work was begun. There was no co-operation among the denominations, and the result was that in small towns varying from 1,000 up in population contained from six to eight or ten churches, all of them having only a name to live. If some arrangements had been made by which the country had been divided there would have been one or two churches in each one of these places, and not a large number, almost on the point of starvation, and the ministers' lives worn out by having four or five churches under their care and preaching in each one once or twice in four or five weeks. This is the case in a few places as yet seen, but it is hard to change present church arrangements, and the struggle goes on by pastors and churches for a mere existence. This is the saddest feature of our denominational work, especially in the western part of our country.

The Christian denominations of our land will never be organically united. Such a hope is as impossible as the realization of a future Utopia on earth. But experience has taught the church that it must unite in co-operation and fellowship, and especially in the mission work. Now, if it be to be done in a sensible, businesslike and economical way. Such union is becoming closer and closer every day. It is manifested especially in home mission fields. In our newer fields—Alaska, Cuba and Porto Rico, with the exception of the latter, we believe, there will be no—these lands are apportioned to the different denominations. For instance, the Presbyterian church, because first on the ground, has received as her allotment the southwestern part of Alaska and the upper part of the Yukon valley. So that, instead of there being a number of churches at points like Eagles and Point Barrow, there is in each but one—a Presbyterian. In other portions there are only Methodists or Episcopalians, and, by the way, Point Barrow is the most northerly missionary point in the world. The only white people it contains are the faithful missionary, the Rev. Dr. Campbell and his wife. A year or so ago their church and other buildings were burned down. But they still stood "firm as cords, soldiers of Christ." They usually get mail once a year, but sometimes but once in two years! Such examples of obedience to Christ's great command should spur us with a greatly increased interest in and labor for this cause.

The methods of work used by each denomination should be studied by the societies belonging to it. It will be a most interesting study from the beginning to the present day. The methods of all are preaching, evangelistic work, the distribution of Bibles and tracts and the education of the children, spiritually, morally, mentally and industrially. But we should know our workers, where they are located and the story of our mission work. The methods may be the same, but there is great variety in using them.

Tribute to American C. E. Work.

Hon. Charles W. Fairbanks, ex-vice president of the United States, held the attention of a large delegation of Endeavorers and friends in the Christian church of Indianapolis, Ind., in an address on "The Progress of the World's Society of Christian Endeavor and the Civilizing Power of Christianity as I saw It on My Trip Around the World." The occasion was a Christian Endeavor rally day, and it was great. Mr. Fairbanks spoke with sympathy and power, and his address sparkled with many a gem of truth.

We quote a few sentences:

"Wherever I found American missionaries I found them with an American flag in one hand and a Bible in the other. Close up the churches of our country and it will at once begin a retrograde movement. The ministry is the highest calling any man can engage in. I always admired the ministry. I had only a limited conception of the work of missions and what was being done in the foreign fields until I saw with my own eyes and felt in my own heart the great things which are being accomplished there. Among all the nations of the earth America leads in Christian Endeavor work."—W. Wells Stoddard in Christian Endeavor World.

Let Your Light Shine.

Don't hide your light under a bushel. Let it shine. Give wide publicity to your efforts for the young people. Get the pastor and Sunday school superintendent to speak often and heartily of the society and commend it and its work to the young people. It is not enough in these days of counter worldly attractions simply to permit Christian Endeavor to exist. The negative attitude does not meet the situation. Christian Endeavor to do its best work in any church must have the positive, enthusiastic support of the leaders of the church.—William Shaw, General Secretary.

WEDDED AT SYNAGOGUE

Hebrew Society Witnesses Marriage of Miss Rose Block and Harry Cowen.

DR. EISEMAN OFFICIATES.

Handsome Gowns and Costly Jewels Seen at Ceremony and at the Large Reception Which Followed.

In the synagogue on New street Sunday night at 7 o'clock Miss Rose Block, of Orchard place, became the bride of Harry Cowen, of the master mechanic's department in the employ of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. Rev. Dr. Aaron Eisman, of Temple Beth Israel, New York city performed the ceremony before a congregation exceeding 300.

According to some of the prominent Hebrews present at the ceremony the wedding of Miss Block and Mr. Cowen was one of the social events which will be remembered for years. Costly gowns and gems predominated among the guests many of whom come from out of town and while there was an absence of ostentation the dignity of the Jewish ceremony of consecration is such an event was always manifest.

Prominent people in the business world of the metropolis were there to add to the interest of the occasion, and many of the invited guests from out of this city could not be present telegraphed their regrets.

During the advanced Orthodox and very impressive ceremony an orchestra composed of stringed instruments played soft music in the gallery of the synagogue and when the bridal couple mounted the rostrum under the canopy the wedding march from Lohengrin added the needed touch to the solemnity of the occasion. Following the wedding a reception was held at the residence of M. Abrams at 12 Grove street, where a dinner was served by Marsal, of New York.

The bride was attired in a white satin princess dress trimmed with real lace and pearls. The bridesmaids were three relatives of the bride, the Misses Mollie Goldenbloom, of Brooklyn; Sadie Lichtenstrit, of New York; Priscilla Cowen and Minnie Simon, of New York. The best man was Joseph R. Cowen, of New York, a brother of the groom. The groomsmen were Arthur Cabot, of Brooklyn; Samuel Rothschild, of this city, and Nathan Berlin, of New York city. The flower girl was the five-year-old niece of the bride, Miriam Block.

A feature of the reception was the presentation to the bride and groom of a certified check for $1,000 which was handed to the couple in a neat speech by M. Abrams, brother-in-law of the bride. Many other useful and valuable presents were received by the pair among which were some handsome examples of cut glass and solid silverware and gold jewelry. The presents represent a value of nearly five thousand dollars. On the return from the wedding trip which includes a stay of a week at the Thousand Islands, Mr. and Mrs. Cowen will reside in this city.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Campus, Mr. and Mrs. Cowen, parents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Harris Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Belford and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. Roseman, Mr. and Mrs. S. Kaven, Mr. and Mrs. L. Sandhaus, all of New York. Prominent among the Plainfield Hebrews were Jacob Fass and family; Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Adelberg, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Kunzman, Mr. and Jacob Sachar, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Meier, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fishkin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Arnold, Jacob Weinberger and family, Emanuel Block, Nathan Hollander, Mr. and Mrs. Moses Bender, Emil Abrams, and many others.

The handsome gowns worn by the women were the cause of much admiration. Miss Hannah Cowen, a sister of the groom, was attired in a directoire of pink satin while others were of individual beauty impossible to describe in today's issue. Philip Leidenstritt read many congratulatory telegrams and made a short but eloquent speech. The police department was represented by Detective-Sergeant John Flynn who saw to it that none of the light fingered gentry got near; Patrolman Dobson who admirably cared for the traffic, and Andrew Saffron, who attended the reception and kept tabs on the inner gates. It was all splendidly arranged and nothing of the violent order occurred.

A dance followed the reception and was held in the Y. M. H. A. hall. Several characteristic Jewish dances were performed by the couples.

District Court Cabinet.

Court Clerk Horace Adams has been relieved of a lot of anxiety regarding the keeping of court records and papers by the installation of a new filing cabinet of the most approved kind. There are three separate kinds of compartments in the cabinet, one containing fourteen document files, another with two storage drawers and a third sufficient to care for hundreds of legal documents. The cabinet is constructed of old oak and highly polished and is an improvement to the office.

SHRINERS AT THE SHORE

50,000 PEOPLE SEE THE PARADE.

Mecca, Lu Lu, Salaam and Crescent Temples Participate in the Pageant—100 Candidates Initiated.

Five thousand nobles of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Mystic Shrine from three different States marched in review Saturday afternoon, gayly fezzed and gorgeously attired at Atlantic City. Mecca Temple, of New York; Lu Lu Temple, of Philadelphia; Salaam Temple, of Newark, and Crescent Temple, of Trenton, were in line, stepping to the cadence of a dozen bands. Several Plainfield Shriners were among the Salaam marchers.

The visitation was made for the ceremonial sessions of Crescent Temple, held on the Steel Pier Saturday night, and the yearly outing of Mecca Temple, which reached the resort shortly after noon more than 1,200 strong in three special trains.

The New Yorkers established their headquarters at the Hotel Rudolf, St. Charles, Raleigh and Loraine. They stayed over until last night, with a continuous program of entertainment for the members and the 200 or more women who accompanied them.

Mecca Temple, headed by Potentate W. J. Mathews and Mayor Franklin P. Stoy, led the line in the pageant, a gorgeous uniform bands, banners and novel features of the afternoon. Proudly grasped by Potentate Mathews was a huge silver-plated "key" of the city, bearing the inscription "Atlantic City to Mother Mecca, September 17, 1910."

Captain W. E. Duncan led the patrol of the New York nobles, forty strong, who were attired in dark blue coats white trousers and blue yachting caps in place of the customary Oriental garb.

Lu Lu Temple, second in line, gave the New Yorkers a close run for the popular favor. The Philadelphians, over 500 strong, were led by Potentate Freeland Kendrick, Captain Frank Warner and Lieutenant Herman Rehborn and Harry Castle Junior, the commander of the patrol, comprising several platoons of skilfully drilled men wearing white yachting suits and caps and carrying big red umbrellas incredied with the magic "Lu Lu."

Armed with a handicap, which they used to good advantage, the Lu Lu Quartet, including Harry Bruce, William Austin, Harry Cunliffe and Frank Weidner, marched in front of the Philadelphians, singing while parading.

More than a thousand men were in line for the Crescent Temple, of Trenton, who occupied the next position. Marching with the Trenton Temple were several New Jersey State officials.

Salaam Temple, of Newark, of which Louis V. Aronson is potentate, turned out about 700 men, with a glittering Arab patrol.

The parade was featured by the turning out of nearly a hundred candidates for initiation at the ceremonial session Saturday night, who marched afoot, wearing huge placards with amusing inscriptions or gazed through the bars of a huge wooden cage, dodging the prancings of a real live "William" goat as their motor truck buzzed up the avenue.

Fifty thousand persons lined the streets to witness the procession.

FORMER PRIEST WANTS HIS BRIDE BACK NOW.

The latest development in the case of the former priest, Father Alphonse Consolazio, who married Miss Johann, of Trenton, and then went back to Italy to repent, comes in the form of a letter to the bride and her father from the priest at Naples. It seems that he failed at the gate of the Vatican to repent of his action, and he now wants to return home to his bride. In his letter he offers a barrel of wine to Frank Johann, the father, and some statuary.

"Consolazio is a faker," said Mr. Johann yesterday. "If he comes back I will kick him out of town. I am able to buy all the wine I want, and my collection of statuary is sufficient for all purposes."

It is understood that Miss Johann has her appeal to the Chancery Court about ready. She will ask for annulment of the marriage, and she says her husband promised not to oppose it if he decided to go to the Vatican and confess his sin against the church and be immured in a monastery. Rumor has it that Miss Johann intends to marry her first love when she gets her freedom.

Rally at Warren Chapel.

The Sunday-school of Warren chapel will hold rally-day exercises Sunday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock, at which time the winter schedule of services will go into effect. Thereafter the school will meet at 2:45 in the afternoon, and the morning service will be held at 10:30 and the evening service at 8 o'clock. There will be special music on Sunday.

LITERARY

From the days of the Thackeray Letters Scribner's Magazine has been particularly fortunate in its literary finds. They now announce to begin in the October number a series of letters that passed between Washington Irving and John Howard Payne. This intimacy of the authors of "Rip Van Winkle" and "Home, Sweet Home" has been almost untouched in literary narratives. The letters are edited by a grandnephew of Payne's in whose family the correspondence has remained unknown for many years. A part of it, Payne's letters and journals, came into his possession in an unusual manner at an auction sale. The talent of Ario Bates has descended to his son Oric Bates who contributes a short story of the hunting field to the October Scribner.

In the Strand for October Conan Doyle returns to one of his best known characters—Brigadier Gerard. In the present story the famous author relates in the Brigadier's own words how Etienne Gerard came to get married and the account is written in all Conan Doyle's customary fascination and humor. Besides "The Marriage of the Brigadier" there are ten other stories by such writers as E. Phillips Oppenheim, E. M. Jameson, Richard Marsh, A. T. Quiller-Couch ("Q"). In simple Terms and other well known authors. The articles are as interesting and "unusual" as ever. Bernard Darwin writes on "Some Curious Wagers" which is illustrated with facsimiles from the Betting-Book of White's Club.

A highly interesting illustrated article appears in the October Wide World Magazine entitled "A Remarkable War," which is descriptive of the way in which the Indian Government is fighting the bubonic plague. For some time it has been believed that the plague was carried by the rats and as a consequence every effort is being made to get rid of he infected vermin. Some remarkable statistics are published regarding the number of rats destroyed annually. Other articles of interest include "Where Men Ride Birds and Pigs," a curious account of breaking unusual creatures to harness; "The Reminiscences of an African Pioneer;" "An American Gipsy Queen;" "The Evolution of a Bandit," and "My Adventures in Unknown Arabia."

SWIMMING CLASSES PLANNED AT Y. M. C. A.

A new feature in Y. M. C. A. work in this city will be introduced by Physical Director Whitaker this fall when two swimming classes will be formed. If a sufficient number of candidates register for the sport, it is planned to have a swimming team which will represent the local Y. M. C. A. in meets with neighboring associations which have pools.

Another feature will be the introduction of volley ball, which is done to interest business men especially. The game may be briefly described as a sort of hand tennis. This will be introduced soon after the association is opened for the fall and winter work.

The opening will take place for all departments Monday, October 2. By that time the locker rooms will have been put in good shape and the pool will be renovated and painted and the gymnasium will have undergone numerous minor repairs.

In the physical department prospectus which will be ready for distribution his week, a full schedule of the department activities will be printed. It is planned to have three classes for the intermediate boys who are principally high school pupils between the ages of 15 and 17 years.

Basketball will again be the major sport at the local association. There will be the usual first and second teams and the business men's five; and it is possible that a local league will be organized. The trophies won by the various basketball and baseball teams will be placed on exhibition in a trophy cabinet to be put in the reception room.

CHURCH MEN'S CLUB PLANS FOR ACTIVE SEASON.

The executive committee of the Men's club, of the Seventh Day Baptist church, at a recent conference, took up the work for the coming year by appointing the various committees. The club is planning an active fall and winter season and will meet once a month as in the past. The new committees are as follows:

Program—Orra S. Rogers, chairman; Charles P. Titsworth, Dr. Marcus L. Clawson, Charles F. Neagle, Dr. Nathan B. Whitford; membership-reception—Lewis T. Titsworth, chairman; George M. Clarke, Frank J. Hubbard, William M. Stillman, Joseph D. Spicer; refreshment—Raymond C. Burdick, chairman; Roy E. Titsworth, Roland M. Davis, Nathan Wardner, Irving Davis; religious work—Arthur C. Hunting, chairman; Theodore L. Gardiner, Henry M. Maxson, DeValois St. John and David E. Titsworth.

FIGHTING FOR LICENSES

Applications For Hotels Arlington and Manhattan Laid Over by Court.

HEARING AT SOMERVILLE.

Mayor Smalley Urges That They Be Granted—Rev. J. O. McKelvey and S. S. Swackhamer Speak as Remonstrants.

The fall term of the Somerset County Courts opened at Somerville, Tuesday with Justice Chas. W. Parker and Judge Clarence E. Case on the bench. There was a large gathering of county people, including many liquor dealers and their representatives. They were attracted by the fact that several license applications were to be disposed of and the probable action of the court aroused unusual interest.

Charles Jensen, of North Plainfield, applied for a license for the Arlington Hotel, and Alfred DeNise, of the Hotel Manhattan, also of the borough, renewed his application. Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey was present and made a strong remonstrance against the granting of these applications. He declared that both places were well-known for general disorder and the fact that the hotels are located in the residential part of the borough, he believed that the applications should be denied. He recalled the raid made some time ago at the Arlington Hotel and of numerous instances of disorder at the Manhattan. S. S. Swackhamer also spoke on the matter, stating that there were a number of people in the borough who would like to be heard in protest against the granting of the applications.

Mayor Newton A. Smalley, who is a member of the Grand Jury, left the jury room to speak in favor of the granting of a license to Mr. Jensen. He said that the latter had tried to conduct the hotel as a temperance house for a year, but without success, that he was a reputable citizen, and bore a good reputation in the borough. He added, that Mr. Jensen owns the Hotel Arlington property and under the present circumstances is no source of revenue to the owner. Mr. Smalley favored the granting of this application.

The court said that both applications would be laid over until the latter part of the month, when witnesses would be given an opportunity to speak on the matter. Similar action was taken regarding the application of Alfred E. Binz for his hotel at Mt. Bethel. Justice Parker explained that he had received two remonstrances against the granting of the Binz application and he would lay that matter over until the latter part of the month.

Justice Parker, in charging the Grand Jury, called its attention to the murder case to be tried later; also to county excise matters, urging upon the members to do their duty in these matters.

L. P. Gaston, of Somerville, is the foreman of the Grand Jury and the North Plainfield members are Mayor Newton B. Smalley, Charles P. Sebring and Charles Woods. William H. Rogers and Guy Peck, of Warren township, are also members of the jury.

CLUB WANTS WILSON TO SPEAK HERE FIRST

The meeting of the Plainfield Democratic Club held Monday in the club rooms on North avenue was notable for the feeling of optimism which seemed to pervade the atmosphere. William E. Tuttle, Jr., Democratic aspirant for congressional honors in the Fifth district, was unable to address the members as had been anticipated; therefore the evening was spent in discussing local topics.

A vigorous campaign is being mapped out by the local Democrats, one of the features of which will be the opening of the Woodrow Wilson campaign in this city.

It is claimed by the club members that they are indirectly responsible for Dr. Wilson's nomination and for that reason believe they should be honored by his opening campaign speech. Several new members were admitted to the club last night and a committee of three was appointed to arrange for the speaking and finances.

James E. Martine addressed the members briefly and declared his belief that Woodrow Wilson would carry the State by 40,000 majority, electing the balance of the Democratic ticket. Many of the members declared their belief in the prophecy and said they would work hard for its fulfillment.

PROPOSED ORDINANCES

Several Measures Offered at Monthly Meeting of Common Council.

CITY TO PURCHASE LAND.

Tract Needed For Pumping Station to Cost $1,400—Ordinances to Open up Some Thoroughfares.

Several ordinances were offered by Mr. Cloak, chairman of the street committee, at the adjourned meeting of the common council, Monday, providing for the opening up and acceptance of certain thoroughfares. Maps were filed, and Thursday, October 20, was fixed as the date for public hearings on the different ordinances. Among these ordinances was one authorizing the purchase of a tract of land at Monroe and Sherman avenues, for $1,400, upon which it is proposed to erect a pumping station for the extension of the sanitary sewer system.

One ordinance called for the opening up and laying out of a portion of Denmark and Ravine roads to the southerly line of Netherwood Park. This was adopted on two readings and ordered engrossed and advertised. A second ordinance provided for the purchase of the land for the pumping station, and will be taken up for final adoption on October 20. The land proposed for the purpose is 20x150 feet and is known as the Dell property. It was explained that it would also be necessary to install a pumping station on Plainfield avenue near the city line, in the near future to take care of that section of the city.

Other ordinances called for the opening up and acceptance as public thoroughfares, Lyman place and Astor place to Hunter avenue. These were adopted on two readings and ordered engrossed and advertised. Public hearings will be granted on Thursday night, October 20, before adoption on third and final readings.

MINISTER'S PRAISE FOR FOWLER AND RUNYON

"The Three Epochs in Our Democracy," was the subject of a stirring address delivered by Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday night, in which he took occasion to pay tribute to Congressman Charles N. Fowler, whom he characterized as a great statesman and a man of the highest intelligence and influence. He also referred to William N. Runyon, who deefated Mr. Fowler for the Congressional nomination, as a man of integrity and honesty and one who held the confidence of the people of his home town.

The first epoch referred to by the preacher, was the conflict between the peasant and the prince, which terminated in the Civil War. The second epoch was that of personal rights against property rights, which terminated in the freeing of the slaves and the third epoch, which is of present times, he characterized as the struggle between the privileged class backed by law and the common people backed by justice, which he said would be won by the common people through the ballot box.

Referring to Mr. Fowler, as a great statesman, Mr. Maguire said that it seemed as though he would continue to hold office, but the people decided otherwise. The preacher said that this was a day of snap judgment, that some people are so pessimistic that they believe that the country is going to the dogs. He did not agree with such people. He said that it was a long way from the tallow dip to the electric light and the ox team to the automobile, but tha he church was never more loyal o the cause of Christ than it is today, that things countenanced many years ago, would not be permitted today, in other words the world is growing better and that very fast.

P. C. C. AND HUNT CLUB TEAMS TO PLAY ANNUAL GAME.

The Plainfield County Club baseball team, captained by Morris J. Dumont, and the Watchung Hunt Club Team, led by J. Hartley Mellick, will play its annual game at the Hunt Club grounds Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. As one of the players remarked, "it will be a friendly but warm contest." Both teams have been engaged in practice every day for the past week getting ready for the diamond battle, and both sides are determined to win.

The line-up of the clubs has not yet been announce, but both clubs will select their strongest men. The names of the opposing pitchers is also withheld until the last minute, and it is said that they will furnish a great surprise. At the conclusion of the game the defeated team will give a dinner at the clubhouse to the winning aggregation.

MRS. T. J. NICHOLL DEAD

VILLAGE LIBRARY TRUSTEE.

Wife and Four Daughters Survive—Funeral Services at Scotch Plains Wednesday Afternoon.

Mrs. Avis Townsend Nicholl, wife of Thomas J. Nicholl, of Scotch Plains, died Tuesday morning, after a lingering illness. She was born in Brooklyn in 1855, but had lived in Scotch Plains since 1870 and had always been prominently associated with all the philanthropic and educational work of the village.

As a trustee of the public library since its organization, and as a member of its house committee, and in other capacities, she was always an active worker in every movement for the betterment of the community in which she lived. Mrs. Nicholl's family were members of the Religious Society of Friends, but for many years she had been an attendant of All Souls' Unitarian church, of this city, and an active member of its Woman's Alliance.

Mrs. Nicholls was married in Scotch Plains in 1874 and she leaves besides a husband, four daughters and four grandchildren. The daughters are Mrs. R. L. VanDyke, of Westfield; Mrs. J. A. Rawson, Jr., of this city; Miss Florence Nicholl, assitant piano teacher at the Plainfield Seminary and Miss Louise Townsend Nicholl, a sophomore at Smith College.

The funeral will be held at Mrs. Nicholl's late residence on Mountain avenue, Thursday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock and will be conducted by Rev. A. C. Nickerson, of All Souls' Unitarian church, assisted by Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church.

LAY CORNERSTONE FOR NEW CHURCH

The laying of the cornerstone of the new $100,000 First M. E. church in Broad street, Westfield, Sunday afternoon marked a new era of progress for that denomination, which began its history in 1849.

More than 600 persons witnessed the event. The stone was laid by the Rev. Dr. W. A. Hayes, pastor of the church. He used an ebony-handled trowel, presented to him after the ceremonies. Placed in the box in the cornerstone were histories of the church and its societies, a list of contributors to the new church fund, officers and official board members, newspapers, newspapers and coins of the year.

The program followed the ritual. The address was made by the Rev. Dr. Hayes, under whose leadership the work of raising funds for the building was undertaken. The Rev. Dr. Randolph, district superintendent, offered prayer; the Rev. Sydney Cross, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, read Psalm 132. Greetings were received from the Rev. W. I. Steans, pastor of the Presbyterian church; the Rev. Dr. Loomis, pastor of Congregational church; the Rev. Mr. Greenkood, pastor of First Baptist church, and the Rev. C. M. Anderson, the Rev. W. H. Ruth, former pastors.

The new church will be one of the most handsome buildings in Union county. The exterior is of white granite with limestone trimmings. The roof will be of green mottled slate. The main auditorium will be 62x76 and will seat more than 600 with a gallery providing 250 additional seats. A great arch will enclose their choir loft, with smaller arches at either side. The building will contain a large Sunday school room, banquet hall, meeting rooms, choir rooms and kitchen.

It is proposed to dedicate the building next spring.

Union county gave a solid vote of 107 for Tuttle and Warren contributed 63 for Barber. The congressional committee is composed of John Lowe, of Elizabeth; Morris G. Burke, of Warrenville, and William Kline, of Morristown.

Several petitions were presented at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, Monday, including one from Horace M. Stevens, of, Prospect place, asking for an electric light, and one from F. B. Regarding the appeal of Elston M. French from an assessment on property located on Evergreen avenue, Mr. Mygatt, for the finance committee, offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing Tax Collector W. R. Mr. Mygatt offered a resolution, at the request of Mayor Fisk, and which was adopted, authorizing the exchange of the typewriter in Mr. Fisk's office for a new one and the payment of $75 in cash, $20 allowance being given on the old machine, which is worn out.

Mr. Gloak reported back the communication from Fanwood township, and it was agreed that the township should in the future take care of Cushing road, while the city will look after Woodland avenue, as proposed.

CICADA BROOD OF PESTS DUE NEXT YEAR

In anticipation of the visit next year of the periodical cicada, or, as it is commonly known, the seventeen-year locust, the entomological department of the State Agricultural Experiment Station has sent out a warning to nurserymen, orchardists, fruit growers and farmers generally.

It is explained that the injury is done by the female depositing eggs in twigs and small branches. Precautions suggested are two-fold, setting out only woody stock too small to attract the pest, or refraining from pruning heavy wooded stock, so that it will be strong enough to stand the attacks.

The circular was prepared by Dr. John B. Smith, who states that he will be grateful for all information as to the places where the pests appear.

The circular in full is as follows:

Brood II. of the periodical cicada, or, as it is better known, the "seventeen-year locust," appeared in New Jersey in 1894, and is due to appear again in 1911. According to the records gathered in 1894, the brood covers practically all of Bergen county, scattered areas in Passaic county, small areas near Hunterdon and Passaic in Sussex county, practically all of Morris, Union, Essex and Hudson counties, a few areas in Mercer county, irregular areas all over Middlesex county, scattering points in the eastern part of Monmouth county, small patches in Ocean and Burlington counties, Pennsauken and vicinity in Camden county, scattering sections at the southwestern part of Gloucester and Salem counties, irregular areas throughout Atlantic and Cumberland counties, and all the wooded sections on the Cape May peninsula. There is, therefore, no county entirely free from the insects; but they do not approach the Delaware River closely except in Camden county and, in a general way, may be said to be most abundant in the eastern half of the State.

The insects will appear during the last days of May, 1911, and will continue throughout June, disappearing by the end of the month. The injury is done by the females in laying the eggs in twigs and small branches, making slits that do not heal. These result in the ultimate death beyond the point of injury of every punctured branch less than one-half an inch in diameter, and, where there are many punctures on the trunks of small trees or on branches up to three-quarter inch, these are apt to be seriously injured or killed.

Farmers, fruit growers and others who contemplate setting out trees or shrubs during the fall of 1910, or spring of 1911, in the infested areas, are warned of the danger of injury from these cicadas. If trees or shrubs must be set, put out either very small trees and cut back severely, so as not to offer attractions to the insects, or set large trees with many branches and cut back no more than absolutely necessary until after July 1, so as to offer the insects a chance to deposit in wood that can be spared. Burn all the cut infested wood.

In established, young orchards or other plantations, do not prune more than necessary, so as to distribute any injury that may be caused. On large trees no appreciable injury will be noted, but there may be a serious cutting of the crops borne on small shoots and branches. There is no way of poisoning the insects for they do practically no feeding, and it is not in the least dangerous to handle them. All insectivorous birds feed freely on these cicadas, and no does the ordinary farm poultry of all kinds. Sparrows take a malicious delight in tearing these to pieces, and little damage need be expected where these birds occur in large numbers.

FUNNY THINGS CHILDREN SAY.

While little Elsie was one day devouring a large icicle, she exclaimed, "Oh, how I do like icicles, they are so juicy."

My two little nieces had a bird given to them and were very anxious to see it bathe. On seeing it get into the water for the first time the three-year-old child exclaimed: "Why, I declare! if it isn't getting right in the water with all its feathers on."

Nine-year-old Lizzie was taken to her first classical concert the other night. "How did you like it, Dot?" inquired papa, who had been too busy to attend. "Most of it was tiresome," said the child, "but there was one lady who gargled just beautifully."

A Contradiction.

"No," said the young man with the frivolous hat, "I'm not a bit afraid to go out on the water in this wind. You see, I know all about a sailboat."

"Son," replied old Cap Catspaw, "you're contradicting yourself. Nobody can know all about a sailboat without being afraid of it."—Washington Evening Star.

The First Wedge.

"It's the first $1,000 that's hard to get."

"That's right," assented the owner of the garage. "After you separate 'em from that they'll loosen to any extent."—Washington Herald.

Little, But Oh My!

How important! There are plenty of low-priced Typewriter oils, but they are really dear at any price. Like Col. Sellers' Eye Water, the more you use the more you have to use. The carriage sticks—the wheels won't go round, the operator gets cross and work is delayed. Don't flood your machine with oil, only a very little is needed—but it must be the right kind. The LENOX kind absolutely will not gum, will make your machine run smooth and keep your temper unruffled—try it and be convinced—Price 20 cents a bottle, sent by mail anywhere upon receipt of price.

WORLD TUBERCULOSIS AT ROME NEXT YEAR

The seventh international triennial congress on tuberculosis to be held in Rome September 24-30, 1911, will be under the direct patronage of the King and Queen of Italy. The Secretary-General is Professor Vittorio Asioli and the President Professor Guido Baccelli.

It is expected that an American committee of one hundred will be appointed as the official body representing the United States. Estimating on the present rate of increase, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis announces that the American committee will be able to give a most flattering report at the Congress. They will be able to announce that the number of tuberculosis agencies in this country has tripled in the three years since the last International Congress, and that more than twice as much money is being spent in the fight against consumption by private societies and institutions, and also that the appropriations for tuberculosis work by federal, State, municipal and county authorities have quadruple.

The Congress at Rome will be in three sections, that on etiology and causes of tuberculosis; on pathology and therapeutics, both medical and surgical, and on the social defence against tuberculosis. The names of the presidents of these sections will be announced in the near future.

The local work of preventing the spread of tuberculosis is progressing satisfactorily. One patient, aged thirteen years, has been discharged cured from the local camp, the disease having been arrested. She gained twenty-four pounds in nine months. A new patient has been admitted in her place.

GIVE US A PLACE TO PLAY.

"Git out," yells the Cop, " 'r I soon put a stop
To y'ur nerver-rackin' din, by runnin' you in.
You won't play on the street, when I'm on the beat,
So chase y'urself hence. Get away from that fence."
An' the Cop he's the law, an' we've got to obey,
But he don't tell us what 'r where we can play.

"Git out," yells the man when we kick his ash-can,
Then he calls us vile toughs, an' villians an' roughs,
An' names if I said would knock mother down dead.
We run all our might, to get out of his sight,
An' bump into people who kick us away,
An' growl, but don't mention a place we can play.

"Git out of the way," yells a man with a dray,
As he nearly runs down my chum, Billy Brown;
He raises his whip, and then all of us skip,
But we only change streets, for where else can we go
To escape Cops and drivers, does any one know?

If you were a lad didn't mean to be bad,
Had no place to meet, except in the street,
No place to play ball, 'r "tagger" at all,
No place just to—yell, when y'ir feelin' real well,
Now, honest and true, what on earth would you do?

Why you'd swear and make bets, an' smoke cigarettes;
You'd gamble an' fight, and throw stones just for spite.
You'd try to live down to the names you were named!
An' you'd lie, with the gang, without feelin' ashamed.

Big Brothers of ours, we want to do right,
But try as we will it's a hard, uphill fight.
We'd rather play ball in a place where we dare,
Than skulk near a corner an' gamble an' swear.
We'd rather clim' ladders an' act on a bar,
Than dodge a policeman, 'r hang on a car.

It's up to you, Brothers, come, please don't delay,
But establish a place where us fellows can play.

—John L. Shroy.

Social Slights.

"Mrs. Jangle says she can remember when that fashionable Cumrox family didn't know where the next meal was coming from."

"Well," replied Miss Cayenne, "it's evident that she didn't invite them to dine with her then; so there's no reason why they should invite her now."—Washington Evening Star.

Trying to Be an Optimist.

"Don't you think the hats women wear are outlandish?"

"I don't care anything about their outlandishness," said Mr. Meekton. "They can be as big and curious as they like so long as they don't have to be buttoned up the back."—Washington Evening Star.

Chauffeur Tips.

When the engine breaks down begin operations by lighting a cigarette. Take your time about it. This impresses the bystanders with your skill and coolness.

Lift the bonnet and peer into engine for a few minutes, whistling meanwhile. Walk round the other side and repeat.

Do the necessary repairs. Don't forget to lie on your back in the road beneath the car. The crowd will expect it.

Should the crowd grow restive offer its most noisy member the opportunity of taking your place.

If he happens to be in the business and accepts your offer let him do the work.

Start the engine, watch it for a minute and then replace bonnet.

Do not drive away at once. That would be inartistic. Maneuver with the clutch until the crowd grows joyous in expectation of another failure and then drive off smartly.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Pianos & Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually.

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

SIZE OF BUT LITTLE MOMENT

The Most Deadly and Destructive Foes of Mankind Are of Minute Proportion.

In one of Herbert Wells' brilliant stories the terribly scientific and practically invincible Martians who have invaded the earth and conquered England are stopped in the midst of their victories and utterly destroyed by the attacks of microscopic foes. Infinitely small organisms, germs of diseases to which man has become in some degree immune, slay the wonderful warriors of a planet never invaded by these earth foes. What the greatest battleships and the heaviest guns could not do the unseen and unknown living seeds of death accomplish.

More clearly every day the world understands that in the life and affairs of mankind the most deadly and destructive foes are extremely small. All of the fierce mammals and poisonous serpents of Africa do not kill as many human beings in ten years as the tsetse fly slays in one. The tigers and cobras of India kill their thousands every year, but the rats which spread the germs of the bubonic plague destroy their tens of thousands. In this country the common house fly undoubtedly causes more deaths than all the venomous snakes, wild beasts, mad dogs, runaway horses and all-tempered bulls, ten times over. The actual proportion is probably much higher than ten to one.

TROUBLE FOR BOYISH KNIGHT

Unfeeling Police Officer Arrested Youth in the Act of Kissing Away Sweetheart's Tears.

It's a pity a boy can't kiss away his sweetheart's tears without a big, unsympathetic policeman taking them both to the children's court, the New York Evening Telegram says.

Any fellow would have acted just as Jacob Kinzler did, especially if he was as fond of his sweetheart as Jacob is of Susie Stahl. Jacob is a manly little chap of 15 and Susie, two years his junior, is one of the prettiest little girls on the east side.

"We wasn't regular kissing," explained Jacob. "I'll tell you how it was. A boy nearly twice as big as I am came along and slapped Susie and she began to cry."

"Why didn't you tackle him?" asked the court.

"He was too big for me to lick, and I let him go. But I did the next best thing. Susie was crying somepin fierce, and I just grabbed her and was kissing away her tears when the cop came along and said I was violating the law. I didn't know what he meant, and as Susie kept on crying I kept on kissing. Then the cop stepped up."

"You and Susie may go now," said the court to Jacob. "The next time she cries give her your handkerchief—when you see a cop coming."

A Quaint Tract.

A quaint tract, entitled "Woe to Drunkards," being a sermon by Samuel Wald, preacher, of Ipswich, was printed in London in 1627. The preacher based his remarks upon Proverbs xxiii., 29-32 ("Look not thou upon the wine when it is red," etc.), and illustrated his arguments by examples from various parts of the kingdom of "God's judgments on drunkards." Among other instances he quotes the following one from Tenby: "At Tenby, in Pembrokeshire, a drunkard being exceedingly drunke broke himself all to pieces off an high and steep rock in most fearefull manner, and yet the occasion and circumstances of his fall so ridiculous as I thinke not fit to relate, lest in so serious a judgement I should move laughter of the Reader."

The Backwoods School.

Poor old schoolhouse, long since become scattered ashes! Poor little backwoods academicians, driven in about sunrise, driven out toward dusk! Poor little tired backs with nothing to lean against! Poor little bare feet that could never reach the floor! Poor little droop-headed figures, so sleepy in the long summer days, so afraid to fall asleep! Long, long since, little children of the past, your backs have become straight enough, measured on the same cool bed; sooner or later your feet, wherever wandering, have found their resting places in the soft earth; and all your drooping heads have gone to slep on the same dreamless pillow, and there are sleeping.—James Lane Allen.

Accounting for It.

Outgoing heads of the government departments sometimes make a few "personal" promotions upon the eve of their departure, and a clerk in the department of agriculture, believing that Secretary Wilson would go the way of the rest of the Roosevelt cabinet, ventured to approach him with a little plea for special recognition.

"I have been in the department since the time you were first made secretary, sir—" the clerk began.

"I know it—I knew it," the secretary said, waving him away. "Every one knows I am a very patient and considerate man."—Harper's Weekly.

Expelled for Cause.

Mrs. Dorcas—Why did you expel her from the Women's club?

Mrs. Learned—She proposed a motion that, instead of engaging a professor of Hindu philosophy, we should hire some one to teach us how to get into a cab, how to sharpen a pencil and how to carry an umbrella in a crowd.

TOLD IN A DREAM.

The Message a Dying Girl Conveyed to Her Brother.

This is an absolutely true, dream story: A certain young lady, whom we will call Mary A., was recovering from illness. The doctor had declared her to be out of danger, and her friends and relatives were rejoicing in the fact. Nevertheless Miss A., receiving a visit one day from a sister, gravely assured her that she was going to die. The sister poohpoohed the idea and treated it as an invalid's fancy. Miss A., however, with the utmost calmness, repeated her statement. She was certain that she would die that night and begged her sister to fetch her parents and other relatives to say goodby. Thinking to humor her, the sister complied. One person was absent from this strange family gathering—a brother, who was at sea and was expected home in a week or two. "But it does not matter," Miss A. quietly observed. "I saw him last night in a dream and said goodby to him in his cabin." Before the sun rose again Miss A.'s prediction had come true; she was dead. That, however, is not the strangest part of this weird story. When in due time the sailor brother reached port he was met by his other sister, who began to tell him the sad news. "Ah," he interrupted, "you need not tell me. Mary is dead. I knew it, for she came to me one night in my dreams and told me she was going to die and wanted to say goodby." On comparing dates it was found that the dreams were dreamed on the selfsame night.—London News.

A MUSICAL PRODIGY.

Richard Strauss was a musical prodigy. His first effort at writing music was made at a Christmas celebration, says the Designer. Some children were dancing around the tree and singing a three part song. "I can compose music like that," said the six-year-old Richard to his mother. Thereupon he sat down and did so. But his mother was old to write in the words, because, although he could write music legibly, his pot hooks were too large. Strauss himself not only vouched for the truth of this story, but said that while he was still six years old he composed a polka and a schottische.

Richard was only fifteen when a symphony composed by him was brought out by Herman Levi, court conductor at Munich and conductor of the first performance of "Parsifal" at Bayreuth. When Richard came out to bow his acknowledgment of the applause which followed the symphony a man in the audience turned to his neighbors and asked, "What has that boy got to do with it?"

"Nothing," was the reply, "except that he's the composer."

Ancient Ideas of Africa.

In mediaeval times Africa was an unknown continent as well as Asia. Until a few years after the discovery of Columbus no one had sailed around it, and it was quite generally thought, as it had previously been thought in regard to Asia, that the African continent extended on and on indefinitely. It was supposed that far to the south was the zone of heat, in which no human being could live. This was by no means an unreasonable inference to the ancients. They knew that the farther they sailed to the north the colder it grew and that in the extreme north was a region of perpetual snow. They also knew that the farther they sailed to the south the warmer it grew, and what was more natural for them to suppose that if they went far enough in that direction they would come upon lands that were parched and baked and upon seas that boiled, where nothing could live but salamanders?

The Smile.

We talk of a smile of defiance. There is really no such thing. Such a so called smile is nothing more nor less than a snarl, a survival of the way our savage ancestors had of showing their teeth in order to strike fear into the hearts of their enemies. The real smile of pleasure begins with slightly opening the mouth, and, is, of course, traceable to the joy of those same savage forefathers of ours at the prospect of food.

A Mean Comparison.

"Confound these railway time tables!" snapped Mr. Grubb as the long folder refused to remain closed long enough for him to place it in his pocket. "They remind me of a woman."

"The idea!" replied his wife in surprise. "Pertie—Oh, doctor, be original! My wife's done that already.—Boston Transcript.

P. C. C. TENNIS CHAMPION

W. B. Cragin Wins Title Held by A. D. Beers by Defeating H. T. Eaton.

IN THREE STRAIGHT SETS.

Large Gallery Witnessed the Final Round at the Club's Courts on Saturday Afternoon.

From a field that comprised all the best players except the 1909 title holder, A. D. Beers, W. B. Cragin, Jr., won the lawn tennis championship of the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday, defeating in the final round Harry T. Eaton in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

The tournament began the previous Saturday, Sept. 10, and such good progress was made that everything except the final round was disposed of on that day. Cragin defeated R. S. Gough easily in the preliminary round, and W. L. Righter defaulted to H. L. DeForest on account of being obliged to leave town. In the first round E. Stevenson made an unexpectedly good fight against Eaton, winning the first set, 6-4, but the latter captured the second after a struggle and then ran out the third without trouble. This brought Cragin against A. M. Collins, a former Pittsburgh player of prominence in the days when the late J. Cochran, a former holder of the title. In the latter contest Eaton ran up a lead of 5-1 in the first set before Cochran got going; but he made a fine pull up, almost getting to deuce games; but Eaton finally managed to take the set to his credit by more aggressive play. Cochran started well in the second set, getting a 3-0 lead owing to Eaton's erratieness, but the latter steadied down and by his severe service and hard hitting captured the set, 6-4.

The Cragin-Collins match was by long odds the best of the tournament. Collins started off by getting a lead of 3-0, Cragin being unsteady and over-confident. The former Pittsburger was good in all departments of the game, combining aggressiveness and steadiness to a marked degree, and he varied play at the net and from the back of the court most effectively. Seeing what a task he had before him Cragin brought all his resources into play and after a long struggle pulled up even and then won out the set, 6-4. The second set was also keenly contested, Collins again getting the lead, but Cragin worked with a will and gradually wore his opponent down, annexing the set, 6-3.

Quite a gallery watched the final round, between Cragin and Eaton, the day being an ideal one for both players and spectators. In the first set it was a battle of services, Eaton's being fast and well placed and bothering the veteran Cragin considerably. In the seventh game, however, the latter broke through Eaton's service, following it up by the win of his own, thus getting a lead of 5-3. Eaton then served a love gain, but Cragin retalliated on his own service and the set was his, 6-4. The second set was easier for Cragin, he breaking through on Eaton's second service; and thereafter he handled it without difficulty finishing as he could do better by standing well back of the base line instead of going up on it and hitting it as it rose high. Eaton was steadier than usual but did not hit with all his accustomed severity, so that the rallies that usually ended usually ended in Cragin's favor, and he annexed the second set at 6-2.

In the third, although the score was the same, the games were much closer, 5 of them going to deuce. But Cragin had the match well in hand and was always the more dependable when the pinch came. The summaries:

Preliminary round—A. M. Collins defeated L. Mead, 6-1, 6-2; S. W. Merribee defeated L. L. Tweedy, 6-2, 6-2; T. M. Day, 3rd, defeated W. G. Cook, 6-1, 6-3; W. B. Cragin, Jr. defeated R. S. Gough 6-2, 6-1; H. J. Cochran deefated A. Cox, 6-3, 6-0; H. L. DeForest defeated W. L. Righter by default; Ed. Stevenson defeated A. W. Ransome, 6-2, 6-2.

Semi-Final round—Cragin, Jr., defeated Collins, 6-4, 6-3; Eaton defeated Cochran, 6-4, 6-4

PLAINFIELD AND NAIRNS TIE IN OPENING GAME

The junior soccer football season was formally ushered in at Newark, Saturday afternoon, when the Plainfield and Nairn elevens got off to an even start in the Inter-City Junior Amateur Soccer Football League. The contest was decided on Riverside Oval, Kearny, the final score being two goals each. Councilman Hugh Wilkie, of the First ward, Kearny, kicked off the ball after a speech. The teams were evenly matched throughout the ninety minutes of play, although the weather was a little too warm for the players.

Neither elevn managed to get the leather through the goal in the first period, and the goal tenders had very little hard work. In the second half things were different. Each eleven scored a goal on a penalty kick, while the others came as the result of hard play.

Plainfield was the first to gain a goal. Shortly after the start of the second period Scott, of the Nairns, hit the ball within the penalty area and Heaume scored on the free kick. After thirty minutes of play Lawson evened up matters by scoring on a free kick for the Nairns.

Both teams played hard during the next fifteen minutes. The Nairns forced the play in Plainfield's territory and Porteous put the Nairns in the lead by making a neat shot, the ball striking the cross-bar and bounding through the goal.

With but three minutes to play Plainfield secured a corner kick and Sutton's try was sent between the bars by Heaume, evening up the score. The line-up:

SEEK HIGHER EDUCATION

Where Plainfield's Young Men and Women Are Pursuing Their Studies.

AT NUMEROUS INSTITUTIONS.

Number This Year Breaks the Record—Some of High School's Graduates Taking Post-Graduate Course.

Plainfield will be well represented at the colleges this year as there will be students from this city in nearly all of the prominent institutions of the country. The exodus of local young women and men to the various colleges has already begun and within two weeks the entire college delegation will have left this city.

The number of college students from this city this year is greater in proportion than in any other year. There is a greater proportion of the graduates of the high schools, who are going to higher institutions of learning at the present time than ever before. The majority of the Plainfield college students are going to Eastern colleges and universities, although a few are noted on the rolls of the Western schools.

Among those who will seek higher education are William C. Douglas, and Miss Cornelia Lounsberry. The former is the captain of the football team at the Colorado School of Mines, where he enters his senior year. Miss Lounsberry has the singular distinction of being the only student at Swarthmore that has ever been taken on the faculty, during the undergraduate years. She has been appointed as an assistant history professor, being a senior at the institution in addition to a teacher. When in the Plainfield High School, by which Miss Lounsberry was graduated, she always took a prominent part in the history courses, in which she excelled. Mr. Douglas is also a graduate of the city high school, where he was a noted athlete and student and was one of the best football players, who ever wore a P. H. S. uniform. The team, of which he is now captain, is the champion eleven of the tri-state college league.

The largest delegation of local people goes to the Montclair State Normal school with the Trenton State Normal School a close second in the number of Plainfield students. Among the men's colleges, Yale, Columbia and Rutgers have the largest enrolment of students from this city. Smith college is among the popular institutions with the Plainfield students, there being six students at that institution from this city.

Twelve of the young women, who were graduated by the city high school in June, are taking post graduate courses in the school this year. They are actively engaged in the school life and social affairs. Those in this higher work are: The Misses Mary Radford, Margaret V. Leggett, Elsie Bird, Frances Newell, Lila Duy, Edna Cole, Ruth Klein, Helen Smith, Marguerite Van Zandt, Celestine Waldron, Ouida Hetfield and Edith Bush.

Among the Plainfield students at the various colleges and universities are: Trenton Normal, the Misses Henrietta Englehardt, Mabel Townley, Louise Layton, Edith Schenck, Henrietta Winn, Agnes Mofet, Rose Siegal, Montclair Normal, the Misses Ernestine Richter, Jennie Nelson, Ruth Day, Louise M. Andrews, Catherine Swain, Mildred Webster, Agnes Van Norden, Mary Burdick; Columbia, William T. Lambert, Howard Elwood, Russell Lawrence, Thomas Leggett, Washington A. F. DR. TIPPLE SPEAKS ON ITALY'S NEEDS

Speaking at Wesley Methodist church, Belleville, Thursday night, Rev. Dr. Bertrand M. Tipple, pastor of the American Methodist church at Rome, told of the religious situation in Italy, and especially in the Eternal City. Dr. Tipple became an international figure several months ago, following an invitation from him to Colonel Roosevelt to speak at his church.

The Vatican notified the former President that if he accepted the invitation he could not have an audience with the Pope. Roosevelt went neither to the church nor the Vatican.

Dr. Tipple made no reference Thursday night to the incident further than to say in a general interest to discuss the methods of his church at Rome; that the matter had passed beyond the limits of his charge and was before the bishops of the church. He declared that Italy was menaced today by irreligiousness; that the Catholic church was fast losing its membership, and that a great opportunity was at hand for Protestanism.
